CITY BUNDLES UP FOR ITS COLDEST EASTER PARADE

Observes Tradition 1,911 Years Old.

Real wintry weather, calling for heavy overcoats even tho they hide the springtime finery of the traditional "parade," appeared likely today to give Chicago its coldest Easter Sunday on record.

Forecaster G. E. Dunn predicted last night that the mercury probably would dip to a morning low of 6 to 10 degrees above zero. He said optimistically, however, that there ought to be sunshine, with a rise in temperature later to 23 above.

And Chicago isn't shivering alone. The frigid wave extends over much of the country.

City Holds to Traditions.

But cold or no cold, Chicagoans prepared to carry on with traditional ceremonies the long Easter procession which began 1,911 years ago when Mary Magdalene, and Mary, the mother of James and Salome, made their sad way to the Savior's tomb, carrying their embalming spices. They found the tomb open, and saw a young man in a long white robe seated inside the tomb, as St. Mark tells the story.

"Be not affrighted," said the young man to the women. "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified; He is not here, behold the place where they laid Him . . . tell His disciples and Peter that He goeth before you into Galilee."

[Stories on Easter in Washington, D. C., in Germany, France, Italy, England, the Balkans and other European countries will be found on other pages of today's Tribune.]

Many Chicago churches were crowded with worshippers before dawn today. All prepared to accommodate record atendances thruout later services.

Paraders Are Philosophical.

Some of the habitual Easter paraders, preparing to display their finery in the city and in the suburbs, took the philosophic view that the weather could be worse—rain, for instance. And from reports of loop and outlying stores, Chicagoans did not let the weather discourage their tastes for new clothes. All stores were packed yesterday.

Chicago's coldest previous Easter was in 1894, when the temperature dropped to 13 above.

Barring unforeseen changes in the weather, the usual Easter parade will be held by the Chicago commandery of the Knights Templar.

Five hundred uniformed knights will parade in Michigan avenue from South Water street to Erie street between 2 and 3 p. m. and another 200 knights of the Humboldt Park commandery will parade on the northwest side, starting at 2:30 p. m. from 2410 Kedzie boulevard.

Parks Open Flower Shows.

In thousands of homes there will be the usual family dinners and reunions and the gay hunts for Easter eggs. During the last few days the park district has sponsored egg hunts in parks, and yesterday it opened the flower shows in the Garfield park and Lincoln park conservatories.

One of the earliest Easter services scheduled was the annual sunrise service in Soldiers' field.

At Holy Name cathedral the Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, Catholic archbishop of Chicago, will celebrate the solemn pontifical Easter mass at noon. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago will be the Easter preacher at the 9:30 and 11:30 a. m. festival eucharists at St. Luke's pro-cathedral in Evanston. Dr. Dudley Scott Stark will preach the Easter sermon at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church, 1424 North Dearborn street. Seven Easter services were to be held in North Austin Lutheran church.

[Easter announcements of churches of all denominations will be found in the Metropolitan sections of THE TRIBUNE.]

This Egg Hunt All Over Before Its Starting Hour

Harrisburg, Pa., March 23 (AP).—The best laid egg plans sometimes don't hatch. Members of a Moose lodge braved sub-freezing cold today to plant 3,600 Easter eggs on the Pennsylvania capitol grounds for a children's egg hunt. Half an hour before the scheduled go signal 3,000 children broke thru the lines of spectators and began eating eggs as fast as they found them. By the time Mayor Howard E. Milliken arrived the egg hunt was all over.

LEADS TRIBUNE STRAW CANVASS IN DOWNSTATE

Roosevelt Slightly Ahead in Chicago.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

THE TRIBUNE announces this morning the first result of a straw vote which is being taken among Republican and Democratic primary voters both in Cook county and in downstate Illinois. The poll is being conducted by 110 canvassers—the largest number ever employed by this newspaper for that purpose.

It embraces the candidates in both parties for the presidential preference primaries, for governor and United States senator and—in Cook county—the candidates for state's attorney.

The most interesting feature of the early tabulations was the strength shown by Thomas E. Dewey, New York's gang busting prosecutor who is a Republican candidate for President, compared with the vote President Roosevelt was getting on the Democratic side. In Chicago, where the regular Democratic organization has its chief strength, the vote was close, with Roosevelt in the lead. Downstate, in the first day's results of the poll, Dewey was well ahead.

14,733 Ballots Tabulated.

A total of 14,733 ballots were tabulated last night. They were collected by 80 men who canvassed in Chicago, and 6 squads of 5 men each touring the state from Waukegan to Cairo.

The big interest in the preferential vote on presidential candidates was evident from the start. The names of Roosevelt and Vice President John N. Garner head the straw vote Democratic ballots. Dewey's name heads the Republican ballot—he is the only G. O. P. candidate in the presidential preference vote.

With no contest in the Republican party and with the Democratic machine backing Roosevelt in the Roosevelt-Garner contest, little interest had been expected. In fact, THE TRIBUNE placed the names of the presidential candidates on the ballot merely to mark the top of the ticket, and with no expectation that the results would be newsworthy.

Dewey Vote Almost Solid.

Politicians were startled by the figures showing that Dewey, without any opponent, was polling almost as many straw votes as were cast for Republican offices for which there were contests. A dozen or so straw voters wrote in the names of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, and Senator Rogert A. Taft of Ohio, but the Dewey vote was almost solid.

President Roosevelt's name was placed on the official Illinois ballot without his written consent as required by law. Garner, with no organization, polled almost 10 per cent of the Democratic straws in Chicago; downstate he got almost 11 per cent.

This is regarded as quite a showing, inasmuch as the Democratic machine organizations both in Chicago and downstate are whooping it up for a third term for the President. Political leaders say that votes that go to Garner in the April 9 primary are almost sure to be Republican votes in November.

Most Straws from Chicago.

Naturally enough, in the process of taking the poll, about 79 per cent of

Woody Tosses Feathers—with Hens Attached

New York, March 23 (AP).—Whooping and roaring, a man dressed in Santa Claus costume topped with an Indian headdress rode a creaking wagon into Rockefeller Center today and tried to distribute 600 live chickens "in the interest of world peace."

"I'm Santa Claus from Santa Fe," he roared, "and I'm giving away chickens. Chickens with feathers on 'em. Peace! The whole world's going to have peace!"

Pedestrians in the plaza stopped. The crowd around the skating rink turned to the strange figure who grinned.

Admits He's Woody.

"I'm old Santa Claus from Santa Fe," he bellowed. "On the Q. T., tho, I'm old Woody Hockaday. Have a chicken, my friend."

He held out two birds, but spectators shied.

"Come on, my friends," he shouted. "Old Santa Claus' chickens won't bite you. Take one home for the kiddies. Any chickens today? The same old Santa Claus coming your way."

A policeman came over. Santa Claus tossed the chickens in the air. Then he opened a crate and freed some more. Then another crate. The chickens looked scared and dodged among the spectators.

Next Santa leaped from the wagon to the horse's back and turned west on 50th street, roaring his tidings of peace and chickens with the cop in pursuit.

Then—Another Scramble.

At 6th avenue he halted and began giving away more chickens. Men and women held out their hands. Kids scrambled into the wagon and seized chickens. Feathers flew. And finally the puffing cop arrived. Santa Claus shoved a chicken into his face.

Another policeman ran over.

"I'm just giving away chickens," shouted Santa Claus.

So they took him to the West 47th street police station.

The far famed Woody—he was booked by the gendarmes as Hockaday—was charged with cruelty to animals and sent to Bellevue hospital.

Woody has a feather checkered career. He has tossed them at Secretary of War Harry Woodring, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, a congressional committee, brokers of the Chicago Board of Trade, and others. Once he was beaten by secret service men when he raced up to President Roosevelt "to shine his shoes."

TOMORROW IS LAST DAY TO ANSWER VOTE SUSPECT WARNINGS

Tomorrow is the last day on which voters who have received suspect notices from the board of election commissioners may answer the notices and prove their right to vote in the April 9 primary. John Rusch, chief clerk for the board, said yesterday that only about 4,000 of the 216,000 suspect notices sent out by the board were answered last week.

These notices were sent out after all precincts in the city were canvassed by employés of the board. Citizens and party workers may file suspect notices with the board tomorrow and Tuesday. These notices will be sent out by the board and then must be answered by the suspected voter by next Saturday.

Danish Hunting Party Is Attacked by Airplane

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, March 23 (AP).—Members of a Danish hunting party reported they were machine gunned today by an unidentified airplane. The attack was made near Nymindegab, on the west coast, about 110 miles from the Danish-German frontier. No one was hit.

Sidney Takes In a Big City, or Vice Versa

Sidney Gabbe. That's his name. But you may call him Sidney. Or Gabbe. Or Sid. Or Gab. Never crabby—Sidney Gabbe. He can see the silver lining in the darkest cloud, Sidney Gabbe, and the welcome on your doormat when it's upside down.

Chicago received him with open arms when he arrived from New York. And altho Chicago was surprised to find herself clasping Sidney so warmly, she won't let him go now.

Hotel Makes Him Welcome.

First the Morrison hotel made him welcome, so welcome that it was with real regret and his suitcase that he departed when his bill reached $39. Then the Bismarck extended its hospitality on the same terms. Sidney Gabbe just couldn't leave Chicago.

He drove past a stop light at Chicago avenue and Oakley boulevard, hitting an automobile driven by John Radlinski of 727 North Racine avenue and injuring Radlinski's passenger, Benny Niewcerowski.

North avenue police invited Sidney Gabbe to stop with them. He accepted, since the bond was $100.

Lawyer Puts Up $75.

But S. Edward Bloom, attorney for the men Gabbe hit, said a police cell wasn't good enough for him. Bloom dug up $75 from his own pocket. Gabbe put up $25 and was out again.

Bloom's illusions were shattered when Gabbe failed to appear in court last Monday. He got an order for Gabbe's arrest. But no one could find Gabbe until Sergt. Thomas McDonald happened upon him yesterday—enjoying Warden Sain's hospitality at the county jail. Gabbe had been taken there by police, who said he was leav- the Bismarck and a $15 hotel bill.

"For everything I have received," Gabbe said, "from two hotels, Mr. Bloom and the warden, I am deeply grateful. This town has a big heart."

German Craft Flock Toward Trade Routes

LONDON, March 23 (AP).—The start of undersea warfare "on a scale undreamed of in the world war" within two weeks was declared probable by informed quarters in Britain today.

German submarines were reported filtering thru mine fields and British-French surface patrols into the North sea and Atlantic for a new wave of attacks on the British bread line that runs the breadth of the seven seas.

A large number of U-boats were reported just outside Norwegian waters yesterday and a German submarine commander was quoted by a Norwegian fishing captain as saying German underseas craft soon would be as thick as fishing smacks in the North sea.

Built During Winter.

Neutral naval officers in London said they believed "more than half" the new wave of submarines emerging from the Kiel canal into the North sea had been built this winter.

[Informed German sources asserted several weeks ago that the reich was building one submarine a day.]

Moreover, neutral officers asserted the crews probably were experienced and said that the almost general assumption in London that Germany is suffering a submarine crew shortage probably is wrong.

Informed quarters admitted that the wave of sinkings this week, when seven neutral merchantmen were sunk by submarines in two days, may prove to be the prelude to a general offensive under the seas.

Hardest Test for Navy.

The British navy faces its severest test so far of the war, they said. Nevertheless Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, and his chief aids were represented as confident Britain has the ships to throttle the attack, and enough submarines of her own to strike back hard at the principal sea road remaining open to Germany.

This route, from Scandinavia to Germany, over which the reich's ore ships carry iron for the Krupp and Skoda armaments forges, yesterday was the objective of a British attack for the first time in the war. The German ore carrier Heddernheim was torpedoed in the Kattegat off the Danish coast.

Britain Prepared to Resist.

While Germany may attempt to bring more submarines into action than in the world war, Britons said they are better prepared to resist. At the start of the war the royal navy had about 200 destroyers listed, besides special submarine chasers and other craft. Since then an extensive building program has added to this fleet.

The 29th week of the war ending today brought verified reports of 15 ship sinkings, including 10 neutrals. Denmark alone lost six vessels to German U-boat attacks. The new losses sent the known total for the war to 488 ships of 19 nations and the tonnage loss to 1,638,376.

Dutch Sight Foreign Planes.

AMSTERDAM, March 24, Sunday (AP).—Several foreign planes early today flew over three northeastern provinces of the Netherlands, Groningen, Friesland, and Drenthe. The planes were flying in a southwesterly direction.

Their presence was reported by a score of stations on guard against violations of Holland's territory. The first reports came shortly before midnight from the station at Winschoten, near the German frontier.

TOBEY HITS FOUR INSTRUCTIONS TO CENSUS TAKERS

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] tonight said the public is "becoming extremely apprehensive" over four points in instructions issued to census takers.

In a letter to W. L. Austin, census director, Tobey asked an explanation of instructions he said had been issued to the effect that enumerators had the right to enter all dwellings, that they were to fill in correct answers as nearly as they could ascertain them when they believed citizens had replied falsely, that they were to "call attention" to penalties when persons refused to answer, and that they were to obtain information from neighbors when householders were absent.

Before Tobey made public his letter, Dr. V. D. Reed, assistant census director, said that altho a 10 year old law gave enumerators "the right of admission to all dwellings," they would not force entry into any homes.

TRAIL RED CASH TO DEMOCRATS IN WASHINGTON

Linked with Deal for Big Soviet Navy.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—Confidential files of the Dies committee investigating un-American activities today yielded a story of international intrigue, which was linked with the wholesale distribution of thousand dollar bills to two Democratic politicians in Washington.

Chairman Dies.

The story was told partially last September by Sam Carp, brother-in-law of V. M. Molotov, premier of the soviet union, in testimony before the Dies committee. Since then the evidence gathered by Chairman Martin Dies and his committee has piled up steadily and now the entire incident can be related in detail.

The eventual "liquidation" of Molotov for his part in the deal is involved in the tale, according to a memorandum discovered by the investigating committee.

Bait Trap with Huge Fund.

Josef Stalin, soviet dictator, permitted Molotov's brother-in-law, Carp, to take hundreds of thousands of dollars in Russian funds to the United States for the purchase of battleship plans, airplanes, and other armaments. This was allowed by Stalin, according to the memorandum prepared by Joseph C. Dalinda of New York, associate of Carp, in order that a charge of misuse of public moneys might be lodged against Molotov at any time it became desirable to purge him from the soviet government.

The complete story of Carp's adventures, as revealed in the committee files, begins with his organization of the Carp Export and Import company, in 1936. The firm was formed to buy materials in the United States for export to Russia. It set up headquarters at 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Prospers in Business.

Carp had come to the United States from Russia in 1910. In 1914 he began the organization of a chain of gasoline filling stations in Connecticut. He achieved some degree of wealth and recently sold out his business.

When Carp heard that the influential Molotov had married Carp's sister in Russia, the wily little oil man believed he perceived a route to riches. On his first trip to Russia in 1934, he was unsuccessful in establishing the proper contacts, but in 1936 he was given orders to buy machinery and armaments totaling $100,000,000 by A. P. Rosengoltz, then purchasing agent for the soviets, who since has been purged.

Shop for Two Battleships.

The soviets were most interested in acquiring two 35,000 ton battleships. One of these warships was to be completed in the United States. The machinery and the parts for the second vessel were to be shipped to Russia for assembling there.

Carp said he brought back $100,000 in cash from Russia. His bank records showed that $328,578 had been deposited in cash to his personal account between August, 1937, and July, 1939. This was in addition to $585,000 deposited to the account of the Carp Export and Import company. The money all came from Russia, Carp testified, thru Amtorg, Russian trading corporation in New York City.

Rebuffed by Ship Builders.

Carp's troubles began when he sought to get plans drafted for the battleships. He hired Gibbs & Cox, prominent naval architects, to draw up the plans and he visited the Bethlehem and Midland Steel companies concerning the building of the ships. He encountered opposition when the companies learned that the ships were to be built for the soviet navy and was told that he must get the approval of the navy and state departments in Washington.

An additional complication developed when Gibbs & Cox produced plans for a 50,000 ton battleship, which, if constructed, would have given Russia the largest fighting vessel afloat. Protesting that a 35,000 ton ship was all that was wanted, Carp nevertheless paid the naval architects $25,000 and sent the plans to Russia for study.

Told Where to Spread Money.

In 1937 Carp had met Dalinda, a fellow Russian, who describes himself as an inventor and a buyer and promoter of patents. Dalinda professed to have important acquaintances in Washington.

When Carp went to Washington to seek the approval of the state department for the construction of soviet battleships in this country, Dalinda recommended him to Preston McGoodwin, former minister to Venezuela, and now employed as an assistant to Charles Michelson, publicity representative of the Democratic national committee.

McGoodwin was to get $100,000 if the permits went thru the state department. He was given a retaining fee of $5,000 and later was paid $20,000 in cash, mostly in thousand dollar bills. Of this $25,000 total, the evidence disclosed, he gave $12,500 to Dalinda.

Retains an Attorney.

Dalinda next advised Carp to hire an attorney and introduced him to Scott Ferris, a former congressman and Democratic national committeeman from Oklahoma. Ferris received a total of $32,000 from Carp, again for the main part in thousand dollar bills. Ferris gave $8,000 of this amount to Dalinda, who thus made a profit of $20,500 out of the two introductions.

A memorandum written by Dalinda said: "Scott Ferris, the national committeeman from Oklahoma, is employed by me on this particular job because he was together in congress with Hull [Secretary of State Cordell Hull] for 14 years and is a close friend of his for 30 years; also because he is exceptionally close to the President. . . ."

Another Dalinda memorandum told of the continued reluctance of the Bethlehem company to build the ship. The company had insisted that the state department was blocking the proposal.

Pressure on Bethlehem.

Dalinda's report to Carp read as follows:

"I immediately got in touch with my friends in Washington and Scott Ferris communicated at once with Secretary of State Hull, who called in Green [Joseph C. Green, chief of the office of arms and munitions control in the state department] . . ."

The report stated that the Bethlehem company was to be told that "it is the desire of the government that Bethlehem should take the order; there not only is no objection, but there is a distinct wish to that effect."

The shipbuilding companies nonetheless remained disinclined to accept the soviet contract.

"Civil War" in Capital.

Another letter in the committee's files, written by Ferris to Dalinda under date of Feb. 18, 1939, read as follows:

"Our Oklahoma papers portray the situation in Washington almost as civil war between the President and congress over the sale of anything to any foreign country.

"Perhaps this is a selfish view. I feel sure the President will win out in this, as I hope he will win out in Mr Carp's matter. Of course, whether it is opportune now to plunge into this Russian question, and how far Mr. Carp and his associates would stand up under fire and investigation of congress, I do not know. . . ."

Worry Over Chicago Speech.

A telegram from Ferris to Dalinda: "Have remained rather dormant on our matter due to fact that I thought it was smart not to stir it up until congress has legislation out of the way. Suggest that after adjournment of congress, we all meet in Washington and try to put matter over."

President Roosevelt's warlike Chicago speech in October, 1937, in which he spoke of "quarantining the aggressors" concerned those involved in the Carp deal. Ferris wired Dalinda: "Will war speech help us or hurt us?" Dalinda replied that "On the face of it, it seems the President's speech should be helpful."

The Carp petition was approved at one point, but the permission was canceled later, the evidence revealed. A memorandum taken from Dalinda's file stated that the state department's policy had been discussed at cabinet meetings.

Put Up to President.

"Secretary Hull presented the case to his superior," the memorandum read. "As a result of this, the matter was discussed at several cabinet meetings. The state department and proper navy authorities were advised and later instructed to give all possible assistance to advance your [Carp's] plans in connection with the building of a naval ship for the U. S. S. R.

"Mr. T. ascertained everything from the big chief himself, as also from all the other high authorities."

Dalinda said "Mr. T." probably was Alexander Troyanovsky, former Russian ambassador to the United States, and that "the big chief" was Mr. Roosevelt.

Named in Story of Soviet Deal for American Arms

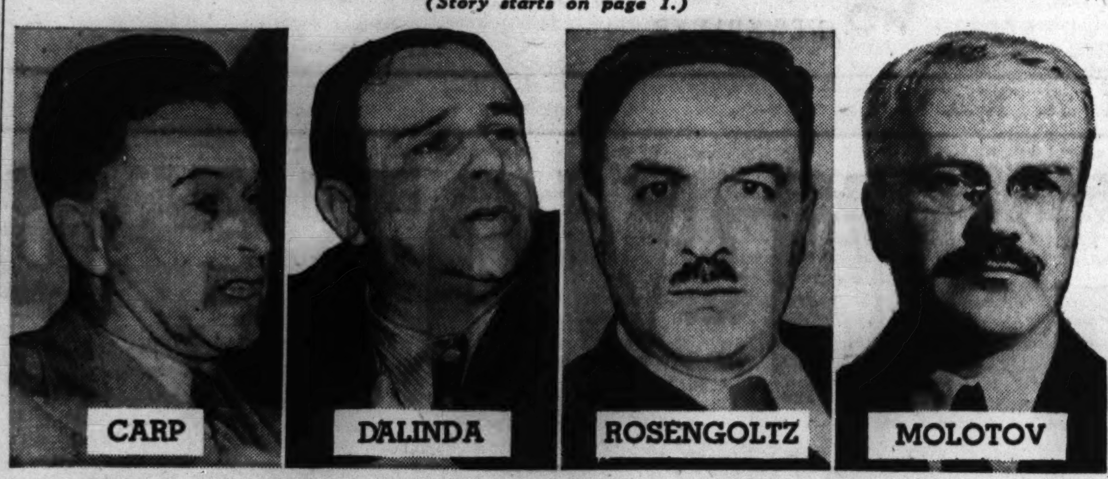

Figures in Dies committee disclosures of soviet Russia's deal to buy American arms (above) are: Sam Carp, brother-in-law of soviet premier; Joseph Z. Dalinda of New York; A. P. Rosengoltz, former purchasing agent for Russia, and Premier Vyacheslav Molotov.

NYE SEES IDEAS OF ROOSEVELT IN CROMWELL TALK

Warns of War Peril in Such Speeches.

New York, March 23 (AP).—Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] told a town hall audience today that James H. R. Cromwell's speech in Toronto last Tuesday, in which the American minister to Canada praised the British-French empires and denounced Germany, was "a reflection of President Roosevelt's thoughts and ideas and a reflection of the thoughts and ideas of the government in Washington."

"If we have more Cromwells spouting from day to day," Senator Nye said, "pretty soon we will start cheering at the thought of going into war again to save democracy.

Can Keep Us Out of War.

"We can keep America out of war, but not by trying to see how close we can get to foreign flames without burning ourselves; not by spouting such official voices as the Cromwells bring into play; not by repealing arms embargoes to aid one side and injure another; not by selling instruments of war; not by basing our economy on a possible war trade; not by withholding representations from certain lands; not by calling names and doing those things which so obviously show up to be bitterly partisan in a foreign war."

It is not a compliment to the American people, Senator Nye continued, but it is nevertheless true "that our determination to stay out of war now is based on the fact that the allies didn't pay their war debts."

White House Denial.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 23.—The White House today issued a formal denial that President Roosevelt knew in advance of the controversial pro-empire speech which James H. R. Cromwell, American minister to Canada, made this week in Toronto.

The denial was prompted by a story published in the New York Mirror yesterday that the President had advance knowledge of the speech.

In New York, Cromwell, in the first statement he has made since the controversy developed, declared the speech was "made entirely on my own responsibility," and denied that President Roosevelt had any advance knowledge of its contents.

Cromwell, the husband of Doris Duke, one of the world's richest women, brought a storm over his head thru the speech which berated Germany and praised the aims of the British and French governments. His remarks to a Canadian group were considered highly unneutral for the representative of a neutral nation, and drew an unprecedented public reprimand from Secretary of State Cordell Hull after demands in congress that Cromwell be recalled or impeached.

There are growing indications, however, that Cromwell will resign and stake his political future on candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States senator from New Jersey.

2,500 Expected at Spring Home Furnishings Market

About 2,500 representatives of the home furnishings industry are expected to attend the national spring home furnishings show April 29 to May 4 in the American Furniture Mart, officials said yesterday. The prediction, it was announced, was based on an "encouraging outlook" and an increase in market attendance during 1939.

HERSHEY PLEDGES AID TO FARMERS AT BLOOMINGTON

Bloomington, Ill., March 23 [Special].—A plea for the agricultural vote of Illinois was made here tonight by Harry B. Hershey, Democratic candidate for governor, in the county seat of McLean county, center of one of the richest farming regions of the nation.

"I know you farmers must be more prosperous if the country is to attain greater prosperity," he said. "I am in favor of all constructive methods of agriculture. I always will support sound measures to insure the continued and increasing welfare of the farmer. First I am a lawyer, but secondly I am a farmer. What wealth I have consists of Illinois farm land."

Mr. Hershey also pledged support toward the complete electrification of rural communities. Referring to his endorsement by organized labor, he declared "the voice of labor will continue to be heard and heeded in Springfield when I am governor. I have been associated with miners at Taylorville and have a first hand knowledge of their problems." I have observed the progress of labor toward the realization of its rights and have seen its achievements under Roosevelt and Horner. It shall continue to progress during my administration."

G. O. P. CAMPAIGN HUMS ON A HIGH NOTE OF VICTORY

Leading Candidates Tell of Hopeful Reports.

Victory was the keynote all along the Republican campaign front yesterday.

Housewives and clubwomen gathered in the Hotel Sherman to hear Wayland Brooks and Richard J. Lyons, running mates for the Republican nominations, respectively, for United States senator and governor. In an adjacent room a group of ward committeemen and country town precinct committeemen supporting the same candidates waited to report that Brooks and Lyons would win in Cook county by a large vote when the primary returns are in April 9.

Congressman Ralph E. Church, the other Republican candidate for senator, was meeting at his headquarters with his campaign committees and was also being assured of victory. Dwight H. Green, seeking the G. O. P. nomination for governor, was downstate, but his Cook county manager, John Dempsey, listened in La Salle hotel headquarters to reports indicating a Green victory.

Few Talk About Opponents.

It was the same at all Republican headquarters: hopes of victory in the primary; certainty of Republican victory in the November election. Few of the Republican candidates were talking about their primary opponents. The campaigns of all were directed against Democratic waste, Democratic inefficency, Democratic misrule.

Candidate Brooks told the 500 women in the Louis XIV. room at the Sherman, where Mrs. Mabel Krutckoff was chairman, that they should be thankful their Easter parade leads to churches of their own choosing and not dugouts.

"Yet, even in America, few churches are being built today," Brooks added. "The explanation is that hidden taxes now take 28 cents of every dollar, instead of the 5 cents formerly taken. The remedy lies in Republican victory."

The women were taking an active part in the Lyons crusade against the Illinois sales tax on food.

Charges Waste of Taxes.

"I have reports showing that $87,000,000 in sales tax was collected in the last calendar year," Lyons told the women, "of which only $47,775,000 was used for relief. The rest was used for an assortment of other purposes, including the reckless, shameful waste of the state administration—waste for which you pay every time you buy food."

Congressman Church told his ward and district leaders he was pleased with the growth of his downstate organization. Every county is now well organized, he said.

"The alert and good citizen can win this campaign and put a halt to the extravagances, shoddy political morality, and dissipation of our national welfare," Church said, "by voting Republican."

Manager Dempsey said Green's campaign for the gubernatorial nomination will be under way every minute in the two weeks left. Green has a dozen broadcasts planned, some of which will go all over the state, and there will be ward activities up to the limit of Green's ability to reach them.

Describes Democrats' Campaign.

Richard Yates Rowe, candidate for the Republican nomination for secretary of state, said the Democratic campaign is between one group which is telling people how honest it is and another group yelling "crooks," "bosses," and "Noodelmanism."

Gen. John V. Clinnin, candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, issued a statement concerning a suit filed by his rival, State Representative Arnold Lund, to test the validity of state appropriations. Clinnin said Lund should have opposed the appropriations at the time of their passage. A third candidate for the same nomination, Hugh Cross, speaker of the house, said State Director of Finance S. L. Nudelman was responsible for the preparation of the bills under attack.

Judge Oscar Nelson, candidate for the Republican nomination for state's attorney, devoted an entire speech to an attack on the national Democratic administration.

KANKAKEE PIONEER IS 98.

Kankakee, Ill., March 23 [Special].—Mrs. Clarinda Beebe Russell of Kankakee will observe her 98th birthday tomorrow. She was born in a log cabin five miles east of here and is one of the oldest residents of the county. She recalls going down to the Kankakee river bank to watch wild deer which came there to drink.

SENATOR TAFT WARNS NEW DEAL MAY SOON LEAD U. S. INTO WAR

Danville, Ky., March 23 (AP).—United States Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, avowed candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, tonight declared voters face a choice of returning the Republican party to power or risking the chance that "the next great New Deal experiment may be entrance into the European war."

Concluding a two day speaking tour in Kentucky, Taft made clear his belief in a policy of military isolation.

"The sentiment of our people is for peace," he said. "That was proved in the case of the arms embargo issue last fall. The senate has many peculiarities, I have found, but its longwindedness has one great advantage—the people get a chance to let their wishes be felt."

He listed several measures placed before congress to increase the President's powers. "In that direction lies the opposite of democracy," he said.

FATHER OF 3 DRUGGISTS DIES.

Rankin, Ill., March 23 [Special].—Frank X. Kamerer, 72 years old, resident of this vicinity for more than 45 years, died today in a Watseka hospital. His three sons operate drug stores in the University of Illinois business district in Champaign and Urbana. He is also survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. Norvan Petersen, of Hoopeston. Funeral will be Tuesday.

EXPECT DEWEY G. O. P. RALLY TO BREAK RECORDS

Leonard C. Reid, Chicago manager of the campaign of Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican presidential nomination, predicted yesterday that the reception for Dewey next Thursday evening in the Chicago Stadium will probably be the greatest Republican rally ever held in Chicago. All factions of the party are united to extend Dewey a welcome, he said after a meeting in his office.

On the committee of arrangements and present at the meeting yesterday were Hill Blackett, Republican national committeeman for Illinois; Bertha Baur, national committee woman; Edward F. Moore, Republican county chairman; A. K. Stiles, G. O. P. state chairman, representatives of the party's gubernatorial and senatorial candidates, and other Republican leaders.

Dewey will arrive in the Union station at 1:53 p. m. Thursday from St. Louis, Mo., after making brief appearances en route at Alton, Springfield, Lincoln, Bloomington, and Joliet. In the afternoon, at the Palmer House, he will meet candidates for delegates to the Republican convention. The program at the Stadium will start at 8 p. m.

Democrats Fail to Enforce Law in Chicago, Green Says

Belleville, Ill., March 23 [Special].—Dwight W. Green, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, assailed the alliance of crime and politics in a campaign speech tonight in the St. Clair county courthouse here. He said:

"Give me the opportunity to finish the job I started in Illinois 10 years ago and I guarantee you that job will be finished. Nominate me for governor and give me the opportunity again to meet at the polls the ruthless, corrupt political machine which spent $4,000,000 to win the mayoralty election last April in Chicago.

"I have fought the criminals and I have fought the corrupt machine. Victory is near.

Demands Law Enforcement.

"The worst gang of killers this or any country has ever known existed in Chicago when we started that fight. We broke up the gang and sent its leaders to prison. Today we are fighting an even greater menace, a combined political and underworld machine which fastened its grip on the entire state. The machine must be destroyed. The weapon of destruction is your vote."

Green referred to his prosecution of gangsters when he was assistant United States district attorney under George E. Q. Johnson, and later when he himself was United States district attorney at Chicago.

In a speech in O'Fallon earlier today Green declared that a "jail minded" New Deal, with "foreign ideas" of mass regimentation and centralized control, is responsible for the breakdown of law enforcement in Chicago and Springfield, where federal agencies have stepped in to usurp local rights.

"What has happened to the indictments that were threatened against the Kelly-Nash machine and the statehouse gang at Springfield?" he asked.

"Why has the indictment of the Chicago gambling syndicate dragged on for more than a year?

Promises Prompt Action.

'The Pendergast machine in Kansas City and the Long machine in New Orleans were destroyed, but the Kelly-Nash machine and its Springfield associates seem to be immune to the investigations threatened by the federal law enforcement agencies."

"If I am elected governor of Illinois, Green said, "I promise you that when law enforcement breaks down or cannot cope with the situation, the state will not hesitate to step in and perform the job without assistance from Washington. Nor will the alliance between the criminals and politicians protect either from the laws of the state of Illinois."

Green said New Dealers have created a new classification for crimes.

"They have used the threat of jail against business organizations and private citizens alike for failure to live up to the regulations and edicts of the horde of bureaus and agencies created under the New Deal," he asserted.

GLAMOR GIRL? BEST NOT SAY IT TO MRS. GREEN

Her Main Interests Are Dwight and Children.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Mrs. Dwight H. Green used to call her husband "Pete." Now she simply calls him "Candidate." As he goes out the door speechward bound, she says wistfully, "Good-by, candidate. Call me sometime, will you?"

Mabel Kingston Green is pretty sad about it all. She loves her home and her private life. Yet at the same time she wants her husband to attain what he wants—at present, the Republican nomination for governor.

Mrs. Green is taking no part at all in the campaign, other than that of radio audience, but she can't get it out of her mind. She worries. About her husband's voice, which has been hoarse for two weeks. About the thrusts his opponents direct at him—thrusts which she declares are "malicious." About the fact that he is at home in Chicago only two days a week and that of those two days, he can devote only two hours—Sunday evening dinner—to her.

Prefers a Governor to Mayor.

"There had been so much talk of it," she said, of his campaign for the governorship, "that I don't believe I was surprised when he started. I'd much rather see him be governor than mayor.

"I hate to give up our privacy. I enjoy our home, but now that he is running for governor I certainly want him to win. The children keep asking me how many rooms there are in the executive mansion at Springfield. I'm sure I don't know. They wonder if they can have a bedroom apiece. That is their great hope."

Some one recently called Mrs. Green the glamor girl of the Illinois campaign. This upset her. She insists she is without glamor. She wears red nail polish, yes, and her chestnut hair, falling in a fairly long bob, frames a young and pretty face, but essentially, she says, she is as devoid of glamor as a house slipper.

Family Is Her Main Interest.

She has large china blue eyes, fair, slightly freckled skin and a generous mouth, usually curved in a wide smile. Her voice is low, her words slow, and she talks readily only about [1] her husband and [2] their children, Nancy, who is 12, quiet and her own miniature, and Gloria, who will be 9 on March 31 and is turbulent and spirited, with the brown eyes of her father.

Gloria is campaigning in earnest. She emerged from dancing school Friday with a happy, "Well, mommy, I got another vote." Her mother simulated surprise. "Yes," Gloria continued, "from the maid. She is going to have her whole family vote for daddy."

Mrs. Green was born in St. Louis, but moved to New York as a child. She went to Washington in 1918 to work for the Farmers' and Mechanics' bank, and married Dwight Green in June, 1926, six month after she fell in love with his voice over the telephone.

Home Is Quietly Furnished.

They live now, as they have for seven years, in a quietly furnished seven room apartment at 3400 Lake Shore drive. Bits of the children jump out everywhere. An oil of Gloria dominates the cool, pale gray living room. A plaster head of Nancy as a baby rests on the hall table. A deep soft blue pottery vase Nancy made in school occupies a shelf of honor in the sunny, brown walled library. Three radios, two of them portable, are ready to bring the voice of Mr. Green home.

They always have lived a quiet life, she says. She likes bridge, but Mr. Green does not play. She plays "at" golf and swims well. She used to play the piano, but now, altho open, it goes untouched. She likes such books as "Gone With the Wind" and "Grapes of Wrath," and wishes she were a good knitter, but she isn't.

The only organized feminine activity she ever entered is the Arden Shore association. She has been active in it for several years and now is its benefit chairman.

Wants Elephant Charm.

She used to design her own clothes, but now she simply "buys one that fits." She dresses conservatively, but still as a thoro modern, usually in black, and wears little jewelry. She is very fond, however, of her charm bracelet, but disappointed in Mr. Green. He promised to give her a tiny gold elephant to add to the array of sentimental mementos that dangle from it. He promised this last year when he ran for mayor, and she still does not have it.

"I'll have it yet," she says, "if I can see him long enough."

GARNER CALLED LEADER IN FIGHT FOR LIBERALISM

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP). Making the first major campaign address for Vice President John N. Garner, Senator Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.] declared tonight that his fellow Texan had been one of the leaders in the New Deal fight for "greater liberalism."

This liberalism and Garner's 37 years' experience in the federal government, Sheppard declared, make him "the ideal successor to the presidency in 1940."

Sheppard, speaking on a national radio network, emphasized thruout his talk that Garner had a liberal record, declaring:

"When the history of the last seven years has been written, the crusade to achieve greater liberalism in government will list Garner among its outstanding leaders."

ACCUSED 'POLICY KING' SENTENCED FOR CONTEMPT

Detroit, Mich., March 23 (AP).—Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson, the one man grand jury investigating charges of collusion between law officers and law breakers, today sentenced Everett Watson, prize fight manager, to 60 days in jail for contempt of court and fined him $100.

Watson, portly Negro described by the prosecutor as a policy king, was reported to have refused to answer questions before the grand jury. He was arrested on a fugitive warrant in Chicago a month ago. He was the fourth grand jury witness to be sentenced by Judge Ferguson for contempt.

STEWART APPOINTED TO DIRECT SENATE'S WIRE TAPPING QUIZ

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—Senator Tom Stewart [D., Tenn.] today was appointed chairman of the special senate committee to investigate wire tapping, an inquiry which senators hinted would bring sensational disclosures.

Chairman Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] of the senate Interstate Commerce committee also appointed to the special committee Senators Sherman Minton [D., Ind.], H. H. Schwartz [D., Wyo.], Wallace H. White [R., Me.], and Chan Gurney [R., S. D.].

Stewart said he would call the committee together within a week, organize a staff including investigators, and open hearings, probably public, before this session of congress ends. He indicated that for the present no inquiry was contemplated into complaints of wire tapping by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

Finds His Pants Neatly Folded and Also Looted

When Jerry Kearns woke up yesterday in his home at 823 Garfield boulevard he knew somebody had been at his pants. He had tossed them carelessly over a chair on retiring, as is his habit, but when he got up he found them neatly folded. Kearns investigated and found that a burglar had walked off during the night with $69 and a check for $29.50 he had left in his pockets.

Mayor's Ex-Guard Better After Removal of Bullets

Police Sergt. Michael Curtin, former bodyguard of Mayor Kelly, was operated on yesterday in the Chicago hospital for removal of two bullets. He was shot March 8 while attempting to question Andrew Foster, colored, at 48th street and Drexel boulevard. Dr. Andrew J. Toman, after removing bullets from the chest and left side, said Sergt Curtin was doing nicely. Foster has confessed the shooting and faces a charge of assault with intent to kill and two charges of robbery.

MACHINE TICKET CONTINUES VOTE DRIVE DOWNSTATE

Precinct Workers Here Handle Campaign.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The job of piling up a big vote in Chicago for the Slattery-Hershey Democratic slate will be left almost entirely to the precinct workers of the Nash-Kelly organization it was disclosed yesterday.

Morrison hotel headquarters announced that the two caravans of slate candidates, one headed by United States Senator James M. Slattery and the other by Harry B. Hershey, candidate for governor, will continue their downstate electioneering until next Saturday night. This leaves only the final week of the campaign for them to make the rounds of Chicago's 50 wards and the 30 townships in the suburbs in Cook county.

Windup Here to be Short.

This is the first time in history since Chicago grew up, it was said, that a major group of state candidates has cut the windup in the metropolis so short. In some campaigns the last four weeks of activity has centered around Chicago. Never in the past, it was said, have less than two weeks been set aside for this concluding drive in the area where votes are the thickest.

The reasons for the new policy were found in reports that Mayor Kelly and National Committeeman P. A. Nash told the candidates and the downstate Horner organization the regular workers in Chicago and its suburbs will do everything required until the last week. Then the entire slate will come in to the city. Since it will be impossible for them to speak in all wards and townships in seven or eight days a massmeeting may be held in the Chicago Stadium at which all will speak.

Confident of Machine Workers.

That the confidence in the Chicago precinct workers is general was indicated in a statement issued by Martin J. O'Brien, a Horner lieutenant, who is in charge of the house to house canvassing this year. O'Brien, a former county chairman and a veteran in this sort of work, said that 75 per cent of the precincts in Cook county already have been canvassed.

"There is incontrovertible evidence," read his statement, "that President Roosevelt and the candidates of the regular organization will carry Cook county by close to a 450,000 majority."

For this week, downstate, the Hershey caravan's schedule calls for 25 meetings starting at Clinton tomorrow afternoon and ending at Quincy Saturday night.

The Slattery group is expected to attend 30 meetings beginning at Gillespie tomorrow morning and winding up at Belleville Saturday night.

Stelle to Join Teammates.

Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, heading the Democratic insurgent ticket as candidate for governor, will join his two associates, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett and Benjamin S. Adamowski, candidate for United States senator, in Chicago on Tuesday. They will begin their round of Chicago and country town meetings Wednesday night.

Adamowski made a radio talk last night but, since it was Easter eve, he avoided partisan matters and devoted himself to patriotic topics, one of them the necessity for avoiding foreign entanglements.

BILL TO REDUCE BUREAU POWER IS SIDETRACKED

Democratic Leaders Block Action by Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Adolph J. Sabath.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—The Democratic leadership in congress, it was learned today, is determined to prevent any action at this session on the Walter-Logan bill to curb the powers of federal boards and agencies.

This measure was given right of way to the house floor by the rules committee more than six weeks ago. Representative E. E. Cox [D., Ga.] forced the rules committee action on Feb. 7 and intended to press for early action on the measure. He eventually yielded, however, to the pleas of Majority Leader Sam Rayburn and did not insist upon immediate consideration of the measure.

Under Sabath's Thumb.

Control of the bill was passed over to Chairman Adolph J. Sabath [D., Ill.] of the rules committee. He has kept the rule on the bill in his pocket. The popular pun in the house these days is that the Walter bill is being "Sabathaged." The bill cannot reach the floor unless Sabath calls it up.

The administration, from President Roosevelt down, is opposed to consideration of the bill. It passed the senate last year but was hastily called back for reconsideration at the suggestion of Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.] when its dangers to burocratic domination became apparent.

Provisions of Measure.

The measure provides: That administrative rules must be issued within one year after enactment of the statute upon which they are based; that they must be issued only after public notice and hearings; that the federal court of appeals for the District of Columbia shall have authority to determine whether any rule is in conflict with the constitution or the statute under which it was issued. Other regulations are provided to give individuals an increased opportunity to appeal from decisions of New Deal agencies.

Garner Slate Qualifies for California Primary

Sacramento, Cal., March 23 (AP).—More than enough signatures to qualify Garner delegates on the May 7 presidential primary ballot were filed with the secretary of state today. A slate of delegates, having the support of Gov. Culbert Olson and former Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, already has been filed in favor of a third term for Roosevelt.

DEWEY POLLING HEAVY VOTE IN TRIBUNE CANVASS

Roosevelt Slightly Ahead in Chicago.

the straw ballots on the first day's tabulation are from Democratic Chicago and only about 21 per cent from downstate which went Republican two years ago by 53.5 per cent. This Republican percentage is exclusive of the Cook county towns, which also went Republican by 60 per cent—this in the senatorship race between Senator Scott Lucas and Richard J. Lyons. Straws from the Cook county towns are not in the first day's poll.

Downstate, Dewey got 55.65 per cent of all straw votes marked for President. In Chicago Roosevelt got 51.67 per cent.

The poll, of course, seeks merely to gauge sentiment at this time on the major contests within the Republican and Democratic primaries April 9. No Republicans are running against Democrats—it is not a general election, but two separate party primaries.

At the same time it cannot be ignored that the comparative number of straw votes marked by Republicans and Democrats may be indicative of political trends as between the two great parties. Folks are just invited to step up and vote a straw ballot for candidates on the ticket of only one party. Since it is a primary there are no split tickets.

The first day's poll in Chicago gave the following number of straw votes on presidential preference in the two parties:

Democratic—Roosevelt	5,891
Garner	635
Republican—Dewey	4,875

As a possible comparison of tendency, it gave a total of 11,401 votes, of which Roosevelt had 51.67 per cent; Garner, 5.57 per cent; Dewey, 42.76 per cent.

Downstate the straw votes divided as follows:

Democratic—Roosevelt	1,190
Republican—Dewey	1,673

Of these 3,006 votes Roosevelt had 39.59 per cent; Garner, 4.76; Dewey, 55.65. It seems to indicate, if nothing else, that downstate Illinois is exhibiting the same trend it did in 1938, while Chicago is still Democratic, and that after the party tickets are made up, the test in November may again be between Chicago and downstate.

The first day's poll of 14,733 straws, out of a possible 4,000,000 votes as indicated by the total cast in Illinois in the presidential election of 1936, may be changed in percentages as later straws come in.

Some Interesting Projections.

Not by way of forecasting November results, but to indicate what the poll thus far shows in trends, a few figures are interesting.

If the percentages and trends indicated in the straw poll continue into the general election, and if Dewey is the Republican nominee, the ratios indicate considerably more Republican strength than in 1938. Two years ago Lyons carried downstate and the country towns and was defeated by Senator Lucas by the Democratic vote rolled up in Chicago.

Applying the straw poll percentages given Roosevelt and Dewey to the vote cast in 1936, the projection indicates the following comparative strength, exclusive of the Cook county country towns.

	Chicago.	Downstate.	Total.
Roosevelt....	898,993	789,234	1,688,227
Dewey.......	743,903	1,109,788	1,853,691

This would indicate Dewey is stronger than Roosevelt as a candidate in Illinois by 165,000. But, as mentioned before, later straws may change the figures.

2 BANDITS RAID SHOP; COW NINE; FLEE WITH $750

Two bandits with handkerchief masks held possession of the Leeds, Inc., women's apparel shop at 222 North Michigan avenue for 10 minutes yesterday. They waited until the arrival of the woman cashier, forced her to open the safe and give them the $750 it contained, and then fled with a blonde woman who had waited outside in their car.

The bandits entered in wild west fashion, waving their guns and demanding that Benjamin Green, president of the concern, open the safe. They threatened to shoot when Green said he did not know the combination.

The nine employés, eight of them women, convinced the robbers that only Cleo Coleman, colored cashier, could unlock the safe. The robbers then stood guard over their victims until Miss Coleman arrived.

SEIZE CHICAGOAN IN UTAH; CHARGE BRIBERY SCHEME

Assertions that "higherups in Chicago" were behind an alleged plot to establish a slot machine-punchboard monopoly in Utah were made yesterday by that state's attorney general, Joseph Chez. The statement was issued after Irwin R. Secor, a salesman for the Blackhawk Manufacturing company, 1821 Berteau avenue, had been arrested on a charge of passing a $100 bribe to an investigator for Chez.

The attorney general said a proposal to pay $2,000 a month for the monopoly had been made and that the $100 was an "advance payment." Secor was held in bonds of $5,000.

Gerald Scanlan, 5324 Woodlawn avenue, sales manager for Blackhawk, scoffed at the charges. He described Secor as a "good, clean kid" who sold calendars and paper novelties as well as punchboards.

"I can't make any sense out of this," he said. "Secor gets a small salary and pays his own expenses. There isn't any big money in punchboards in Utah. We're trying to arrange bail for Secor because we believe he's innocent."

CLEANING SHOP ROBBED.

A bandit took $50 from a cleaning shop at 4056 Milwaukee avenue yesterday. Then he locked the manager, Miss Teresa Beebe, 21 years old, in a rear room. She pounded on the wall until a passerby heard her and released her.

Babe in Arms, She Trails Erring Mate; Shoots Him

Hazard, Ky., March 23 (AP).—Mrs. Georgia Miller, 27 year old mountain wife, and her 5 week old daughter, Lou Caroline, were in jail here today, the mother charged with shooting her husband, Sam Miller, 29. Deputy Sheriff Bill Cornett said the woman told him she learned last night her husband was in a roadhouse with another woman. Carrying Lou Caroline and a rifle in her arms, she trudged two miles to the tavern, handed the baby to some one, and then shot her husband. Miller is in a critical condition.

MAP NEW DEWEY TOUR OF ILLINOIS AND WISCONSIN

Speaks in Milwaukee and Chicago This Week.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 23.—Thomas E. Dewey, campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination, will take another swing thru the middle west next week, his efforts focussed on the preferential primaries in Wisconsin on April 2 and in Illinois on April 9.

Accompanied by his wife, the New York district attorney will arrive in St. Louis on Wednesday morning. There he will be joined by his campaign manager, J. Russel Sprague.

Dewey will speak there Wednesday night under auspices of the Missouri state Republican central committee. The following night he will deliver an address at the Chicago Stadium.

During the Thursday forenoon train ride to Chicago, there will be stops at Springfield, Lincoln, Bloomington, and Joliet, where the candidate will make brief platform appearances.

20 Stops in Wisconsin.

In Wisconsin on Friday and Saturday, Dewey will visit 20 cities. The eastern section of the state will be toured on Friday with a dinner meeting and address in Milwaukee that evening. A tour of the western and southern sections of the state will follow the next day. Dewey will leave Chicago for New York on Sunday afternoon.

The contest in Wisconsin is regarded as crucial because there the young racket busting prosecutor and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg will be pitted against each other. It will be the first primary in which the outcome will be binding on delegates. In Illinois, where Dewey is unopposed, his supporters are interested only in turning out a large vote.

Confident of Victory.

Dewey-for-President headquarters here announced that reports from Wisconsin show a strong trend in sentiment for the New York district attorney. The Dewey camp expressed optimism over the results despite reports that Senator Vandenberg has assurances of aid from Senator Robert M. La Follette and his brother, former Gov. Philip F. La Follette, leaders of the Progressive party.

Since the Wisconsin preferential primary is a wide open affair, the state's election law permits any qualified voter to vote in the primary of any party.

Sprague declared his confidence that Dewey will win in both the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries. The latter will be held on April 9.

Pumps Life into Party.

"The most constructive program before the American people is that which gradually has been developed by Mr. Dewey during the last three and a half months," asserted Sprague. "Each of the seven outstanding addresses he has delivered has fallen into its natural place in that program. Mr. Dewey's addresses have been the ringing declarations of this campaign.

"Mr. Dewey has been a leading factor in giving the Republican party a fresh outlook. He has knocked out defeatism. He has shown, in fact, that defeatism over America's future is the exclusive possession and dominating philosophy of the New Deal. He has analyzed issues with the greatest candor. His meetings everywhere have inspired extraordinary enthusiasm and have added immeasurably to the strength of the party as well as to his own strength as a candidate.

During the latter half of April Dewey will make a tour to the Pacific coast, with speaking engagements scheduled in various states.

8 Horner Aids File Answer to Suit Over 2% Slush Fund

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 23.—Defendants, eight high appointees of Gov. Henry Horner, filed their answer today in a suit for an accounting of the 2 per cent political slush fund. They asked dismissal of the camplaint and for dissolution of a temporary injunction which is tying up about $200,000 in Democratic campaign money. A hearing is set for Tuesday before Judge L. E. Stone.

The defendants, headed by Director of Finance Samuel L. Nudelman, contend that the battle over levies on the salaries of state employés is an internal Democratic party quarrel, in which the court has no jurisdiction. They infer that the litigation is brought in behalf of the ticket headed by Lieut. Gov. John Stelle to embarrass the Horner-Nash-Kelly ticket headed by Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville.

Smith Inquest Next Week.

F. Lynden Smith, who died mysteriously in a hospital bathroom here on March 9 after a reported suicide attempt, was one of the original defendants in the suit. Today Coroner W. L. Dragoo announced that an inquest into Smith's death probably will be opened next week "at a date most convenient for all of the witnesses."

Inheritance tax investigators for Attorney General John Cassidy were reported this afternoon to be sorting papers and records left by Smith as state director of public works and —more important—as former Horner campaign manager.

Speaker of the House Hugh W. Cross, highest ranking Republican official in the state, charged in a statement released from his headquarters here this afternoon that the slush fund litigation is a sham.

Both Sides Afraid.

"Neither side wants a real accounting that would expose what was done with this tax money," said the statement. "It is indeed tax money, appropriated by the legislature for salaries, but diverted to the perpetuation in office of a political party.

"One faction, headed by Stelle, wants to enjoin any expenditure of this kitty by the other faction during the primary. The other side, headed by Hershey, wants to release the money before the April primary election. Both sides are afraid of the stink that would be raised by a court accounting. Both sides will want to kiss and make up after the primary election."

The defendants in the case besides Nudelman are William J. Walsh, Horner patronage boss; Homer Matt Adams, assistant finance director and candidate for state treasurer; John T. Casey, Horner's traveling secretary; John J. Donoghue, director of state printing; James McSherry, director of the bureau of mines and minerals; and Harold J. Taylor and James V. Cornwall of the Illinois commerce commission.

DITCHBURNE WILL HOLD OPEN HOUSE FOR SUPPORTERS

Harry S. Ditchburne, candidate for the Republican nomination for state's attorney, will hold open house in his headquarters on the 5th floor of the La Salle hotel tomorrow afternoon. Ditchburne said all interested in good government and the success of the Republican party, together with his own supporters, will be welcome.

Ditchburne's past record in the state's attorney's office has won him the support of numerous groups who have expressed a wish to meet him personally, and tomorrow's reception is arranged for that purpose, the candidate said.

Mrs. Elmer B. Jones, president of the West Suburban Republican Women's club, notified Ditchburne yesterday of the club's indorsement. Mrs. Corra M. Jackson, past president of the Woman's Republican Club of Illinois, sent notice of his indorsement by a federation of women's clubs of the 10th congressional district.

Ditchburne will speak at 9:30 a. m. today over radio station WHFC.

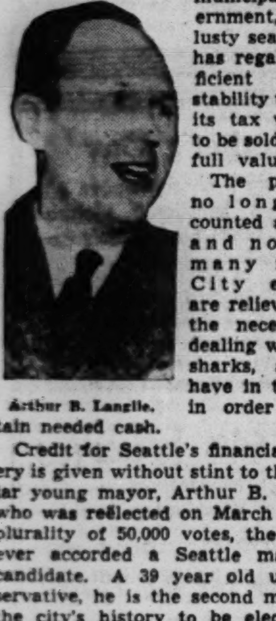
SEATTLE CLEANS HERSELF UP AND LEARNS IT PAYS

Anti-Goonism Mayor Gets the Credit.

Seattle, Wash., March 23 [Special]. For the first time in years of hectic municipal government, this lusty seaport city has regained sufficient financial stability to enable its tax warrants to be sold at their full value.



Arthur B. Langlie.

The paper is no longer discounted at banks and now has many markets. City employés are relieved from the necessity of dealing with loan sharks, as they have in the past, in order to obtain needed cash.

Credit for Seattle's financial recovery is given without stint to the popular young mayor, Arthur B. Langlie, who was reëlected on March 12 by a plurality of 50,000 votes, the largest ever accorded a Seattle mayoralty candidate. A 39 year old ultraconservative, he is the second mayor in the city's history to be elected for two terms.

A Turbulent Task.

When he took over the city reins two years ago, Seattle was wallowing in a mire of labor turmoil, radical uprisings, and municipal indebtedness. The city had become notorious as a battleground for jurisdictional wars between Dave Beck, political labor boss of Seattle, and the C. I. O. forces led by communist Harry Bridges.

A multitude of strikes tied up shipping and industrial activities, costing workers, employers, and noncombatant citizens hundreds of thousands of dollars. Racketeering was rampant in the milk, farm produce, laundry, and many other industries. A brewery strike of Beck's fighting teamsters' union was assailed by a Superior court judge as nothing short of anarchy.

Goonism flourished without abatement under the administration of former Mayor John F. Dore, dubbed Beck's Bad Boy, who gave labor leaders and their sluggers virtual carte blanche to run riot without fear of official interference.

Then, the Cleanup.

It was apparent that Seattle was ready for a clean government mayor and one was found in Langlie. Backed by good government groups, business men, and church people, he was swept into office by a huge vote and returned to his job by a bigger vote in the recent election.

Under Langlie's administration, the labor strife practically ended. Following his election in 1938, he warned he would "not stand for any rough stuff." He didn't, and there hasn't been any, at least none to compare with that of the Beck-Dore days.

Langlie's success in city finances resulted from his refinancing of the city debt, which was accomplished mainly by issuance of $3,500,000 of general bonds to refund outstanding general fund warrants of that amount.

The mayor also ordered budget cuts. He reduced the 1939 budget $600,000 under its 1938 figure and sliced it by $1,044,618 for 1940.

The greatest single project of Langlie's régime, however, was the modernization and rehabilitation of the city's transportation system.

NLRB TEST VOTE EXPECTED THIS WEEK IN HOUSE

Congressman Hurls Lobbying Charge.

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).— A test vote to show sentiment on proposals to curb activities of the National Labor Relations board is expected next week in the house.

Informed persons said today the test probably would come on Tuesday when Representative Howard W. Smith [D., Va.], chairman of the special committee investigating the board, tries to strike out all of a $69,600 fund for the board's economics division. The fund is included in a proposed $2,843,000 appropriation for NLRB.

The house appropriations committee has recommended a $45,900 reduction in the fund, to be applied against the salaries of economists in the economics division, which is headed by David Saposs. This recommendation was made when the committee approved a $954,000,000 appropriation bill for the 1941 needs of the department of labor, the Federal Security agency and related activities.

Committee Blasts Economics Division.

In its report on the bill to the house, the appropriations committee said: "No need exists for a division of economic research and it is expected that this section will be entirely eliminated."

The appropriations committee, however, did not recommend elimination of $23,700 for clerical and stenographic help in the economics division.

"We're going to see whether that $23,700 item can't be cut out, too," Smith said today, "thus eliminating all of the $69,600."

Saposs has been called before both the Smith committee and the Dies committee on un-American activities. He was questioned about complaints that some of his writings presented communistic ideas. He said the writings in question represented a summary of the views of others, not his own opinions.

Cox Charges Lobbying.

Representative E. E. Cox [D., Ga.], a critic of the board, charged that it was illegally lobbying against the proposed reductions in its appropriation. "Yesterday they sent out a lot of propaganda for the full appropriation," he said.

The labor board, replying to this charge, issued a formal statement saying that Chairman J. Warren Madden categorically denied that the board was lobbying in connection with the appropriation, and said that no employé of the board was doing so, as far as the board could learn.

Before the week is over, the house labor committee, which has recommended that two members be added to the present three member labor board, is expected to decide whether it will indorse other changes in the Wagner act.

The committee will incorporate all its proposed changes in one bill and attempt to take it before the house for a vote on all or nothing. The powerful rules committee may intervene, however, and ask the house to consider the more far reaching amendments proposed by the Smith committee.

CHICAGO TO SAVE $52,000 ON PAVING MATERIAL COSTS

Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said yesterday that lower paving prices in 1940 would save the citys bureau of streets about $52,000 based on the quantities used in 1939.

Hewitt displayed low bids on cement, sand, bricks, and limestone which had just been received. Last year, he said, torpedo sand was quoted at $1.20 a ton and this year at 97 cents. For the other materials the comparisons were: Cement, $2.62 a barrel and $2.31; gravel, $1.25 a ton and 75 cents; limestone dust, $3.88 and $2.59.

The commissioner added that prices had fallen enough in the last 30 days to save the city $13,000 from February quotations. No supplies have been purchased in March, the city holding off for the expected reduction.

WILKERSON WILL RESUME COURT DUTY THIS WEEK

Judge James H. Wilkerson is scheduled to return to the bench in federal district court here early this week, it was learned yesterday. He has been absent since December. A California vacation was prolonged first by his own illness and then by the illness of Mrs. Wilkerson.

Pending before the judge are numerous preliminary motions in the government's case against M. L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher and critic of the New Deal, and 19 codefendants charging income tax evasion and violation of the federal lottery laws.

William J. Campbell, United States district attorney, has announced he will request the setting of an early trial date when the current motions are disposed of.

Lunchroom Owner Hurt Badly in Mystery Slugging

Clyde Fink, 56 years old, was slugged and seriously injured yesterday afternoon in his lunchroom at 1621 West 42d street. He was taken, unconscious, to the Southtown hospital after a customer found him lying on the floor. Police were unable to find any clew to the attacker, and discounted robbery as a motive after $125 was discovered in Fink's pockets.

LIFE WITHOUT END

By CALEB

THE three major events, both of individual existence and of human experience, are Birth, Love and Death. The first launches experience, via existence; the second glorifies and validates them; the third—to outward appearance—terminates them. Yet the evidence of "outward appearance," associated with this last and greatest of his adventures, man has from time immemorial instinctively distrusted and denied.

Why? To a layman's thinking there would seem to be three very sound reasons. First, there is his intuitive awareness of his potentialities, compared with his performance of the moment. "I feel I can — somehow, sometime — be and do so much better than you know of me now" is his unconscious self-defense made to the world and time about him. And he feels he could so grow and improve indefinitely! Another way of saying that he senses in himself a personal immortality.

Second, there is the continuous intimation of resurrection he sees all about him in the behavior of Nature. The rose blooms, fades, dies—only to bloom anew. Winter spreads its desolation across the woodland—only to be routed by Spring. Night descends; day succeeds. The caterpillar spins its inert cocoon: from that starkness emerges a flame-winged butterfly. And since these transitions so naturally coincide with man's inner instinct, he finds in their recurrence his own reassurance.

Finally, the likeness common to all his religions—both evolutional and revelational—lies in their fiat of a future life. And so, by personal, natural and inspirational roads, he reaches the certainty expressed in the Christian celebration of Easter. Realizes that, as Sir Walter Scott affirmed, death is, after all, "The last and final awakening." Or, as Emerson so eloquently puts the same thought: "Our dissatisfaction with any other solution is the blazing evidence of immortality." . . .

"Wherefore," said Socrates to his friends, before drinking the fatal hemlock, "be of good cheer about death, and know of a certainty that no evil can befall a good man, either in this life or after death. He and his are not neglected by the gods, nor has my own approaching end happened by mere chance." Thus, whether voiced in Christian hymn or pagan creed—the symbolism of Easter reminds the race that all is well with whatever mortal has attuned his life and fixed his faith to the truth that living has no end.

REYNAUD MEETS WAR LEADERS TO SPEED UP ACTION

5 More Deputies Pledge Their Support.

PARIS, March 23 (AP).—With his first premiership sanctioned by a slim majority in the chamber of deputies, Paul Reynaud set out today to counter rightist hostility by mapping a program to step up the tempo of war against Germany and thereby strengthen his position before the lower house reconvenes April 2.

His first move was to confer at length with leaders of France's army and navy and members of the inner cabinet most concerned with executing the policy of action to which the new government has pledged itself.

Foreign observers, discounting the possibility that this action might take the form of a land offensive, believed Reynaud would seek to increase France's efficiency in the war of siege and stiffen her diplomatic resistance against extension of German influence among neutrals.

Gamelin at Conference.

The conference lasted an hour and three-quarters and was attended by Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, Admiral Jean Darlan, Camille Chautemps, vice premier; Edouard Daladier, minister of defense; Cesar Campinchi, navy; Laurent Eynac, air; Georges Monnet, blockade; Lucien Lamoureux, finance; Georges Mandel, colonies, and Raoul Dautry, armament.

As these leaders met five deputies who abstained in yesterday's chamber vote of confidence, in which Reynaud obtained a one vote majority, announced their approval of the government. One other who had abstained announced his opposition.

These changes gave the government a majority of 11, or 273 for; 157 against, and 105 still listed as abstaining and hence assumed hostile.

Daladier Still Strong Man.

Daladier, who resigned as premier last Wednesday after failing to obtain an absolute majority on a chamber vote, remains a "strong man" in the government.

Hostility to Reynaud among many Radical-Socialists was apparently based on the belief that Daladier, who belongs to that group, had received a raw deal.

Many leading French publicists also contended that even those who brought about his resignation by abstaining were surprised and had wanted only to make a show of strength against him. Press comment in general indicated a belief that Reynaud should be given a chance to show what his government can do before the chamber forces another vote of confidence.

There was a general feeling that if that happens next month and Reynaud should be defeated Daladier would be called to take the helm again, perhaps with a more compact ministry.

To Serve in France

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

BEATRICE PHILLIPS.

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—Beatrice Phillips, 26, daughter of the United States ambassador to Italy, finished a course in automobile mechanics today in preparation for service in France. Miss Phillips, daughter of Ambassador and Mrs. William Phillips of Boston, is sailing April 6 to work as a chauffeur for Miss Anne Morgan's Friends of France. She will go to Rome to see her family before reporting in Paris.

She volunteered to go overseas last January and was accepted provided she fulfilled certain qualifications. To do this she studied first aid at Red Cross headquarters and also stenography. And that was not all. She had to know how to change a tire in a twinkling and fix a balky engine. To get this training she studied at a garage at night.

BRITISH-FRENCH NEAR EAST ARMY READY TO FIGHT

Watches for Hostile Move by Nazis and Reds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BEIRUT, Syria, March 23.—Easter finds England and France intensifying their preparedness activities in the near east as a result of Finland's acceptance of a soviet dictated peace and the ominous conference between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini at Brenner Pass.

Some circles suspect that the German-Russian bloc might turn its attention to the near east and the French, British, and Turkish want to be prepared for any possibility.

Oil is Germany's weakest point and Russia is the only source thru which the reich is able to add to its supplies from Rumania. There is a growing belief that efforts to increase deliveries from Rumania and Russia may produce a clash in the Balkan or Black sea regions.

Eager for Action.

France's eastern army and the British forces in the near and middle east are not only ready but anxious to play an active rôle in the war. They are waiting only word from higher up.

Gen. Maxime Weygand of France, who is in command of the British and French forces, says his army is a fire department standing by for action. He would like to open a campaign from this side, it is understood, if the supreme allied command consented.

The French forces in Syria and Lebanon total close to 200,000 picked troops—not half a million, as is sometimes said—plus an air force which is now receiving reinforcements and several hundred warplanes from France.

Air Force Important.

The importance of the air force must not be overlooked. Mechanized units are of comparatively little use in the wild country forming much of Asia Minor. Infantry operations are slow and costly, both in men and money, unless aviation is there to blast out the defender and open the way for advance.

Units held ready for action include numerous North Africans and detachments from the Foreign Legion, all of whom are accustomed to campaigning in country as tough as anything Western Asia can offer.

British and French friendship with Turkey, which would be a vital factor in any near east campaign, is being cemented more firmly. A new agreement in addition to nonaggression pacts with the western powers has just been completed at Ankara. It will be signed in a few days. It includes settlement of undefined sections of the Turkish-Syrian frontier and coöperation to improve transport arrangements between Syria and Turkey—another important factor in any possible military coöperation.

As for talk of a campaign in the Caucasus, France is at peace with Russia and Moscow has made no hostile move in this direction. If anybody did make a hostile move, Britain, France and Turkey seem well prepared. The sympathies of the neighboring Moslem states, Iran, Iraq, and Afghanistan, are with Turkey, to whom they are linked by the Saadabad treaty of friendship. Since they support Turkey, they no doubt would support Britain and France, too.

Syrian Agitation Halts.

Within Syria all nationalist agitation disappeared at the beginning of the war. Lebanon always wanted the French here because, due to the many races and many religions, all of which are mutually hostile, it was feared that internal trouble was bound to result unless some outside power policies Lebanon.

Syrians who agitated for independence suddenly became silent when the war broke out, partly because they realized they would be easy prey for greedy powers if they lacked French protection, and partly because they knew the French would not tolerate disturbances. Then, too, they welcome the French money that is pouring in.

ALTER AMERICAN WARPLANE PLAN TO HELP EMPIRES

Fill Foreign Orders First, Is New Policy.

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—The army and navy were reported authoritatively today to have decided on a general shakeup of their airplane purchasing programs. The reported aims are to speed fulfillment of British and French orders for warplanes and to get better and cheaper planes for themselves.

The new policy was shaped in coöperation with treasury officials. It involves transfer to the empires of possibly several hundred planes nearing completion for the American armed services, temporarily sidetracking some army and navy orders. It also calls for sale abroad of additional new model fighting aircraft.

Committee to Get Data.

Administration spokesmen expect to bare details of the new policy next week when the house military committee resumes its postponed inquiry on the effect of foreign purchases on the national defense.

It is believed the spokesmen will present the following contentions: That there will be no final delay in the army air corps, $300,000,000 expansion to 5,500 or more planes by mid 1941; and that mass production resulting from the British and French orders will insure both lower prices and improved models for the armed services.

Bearing on the latter contention was an announcement today by Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, of a prospective reduction in the cost of aluminum, which is widely used in aircraft. Johnson said the Aluminum Company of America will cut the price 5 per cent or more on Tuesday.

Estimates $510,000 Saving.

Estimating this would save the war department $510,716 on two contracts alone, Johnson told reporters it was hoped to obtain refunds from several additional manufacturers. "This shows mass production is bringing down costs," he added.

A navy spokesman, it was learned, already has advised congress that the navy favors the sale to foreign nations of the latest type weapons—stripped of military secrets—as a practical means of speeding its own airplane construction program and reducing the cost.

Rear Admiral John T. Towers, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, told a senate appropriations subcommittee in closed hearings, members said, that foreign orders had made it possible to obtain better and faster ships at lower prices.

No Secrets Bared, He Says.

Towers was questioned on this point when he appeared to testify on the $965,000,000 naval appropriations bill.

Committee members said he asserted emphatically that no appliances or accessories which the navy considers to be military secrets had been released in sales thus far to British, French, and Finnish purchasers. [President Roosevelt, at a press conference last Tuesday, said it was bunk to contend that military secrets were being divulged thru plane sales to foreigners.]

Admiral Towers was reported to have told of specific instances in which he said the navy was able to get better planes because of the foreign demand. In one case, he was quoted as saying, the navy permitted the sale of a number of recently manufactured fighting planes to the Finns, only to replace them on the production line almost immediately with an improved model of the ship capable of 30 miles an hour greater speed.

Basic Revision of Regulation.

The projected new policy involves a basic revision of the existing official regulation that no recently designed military plane shall be sold abroad until an improved model is under contract to some American governmental agency.

Two 400 mile an hour pursuit planes, the Lockheed P-38 and Curtiss P-40, were released to the empires recently under this policy. Thus far France and Britain have been denied permission to buy duplicates of five other army planes.

3 GERMANS SLAIN; CZECHS URGED TO HUNT FOR KILLERS

PRAGUE, Bohemia-Moravia, March 23. — Considerable anxiety has been caused in Czech political circles by the alleged murder of three German officers, news of which was made known here tonight.

It was reported a murderous attack was made on March 20 by a Czech citizen against a member of the Gestapo [German secret police] in Taus. Two German frontier guards were murdered on March 23 in the village of Birkan, in the Bohemian forest. None of the assassins have been caught, it was said.

An appeal over the Czech radio tonight urged all Czechs to help police to find the culprits. By their crimes, it was asserted, "they have offended human and national conscience." Tomorrow's newspapers will make the same appeal.

BRITAIN SPENDS MILLIONS ON AIR RAID PROTECTION

Nation Feels Money Has Gone for Good Purpose.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 23.—Precautions against air raids have cost the British government, so far, more than 66,000,000 pounds [about $246,000,000], according to official statistics made public today. Future expenditures are estimated at $521,668 daily, but some economies are planned.

These figures do not include municipal costs, that of the London county council alone being estimated at $279,465 weekly.

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, has announced that such protection is costing the government about $1,118,000 daily, but declared $896,000 was for items of a permanent nature.

Asks Pay Cuts.

He recommended cuts in personnel and pay. The average pay for air raid precautions workers has been about $11.17 weekly owing to the fact that many of those employed are skilled men drawn from the building trades who receive current union rates.

Among the expenditures, the item "steel shelters and materials for strengthening basements" accounts for $74,525,000. The next largest item, $54,500,000, has been paid out for "gas masks and air raid precaution equipment and materials."

More than 2,500,000 steel shelters, affording accommodations for 15,000,000 persons, have been distributed.

Citizens also Spend Millions.

Other precautions have cost individual citizens and businesses millions of dollars more. They have purchased such essentials as black curtains and paint for windows and regulation shades for automobile headlights.

Despite the absence of air bombardments there has been no criticism of these preparations owing to the resultant feeling of security.

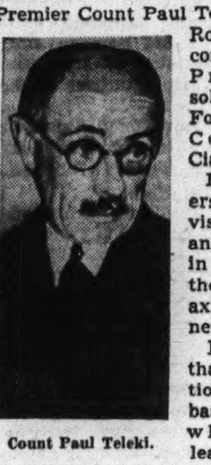
HUNGARY'S PREMIER REACHES ROME FOR TALKS WITH IL DUCE

ROME, March 23 (AP).—Hungarian Premier Count Paul Teleki arrived in Rome today for conferences with Premier Mussolini and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.



Count Paul Teleki.

Political observers said Teleki's visit might play an important part in the plans of the Rome-Berlin axis during the next few weeks.

It was believed that his conversations would be based largely on what Il Duce learned of Germany's desires in southeastern Europe during his surprise Brenner pass conference with Adolf Hitler last Monday.

Teleki, who was accompanied by his wife and daughter and was met by Ciano, will remain in Rome until next Thursday. Pope Pius XII. will receive him during his stay.

WHY UNBEATEN FINLAND BOWED TO RED PEACE!

Cite Lack of Foreign Aid as Chief Reason.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 23.—Before the cool headed Finns decided to accept the soviet government's invitation and send a delegation to Moscow to learn the terms of peace offered by the bolshevik régime there were important conferences between Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim, commander in chief of the Finnish army, and Risto Ryti, Finland's premier. It was agreed that any substantial foreign aid would arrive too late to save the country.

Finland's army was far from being beaten. North of Lake Ladoga the Finnish forces—much smaller in number than the Russians—had defeated and, at most points, thrown back the Red army. At four points the Finns had chased the Russians across the frontier and were engaging the enemy on soviet territory.

Reported Repeated Successes.

Since the beginning of the fourteen weeks of war there, commanders on a frontier almost 1,000 miles long had reported nothing but one success after another.

On the Karelian isthmus front the Finns, until after the middle of February, had successfully held their first line of defenses of the Mannerheim fortifications. At the end of January the Red army began an intensive shelling of the Finnish positions in the Summa sector.

The railroad from Leningrad to Viipuri [Viborg] enabled the Russians to concentrate a huge force of artillery on this front and keep them supplied with munitions.

Day after day the bombardment continued. There were brief pauses when Russian divisions advanced to attack. The soviet losses were enormous, for they advanced in mass formation.

Make One Miscalculation.

Foreign experts, who had helped the Finns plan the Mannerheim fortifications, thought they were impregnable. But they had made one miscalculation. The great concrete forts which had walls and roofs of reinforced concrete 12 feet thick were unharmed by the direct hits of heavy shells and aerial bombs.

However, the steady stream of soviet shells finally dug beneath the fronts of the forts, excavating great trenches. Some of the more exposed giant pill boxes settled forward and slanted so that their guns became useless.

Engineers said that if a thick apron of reinforced concrete had been sunk supporting the front of these forts, the Finns could have held them indefinitely. When the forts became useless the Red army broke thru the Summa front.

Abandon Island Fortress.

Anticipating a retirement, the Finns had to abandon their island fortress of Koivisto, whose guns had bombarded the Russians on their flank for months. This fortress had withstood terrific aerial bombardments and had repulsed attacks over the ice from the mainland.

The garrison with its wounded was removed successfully and the Russians advanced along the shore of the Finnish gulf, capturing Johannes and arriving on Viipuri bay. Their advance was slow, taking many days. They forced forward by sheer weight of numbers. The Finns, whose policy since the beginning of the war was to economize on human lives, retired slowly.

When the war ended the Russians had reached the outskirts of Viipuri but only after sending a series of fresh divisions into the attack.

Hoist Red Flag Over Castle.

Whether the second line of the Mannerheim defenses had been reached or passed at this point cannot be ascertained at present. But the Red flag was not hoisted over Viipuri castle until the Russians had entered the city in accordance with the terms of the peace treaty which Premier Ryti signed in Moscow.

[The Russians claimed they took Viipuri just before the armistice went into effect at 11 a. m. March 13.]

Behind Viipuri were other strong lines of Finnish fortifications. In the center of the isthmus and on the east end at Taipale the Finnish lines held despite repeated bombardment.

The Summa battle was decided by the great weight of soviet artillery and the lack of Finnish artillery, especially heavy guns, to destroy the enemy's guns—this combined with the unsparing use of infantry by the soviets.

Refuse to Admit Defeat.

Because the Finnish military position was still considered favorable when the war ended, no Finn will admit that the Finnish army was defeated by the Red army. The war ended without one decisive soviet victory and the morale of the Finns was unshaken despite the brutality of totalitarian war.

The conflict also ended because Finland faced the prospect of becoming the battlefield of the war on the western front.

The Finns were both disillusioned and disappointed when Sweden and Norway informed Great Britain and France that they would not permit an expeditionary force to cross their territory to help Finland.

England, speaking also for France, repeatedly had informed Finland that if she wanted help she must petition the allies directly.

Recalls Fate of Poland.

Finland viewed these promises skeptically. She had seen what had happened in Poland. She had heard British statesmen declare repeatedly that help was being given to Finland, but she knew that England and France had not asked Sweden and Norway for permission to transmit munitions thru their countries until the first of the year.

[According to an official Swedish statement the first British and French help for Finland reached Swedish ports in the middle of January.]

Germany already had informed Sweden and Norway what they could expect [possible intervention] if they permitted such action, consequently both countries rejected the request of the London and Paris governments to send an expeditionary force across their territory.

Feared Being Cut Off.

If a war had developed in Sweden and Norway between the western powers and Germany, then Finland, depending upon her single railroad connection to the west around the Gulf of Bothnia, would have been cut off from obtaining further supplies. Finland automatically would have become the ally of England and France and she would have been forced to continue the fight against Russia without foreign aid, because communications of Norway and Sweden would have been needed to supply any war there.

Another important reason for Finland's decision to accept peace is that from the beginning of the crisis between Russia and Finland last October it was evident that Sweden—softened by more than a century of peace—was not prepared to give active help.

During Finland's three and a half months of war only about 8,000 Swedish volunteers came to Finland, and when the peace was announced only two battalions of Swedes were fighting the Russians.

Norway Sends Small Group.

Norway, which has more communists than the remainder of the so-called Scandinavian bloc combined, sent a small contingent including distinguished sportsmen volunteers.

So, rather than become involved in the so-called "great war" and face complete destruction and famine, Finland chose what every Finn considers to be a hard but sensible peace—a peace where Finland retains her honor altho it involves a sacrifice for the entire country.

Like the other northern people, the Finns are happiest when they are working. In questioning some refugees from Finnish Karelia about the lack of mourning, one old farmer explained:

"It's just like a funeral. Everybody is so busy about the arrangements that no one has time to think about the corpse."

Forces Which Beat Finland

Below are maps and a drawing illustrating the forces which brought about the end of Finland's war with Russia—a conflict in which the smaller nation put up a resistance that surprised the world. Diagonally shaded areas of the maps indicate Finnish territory held by Russian troops at different stages of the war.

REDS TAKE OVER HANGO, VITAL FINNISH BASE

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 23 (AP).—Russian officers took over the vital military base at Hango today. Only one Finnish liaison officer remained in the entire area.

An official Finnish communique said the last civilians—the technical staffs of the electric and water plants—left Hango at noon. The territory was turned over to Russia under a 30 year lease in a formal ceremony at the town hall.

Reds Occupy Sortavala.

MOSCOW, March 23 (AP).—Russian dispatches today told of the occupation of Sortavala [Serdobal], important town on the north shore of Lake Ladoga, in the progressive assimilation of territory granted Russia by Finland.

The army newspaper Red Star said "new troops are entering the town with tanks and trucks," and reported Keksholm also had been taken over.

The order was a reprisal for similar Swiss action against a German correspondent.

OFFICIAL REPORT TELLS HOW SPEE JUST ABOUT WON

British Cruisers in Great Peril, Captain Says.

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Capt. W. E. Parry.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, March 23.—How close the German sea raider Admiral Graf Spee came to winning the battle of Montevideo against three British cruisers was disclosed officially for the first time in an official report which Capt. W. E. Parry, commander of the cruiser Achilles, filed here at the request of the naval board.

Capt. Parry said there was a moment in the action when both the lighter of the British cruisers—the Achilles and the Ajax—were off the target and the Graf Spee had a splendid opportunity of sinking them. The third and largest of the British cruisers, the Exeter, was badly damaged early in the battle, Capt. Parry disclosed.

The first official report which has been made public showed the British were completely unaware that they had gained a naval victory and discouraged at their lack of success. It also told of their breaking off the action because it seemed useless to continue pelting the heavily armored ship with their light shells.

Practice Naval Plays.

The three cruisers were widely scattered when they came together to hunt the Graf Spee off the eastern coast of South America. On Dec. 13, the day of the battle, they actually practiced the plays they used to defeat the pocket battleship a short time later.

The German ship sighted the British cruisers when they were beam on and recognized them first, Capt. Parry says. She opened fire three minutes before the first British ship, the Exeter, replied. The British ships at once began carrying out their tactics of subjecting their opponent to a crossfire. But in the first 15 minutes of the battle the Exeter was hit by four 11 inch shells, which put four of her six 8 inch guns out of action and killed almost every one on the bridge.

Exeter Hit Twice More.

It was in the second phase of the battle that the German ship lost her chance. The Exeter was hit twice more by 11 inch shells, suffered flooding and took a list of 7 degrees. Then an 11 inch shell burst near the Achilles, causing casualties when it peppered the ship with fragments. The casualties were in the worst possible place—the fire control tower.

The Achilles' guns were completely thrown off their target for some time and, owing to confusion about the fall of shot from the two ships, the Ajax also lost the target.

"For a considerable time," says Capt. Parry, "neither ship can have hit the enemy effectively. Thus the gunfire of the three British ships deteriorated severely, giving the enemy, had he known it, a golden opportunity."

But the German ship began ducking behind a series of smoke screens, and it was after the second phase of the battle had lasted 40 minutes that Commodore Harwood made the decision to close in. This brought the two light cruisers within five miles of the Spee, at which distance they brought all their guns to bear. It was then that the highly accurate shooting of the Achilles was felt. The observer on the Ajax reported the Achilles "was making magnificent shooting. She was straddling continuously, her spread was very small, and she was scoring hit after hit."

Decides to Break Off Fight.

However, after five minutes the Ajax was hit by an 11 inch shell which put both her rear turrets out of action.

The British fighters then settled down to shadow the Graf Spee. They did this with foreboding, wondering if the German ship knew that "the whole trade of the Plate was at her mercy until reënforcements arrived."

The final shadowing was done at a very respectful distance because the Graf Spee's 11 inch guns opened fire once more.

The final exchanges were made at a range of 11 miles, when the flash of the Spee's gunfire warned off the cruisers. The German ship was visible so clearly, however, that the temptation to reply could not be resisted.

Five full salvos were fired, after which the Graf Spee dodged into the port of Montevideo to await its final fate, scuttling.

Ft. Dearborn Speakers

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford and Col. Stanley W. Clark as they spoke on old Fort Dearborn over W-G-N yesterday.

A tribute to the armed forces of the nation that have "cleared the paths of civilization" was broadcast yesterday from a W-G-N studio crowded with old Fort Dearborn memories.

The speaker was Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area and the 2d United States army. His interest in the plans for a memorial on the site of the old garrison that once guarded the Chicago river prompted his participation in the program, which was sponsored by the Fort Dearborn Memorial commission.

He commended the memorial plans. "A memorial to Fort Dearborn and the gallant and heroic officers and men who served there," he said, "will bring before the public the army's part in the building of a great nation."

Col. Stanley W. Clark of the United States army reserve spoke on the same program, recounting an early chapter in the history of the fort.

SHOOT 7 LEADERS OF REBELLION IN CHINESE PRISON

HONGKONG, March 23 (AP).—A firing squad today executed seven ring leaders of last night's mutiny at the Shumchun Chinese military prison. Guards killed three and wounded many others when 200 prisoners attempted a jail break after hearing the Japanese had returned to the Chinese area near the Hongkong border, which they left after a brief occupation last fall. The men originally were imprisoned for conniving with the Japanese.

Small Japanese units which landed on the coast outside British waters three days ago were reliably reported to have returned to their ships after a one day foraging expedition.

PARIS, March 23. — Louis-Oscar Frossard, the new minister of information and propaganda, was installed today in his offices in the imperial suite in the Hotel Continental. Arriving with his assistants and secretaries, he toured the premises. "The apartments of the empress will do for me very nicely," he said with some amusement. These apartments were occupied for many years by Empress Eugenie. They have crimson draperies and gilded furniture. They had always been occupied by royalty until the arrival of the Byrd trans-Atlantic expedition.

VOTERS READY TO FIX CANADA'S COURSE ON WAR

Pass on Premier King's Regime Tuesday.

Premier W. L. Mackenzie King.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 23 (AP).—Canada's 6,600,000 voters, summoned to the second wartime election in a quarter of a century, will tell Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King on Tuesday what they think of his liberal government and the way it has directed the dominion's war effort.

Bitterly criticized by the conservative minority in parliament and by the Ontario provincial legislature, which have called the administration's war effort half hearted and inefficient, the 65 year old premier is gambling his political future on an election he hopes will settle Canada's family troubles until peace returns.

The campaign will reach a climax with massmeetings in virtually every large center tomorrow. Premier King will make his final appeal to the voters here on Monday night.

Some eight or ten parties are represented by the 672 candidates nominated for the 245 seats in commons, but of these only the Liberals and the Conservatives have sufficient nominees to obtain a majority.

Liberals Pledged to Push War.

The Liberal government, for which Norman Rogers, defense minister, has been an active campaigner, has defended its record and pledged to prosecute Canada's part in the war with vigor.

The Conservative party, led by Dr. R. J. Manion, veteran parliamentarian, has promised that, if successful at the polls, it will form a national government without party lines. Both Liberals and Coöperative Commonwealth federation leaders have asserted they would have nothing to do with such a government. Premier King has said his followers would "do their parliamentary duty by constituting his majesty's loyal opposition."

The Coöperative Commonwealth federation, with 96 candidates in the field, originally was opposed to participating in the war, but has accepted the war as inevitable.

Asks Conscription of all Resources.

The Social Credit party has rallied behind W. D. Herridge, former Canadian minister to Washington, who would have Canada conscript all its resources for war.

Fuel for the campaign was provided by the action of the Ontario legislature, in which Liberals and Conservatives united behind the provincial premier, Michael Hepburn, on Jan. 18 and adopted, 44 to 10, a resolution condemning the Ottawa government for its "do little" war policy.

Hepburn paved the way for the resolution by accusing King of vacillation, denouncing the sale of Canadian wheat to Russia, and asserting that Canadian troops had been sent overseas inadequately equipped.

The challenge precipitated Premier King's call for the election after dissolution of parliament on Jan. 25. This action automatically deprived the parliamentary opposition of the privilege of demanding detailed reports on the administration's actions. It was greeted with cries that the prime minister had scuttled parliament to avoid disclosure of desired information. The premier replied that a lengthy preëlection session of parliament, with its partisan wrangling, would have worked against dominion unity in the war effort.

JAPS DON'T FEAR BIGGER U. S. NAVY, PREMIER ASSERTS

Says Nation Is Ready for Any Situation.

TOKIO, March 23 (AP).—Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai and Navy Minister Admiral Zengo Yoshida both assured parliament today that the Japanese navy "is ready to meet any situation" resulting from the current expansion of the United States navy.

Mitsumasa Yonai. [Top] Zengo Yoshida.

Yonai is a former navy minister. He, Yoshida and Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita were asked numerous questions concerning American - Japanese relations in a session of the budget committee of the lower house.

Arita declared he did not believe the situation between the two powers had reached a deadlock and said negotiations on pending issues were continuing, altho he was unable to disclose their nature.

Can't Convince America.

"The government has tried but has not succeeded in bringing the American government and people to full recognition of the new situation," Arita said.

He was understood to refer to the situation created by Japan's program of conquest and control in China, against features of which the United States has registered disapproval.

A member's question on the American naval program evoked this reply from Yonai: "The navy is ready to meet any situation. There is nothing to fear from the standpoint of national defense."

Jap Army to Rule China.

SHANGHAI, March 23 (AP).—Reports that the Japanese army will retain blanket supervision over conquered North China, despite the coming inauguration of the Tokio sponsored Chinese central government on March 30, received confirmation today in reliable Japanese circles.

Japanese quarters said a North China political affairs commission—a scarcely veiled army agency—would direct the provinces of Hopeh, Shantung, and Shansi.

This prediction, informants said, was based on reports direct from Nanking, where the Chinese central government was organized yesterday under Japanese supervision with Wang Ching-Wei as premier.

Chinese Retake Town.

CHUNGKING, China, March 24, Sunday (AP).—The Chinese Central News agency reported tonight that Chinese troops had recaptured Lingshan, in the South China province of Kwangtung, and that Japan suffered more than 4,000 casualties in fighting in that sector during the last five days.

Earlier, a Chinese spokesman said the Japanese suffered heavy blows in a thrust northward from Lingshan and that the Chinese had retaken a number of vantage points around the Nanning-Yamchow highway. The new agency said the Japanese are in full retreat toward their base at Yamchow.

Leader Ill, Laborites Map New Zealand War Course

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, March 23.—With Prime Minister M. J. Savage, its leader, critically ill, the national conference of the majority Labor party met today to chart the country's course in the European war. The conference will probably shelve the issue of conscription, which was expected to be a point of struggle on war policy. The Leftists oppose conscription, action against Russia, or a "total" war, but it is now indicated they will not seek a test in the conference.

Wins Private Shower

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
JOAN LAWRENCE.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23 (AP).—Modest 16 year old Joan Lawrence, who objected to taking group shower baths with other Alhambra High school girls, was told today she can have a private bathroom all her own.

Attorney W. B. McKesson, representing the school board, advanced the plan in an effort to reach a compromise with parents of the girl, who charged in their "right of privacy" suit against the school board that bathing in the presence of other girls is dangerous to morals.

McKesson said Joan will be given access to any of five private shower stalls now available at the school, and added that half a dozen others will be added.

GANDHI EMERGES AGAIN AS GUIDE OF INDIA'S FATE

'Trust Me' Program Wins Party Approval.

NEW DELHI, India, March 23 (AP).—The political fate of India today depends upon Mohandas K. Gandhi more than at any time since he led the march to the sea in protest against British salt tax restrictions 10 years ago.

The spry, 70 year old ascetic enforced his "trust me or else" leadership so firmly on the All-India Congress party convention, which closed its plenary session three days ago, that he is the sole judge of the pace of the party's wartime pressure on Britain for independence.

Gandhi obtained another overwhelming personal mandate from the party but at the clearly implied price that somehow, in 1940 he would obtain sufficient British commitments to justify the trust of his people.

Gambled with Prestige.

In and out of the congress sessions Gandhi went out of his way to put his personal prestige at stake, saying his hitherto fruitful generalship would succeed again if implicity obeyed.

In staying the hand of factions impatient for immediate action, Gandhi got what he wanted most—more time. With time Gandhi apparently hopes to mend the admitted fissures within the Congress party, woo the Moslems, appeal over the British government's head to the United States and the rest of the English speaking world, watch the course of the European war and finally, if his waiting tactics bring no results, perfect surprise strategy of action.

Informed quarters said his lieutenants had made little headway in getting Gandhi to set a deadline after which the threatened civil disobedience campaign would start.

Insists on Harmony.

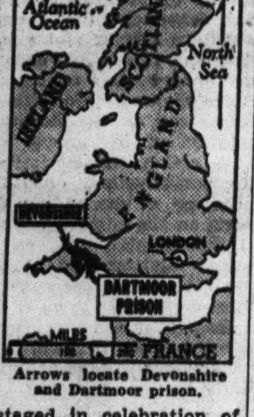
Gandhi is understood to have reinforced public demands for discipline by private insistence on domestic harmony with the Moslem and rehabilitation of the "untouchables."

High policy is drafted in only one place—Gandhi's hut in the obscure village of Seqaon. Thru his newspaper, Harijan, Gandhi has hinted that the viceroy, the Marquess of Linlithgow, might be more receptive than London to crictics of the Chamberlain government.

IRISH SET BRITISH PRISON AFIRE IN ATTEMPT TO FLEE

Riot in Commemoration of Easter Uprising.

LONDON, March 23 (AP).—Members of the outlawed Irish Republican army, confined in famous Dartmoor prison, were foiled today in a break for freedom during which they bound two jailers, set fire to a cell block, and defied guards from behind a barricade.



Arrows locate Devonshire and Dartmoor prison.

The riot, apparently staged in celebration of the anniversary of Dublin's Easter uprising of 1916, started early in the afternoon when the prison force was depleted by departure of warders who had been granted a holiday.

Authorities said the revolt was staged by 23 I. R. A. men, some of them serving sentences of fifteen years or more. They had been kept segregated from English prisoners to avoid incidents and they were being exercised in the hall of the prison block when they attacked the guards.

Call County Police.

Hundreds of persons were attracted to the scene as dense clouds of black smoke rolled from the prison. Devon county police were summoned to aid in quelling the disturbance.

More than an hour elapsed before the blaze was extinguished and police broke thru the barricade to capture the ring leaders, who were placed in solitary confinement.

Damage Is Slight.

The home office subsequently issued a brief statement saying that order had been restored and that damage was slight. From outside the prison the only damage visible was a large hole in the cell block roof.

Only three prisoners ever have escaped from the ancient prison, which since 1932 has been under the direction of Maj. C. C. Pannall, 61 year old army veteran.

YOUNG MOTHER ACTS QUICKLY AND SAVES LIFE OF BABY GIRL

A young mother's resourcefulness helped to save the life of her infant daughter yesterday. The mother, Mrs. Bertha Zeller, 27 years old, 3514 Van Buren street, was praised by firemen, who completed the rescue.

Mrs. Bertha Zeller.

Mrs. Zeller noticed that her baby, Shirley, 9 months old, was gasping for air. She directed a sister - in - law, who was in the house to call the fire department. Then she breathed into Shirley's mouth, at the same time pressing against her chest to help lung action.

An inhalator squad under Capt. A. F. Herling soon arrived, administered artificial respiration for 40 minutes, and took the youngster to the Bethany hospital. Dr. C. F. Coffman, chief of staff, said an abdominal ailment apparently endangered Shirley's normal respiration.

MICHIGAN PRISON WARDEN ASSAILS BOSS AS HE QUITS

Marquette, Mich., March 23 [Special].—Defending his wardenship of the Marquette branch prison, Marvin L. Coon today relinquished his post to Simon R. Anderson, a Republican, and charged that Edward G. Heckel, state prisons director, had brought about his removal without just cause. Coon is a Democrat appointed by former Gov. Frank Murphy.

Anderson announced that no changes in the personnel of the prison would be made without the recommendation of the State Corrections commission, offsetting rumors that Deputy Warden William Newcombe, who has held his position for 18 years, would be replaced.

After a prison break last Sept. 25, in which four inmates seized Coon, Newcombe, and two members of the parole board as hostages, Heckel charged, in a report to the commission, that there was laxity in prison discipline.

Coon denied this, insisting discipline and morale were higher than ever.

REDS DENY REPORTS ABOUT POSSIBLE VISIT OF MOLOTOV TO REICH

MOSCOW, March 24, Sunday (AP).—Tass, the soviet official news agency, today branded as "devoid of any foundation" rumors which it said were being circulated abroad regarding the proposed visit of Russian Premier-Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov to Berlin.

[In Berlin the Tass statement was interpreted as a move to counteract reports that Molotov already was in Germany or was on the way. It was pointed out that it did not discount the possibility of his going soon to the German capital. Reports of the visit disappeared overnight from Italian newspapers.]

In its statement the soviet news agency said: "Tass is authorized to state that rumors circulated by various foreign agencies regarding the proposed visit of the chairman of the council of people's commissars of the U. S. S. R., Vyacheslav Molotov, to Berlin or some town in Germany or the western Ukraine, are devoid of any foundation."

I average 35,000 miles a year, so economy counts heavily with me. I've driven my 1940 Packard (my 53rd car) 17,460 miles in 6 months and haven't spent $5 on it, except for gas, oil and lubrication. Gas mileage is better than on small cars I've owned - averaging at least 17 miles to the gallon.

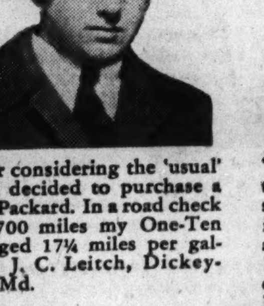
COMPARE ECONOMY—YOU'LL PICK PACKARD!

Packard, of all manufacturers, has the fastest-growing family of owners in America.

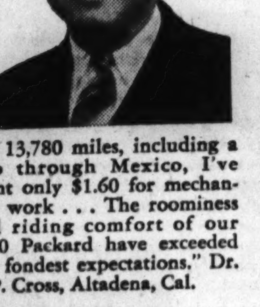
And the big reason is—greater owner satisfaction . . . in value, in performance and in all-around economy.

Packard urges you to compare . . . check . . . demonstrate it against other cars. You'll find it's 1940's standout—a big car that costs little to run. Study the comparative service costs at the right—then see your nearest Packard dealer now.

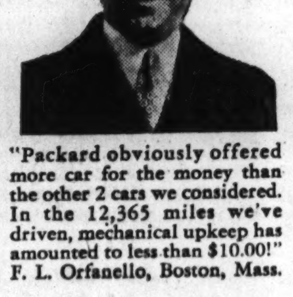
Now, more than ever . . . ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE!



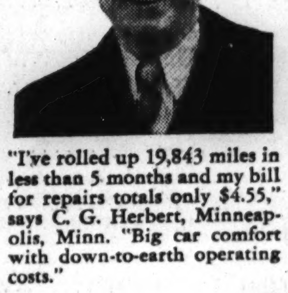
"After considering the 'usual' cars I decided to purchase a 1940 Packard. In a road check of 1,700 miles my One-Ten averaged 17¼ miles per gallon." J. C. Leitch, Dickeyville, Md.



"In 13,780 miles, including a trip through Mexico, I've spent only $1.60 for mechanical work . . . The roominess and riding comfort of our 1940 Packard have exceeded our fondest expectations." Dr. F. P. Cross, Altadena, Cal.



"Packard obviously offered more car for the money than the other 2 cars we considered. In the 12,365 miles we've driven, mechanical upkeep has amounted to less than $10.00!" F. L. Orfanello, Boston, Mass.



"I've rolled up 19,843 miles in less than 5 months and my bill for repairs totals only $4.55," says C. G. Herbert, Minneapolis, Minn. "Big car comfort with down-to-earth operating costs."

GIVE AVIATION A SQUARE DEAL.

We continue to appeal for a square deal for aviation. The outlook for aeronautics was desperate when we first incorporated this demand in our Platform for America. Air transport was in its infancy. The bulk of the revenue to maintain a flying service was derived from carrying the mails. The manufacturing side of the business had come to depend to an important extent upon civilian transport, for the export market had shrunk to a fraction of its previous proportions and this country's military building program had been concluded in 1931.

With the airplane builders dependent to a large extent upon the transport companies, and the transport companies dependent upon the revenue from the mails, the government early in 1934 suddenly canceled the mail contracts and the President ordered the army air corps to carry the mails. If this had continued for any length of time the aviation industry would have collapsed. But, after 10 army flyers had been killed within a few days, public opinion was so aroused that the President declared that "deaths in the army air corps must stop," and canceled his order to the army to carry the mails.

A temporary arrangement was thereupon entered into by the postoffice department with the air lines by which they again took over the mails, but on a temporary and highly unprofitable basis. And even this arrangement was terminable without notice, at official caprice. The air lines had not previously been profitable, but in 1934 their losses hit a new high. Whether one or two of the companies would run out of money before relief was given was a matter of conjecture. With their best potential customers busted, the outlook for airplane manufacture was anything but hopeful.

These were the conditions prevailing when in January, 1935, we began to make the demand in our masthead, "Give Aviation a Square Deal." It is not for us to say how much our campaign then launched and since carried on in these columns and by our aviation editor has had to do with the progress which the industry has subsequently made. We have been assured that our aid was important. The metamorphosis in aviation since early 1935 has been complete. No longer is the bulk of the air line revenue derived from mails—two-thirds is from carrying passengers. Nearly 2 million passengers now ride annually in commercial planes, compared with a little over a half million in 1934. Airplanes flew 83 million miles last year, not quite twice as far as in 1934. By carrying four times as many passengers, while flying only about twice as many miles, the air line companies were able to make 3 million dollars last year. Every important flying company is in the black.

This great increase in air line business necessitated the purchase of much new and expensive equipment. The buying by the air lines was a substantial source of the business, which enabled manufacturers to develop their plants to present proportions. Profitable business now available to them in the orders from France and the British empire would be out of the question but for the earnings from commercial planes constructed since 1935.

In its own preparedness program the United States government has first call upon the output of the airplane factories. By law their profits are limited to 12 per cent, and contracts are awarded after competitive bidding. Unsuccessful bidders thus have no way to get back the cost of development of experimental planes. The results of the airplane manufacturers to date do not suggest that they are making the kind of profits which will enable them to expand to automobile industry proportions. The limitation which the government places upon their profits makes difficult the raising of capital.

The belligerents have staked some of the companies to the equipment they need. One of the largest companies did some financing in a neutral country. Another manufacturer has obtained capital by merging with an investment trust. The erratic earnings of the companies deny them access to the borrowed capital market. Equity capital has been raised by some, but on an unattractive basis, because with the limitation of earnings leading aircraft stocks are selling but little higher than a few years ago.

Anthony Fokker's forecast made in 1934 that the industry will soon be turning out 150,000 planes per year cannot be reached without a tremendous expansion in capital investment. The restriction on earnings denies the industry the necessary capital and stunts its growth. We continue our demand for a square deal for aviation.

CONGRESSIONAL BILL RIDERS.

Senator Bilbo, Mississippi Democrat, objected to giving unanimous consent in the senate for a vote on the Hatch bill at a given time, but said he did not do so because he wanted to hold that bill up. He was afraid that at the last moment some senator would tack the antilynching bill to it and bring it to a vote. The southern senators are filibustering against the antilynching bill and will filibuster against any other bill to which it is attached as a rider.

This incident calls attention again to methods of lawmaking which lack order, reason, and even credibility. The Hatch bill is to restrict the activities of state political machines which handle federal money. The antilynching bill is to give better protection in law to the colored people of the south. The two bills have nothing whatever to do with each other, and yet the practices of congress would permit both to be passed by one vote if they could be joined together.

Many states are protected against such methods of legislation. The Illinois constitution requires that the subject matter of a bill be completely covered by its title and be restricted to one subject. The congressional rules permit a disorder which would not be tolerated in a lawmaking body with a proper regard for the importance of its function.

Congress could find a better rule on many trucks: No riders allowed.

DESCENT BY DEGREES.

A subscriber to this newspaper who occasionally favors us with his observations and opinions had some experiences the other day which he rightly believes to be of considerable significance.

At a travel bureau he did business with a clerk who made a most favorable impression. A little inquiry revealed that the clerk had a diploma from Harvard. Not long afterward our friend had occasion to call a Western Union messenger. The boy had no difficulty in reading a message which contained the words psychology, symphony, administrative, and indictment.

Our friend comments as follows:

"The strata of society are sinking in parallel. The bond salesman is now selling ties; the haberdasher is a bellboy; the bellboy is on relief."

That observation is borne out by the statistics. Very many more boys and girls are in school than ever before, not so much because there are more children in the country as because they stay in school longer. As recently as a generation ago relatively few children went to high school. That is no longer true. Today the youngster who does not go beyond the grades is the exception, at least in the more advanced sections of the country, and if the present trend continues it will not be long before a majority of the population has had college training.

All of this began before the depression and has continued into a period when jobs of any kind were scarce. Even had there been no depression, men of education probably would have been forced into occupations which had hitherto been regarded as unworthy of an educated man; there were not enough of the other kind of jobs to go around. The depression hastened the change. The times have been particularly trying to heavy industry and to some specialties such as the professions and finance, to which many educated men formerly looked for a livelihood.

In contrast, department stores, gasoline stations, and other businesses and trades of the sort have suffered relatively little. Whatever jobs there were have been found in these service occupations, and it was, therefore, to be expected that the boy with the college diploma would look there for his living, if only for lack of an alternative, and quite as natural that the employer would prefer him, with his education, to a lad who had had fewer advantages.

As our subscriber said, that makes it tough for the boy who has had only limited educational advantages. He is being pushed out of the occupations which formerly were his because no one else wanted them. He has a problem and his teachers share it. They had to discover some means of educating his mind and hands and training his character in a relatively short period of time to the point where he can get a job and hold one.

That is not easy, but neither is it impossible. There is need today, and there will be greater need in future, for well trained mechanics. We used to import them, ready-made, from Europe. Now we have to train them at home. Jobs at good wages are available today for machinists, pattern-makers, welders, and other skilled workmen. The other day it was reported that airplane factories in this country were unable to keep up with orders because of a lack of men in the engine factories who have the training and character to work with precision tools. That is a reflection upon our educational system and points to one of the goals at which the schoolmen might aim.

TOUGH ON THE LITTLE NEUTRALS.

American ships are forbidden to enter war zones. They may not carry passengers or cargoes to belligerent ports on trade routes where they might be attacked. Altho congress was persuaded to repeal the embargo on the sale of war material, interventionists, led by Mr. Roosevelt who demanded that this aid be given France and Great Britain, were compelled to accept other and better modifications of the old neutrality law, of which the limiting of American ship operation was probably the best.

By this prohibition congress endeavored to avoid what was the ostensible and specific cause of war in 1917. Relations with Germany were broken off when our department of state was informed by the German ambassador, Von Bernstorff, that his government was about to resume unrestricted submarine warfare. The declaration of war followed later and America was on its way to Europe, in accordance with understandings which had been reached irrespective of the issue raised by the German U-boats. To avoid a similar excuse for war this time, congress undertook to keep American ships away from the danger zones. Our state department has made a formal protest against British blockaders taking American ships into the proscribed zones to examine their cargoes.

When this neutrality policy of the United States is kept in mind it becomes difficult to understand or justify the action of the New York customs officials in refusing even for a few days to clear a Norwegian-American liner because its officers had refused to take mails aboard. The mails, as our government has good reason to know, are on the British contraband list and a ship carrying them is subject to seizure. Even if the Norwegian ship had complied with British requirements as to the remainder of its cargo, the taking on of the mails would have exposed it to seizure and it would have been taken to a British control port and held until the contraband could be removed.

Germany has informed the small maritime neutrals that if they allow the British to take their ships in this fashion the Germans will sink them. They will be immune from attack only if they do not submit or are not exposed to the British blockade operations. The Norwegian shipmaster in New York protested that if he took these mails he would be endangering his vessel and crew, and our government seems to have put itself in the position of insisting that another neutral do something which would expose it to the exact danger which our laws seek to avoid.

The ship was finally cleared without the mails, but the incident wasn't to American credit.

GERMANY'S NEW ARMY

BY JOHN McCUTCHEON RALEIGH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—[Passed by Censor.]—The German army of today has changed its mode of warfare to a large extent. No longer do great masses of men roll across a field toward on objective, hoping to take it by the sheer strength of numbers. That's outdated. Field operations differ greatly from those of the world war.

Infantry tactics have been radically altered. The German army is free from the shackles of tradition. It has no compunctions in trying experiments and sticking to them until the best results are obtained. The German infantry school has been particularly painstaking in the development of modern methods.

The smallest compact unit of the infantry is the squad. It is composed of 10 men—three to serve a light machine gun, with which every squad is equipped, one to carry ammunition, and six riflemen. The German theory of defense is offense, and the principle involved is continual advance backed up with supporting fire. The light machine gun is the fire power weapon of the squad. When it has subjected a point to sufficient fire to justify a quick rush, the squad hurries forward to consolidate the gain. Then fresh bursts from the light weapon concentrate on a new objective.

The same idea is embraced by all units up to the corps and army. It is the new order of the day and, combined with centralized responsibility, opens the way for better coöperation among staff, troops and field officers.

The new platoon contains four squads, the company three platoons, and the battalion four companies. Besides headquarters troops, the regiment is complemented with three battalions, an antitank battalion, and a heavy weapons company.

The heavy weapons company has been introduced since 1934. It is considered an infantry unit, altho it consists of two 150 millimeter cannon, several guns of a caliber similar to the French 75, six heavy 80 millimeter grenade throwers, and six light grenade throwers, which weigh about 25 pounds and are easily handled by one man. This unit is under the command of the regimental colonel.

The advantage of having artillery with the infantry regiment at all times is that the battalions may always be certain of artillery support. In explaining this principle a German officer stated: "During the world war we sometimes found ourselves without artillery support, or discovered that our guns were firing on us instead of their objective because of poor fire control coördination between the infantry and distant artillery positions. The heavy weapons company guarantees that neither of these things will happen, as it is always close to our front lines and is controled by the regimental staff."

The battalion, like the regiment, has a heavy weapons unit. A battalion has two rifle companies, one reserve company, and a heavy weapons company. The latter is equipped with 12 heavy machine guns and six 80 millimeter heavy grenade throwers. As with the platoon and squad, this unit provides individual support for the advancing companies so that the battalion has plenty of fire power in its own right and need not depend upon a separate unit. Each company, besides its light machine guns, has three light grenade throwers.

Infantry squads, platoons, companies, and battalions now fight as teams. Each team supplements the other, and backing up all is the regimental artillery and antitank battalion, all of which makes the regiment almost an independent unit that need rely only on itself.

Responsibility rests upon individual commanders. If something goes amiss the regimental colonel can pin the mistake to one man and the culprit is unable to pass the buck. Germans claim that the clarity with which a fault can thus be seen saves time and makes officers more efficient.

Teamwork and concentrated fire power—these are the aims of Germany's infantry.

* *

High command officers in Hitler's new army have never missed an opportunity to try an innovation that may improve the effectiveness of the armed forces.

Testing is a governing phase of all branches, but the field artillery has been particularly zealous in trying this or that and adopting the good.

Informed sources say the Germans are striving to develop an organization within the division to create two artillery regiments rather than the one found in other armies. It is not known whether this change has been effected.

The first regiment consists of three battalions of 105 millimeter gun howitzers, a weapon whose elevation mechanism and powder charge possibilities make it possible to use either with a gun's flat trajectory or the high angle fire of a howitzer. If the prewar organization still prevails the regiment would have a fourth battalion of 105 millimeter guns.

Aside from the ammunition carried with the guns in trucks, wagons, and caissons, the fifth and sixth trains of the division are delegated to ammunition transport. A division has nine trains, all of which are described as light, which probably means that they are two ton trucks, or, if horse drawn, double teamed wagons. Divisional trains are not actively organized except in wartime, and their personnel and equipment depend upon the situation after war breaks out.

In a German field artillery regiment there are about 1,500 men and officers, each battery having from 120 to 130 soldiers. The battery has four guns, and the battalion either three or four batteries. The majority of batteries are 105 millimeter gun howitzers, while the rest are 150 millimeter howitzers. In explaining the vagueness with which this information was offered, a German artillery officer said trial and error had played so big a part in artillery organization that he could lay down no definite ruling. "Even the manuals are now mostly wrong because of the changes we are trying every week," he added.

The heavier guns of the army are attached to the corps. A heavy artillery regiment is believed to be organized the same as light artillery regiments, except that the guns are 210 millimeter howitzers and 42 centimeter howitzers. The guns of greater caliber usually are attached to armies.

German officers say the largest motorized gun in the world is incorporated into their artillery. They do not disclose its caliber, but appearance indicates it could be a 210 or a 240 millimeter gun. Weapons of this size are usually railway mounted.

* *

The quartermaster, paymaster, and regimental business officers have a standing in the German army that would seem strange to American soldiers. Regular officers, the Germans say, should bend all their energies to fighting. "Beamters," or civil officials, therefore are admitted to the army for administrative work such as bookkeeping and other business details. They rank as officers, but are considered officials.

Parts of the German army signal corps have been assigned to keeping roads cleared.

Squads patrol the roads constantly, checking the safety of the concrete surfaces for travel. If a section of highway is too slippery for safe transport two ton trucks hurry to the scene and spread sand and crushed stone over the icy cement. The signal corps patrols are on duty 24 hours a day.

Army sources assert that in spite of the extremely cold winter and almost daily snowfalls, the roads have been kept open except for brief delays while obstructions were cleared away.

Because of Germany's rail traffic problems the army leans heavily on motor transport. This holds true in the transfer of troops.

AMNESIA: FORGETTING TO REMEMBER.

AMNESIA, or loss of memory, is not rare. While it may occur following an injury, it is associated more frequently with great emotional stress—when the individual desires to obliterate a painful experience. The interval of oblivion may cover almost any length of time before or subsequent to the circumstance that proved so disturbing. In fact, some may lose completely all remembrance of name, place of residence, and other facts.

Recently there came to my attention the case of a young man—a college graduate—who was plunged into the business world without sufficient preparation. Problems were arising constantly in the course of his activities which he could not solve. He began to worry over his ability to make good. This continued until his fear that he would prove a disappointment not only to his firm but to his parents became almost an obsession.

On one occasion he took the train to his home town and upon arrival he went to a hotel—not going near his family. His hope that familiar scenes would restore confidence in himself went unrewarded. A few days later he reported for duty but his strange behavior and attitude attracted attention and he was sent to a hospital for observation. Despite gentle questioning he was unable to give his name, or his office or home address. He continued in this dreamy state for nearly three weeks and could bring to mind only incidental matters that took place in his earlier years. Gradually, he began to read the daily papers and, in discussing the war news, his first link with the present was his recollection of the invasion of Poland. Thereafter, other bits returned and—within a few weeks—recovery was complete.

Fortunately, his employers were cooperative and gave him an assignment where he was happy and confident. He is now making rapid progress. We may look upon this situation as a hysterical manifestation in which the sense of failure produced a dense mental fog. The chances are great that there will be no lasting effects and that the trouble will not return.

Another young man, somewhat older, awakened one morning greatly distressed. He could not remember who or where he was. Neither could he recall a single past event. When visited by relatives he did not recognize them. Photographs of his home and his parents failed to elicit the slightest response. Everything that had happened since his "blackout," however, was vivid.

After a month—with no sign of improvement—it was decided to try hypnosis, to which he appeared readily susceptible. In this half waking, half dreaming condition, while he was sensitive to suggestion, no memory was called up except of a certain unknown person whom he feared and mentioned by name. When awakened he was asked about this individual but denied ever having heard of him. A week later, hypnotism was again employed—whereupon he gave a complete description of his residence and childhood home.

The idea was then planted firmly that he would keep in mind all that he had told during the treatment. This proved to be true but great effort was required in summoning up the various episodes in his past. Two or three repetitions of the program abolished all of his inhibitions altho no hint as to the identity of the mythical bogy man could be uncovered. He left the hospital apparently perfectly well after a stay of between four and five months.

We may look upon amnesia as likely to be associated with various confusional states or certain psychoses. But it may come as the result of any emotional strain; and hysteria, accompanied by a feeling of guilt or shame, is a common cause. The reason memory flies so rapidly is because the patient must forget else he would find himself in a desperate plight. He automatically blots out all disagreeable incidents as well as everything linked with the period of life which led to his breakdown.

While faking must be suspected always, nevertheless the genuine victim will make every possible attempt to recapture his past. He is anxious—strenuously so—to take up the threads of his career.

MEAT AND HEIGHT.

J. W. writes: I am 15 years old and not very tall. My physician tells me that the thing to do is to eat lots of meat, as certain races who eat but little meat are inclined to be short in stature. Is there anything to this?

REPLY.

Racial characteristics—including stature—are fixed by environmental and constitutional factors that have been operating for thousands of years. No single generation can change a well established rule. I would prefer a balanced diet to one containing an excess of protein food. As we know, exercise [play] stretches muscles and stimulates the circulation. This, in turn, may activate the pituitary, which is the growth governing gland. At your age, physical development demands more meat than will be needed for a full grown adult. You are still making muscle, bone, and vital organs.

INVESTIGATE LUMPS.

V. P. writes: For three weeks I have had a lump beneath the jaw and another on the side of the neck. There is no pain. What is the cause?

REPLY.

Enlarged lymph glands are signals of trouble [usually infection] within the mouth or throat. Obtain a careful examination without delay.

TODAY IN HISTORY

March 24, 1794.

Robespierre, French revolutionary leader, launched the series of "purges" calculated to place him in a position of omnipotence as head of both the political government and the state religion. First to be sent to the guillotine were the Hebertists, extreme leftists who preached anarchy and atheism. They were followed by more conservative groups and the period became one of the bloodiest of the reign of terror. Between June 12 and July 28, when Robespierre was overthrown and sent to the guillotine himself, 1,285 persons were executed. Robespierre believed that only thru a continuation of the reign of terror could he put into practice the principles of his idol, Rousseau.

THE FORGOTTEN FARM TENANT.

Muscatine, Ia., March 15.—Recently the President and Mr. Wallace spoke publicly on the farm problem, but omitted quite a few items.

Plenty of government employés, boards, etc., out here are drawing good pay, while checks for thousands of dollars are handed to some farmers. But the renter, farming as much as 1,000 acres or more, and the small sized farm owner are not getting much. Some operators are getting as much as $5,000, some more.

These heavy operators are renting and buying up all the farms they can get hold of that are within several miles of their home farms. One operator in this county has, it is claimed, over 20 farms. This, of course, forces out the renter. Many of them have had to sell their live stock and equipment and have come to town to try and eke out a living of some kind where there are already a great number on relief.

Yes, modern farm machinery has enabled one man to tend at least a hundred acres of corn; and they can go several miles with a balloon tractor to do it. But what of the little fellow? He is getting hurt and hurt badly. Some provision should be made for him. Many of the wealthier farmers who get these large checks from Uncle Sam do not really need the money. The excuse of soil conservation does the trick for them. But for many years the corn belt farmer has been conserving his soil by the rotation of crops and other well known means.

I don't object to the farmers getting all they can out of the present administration, but it should be spread around. The little fellow sure needs help the worst of any now. F. S. P.

SCANDINAVIAN PROSPECTS.

Chicago, March 19.—Now that the Finnish war is ended and the Nordic countries have escaped for the time being, the question arises, will they profit by this war and unite in a solid military alliance for defense and present a solid front to an aggressor? My guess is that they will not. They have had numerous conferences but nothing has come of them. Denmark is under the shadow of the swastika and the Danes have neglected their defenses, so that they are hardly to be considered. Finland, Norway and Sweden, taking into account their natural defenses and the geographical location of Norway and Sweden, if well armed and supported by plenty of aircraft, could put up a successful resistance against any one power, providing the Norwegians and Swedes have not got soft by long years of peace. If they had had a hard and fast military alliance before the Finnish invasion Russia would never have invaded Finland. J. A. M.

THE BOOK OF KELLS.

Cleveland, O., March 18.—May I be permitted to express a word of thanks and praise to you for the very interesting and appreciative article in your last Sunday's issue on the Book of Kells, and the exceptionally beautiful full page facsimile reproductions of this book?

I have seen this book many times, and did not think it possible to reproduce it in print, but your artists have accomplished the seeming impossible, and your editors have framed this gorgeous reproduction in a wonderful bit of word painting by the author of the accompanying article, which shows on her part an unusual understanding and appreciation of this gem of the limner's art. Kindly give my thanks to Mildred Burke.

FOR 3 CENT PHONE CALLS.

Chicago, March 16.—The American Telephone and Telegraph company has announced another reduction in long distance rates. That's swell for business houses and people in the upper income brackets who are accustomed to transacting their personal business via long distance telephone. But what about those users in the lower income brackets? They still have to pay 5 cents for local calls.

It has been suggested that the telephone company issue a 3 cent slug for the little fellow. How about passing on to him some of the benefits which have been accorded only to big users? He'll make more calls if they are cheaper, and in the end the company will enjoy greater profits. SUBSCRIBER.

THESE SWIFT COURIERS.

Chicago, March 19.—I recently sent a letter via air mail to a friend on board a freighter. Thru an error, the letter was addressed to Manzanillo, Puerto Rico, instead of Cuba. Nevertheless, my letter did reach him on time. Thanks a load, Uncle Sam! W.

A SMALL WORLD.

Chicago, March 18.—Reading "Misogynist's" letter in Thursday's TRIBUNE I was struck with what I consider a remarkable coincidence. I think I know the young woman who was hurried from her husband's door by a broom.

One of the coldest, most disagreeable days of the winter, as I was passing thru the elevated station, I saw a young woman, not sobbing but crying and evidently broken hearted, seated on a bench. I afterwards learned she had gone there to think over the problem of what she must do, as she had not a cent in her pocket book.

I accosted her and asked if I could not help her. At first she shook her head but finally I prevailed on her to go to my home with me, telling her my husband and I would perhaps be able to help her.

To cut a long story short, she told of marrying a man she loved deeply, only to find she had married a miser who begrudged her every penny spent upon her. As her parents were well off she had never learned to cook; hence her culinary troubles were many. She was compelled to do her own washing, and being a novice, could never get the clothes clean. She told of the quilt she had spread over the springless bed to dry. She lacked space on the clothesline, her husband being too stingy to buy her two, saying "One clothesline was enough for any woman."

She was very artistic. That was the reason for painting the furniture, but she was only allowed the cheapest of paints; hence the sticky surfaces. She never returned to her miserly husband, and is now an interior decorator doing a good business on the north side.

I am glad to write this in defense of this misunderstood and abused woman and to show the husband up in his true light. GOOD NATURED MEDDLER.

THE NEW EXPLOSIVE.

Chicago, March 19.—I see by the papers that Mr. Lester Barlow is having trouble trying to get a test of his liquid oxygen explosive. Imagine that happening in any country in Europe. Assuming that it is as powerful as he says it is, I would suggest that he make up a few large bombs and put them in a safe place, then when those frisky nations of Europe send their battleships over here he could hire a private plane and blow them out of the ocean, thereby saving the country and a few senators in spite of themselves. Or better still, he might just put the formula in an envelope and mail it to John Bull because he will get it eventually. F. E. M.

PULASKI.

Chicago, March 17.—Any business man who asserts that the name of Gen. Pulaski, who died in defense of our independence, may harm his business, not only unwittingly brands himself as a narrow minded, unpatriotic bigot, but also imprudently insults his prospective customers by suspecting them of possessing a similar despicable character.

C. E. K.

ET TU BRYSON.

Iowa City, March 17.—Doesn't Mr. Bryson's own use of "glossary" in his letter finding fault with Dr. Cutter's vocabulary rather destroy the force of his argument? R. C. F.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

WILL CONTEST.

Chicago, March 15 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. A parent had four children and left one $5. If that child would contest the will [2] could he have more than one hearing and could he keep it in court for years? The estate is small.

B. H.

1. The will would control unless the contestant could prove undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.

2. It would be possible for the trial court to take part of the evidence at one time and part of it at another. It would also be possible to appeal from the trial court's decision. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CONSERVATOR NECESSARY.

Chicago, March 7 [Legal Friend of the People].—A sister of mine is an inmate of the state hospital for the insane at Elgin. A year ago a bachelor brother died and his estate is ready to be disposed of.

1. Is it customary to have a guardian appointed for her share, or [2] does the state get her part?

3. Who signs for her?

A farm is also to be sold to which she is an heir.

4. How is this to be taken care of to clear the title?

The amount of her inheritance is around $200.

5. Is it possible in some way to have this money put in trust to bury her, as she is single and her burial when she dies will have to be taken care of by some one, as she has no money.

6. The will was put in probate March 1, 1939.

7. The administrator's bond expires March 1, 1940. After March 1 is he relieved of all responsibility? B. E. H.

1. Yes.

2. The state might collect charges for her care.

3. A conservator.

4. Presumably by partition proceedings, for which an attorney should be employed.

5. It could be held by a conservator.

6. We assume that you mean the will of your deceased brother. Ordinarily a will contains express wording excusing the furnishing of surety on the executor's bond.

7. The personal representative named in a will is called an executor rather than an administrator. We cannot advise to advantage without knowing the wording of the will and whether the executor named in the will is functioning.

Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

PROBATE COURT PROTECTS WAR VETS' ESTATES

Safeguards Assets for Incompetent Wards.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

In the closing days of the world war—at Exermont, France—a Chicago army sergeant advanced far beyond his company and single handedly attacked and reduced enemy machine gun nests. Under heavy fire, he killed two of his foes and captured 44 others.

His bravery won him a congressional medal of honor with a citation "for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty." But his exploit had its dark side, too, for he was seriously wounded and incapacitated. He lives here now with his family and receives $100 a month from the government.

Ward of Probate Court.

This hero is one of the war veterans who has been adjudged incompetent to manage his own affairs and is a ward of the Cook county Probate court. The court, presided over by Judge John F. O'Connell, works in close coöperation with the federal veterans' administration. Last year it supervised the estates of 1,475 ex-service men who had been ruled incompetent, and of 1,150 minors, beneficiaries of the estates of other veterans.

The value of these estates is $6,000,000, and they have an annual income of $1,500,000 from government disability payments and interest on investments.

One case in which Judge O'Connell aided more than 100 incompetent veterans involved the Foreman State Trust and Savings bank. This bank, which closed in 1931 and went into receivership in 1933, had acted as conservator or guardian for veterans' estates. It was found to have practically worthless investments in these estates of an aggregate face value of $388,076.

O'Connell Effects a Profit.

Judge O'Connell supervised the efforts to regain the veterans' assets at full value, and a settlement was reached July 3, 1935, with the First National bank, which, thru the First Union bank, had taken over the assets of the Foreman bank and assumed all the latter's liabilities. The settlement not only saved the veterans from any loss but actually gave their estates a small profit.

Another function of the Probate court is coöperation with the public administrators and general supervision over their accounts. The public administrators are appointed by the governor. Their duties are the administering of estates left by persons dying without wills, whose heirs are unknown or are nonresidents of Illinois.

It is estimated that the public administrator handles about 350 cases a year. He controls the assets of these estates until they are closed, even if his tenure in office has expired.

In examining the court records last summer Judge O'Connell uncovered the following information on unclosed estates:

Public administrator.	Years of service.	Unclosed estates.
James F. Bishop	1913-1917	40
Gordon Ramsay	1917-1921	67
Gregory Van Meter	1921-1925	130
Percy B. Coffin	1925-1930	0
Halbert O. Crews [dead]	1930-1935	8

The judge called in Bishop, Ramsay, and Van Meter. Bishop said he held $4,000 in assets of the estates under his control, and this money was turned over as soon as his audits were completed. Some of the funds escheat [revert] to the county under a statute providing for such disposition if, seven years after the death of a person, heirs have not been found or have not come forward to claim their share in his estate.

Ramsay Turns Over $12,450.

Ramsay was found to be holding $12,450 in funds for which no claimants had appeared, and he turned this money over to the county under escheat order signed by Judge O'Connell.

In the case of Van Meter it was learned that the late George F. Harding, Republican leader, had handled the assets in the unclosed estates in return for posting a $1,000,000 bond for Van Meter when the latter was public administrator. In closing 94 of these estates since last July $75,000 remained unclaimed and reverted to the county. The other 45 estates, in which Van Meter had jurisdiction, are now in process of being closed.

BUSINESS MEN'S ART CLUB OPENS ANNUAL EXHIBIT

The 23d annual exhibit of the Business Men's Art club of Chicago opened yesterday with 98 oil paintings, water colors, and drawings on display in the salon at Mandel Brothers'. All the exhibits are the works of business men who are amateur artists in their spare time.

The club, organized in 1917, now has 75 members. Works by business men in New York, Denver, Minneapolis, Madison, Wis., and Milwaukee are among those being shown. The exhibit will continue four weeks.

TROLLEY BUS-CAR CRASH KILLS TWO AT INTERSECTION

Schoolgirl, 17, and Friend Are Victims.

An Austin High school girl and an elderly friend of her family were killed last evening when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a surface line trolley bus at Central and West End avenues. Two women passengers on the bus were severely shaken.

The dead were Miss Virginia Perry, 17 years old, and Fred Holbrook, 56, a steamfitter, both of 215 North Central avenue. Holbrook's car was westbound and the bus northbound when the crash occurred. The car was telescoped against a light post.

Helping Family Move.

The Austin police learned that Holbrook was a boarder in the Perry home, and that he was helping the girl's family move to a new flat at 204 North Central avenue. Robert McShane, 150 North Cicero avenue, driver of the bus, was questioned at the Austin station.

Dr. James P. Fitzgerald, 50, senior attending member of the ophthalmological [eye] department of the Henrotin hospital, was injured seriously last night when the taxicab in which he was riding was struck by a street car at Wacker drive and Randolph street. He was taken to the Henrotin hospital, where Dr. John A. Graham said it was feared Dr. Fitzgerald's neck might be broken. Dr. Fitzgerald lives at 12 Ravine terrace, Highland Park. The cab was driven by Ralph Berkstrom, 4647 Keystone avenue, who was uninjured.

Dies in Truck-Train Crash.

Dale Hastings, 19, of Bloomington, McLean county, was injured fatally yesterday when the truck he was driving was struck by a Chicago bound Michigan Central railroad train at the State Line avenue crossing in Hammond. The wreckage of the truck was carried 1,500 feet over the state line into Calumet City.

Hastings was taken to St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond, where he died an hour after the crash. He was an employé of a trucking company. The engineer of the train said Hastings apparently disregarded warning signals.

Injured in Crash with Train.

Louis Andromidas, 912 South Utica street, Waukegan, was injured seriously when a truck he was driving was struck at the Argonne avenue crossing by a North Shore electric line train. The train was just pulling out after stopping at North Chicago junction. Andromidas, a bakery driver, was taken to St. Therese's hospital in Waukegan.

Carl E. Johnson, 24, of 1112 Cleveland street, Evanston, died in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, of injuries incurred March 3 when the car in which he was riding skidded on slushy pavement into the rear of another machine in Skokie road a mile south of Dundee road, near Glencoe. He was a golf professional.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 209 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 159 were killed in Chicago, where 4,529 were injured in the same period.

34 Policemen Graduated at N. U. Traffic School

Thirty-four traffic policemen representing 20 city police departments and four state units were graduated yesterday from the traffic officers' training school at Northwestern university. Illinois policemen graduating were Charles J. Pennebaker, Ottawa police department, and Harry Dunn, Illinois state police.

ROBBED OF $833 IN ALLEY.

BERLIN, March 23.—There is an especially poignant atmosphere about the war during the Easter holidays this year. Tens of thousands of soldiers are home on leave and you can see how the families jealously gather about their menfolk from the front to treasure every minute of their presence.

At Christmas time, when you walked thru the streets, you could tell by their radiant smiles those who had a son or brother or other relative back from the front. Now their radiance seems slightly dimmed and, while the women smile proudly as they step out with their men on leave, there is a certain bewildered look in their eyes.

I know of scores who in the last few days have told their friends about their men home on leave, but added: "They seem changed. They won't say anything much about life at the front."

Part of Discipline.

This silence is part of the soldiers' war discipline and seems overemphasized to those at home who wonder whether something big is going to happen.

Those going to church tomorrow will listen more closely to the peal of the church bells than they have in the past. They know this may be the last Easter the bells will chime because the authorities have ruled the metal of the bells must be turned over for military purposes, "merely as a measure of precaution."

Most children will have to forgo the traditional pleasure of hunting brightly colored eggs hidden in homes or gardens. Authorities declared that every person should be granted seven eggs in the four weeks around Easter. About two eggs per person were expected for the Easter week, but in many cases the eggs did not arrive. The customers will have to wait until next week, when the supply may be more plentiful.

Candy Eggs Missing.

Candy eggs made out of chocolate and other sweets which used to fill the windows of stores at Easter time are missing this year since chocolate and sugar are rationed. I did see an occasional pile of colored sugar eggs this week, but they were sold out in record time, with long lines of customers forming in front of the stores as soon as they opened.

Since the people have been saving up their ration cards for a good Easter roast, the butchers were working overtime today and people stood for an hour or more outside shops waiting to get their portions. In one big Berlin department store an extra supply of potatoes arrived for the first time in weeks. A big queue was formed by buyers eager to obtain their allotments.

At railway stations the trains still being operated were crowded, tho authorities had appealed to the population to stay home for the holidays. Those who left carefully had thought out how they would prove that their trip was important in case they were questioned by authorities.

No Joyriding.

The German radio issued a warning for the people to remember that they could not go joyriding in their cars during the holidays. Special squads of uniformed Nazis and police watched the streets and stopped an occasional car or taxi to question the passengers, who had to prove that their ride was "of importance to the whole German nation."

A Bulgarian visitor in Berlin engaged a taxi to attend a diplomatic lunch. His taxi was stopped. He explained that he did not want to be late for his luncheon with the diplomats. Since he was a visiting foreigner he was not fined, but he had to get out of the taxi and reach his goal by street car, bus or subway.

One Chinese restaurant, which is especially proud of its dishes made of eggs, posted a letter on its door. It was from its egg man. He told the firm he had learned the restaurant catered to Jewish customers and consequently he would sell it no more eggs. The egg dealer also said he had informed other firms selling eggs to the restaurant of the fact that Jews still were admitted. These firms likewise were expected to halt their deliveries.

Easter Sales

Miss Mary Louise Pierson was one of the many young women who sold flowers at the Easter sale of the Parish guild of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest yesterday.

BY JUDITH CASS.

The annual Easter sales of the Parish guild of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest and the woman's guild of Christ church, Winnetka, brought forth crowds in both villages yesterday. The Lake Forest sale was held in a showroom on Western avenue, made bright with balloons, Easter plants, a novelty bazar table and the bustle of customers.

The Winnetka sale was held at the Christ church parish house. One corner had been set aside for children who wanted to do their own Easter shopping. Several tables were set for various occasions, using linens made by guild members. Mrs. Ralph Rockwood was general chairman of the sale. Mrs. John P. Hooker was in charge of serving tea.

The Winnetka group does especially well with its bakery goods, which are renowned in the village. The Lake Foresters specialize in large and small potted plants, most of them from privately owned greenhouses.

A GAY EUROPE TO HAIL EASTER IN SPITE OF WAR

Holiday Travel Jams Capitals' Trains.

LONDON, March 23 (AP).—Europe was prepared tonight to observe Easter with most of the ceremonies and customs that have become associated with the Christian festival thru 19 centuries. Dispite the overhanging shadow of an early intensification of warfare and restrictions on food and festivity, dispatches stated the traditional holiday spirit was prevalent.

Christians of all nationalities were gathered in Jerusalem, the holy city, to commemorate the resurrection in ceremonies centered around the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, on the supposed site of the tomb from which Christ arose.

Peace Message by Pope.

The Roman Catholic world looked toward Vatican City, where Pope Pius XII. tomorrow will celebrate mass personally in the basilica of St. Peter's.

In a homily to be delivered before imparting his blessing on Rome and the world, the pope is expected to appeal for a return of concord among nations without, however, suggesting an immediate truce. His message and his benediction will be broadcast.

British Flock to Resorts.

Holiday travel has taxed Britain's system to the limit. British holidaymakers who have not built up reserves of rationed gasoline or have been unable to find space on packed railroad trains have taken to the roads on bicycles by the tens of thousands, going to seaside resorts or to the big cities. The southwestern resorts are favored, not those of the east and southeast which are nearest the air raid menace.

Late tonight the wives, sisters, and mothers of men in the fighting services began flocking to churches, from London's massive St. Paul's to the tiniest village chapel, for services that were to begin at midnight.

Some 10,000 Easter weddings, with many of the grooms and a few of the brides in khaki or blue, took place in England today.

French Crowds on Move.

In France extra trains were run to accommodate the holiday crowds, but every seat was reserved on trains either entering or leaving Paris for three days. It was the first opportunity many Parisians have had to visit relatives in havens outside Paris.

The French will pray for peace at their churches and special services will be held at the front for soldiers.

Balmy weather was forecast for Paris' fashion parade, which will introduce styles as chic as in any peacetime year.

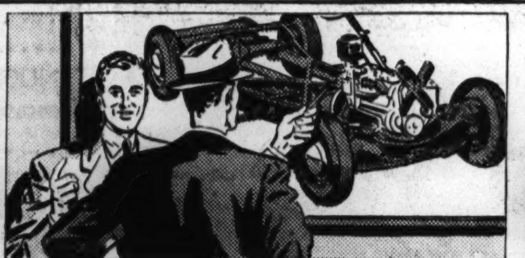
WANT TO MAKE A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER?

Here's a man well on his way to owning the kind of car he's always wanted to own. He's really excited, because he's just made the welcome discovery that the 1940 Pontiac is priced right down with the lowest.

He still finds it difficult to realize that this big, luxurious, wide-seated, long-wheelbase beauty is within his buying reach—that it will add so little to his payments he'll never notice the difference.



He's now hearing the greatest engineering story any car ever has had to tell—the story of Pontiac's "long-life" engineering and how it eliminates service annoyances and cuts repair bills to the bone.

And now he's taking the Pontiac ride. He'll find it makes him feel better all over to get his hands on a car like this—with its marvelous "power-packed" engine and its "Triple-Cushioned" ride.

BALKANS HAIL EASTER WITH FIRE AND EGGS

Ancient Pagan Rites Live in Modern Customs.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, March 23.—Thruout Jugo-Slavia tonight great bonfires on hilltops marked the coming of Easter. They served, too, as a reminder that Easter in the Balkans bears more marks of ancient pagan spring festivals than of Christian ritual.

Peasants celebrated with a dozen traditional customs bound up with fire and eggs as symbols of vitality and fertility. Handed down from pre-Christian times, these rites are now given Christian religious interpretations by the peasants.

Some of the strange and interesting customs are practiced only by members of the Orthodox [Greek Catholic] church. Many, however, have become part of the Easter festival of the Balkan members of the Roman Catholic church.

Masses Live on Soil.

In every Balkan country four-fifths or more of the population is made up of peasants living closer to the soil than in any other civilized country. The fertility of the soil and the forces of nature are so vitally important to them that they have given to the Orthodox church ceremonies amounting almost to pagan nature-worship.

When the sun comes closest to the earth, in the spring, the peasants believe that the spirits of the dead walk abroad and will blight the crops and even the souls of men if not carefully propitiated. Most of their Easter customs are meant to protect them and their live stock and crops against evil spirits and to induce the spirits to go away for another year.

Easter observance in the Balkans opens in earnest at the beginning of Lent, which is observed more strictly in the Orthodox church than in any other. During the entire period no meat, fat, butter, milk, or cheese may be touched.

Mush the Year Around.

The Rumanian peasant lives the year around on cornmeal mush, sometimes served with a little homemade cheese and onions and pickled cabbage and beets. Meat is too expensive except for rare occasions. The mush takes the place of bread.

During Lent the diet is so restricted that Rumanian doctors say infant mortality, already high [more than one in five], reaches staggering figures because mothers refuse to take the nourishment necessary for their children. A nursing mother, the doctors say, would rather stick to her diet of cornmeal and pickles and allow her baby to die than take milk and be "contaminated."

In Jugo-Slavia and other Balkan countries the fast is just as strict.

As a further observance of Lent, marriage is forbidden thruout the 40 days.

Dirt Flies on Clean Monday.

The first Monday of Lent is the traditional spring housecleaning day, Clean Monday.

In eastern Serbia girls of the villages light bonfires at midnight and young men come to dance and sing with them around the fires until morning. The girls then cut willow switches and take turns whipping one another with them. They view willow as a symbol of life and fertility because it grows so vigorously and comes to life early in the spring. By switching one another the girls believe they help to produce a good harvest.

Eggs Become Works of Art.

For days before Easter housewives prepare Easter eggs, known as red eggs because most of them are dyed red.

In Rumania some of the eggs are works of art and are often kept for years. They are done in intricate patterns, with only the crudest materials. Usually an effort is made to give a personal note.

All sorts of magic powers are attributed to the eggs by Jugo-Slav peasants. They touch sick children with them to cure their ills.

On Easter Saturday bonfires on the hilltops mark the approaching end of Lent, and at this time one is built in front of the village church. All the householders light consecrated candles at it and carry them home.

The housewife takes meat, eggs, cheese, and salt to the church to be consecrated for an Easter feast after the midnight church service.

In Rumania eggshells are floated down the streams. This, say the peasants, is to tell their cousins, the "Rokmans," that Christ is risen and all is well. They do not know who the "Rokmans" are but say they are in captivity far away and that the shells will float past their prisons and give them the glad news.

Apparently, the "Rokmans" represent some vague traditional memory of the Romans, who once colonized their land and then retired again.

Joe Farbo, 711 South Morgan street, enjoys ice cream at party given for Hull House children by J. P. Binns, manager of the Stevens hotel.

Eighty-five thousand plants bearing spring blooms gave a fragrant Easter greeting yesterday to Chicagoans with the opening of flower shows in the Garfield and Lincoln Park conservatories. In several of the smaller parks the industrious Easter rabbit was an early caller. He left thousands of colored eggs hidden under the benches, in bushes, flower beds and bird fountains. When word of his visit spread, young egg hunters swarmed in and feasted.

The scenes of yesterday's park egg hunts were Armour square, 33d street and Shields avenue; Douglas, Albany avenue and 14th street; Avondale, 3516 School street; Shabbona, 6935 Addison street; Stanton, Evergreen and Vine streets, and Welles, Montrose and Lincoln.

Irving, the magician, plucked Easter rabbits, chickens and doves from his hat for 300 amazed boys and girls at an afternoon party at Shawnee Country club in Wilmette. At the Stevens hotel, the general manager, Joseph P. Binns, was host to forty children from Hull house at an Easter egg party, modeled after the egg roll tradition at the White House.

COLD WILL KEEP PRESIDENT FROM EASTER SERVICES

May Join Mrs. Roosevelt at Egg Rolling Fete.

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt's cold was reported much better today, but White House attachés said it probably will prevent him attending Easter church services.

The chief executive stayed abed most of the day. His secretary, Stephen T. Early, said he thought it unlikely the President would venture out tomorrow, particularly since the forecast is for a raw, cold day.

It has been Mr. Roosevelt's custom when in Washington on Easter to attend services at St. Thomas' Episcopal church.

Services at Arlington.

Mrs. Roosevelt expects to join thousands of other Washingtonians and visitors at sunrise services at Arlington cemetery, and also will attend services at St. Thomas'.

In view of Mr. Roosevelt's progress in throwing off his cold, he is expected to join Mrs. Roosevelt for at least a few minutes Monday in greeting the thousands of children who will flock to the White House grounds for the traditional Easter egg rolling.

Traditional Since Grant's Time.

This Easter monday fête has been an annual custom since President Grant's White House term. Children swarm over the south lawn, roll their eggs down its smooth slopes, eat thousands of eggs, and get lost from their parents. No adults are admitted unless accompanied by children.

One doctor, one ambulance, and four nurses will stand by for emergencies.

COMPTON CALLS RELIGION VITAL TO FREE SOCIETY

Dallas, Tex., March 23 (AP).—Dr. Arthur Holly Compton, winner of the Nobel prize physics and famed University of Chicago cosmic ray authority, said today that religion and its brotherly love doctrine was the only means of effecting the coöperation vital to a free society. He addressed the Dallas round table of the national conference of Christians and Jews.

Dr. Compton said that science and technology were making the world one in which human needs can be satisfied more abundantly than ever before, but that the process also was developing a society of specialists, which can function only when there is coöperation between its members.

To get this necessary coöperation, he continued, men either may set up dictatorships under which each individual is assigned a part, or they may have a free society which, in turn, can only be developed by the desire upon the part of each individual to work for the common welfare.

TWO MORE RAILROAD STEWARDESSES TAKE HONEYMOON EXPRESS

Agnes O'Mara [top] and Helen Brennan.

Engine bells are O. K., but stewardesses on the Rock Island railroad's Californian prefer wedding bells, it seems. Eight of the 11 stewardesses hired for the Californian in 1937 have resigned within the last year to get married.

The latest are Miss Agnes O'Mara and Miss Helen Brennan. Miss O'Mara, who comes from Dubuque, Ia., has announced that she is going to marry William F. Shattuck of the Chicago offices of the Western Electric company. Miss Brennan, a native of Calumet, Mich., plans to marry C. J. Larson of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank.

EX-MAYOR IS 85 TODAY.

Sidney, Ill., March 23 [Special].—S. G. Lehman, pioneer resident and former mayor of Sidney, will observe his 85th birthday tomorrow. When he resigned as mayor recently because of failing health, he was said to be one of the oldest mayors in the state. A son, Ruel L. Lehman, lives in Chicago.

MILK PRODUCERS OPPOSE CHANGING FEDERAL ORDER

Farmers Are Still Losing Money, They Say.

A. H. Lauterbach, general manager of the Pure Milk association, a farmers' group, told a department of agriculture hearing yesterday that P. M. A. members opposed any major changes in the present Chicago federal milk marketing order.

Lauterbach testified at the closing session of a four day public hearing held to consider proposed amendments to the order. Glen J. Gifford of the department of agriculture presided, in the Stevens hotel. Testimony taken at the hearing will be examined by officials in Washington, where a decision will be announced.

Discussing amendments proposed by dairy and ice cream representatives which would bring a cut in the price paid the farmer for milk, Lauterbach said: "The producers are amazed at some of the prices recommended by milk buyers. We still haven't reached parity prices for farmers. Many of them are still losing their farms. The fact that two dairies declared a dividend today shows that they are still making money while the farmers are losing it."

Doubts There Will Be Surplus.

He also replied to dairymen's statements that the high prices paid producers under the federal order had brought many new producers into the Chicago market and that a large surplus expected this spring threatened to cause a milk market crash.

"Last fall," he said, "our association was actually short of milk. We bought back some of our own milk from larger buyers at a premium and sold it to other customers at a loss. There probably were more farmers on the market last fall because the dealers came and begged them to meet grade A requirements so that they [the handlers] could increase their volume and cut down overhead.

"We're not alarmed about any production increase. I'm not sure but that unless there is a large rainfall this spring there may be a shortage of milk before July in this market."

Compares Prices in Cities.

Lauterbach said that a comparison of prices paid under the Chicago federal milk order with those paid in areas such as Detroit and St. Louis indicated the Chicago prices were "not far out of line." He said, however, that he felt serious consideration should be given to the possibility of an adjustment of cream prices, which, he said, probably were not high enough in the fall and were too high in the spring.

C. J. Wieland, speaking on behalf of a group of north shore milk dealers, asserted that they had no complaint against the federal order and did not feel that the farmer was being overpaid. He suggested, however, that the order be extended to territory within a 10 mile radius of Chicago to protect Chicago and north shore dealers from cut-rate competition. Wieland said, also, that some dealers outside the marketing area were selling grade B milk under a grade A label.

STRIKER CHARGES TEAR GAS ATTACK TO PLANT OWNER

Claims Gun Fired During Assault on Convoy.

Walter MacNeille, secretary of the St. Charles Manufacturing company of St. Charles, was arrested yesterday on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. He is accused of discharging tear gas at a striking employé when several carloads of strikers halted MacNeille's car last Thursday.

The charge was brought by Louis Wilkinson, 1028 Dean street, St. Charles. In his warrant, Wilkinson revealed himself for the first time as one of the strikers who followed MacNeille and a convoyed truck laden with products of the company. Wilkinson said he was advancing toward the company executive when MacNeille fired the tear gas from a revolver.

Official Denies Charge.

MacNeille was released in $1,000 bond at Wheaton. He denied using tear gas, asserting he was crouching low in the car to escape a beating. The strikers, he charged, had smashed a car window, snatched off his hat, and then attempted to pummel him. MacNeille said he had neither tear gas nor a gun.

Other strikers, nine of whom were arrested after the trouble, said previously that tear gas was discharged by some one within the car.

Strike Called Feb. 8.

The violence of Thursday followed trouble which has prevailed since a strike was called at the company's factory Feb. 8 by two American Federation of Labor unions. They are the International Association of Machinists and the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers, and Helpers.

The company had asked protection for some of its products which were being brought to Chicago by truck. Sheriff Marcus Damish of Kane county convoyed the truck from St. Charles to the Du Page county line. There Sheriff Elmer Hoffman of Du Page county met the truck to convoy it across his county. Northwest of Wheaton, three carloads of strikers halted MacNeille's car, which was following the truck.

Four men accused of assault as a result of a previous attack on a company truck are to be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Johnson tomorrow.

HOLDUP VICTIM WIELDS HAMMER, SEIZES GUNMAN

An irate robbery victim with a hammer tracked down and caught one of two gunmen yesterday after they robbed him of $500 in a tavern at 1754 Madison street. The captor is Robert Reilly, head of a mattress company at 1712 Arcade place, and owner of the tavern. The captured robber is John Gale, 27, of 4407 Madison street, an ex-convict. The second robber escaped.

John Gale.

The robbers, accompanied by a woman, took $500 from Reilly and $70 from the cash register in a morning holdup yesterday, then fled. Reilly, his wife, Ida, and their chauffeur, Charles Dickman, left soon afterward and drove along Madison. They spotted the holdup men in a restaurant at 833 Madison.

Reilly, with a hammer, and Dickman went in after them. One slugged Dickman with a revolver and escaped. Gale was hit with Reilly's hammer and caught. He told police he was released from Pontiac prison four years ago after serving a five year robbery term. He said his companion also was an ex-convict.

Returned to Georgia

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Richard Gray Gallogly, escaped life termer, receives farewell kiss from wife in Dallas, Tex., as he gives up fight to prevent return to Georgia prison.

Atlanta, Ga., March 23 [Special].—Richard Gray Gallogly, a wealthy former Oglethorpe university student and convicted "thrill" slayer, tonight was on his way back from Texas to resume serving a life sentence in a Georgia state penitentiary.

Gallogly escaped last Oct. 6 while en route by automobile with two guards from an Atlanta hospital to the prison. He had entered the hospital following an appeal for parole based partly on the claim that he was seriously ill. Physicians found that he was not ill and his plea was denied.

Georgia officials said tonight that Gallogly, accompanied by two Georgia troopers, left Dallas, Tex., this afternoon by automobile and will arrive in Atlanta early tomorrow morning. He will be immediately transferred to the state prison.

Gallogly, accompanied by his pretty wife, whom he was permitted to marry secretly altho he was a prisoner, surrendered in Dallas after his escape and asked for "justice." However, he lost his fight against extradition.

OUSTED SURGEON PLEADS GUILTY TO PRISON DOPE SALE

Indianapolis, Ind., March 23 (AP).—Dr. Elmer J. Kalal, 38 years old, dismissed recently as chief surgeon at the Pendleton state reformatory following his arrest on a charge of illegally selling narcotics, pleaded guilty in federal court today.

Dr. Elmer J. Kalal.

Judge Robert C. Baltzell deferred sentence pending an investigation by a probation officer but announced he will not impose a suspended term.

State and federal officers who arrested the physician after he had sold narcotics to a former reformatory inmate said they found a large supply of the drug in his office and that it had been taken from the institution's stock. Defense counsel pleaded for leniency, telling the court that Kalal was born of poor parents on a Nebraska farm and worked his way through an Illinois university, taking 14 years to get his medical degree.

KLAN'S RECORDS VANISH IN FACE OF TERROR QUIZ

Floggers Linked to Killings in Lovers' Lane.

Atlanta, Ga., March 23 [Special].—All records of a unit of the Ku Klux Klan in East Point, an Atlanta suburb, vanished mysteriously today as police sought to establish whether the klan was involved in a wave of night riding terrorism in which at least one person has been beaten to death and more than twenty others brutally flogged.

Police said letters requesting klan parades and the burning of fiery crosses, membership rolls, and other pertinent records disappeared with a small box kept in the klan's East Point assembly rooms.

Postoffice Box Involved.

Investigators also revealed thay had questioned postal officials about a postoffice box maintained by the East Point klan, and further disclosed that the full membership of the klan never had an opportunity to pass upon requests for parades or burning of fiery crosses. These requests, is was ascertained, were acted upon by a committee composed partly of men already linked with the series of floggings, it was reported.

Authorities announced that evidence has been uncovered strongly linking a band of floggers to the mysterious double murder of a young couple. Their bodies were found in a lonely lovers' lane near here a month ago.

It was also revealed that investigators have identified the maker of the lash with which Ike Gaston, an East Point, Ga., barber, was flogged to death two weeks ago.

The lovers' lane victims were Sarah Rawls, 20 years old, and Benton Ford, 24, of McDonough, Ga. Their bodies bore marks of a brutal beating. Investigators expressed belief that the slayers killed Ford accidentally while administering a whipping and then murdered the girl because she was a witness.

Capt. Ben W. Seabrook of the Atlanta police indentification bureau, and Dan Duke, assistant solicitor general of Fulton county [Atlanta], said they have grilled one of the key figures in the flogging inquiry and four of the suspect's fellow workers. Altho the officials refused to divulge names, it was learned that four of those questioned testified that the fifth fashioned the medieval style torture whip during odd hours at the Atlanta establishment where all are employed.

Used in Other Attacks.

The lash, they said, was made more than 18 months ago. It has been identified in at least two floggings other than the fatal whipping of Gaston, it was learned.

Floggers have been terrorizing persons in the Atlanta vicinity for more than a year. In addition to the slaying of Gaston, they are known to have brutally whipped more than 20 other persons.

A special county grand jury will resume its investigation of the whippings next week. Meanwhile, witnesses who appeared before the jurors on Friday and identified 14 persons as floggers are under special police protection.

DEMOCRAT POSTS BOND ON CHARGE OF SELLING JOBS

Atlanta, Ga., March 23 [Special].—Representative B. Frank Whelchel of the 9th Georgia district, a Democrat who was indicted by a Federal grand jury here yesterday on charges of selling postal appointments, posted $5,000 bond before United States Commissioner R. E. Smith Jr., at Gainesville, today for appearance at the April term of Federal court. Later he gave up the honor of introducing Postmaster General James A. Farley, when the Democratic committee chairman speaks at Jefferson on April 8.

Whelchel explained that under the circumstances his presence might be embarrasing to Farley.

Denying the charges in two indictments returned against him, Whelchel said the cases were the outgrowth of the combined efforts of political enemies and disappointed job seekers and assailed "publicity seeking lawyers from the department of justice."

HOMICIDE BUREAU FASHIONS WEAPON TO FIGHT CRIME

No Clews Overlooked by 'Evidence Box.'

The homicide bureau of the Chicago police department, which specializes in scientific crime detection, has recently perfected a new method of preserving evidence in murder scenes.

This method involves use of a "portable evidence carrying case," a boxlike affair, 27 by 12 by 13 inches and weighing 54 pounds. The case is divided into four 'evidence kits," each holding the materials needed for the preservation of specific kinds of evidence.

No Evidence Overlooked.

Lieut. Otto Erlanson, head of the bureau, said yesterday the evidence case wouldn't solve a murder, but would keep evidence from being overlooked or lost.

"Thru its use," he said, "we can preserve blood stains, make permanent records of finger prints, and accurate casts of footprints, all at the crime scene. We can take paraffin tests to show whether the hand of a man held a pistol that has been fired.

"Tests, of course, are not completed on the spot. My men are policemen, not expert chemists. The final deductions along scientific lines are made by the police crime detection laboratory.

"But we do give the laboratory accurately identified clews on which to work. It's harder now to cover up a murder than it ever was before."

Start Made 21 Years Ago.

The first homicide squad in Chicago was formed in 1919, when John H. Alcock was acting police chief. Lieut. Erlanson was one of the seven members. He has continued in the same line of police work since.

The detail grew slowly until Commissioner Allman, on Jan. 16, 1938, gave it the status of a bureau. Now there are 26 policemen assigned to homicide and sex cases. Each is a picked man. Each can operate a typewriter. Four write shorthand. All attend classes in scientific crime detection 10 weeks a year.

FORD makes it ..no car near its price can match it!

FOR PERFORMANCE: Only eight-cylinder engine near its price! A big, powerful engine that does its job smoothly and quietly. So well built you don't need to "break it in."

FOR ECONOMY: The Ford V-8 averaged 24.92 miles per gallon in the 1940 Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Run—better than any other standard-equipped car in its price class.

FOR SAFETY: Biggest hydraulic brakes in the low-price field! Strong X-type frame—lowest center of gravity—full torque-tube drive! Stabilized chassis—powerful Sealed-Beam Headlamps—oversize battery.

FOR COMFORT: A buoyant, restful ride. Four double-acting, hydraulic shock absorbers—soft springs—123-inch springbase—added room—deep, wide seats—controlled ventilation.

FOR STYLE: The beauty of the Ford comes from the Lincoln-Zephyr, world's style leader. Flowing lines, sparkling colors, luxurious interiors, more equipment included in the price.

FOR DOWNRIGHT DOLLAR VALUE: Extra cylinders in the engine, extra quality all through the car. Ford has built more cars than anybody else and has the world's best equipped plant for building them!

STEP UP TO THE V·8 CLASS

IT PAYS TO DEAL WITH THE FORD DEALER
He is ready, willing and anxious to trade. Before you buy any car, let him appraise your present car—any make. Ford prices are low—and include equipment for which you usually pay extra.

HAIL SWEDISH BOXER AS HEAVYWEIGHT WHITE HOPE

TANDBERG WILL FACE YOUNG IN GOLDEN GLOVES

European Boxers Reach Genoa.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENOA, Italy, March 23.—The Italian motorship Vulcania, which is carrying the European Golden Gloves champions to the United States, put into this historical port today in a heavy fog and steady rain. The weather prevented the squad from taking a long hike which Trainer Steve Klaus had planned while the Vulcania was plowing the waves under summer skies yesterday.

Shortly after the flags had been raised from half staff and nearly 100 liners and freighters in the harbor had tied down their whistles for several minutes at 11 o'clock in an old European marine ceremony observing the Resurrection, a delegation of amateur athletic authorities and newspapermen came aboard to visit the squad.

Watch Out, Mr. Louis!

They were particularly interested in Olle Tandberg, the Swedish heavyweight, who was subjected to another of the interviews which are becoming increasingly common in his young life. Europe considers itself in a race with the United States in developing a white hope and Tandberg is its candidate to wrest the heavyweight crown from Joe Louis when Olle enters the professional ranks.

The Europeans also state that Americans will be convinced of Tandberg's championship ability after he meets Chicago's Cornelius Young in the ninth annual International Golden Gloves matches in the Chicago Stadium on April 10.

The Swedish sailor and interior decorator, because of his record and physical qualifications and his intense interest in the sport, has aroused every boxing fan's hope for a European heavyweight champion. He began fighting at the age of 15 in 1933 and has engaged in 136 bouts, losing only four times, each time by a decision. He later reversed each decision.

An Athletic Heritage.

Tandberg comes from a family of athletes. His father, Olle Sr., was one of Sweden's greatest ski jumpers and with young Olle's three uncles formed one of the outstanding trick skiing teams of 25 years ago. Tandberg senior still skis considerably and has taught Olle, his only son, the art, just as he taught him the fundamentals of the decorative painting craft, which the Tandberg family has followed for four generations.

Reading of Otto von Porat's professional exploits in America first turned Tandberg's attention to boxing. He joined a small club called the Giger to receive instruction. While taking lessons he became interested in soccer football. Today he is considered one of the outstanding center forwards in Europe. In 1936, when only 17 years old, he won the Swedish heavyweight championship for the first time and represented Sweden in the Olympic games in Berlin.

Beat Oliver in Berlin.

In his first bout in Berlin, Tandberg defeated the American heavyweight, Art Oliver, but lost in the quarter-finals to the Hungarian, Frank Nagy. In 1937 Olle won the Europeon championship in Milan and became eligible to go to Chicago for the International Golden Gloves matches. He was enrolled in a government vocational school at the time studying decorative art and declined the invitation. He was invited again in 1938, but again preferred to remain behind and study.

He said today that the desire to develop his boxing skill under his Stockholm instructor, Gustav Bergman, a former Swedish lightweight,

Paycheck Gets Cool Reception for Louis Bout

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pompton Lakes, N. J., March 23.—Harold Steinman, manager of Johnny Paycheck, who fights Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship of the world Friday evening in Madison Square Garden, is bitterly disillusioned. For Steinman and Paycheck have had as cold a reception in New York as the sub-freezing weather promeses to those in 5th avenue's Easter parade in the morning.

Perhaps Steinman thought he had learned all the devious twists and angles to matching fighters and securing publicity when he was front man for King Levinsky. Certainly Levinsky and his sister manager, Lena Levy, received far more notice than the King's ability warranted. Now, however, when Steinman has climaxed a two year campaign by securing Paycheck a title bout, he has been ignored almost as completely by the metropolitan press as if Doc Biers' camp were placarded by the health authorities.

Blame Godoy for Slump.

Unless New York takes more interest than it has, the Louis-Paycheck match will fall far below $100,000 gross receipts. When Louis defeated Arturo Godoy receipts were approximately $90,000. And those who have advanced opinions for the lethargy of the customers agree that Godoy is at least partly responsible.

Godoy stayed 15 rounds with Louis, these men say, merely because he did everything except fight. The burlesque has stifled fight interests. Now Paycheck, who is unknown in the east anyway, is paying the penalty for a situation not of his making.

"I don't say Johnny will knock out Joe Louis," Steinman said emphatically as he enumerated his reasons why New York should really go to the Garden Friday night. "Who has knocked out Joe Louis? But I do say Johnny isn't getting a fair break. He can fight. Look at his 33 bouts in the last two years.

"Paycheck will give Louis a good fight. His record is a lot better than some of Louis' opponents and that goes double for Godoy."

A Golden Gloves Graduate.

It is surprising to us from the midwest to find that while eastern writers sing the praises of Bob Pastor, they have overlooked Paycheck, a better fighter. Paycheck's Golden Gloves record—he's a graduate of the Chicago tournament as is Louis—is better than Pastor's. Bob won a New York Golden Gloves title. Indeed, Johnny might long since have been the toast of the Golden Gloves graduates except for Louis' sudden rise in 1934, a year later.

In 1933 Paycheck won the Golden Gloves heavyweight title. He could have reduced to the 175 pound class, but since Max Marek, his pal from Lindblom High school, also was in the tournament, he decided to enter the heavyweight class. Marek, incidentally, was the 175 pound champion that year. Paycheck, Adolph Wiater, of Green Bay, Jack Kranz of Gary, and Arlo Soldati of Rockford qualified for the 1933 finals. Paycheck defeated Wiater and Kranz won from Soldati. In the final round Paycheck whipped Kranz to win the Golden Gloves.

Camp Is Cold and Lonely.

Paycheck then won the intercity championship by whipping Steve Dudas. His international victory was a knockout of Ireland's Paddy Mulligan in Soldiers' field. That same year in Boston Max Marek knocked down and won a three round decision from an unknown colored boxer from Detroit. That defeated amateur was Joe Louis.

In 1934 Louis won the Chicago Golden Gloves 175 pound title. In the national A. A. U. tournament in St. Louis Joe knocked out Soldati representing Chicago. After Joe had started his professional career July 4, 1934, he met and defeated Wiater and Kranz. In one sense, this Paycheck-Louis fight might be called unfinished business from Golden Gloves days. It is the first heavyweight title fight between two former Chicago champions.

The stiff north wind this afternoon made Paycheck's camp most uncomfortable except for the cubby hole of a dressing room heated by the gas stove that also provides hot water.

WHEN CHAMPIONS MEET RECORDS MUST FALL

Roy Cochran (right), Indiana's brilliant quarter miler, leaps into the tape to beat Charley Belcher of Georgia Tech in a special 600 yard race which featured the fourth annual Chicago Relays in the International amphitheater last night. The time was 1:11.4. Ten thousand saw the meet.

Chuck Fenske, University of Wisconsin star, wins the Bankers' mile in 4:07.9 for a meet record.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

FENSKE'S 4:07.9 IN BANKER'S MILE BREAKS CHICAGO RELAYS RECORD

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

There have been a few rapid mile races run in our town, but none so fast as that which Chuck Fenske, University of Wisconsin star, submitted last night in winning the Bankers' mile, feature of the fourth Chicago relays in the International amphitheater. A crowd of 10,000 cheered the bespectacled Badger as he reasserted his right to the title of American's No. 1 miler with his ninth straight victory of this season.

Fenshe was timed in 4 minutes, 7.9 seconds, two full seconds under the meet record of 4:09.9, set by Glenn Cunningham in 1938, and a full second better than the fastest mile ever run on a Chicago track, a 4:08.9 performance by Chuck himself in last year's Armour relays.

Venzke a Poor Second.

Twelve yards back of the Badger at the finish was Gene Venzke former Pennsylvania star, now running for the New York Athletic club. Fifteen yards behind Venzke came Cunningham, the barrel chested Kansan who holds the accepted world record of 4:04.4, and who probably was making him last competitive appearance here, since he has indicated he will retire this year. Archie San Romani of Emporia, Kas., the pacesetter from the start to the three-quarters mark, dropped out of the race a half lap after that point was reached.

Fenske took the lead for the first time at this juncture, and there was no doubt about who the winner would be once he entered the last lap. The times for the quarter mile sections of the race were :61, 2:05, and 3:08.

Triumphs Again.

Fenske's mile was the outstanding individual performance of the night, but the real competitive thriller of the program came in the two mile struggle that followed it. Greg Rice, the sturdy Notre Dame star who recently ran the distance in 8:56.2, was the winner after an amazing burst of finishing speed that enabled him to set a new meet mark of 9 minutes and three-tenths of a second. That time lowered the old record of nine minutes, five seconds, made last year by Don Lash of the Indiana state police.

All of the five men in the race—Rice, Lash, Tommy Deckard of Bloomington, Ind.; Walter Mehl of the University of Wisconsin, and old Joe McCluskey of New York—drew cheers from the crowd. McCluskey held the lead at three of the quarter mile posts, arguing for it with Lash. Rice didn't make his move until the mile and three-quarter point was passed. Then he held it only momentarily, for Lash took it back again, and it wasn't until the next to last of the 22 laps that little Greg really went to work. He came in 20 yards ahead of Mehl, who beat out Lash for second place.

Six new meet records were set up last night. Marks fell in the mile, two mile, one mile college relay, the high jump, and two high school relay events.

Cochran Humbles Herbert.

Jimmy Herbert, holder of the meet record and defending champion in the 600 yard run, never did get going last night. The colored star from New York university finished fourth back of Roy Cochran, the Indiana university student who recently ran the 440 yards in world record time. Cochran's time in the 600 last night was 1 minute 11.4 seconds, 3.1 seconds slower than Herbert's time last year. Charley Belcher, Georgia Tech's national champion at the distance, was second, beating out Charley Beetham, former Ohio State star.

Maroons Beat Wildcats.

Chicago and Northwestern, ancient athletic foes, met again in a special one mile relay match. The Maroon foursome of Bill Fradkin, William Stabenau, Woolcott Beatty, and Chester Powell, won easily, altho their time of 3:27.9 was far above the meet record of 3:20.4, held by Ohio State and Iowa.

Two Chicago high school teams and Loyola university set a good early example for the rest of the field in the record breaking department. Austin High won the city high school relay at 8-11th of a mile in the record time of 2:30.2.

The Catholic High school relay was captured by St. Ignatius in 2:30.6.

Paced by Max Lenover, Loyola's quartet took the college relay at a mile in 3:27.9, lowering the former mark of 3:30.2, set last year by North Central college, which finished third last night back of De Kalb Teachers.

Borican Retains Title.

Mel Walker of New York City, former Ohio State star, contributed the first individual record of the night when he sailed over the bar in the high jump at 6 feet 5⅝ inches for a new relay mark, breaking the old figure of 6 feet 5 inches, held jointly by Bob Diefenthaler of the University of Illinois and Dave Albritton, former Ohio State star. Albritton had to be content with a second place tie at 6 feet 2 inches with Jimmy Smith of Northwestern and Arthur Byrnes of Manhattan college.

John Borican, colored star of the Shore Athletic club of Elberon, N. J., successfully defended his championship in the 1,000 yard run against a fast field. He was timed in 2 minutes 14.1 seconds, considerably over his own meet mark of 2:10.6, set last year. Borican found plenty of competition in Max Lenover of Loyola and Campbell Kane of Indiana, the former leading him twice during the race and the latter rushing up in the stretch to press him at the finish.

Meadows Misses Record.

For two hours, the crowd thrilled to the works of Earle Meadows of the Southern California A. A., holder of the world's record of 14 feet 6¼ inches, made in last year's Chicago relays. After he had eliminated all of his rivals with a winning height of 14 feet 4½ inches, the one time Trojan had the bar raised to 14 feet 7¼ inches.

He made three galant tries, and on his final effort cleared it with his

Clay Heafner, Ben Hogan Tie for Lead at 69

Greensboro, N. C., March 23 (AP).—A change of scene makes no difference to Ben Hogan. The Texas born pro who won the north-south open championship two days ago continued in the same stride today as he finished the first round of the $5,000 Greensboro open tournament in a first place tie with Clayton Heafner at 69.

Comparing the figures alone, Hogan's two under par effort this afternoon would hardly stand up to his six under par 66 opener at Pinehurst. But considering the fact that there was a tricky wind, that the greens weren't in any too good shape and the fairways also had their bad spots, his 69 was quite an accomplishment.

Hogan missed only one green and not a single fairway all the way around. He had a potential 63, but missed by inches on six putts of five feet or less.

Heafner's first round stood out because of the scrambling he did on the first nine and his recovery to consistency on the second. He was out in 35, even par, and came home at two under par 34.

Altho some of the touring pros turned in their highest scores of the season, Hogan and Heafner finished only one stroke in front. At 70 there was a foursome consisting of Craig Wood, who saw a 25 footer for a 69 bounce out of the back of the cup on No. 18; Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., one of the better younger pros; Jack Helms of Charlotte, N. C., former caddie master at the nearby Greensboro C. C., and Sam Snead. Henry Steyers, at 74, had the best score among the amateurs.

NEW JERSEY BOWLER TAKES LEAD IN A. B. C. SINGLES AND ALL-EVENTS

Detroit, Mich., March 23 [Special].—Marty Cassio of Elizabeth, N. J., 35 year old salesman and five time New Jersey match champion, went into first place in the singles in the American Bowling congress today with 725, which also carried him to the top of the all-events with 1,943 to nose out the week old mark of 1,940 set by Eddie Zajac of Chicago.

The stocky Jersey sharpshooter opened with 235 and zoomed to 266 for a two game total of 501. He left the 1-2-9 set-up in the seventh frame of his third game and missed. He needed a double and spare for 700, but struck out all the way for 224.

The figure of 725 has won 30 out of the last 39 A. B. C. singles titles.

Cassio paired with Ray Nolan for 1,220 in the doubles, good for seventh place.

Chicago Man Gets 676.

Heavy firing most of the day saw frequent shifts among the leaders in all except the five man event.

Paul Chambers, Marion, Ind., iceman, and Robert Parrish, Chicago restaurant superintendent, took over third and fourth places, respectively, in the singles. Chambers, competing in his first A. B. C., compiled 681 and Parrish 676.

SCORE SIX RUNS IN THIRD; EVEN SPRING SERIES

Lee First Chicagoan to Go Six Innings.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23.—The Cubs this afternoon thumped Johnny Rigney for three runs in the second inning and six in the third for much more than enough to beat the White Sox in the fourth game of the Chicago spring city series. The final score was 10 to 6 and the outcome, the Cubs' sixth straight exhibition victory, evened the count with the Sox at two victories each.

Aside from being a most welcome victory the result today had some other encouraging aspects. Bill Lee became the first Cub pitcher to go six innings, shutting out the Sox in his first four frames. And Stan Hack made his first appearance of the year at third base.

The Cubs, despite their frolicksome mood, neglected the home run technique they employed so pleasingly in sweeping their series with the Athletics and the Pirates, but nevertheless gathered an assortment of 14 hits, including doubles by Bob Sturgeon, Bill Nicholson, and Jim Gleeson

Rigney Starts His Slide.

Rigney's fit of wildness in the second inning touched off the first scoring. With one down Dallessandro walked. Russell fanned, then Todd walked. Sturgeon singled to center, scoring Dallessandro, Lee singled to left, scoring Todd, and Mattick singled to center, scoring Sturgeon.

Manager Dykes really let Rigney take it in the third inning. Galan, in his first trip to the plate in the inning, singled to right and stopped at third on Nicholson's double to right. Galan scored and Nicholson took third on Dallessandro's fly to Kreevich. Russell bounced to Kuhel, Nicholson scoring. Todd singled and scored on Sturgeon's double to left and Sturgeon scored on Lee's line single to left. Mattick's single and an infield hit by Herman loaded the bases. Galan, up again, walked, forcing Lee home. Dietrich replaced Rigney and walked Nicholson, forcing Mattick home. Dallessandro was thrown out by Hayes to end the spree.

Dietrich Brings Order.

Dietrich slowed down the Cubs in the fourth. Cavarretta batted for Russell and led off with a double, but Kennedy threw out Todd and Sturgeon and Appling threw out Lee. After two were out in the Sox fourth, Wright knocked his second single off Lee, but the inning ended shortly thereafter with Kennedy's fly to B. Olsen.

In the fifth the Sox got around to their first scoring. With one down Dietrich singled to center. Hayes doubled along the right foul line and Kuhel's single to center, scored both runners. Kreevich flied to Nicholson, then Solters singled to right but was out trying to sneak to second on the throw to third.

Appling Brings in a Run.

Appling opened the Sox sixth with a double to right, went to third on Wright's fly and scored on Kennedy's fly to B. Olsen.

Eaves started pitching for the Sox in the seventh. He retired Hack, Mattick and Herman in order. Bass made Indiana piled up a 25 to 13 lead in the first half and withstood Duquesne's rally which outscored the Hoosiers, 17 to 14, in the closing period.

Indiana's defense completely stopped Duquesne's under-the-basket attack, forcing the Dukes to rely almost entirely on long shots. Four of these by Ed Milkovich in the second half pulled Duquesne within five points of the Hoositrs at one stage. Lineups:

KANSAS BEATS U. S. C.

Kansas City, Mo., March 23 (AP).—The University of Kansas upset Southern California tonight, 43 to 42, to win the western playoff and enter the National Collegiate Athletic association basketball finals. Kansas will play Indiana university here March 30 for the N. C. A. A. title.

Howard Engleman's field goal 16 seconds before the final gun fired gave victory to the Kansas team coached by the veteran Forrest [Phog] Allen, whose son played center for the Jayhawkers.

Just a few seconds before Engleman scored Keith Lambert popped in a goal that put U. S. C. ahead, 42 to 41.

Altho it was Engleman, a cripple during most of the season, who dropped in the winning goal, credit for the victory goes to Richard Harp, a Jayhawk guard who dominated the floor play and held Ralph Vaughan, star Trojan forward, to two baskets while dropping in six himself.

Dale Sears, 200 pound center for Southern California, barged thru the Kansas defense for 11 points in the first half and 7 more the first two minutes of the final period before the Jayhawks found a way fo stopping him and turning Harp loose.

Rice Institute of Houston, Tex., defeated the University of Colorado, 60 to 56, in an overtime game, to win third place in the western rankings. The score was tied at half time, 27 to 27. A Colorado field goal in the last 90 seconds of regulation playing time tied the score at 50 to 50. Sixteen points—10 by Rice—were tallied in the extra five minutes.

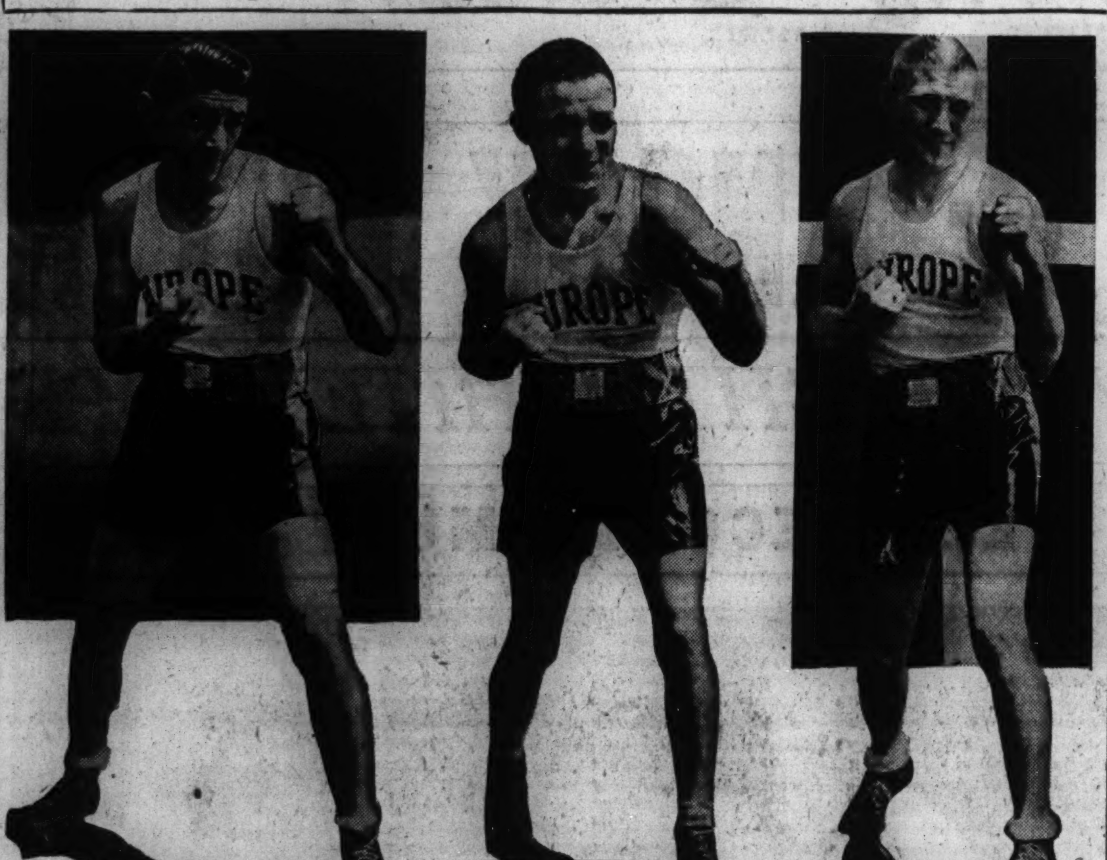
Three European Champions Who Can Use Their Fists!



These three European boxing champions, who are en route to Chicago aboard the Vulcania to meet Chicagoland's Golden Gloves team in the ninth international show in the Stadium April 10, are paying return visits to America—and boxing fans know they can fight! Left to right, they are Egisto Peire, lightweight from Italy; Guido Nardecchia, Italian flyweight champion, and Eric Agren, Swedish welterweight. Peire and Agren are defending International Golden Gloves champions. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

before making his American debut also was a factor in his rejecting the invitations.

Last year he was an eleventh hour entry in the European tournament in Dublin and did not have time to obtain leave from the navy after qualifying for the International Golden Gloves team. His victims in the tournament included Herbert Runge of Germany and Nemesio Lazzari of Italy. Lazzari replaced him on the Golden Gloves team.

Tandberg is considered a better boxer now than Von Porat was at his peak, and is much stronger than the Norwegian. Some claim he is stronger than Max Schmeling. Trainer Klaus says, too, that Tandberg possesses a devastating punch.

Undisturbed by Adulation.

Tandberg takes all the excitement over his professional possibilities with the same calm which characterizes his work in a championship match. He is interested in an professional career, but feels that he is two or three years away from first class heavyweight competition.

He will return to Sweden after the Chicago matches to continue his daily instruction under Bergman and follow his painting trade. He was anxious to break away from interviewers today and take his welterweight teammate, Eric Agren, to a dentist. Agren lost a false tooth at dinner last night and has been miserable since. Tandberg insisted he have it replaced immediately so that he might enjoy the remainder of the trip.

Oscar Soderlund, war correspondent and president of the International Boxing federation, was under the care of the ship's physician today. Soderlund, one of the four officials accompanying the team to Chicago, retired to his cabin because of a severe cold and sore throat shortly after coming aboard at Naples yesterday. He was still confined to his bed when the ship left for Gibraltar at 8 o'clock tonight altho his condition was improved.

Jack Britton to Second Son in Pallatin Fight

Jack Britton, world welterweight champion from 1919 to 1922, has returned to second his son, Bobby, also a 147 pound boxer, in a 10 round bout against Tommy Pallatin of St. Joseph, Mich., in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. The 54 year old Jack, appearing in excellent condition, expects to back his son to his first Chicago victory at the expense of Pallatin.

Young Britton met Milt Aron when the No. 1 welterweight contender was in good form in the same arena last summer and Bob lost the decision in 10 rounds.

During an interview yesterday Jack recalled his fights in Chicago during a campaign which started in 1904 and ended 26 years later with an eight round triumph over Bobby Ruffalo in Buffalo. In his first Chicago start he lost a newspaper decision in 10 rounds to Joey O'Hara of Fort Dodge, Ia., May 3, 1923, and in the other he scored a 10 round victory over Patsy Pollack on June 23, 1929.

Tom Johnston, Detroit heavyweight, will meet Frank Greene in a five round semi-final. Preliminary matches of four rounds bring together George Kontopolis, west side welterweight, and Jimmy McCormick, Billy Eddy, lightweight, also of Detroit, and Gene Ward, and Babe Thompson, Superior, Wis., middleweight, and Joe O'Signac.

Jack Conley, Boston heavyweight wrestler, is paired with Charley [Gorilla] Grubmyer in a one hour encounter in White City tomorrow.

The game marked the windup of the Metropolitan Polo league season. The defeat was the second for the 124th combination of Lieut. Don Rice, Capt. Romeo Mura, and Lieut. Bill Fergus in 24 league, national, and international games.

After going scoreless for three periods, Bayley scored two goals in the fourth that tied the score at 11 to 11. His winning shot came in 1 minute 29 seconds of the extra period.

Barney Ross Backs Brown in Zale Bout

Ben Brown, Irishman from Atlanta, Ga., who holds the southern middleweight championship, has a good chance to displace Tony Zale as No. 3 contender in their 10 round bout in Chicago Stadium Friday. Barney Ross, former lightweight and welterweight title holder, was authority for that statement after watching the rivals work out in Trafton's gymnasium yesterday.

Ben Brown.

Altho the 6 foot Brown has shown to advantage since his arrival last Sunday Ross has first hand information on his ability. Ross saw Brown lose on a nine round technical knockout to Solly Krieger, then division champion in a semi-final to the Tony Galento-Abe Feldman fiasco in Miami a year ago last Feb. 23.

Decision Is Unpopular.

"It was a great fight," Ross recalled, "and the decision was unpopular."

Ross said Brown is a hard right hand puncher and a good boxer. He added that Brown can absorb a terrific wallop, which is important because Zale has won his last nine contests, seven by knockouts.

After having had his eye cut open in the fourth round, Brown caught Krieger on the jaw with a left hook which dropped him to the canvas for a two count, Ross said. From there on the boys traded blows frequently until the last round when they fell thru the ropes during a mixup. This caused so much excitement that instead of starting a count over the fallen boxers Referee Phil O'Connell helped Krieger to his feet. Shortly thereafter Krieger caught Brown off guard with a blow which aggravated the eye injury and the battle was stopped, the verdict going to Krieger.

Makes Debut in Chicago.

Brown, who will be making his debut in this city, started boxing professionally in 1935 and after a five year campaign has nearly reached his goal—a title match with Champion Al Hostak. He gained recognition by holding Ken Overlin, Decatur dancing master and second leading challenger, to a 10 round draw in Atlanta last Dec. 11.

Sam Pian and Art Winch, managers of Zale, were not enthusiastic about accepting Brown as an opponent. After the match was announced on March 12, Bep Van Klaveren was signed to substitute for Brown against Zale, the contest contingent on Van Klaveren's showing against Milt Aron on March 14. Inasmuch as Van Klaveren was beaten Promoter Bill Rand is conducting the original match between Brown and Zale.

Davey Day, leading contender for the lightweight championship, is paired with Norment Quarles of Hendersonville, N. C., in a 10 round secondary feature.

COACH PROPOSES JUMP BALL AT FREE THROW LINE

Lincoln, Neb., March 23 (AP).—Coach W. H. Browne of the University of Nebraska basketball team thinks something should be done to take the present penalty off the team scoring a basket. To achieve this, Browne plans to propose a new jump ball rule at the national coaches' meeting in Kansas City.

Browne suggested the present rule giving the ball to the team scored upon inflicts an unjust penalty on the scoring squad. He said he would propose this be changed to provide for a jump ball after a basket. The ball would be brought out to the nearest free throw line where the scoring player and any one of the five scored upon players would jump for possession. He declared such change would still place a premium on ability as the tall boy who couldn't score wouldn't be jumping for the ball.

Hoppe had high run with 8, and also collected a 7, a trio of 3s, two 4s and a 5 cluster. Hall's best was 3.

The defeat was Hall's fifth and lowered him into a triple fifth place tie with Welker Cochran, defending world champion, and Joe Chamaco, national title holder who hails from Old Mexico.

Hoppe plays his tenth game tonight against Arthur Rubin, eastern titlist who gave the old master one of his toughest struggles of the nine to date. Tomorrow night Hoppe meets Chamaco in the first of their two scheduled games.

Record Entry Is Expected in Midwest Golf

The ninth annual midwest amateur golf tournament at French Lick Springs, Ind., April 5, 6, and 7 will draw heavily from Chicago. Advance reservations yesterday indicated more than 400 Chicagoans will make the trip to the spa. The exodus is expected to reach peak proportions the evening of April 4, when special trains will leave the Dearborn station with capacity first tee loads.

Approximately 600 golfers, a record entry, are expected to start. Major prize will be the Thomas D. Taggart trophy symbolic of the championship. Other prizes will be awarded, however, to winners in handicap classes.

Moreland Is Defending Champion.

Gus Moreland of Peoria, who turned in 220 for 54 holes of play last year, is the defending champion. His 1939 score was five strokes above par for the three days of shooting. Right behind him with a 223 last season was Wilford Wehrle, amateur champion of the Chicago District Golf association. The latter, with Chick Evans and George Dawson, is expected to be busy down south about the time the midwest tournament opens. They have been invited to compete in the masters' tournament in Augusta, Ga.

Some of the leading Chicago golfers who are expected to compete, however, are Jack Hoerner of North Shore, who was displaced as champion last year by Moreland; Don Armstrong of Aurora, John Lehman, Art Doering, and Russell Martin.

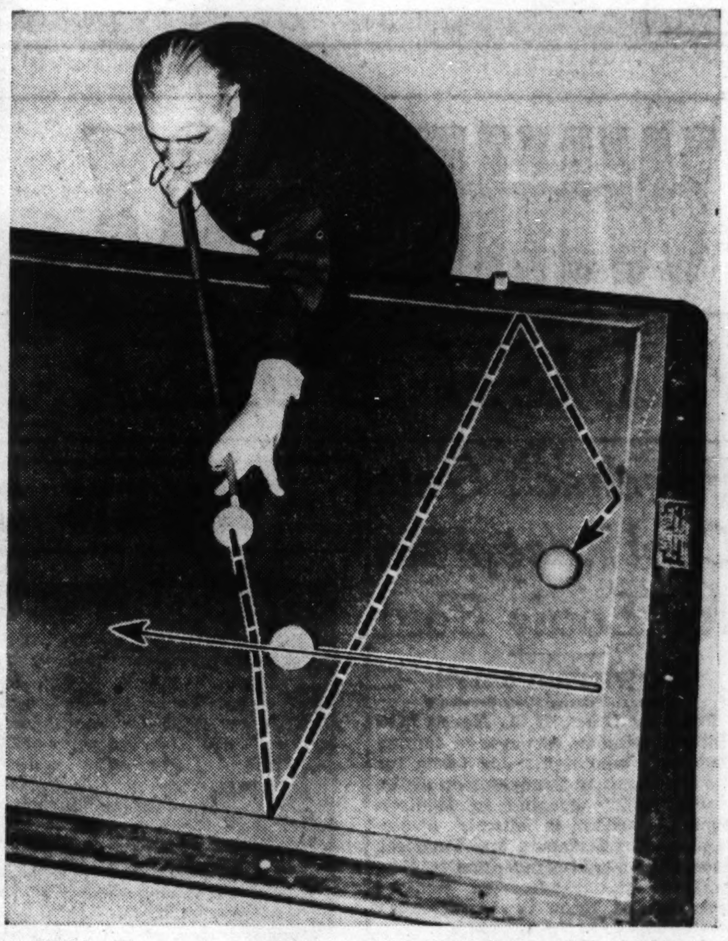
From Taylorville, Ill., comes word that Jimmy Frisina will be present. He shot 232 last year but, thanks to a bit of Florida conditioning this winter, hopes to land closer to par figures.

First Held in 1932.

The midwest tournament first was held in 1932, with 175 competitors. Chick Evans won the even and came back to repeat in 1936.

During the period from 1933 to 1935, inclusive, while George Dawson was running his championship streak to three straight, the tournament figure grew from 250 to 350, maintaining the latter level the following year when Evans again took the title. The 400 mark was hit in 1937 and, Moreland offered the first threat to Chicago supremacy in 1937 by taking the crown. Hoerner came thru to land the title in 1938. His score was 220 for the 54 hole medal card, a mark which was still good for first place last year.

A Master Demonstrates His Skill



Willie Hoppe, dean of the world's billiardists and leader in the three cushion title tournament now in progress at 131 South Wabash avenue, demonstrates his skill at short angles. Using extreme english, he cues his ball very thin. It feathers the first object ball, forcing it to the end cushion to avoid a kiss. Then the cue ball goes to the side rail, back across the table and to the end rail, from where it contacts the red ball, completing the billiard with the necessary three cushions.

Altho the number of expert billiardists is comparatively small, the game as played by the stars attracts big galleries to the title meet daily. This is a section of yesterday's crowd. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

SCHWARZKOPF BEATS MAKI 25 YARDS IN 2 MILE

Michigan Star's 9:09 Best Time of Career.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 23 [Special]. — Capt. Ralph Schwarzkopf, Michigan's Big Ten two mile champion turned on a last lap sprint tonight to pass Taisto Maki of Finland and defeat the world's record holder by 25 yards with a time of 9:09.9 for the distance. It was the feature event of the Michigan A. A. U. relays with the Finnish relief fund sharing in the receipts.

The slender Wolverine star held to his plan of staying a stride behind Maki and as the two increased the pace during the tenth lap the rest of the field fell far behind. Maki entered the final lap a stride in front but then Schwarzkopf made his move. With a terrific sprint he spurted past the flying Finn and kept pulling away until the finish.

30 QUINTETS BID FOR NATIONAL CATHOLIC TITLE

Complete Field Tomorrow for Loyola Prep Meet.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

America's leading Catholic prep basketball teams are ready to invade Chicago for the 17th annual national tournament which opens with three games in Loyola university gymnasium, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue, Wednesday night. Thirty-two speedy, sharpshooting quintets will play in the meet, the only high school competition of its kind. The meet continues thru Sunday night, when the championship will be decided.

The field this morning includes 30 teams representing 29 cities in 15 states stretching from New Mexico to New York. Acceptances yesterday were received from St. Bernard of Bradford, Pa., and St. Mary of Iowa City, Ia. The complete field of 32 and pairings will be announced tomorrow.

Fort Wayne Defends Title.

The squads will arrive in Chicago with state, city, and sectional championships, but all have notions of taking home the national title, won last year by Central Catholic of Fort Wayne, Ind. The Hoosiers will return to Loyola with four veterans, but a glance at the records of other teams in the meet reveals the defending champions will be confronted with a tremendous task in their drive to become the third team in the 16 year history of the meet to win two successive titles.

The leading member of Fort Wayne's championship cast again will be Edmund Stanczak, the Hoosiers' captain and center, who last year sank eight field goals to win the title from Leo of Chicago. Stanczak's rival for the 1939 tournament's individual hero rôle was Leo's Stan Patrick. The Chicagoan during the regular season competition in the Catholic league has shown he is ready to settle his personal feud with the tall Hoosier.

Rizzo, Olsewski Lead St. Philip.

St. Philip, the only other Chicago entry, which lost to Leo, 27 to 25, in overtime for the Chicago title, will present its two candidates, Sol Rizzo and Ray [Lefty] Olsewski, the small forwards who led the West Siders to eleven consecutive victories in the north division of the Catholic league. Leo and St. Philip will be the only Chicago teams in the meet. In other years, four or five quintets represented the city.

Challenging these key players will be John Sweeney, captain of the Trinity team of Bloomington, Ill., and Leo Corbett, star of the St. Joseph quintet of Bardstown, Ky., champions of the southern state. Sweeney, brother of Chuck Sweeney, former Notre Dame end, is 6 feet tall and weighs 150 pounds. Corbett, who is 6 feet, 2 inches tall, led the Kentuckians to 26 victories in 31 games.

Menasha Has Star in Resch.

Other out of town squads will count upon their individual heroes to advance to the final round. St. Mary's of Menasha, Wis., this season has watched Capt. William Resch lead the team to several victories. In the final game of the Fox River Valley conference schedule, Resch scored 36 points. The school has an enrollment of only 159 boys. The squad averages 6 feet in height. St. Mary's won 19 out of 23 contests.

Dowling High of Des Moines, champion of Iowa, will present star performers in Gene Lalley, captain and forward, and Dick Walsh, guard.

Elaborate ceremonies are plannned by Loyola officials shortly before the tournament gets under way at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday. Thirty-two girls, selected from eight Chicago Catholic High schools, each will lead a team onto the court. After the teams have been introduced, Capt. Stanczak of the Fort Wayne squad will lead all the players in a sportsmanship's oath.

Expect Capacity Crowd.

Loyola officials also announced yesterday that advance ticket sales indicate a capacity crowd will watch the opening program. There will be morning, afternoon, and evening sessions on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Seats for the games are available at Loyola university.

The 30 teams already entered in the meet follow:

CLOSE LIST FOR AUCTION OF SHOW RING THOROBREDS

Closing of entries for the auction of show ring horses to be held April 4, 5 and 6 in the International Amphitheater at Halsted and 42nd streets brought the announcement yesterday from Harry McNair, who will conduct the sale, that 43 owners and breeders from 12 states will ship between 175 and 200 horses here for the auction.

The coast-to-coast roundup of show winners and young horses trained for the ring will include three-gaited, five-gaited, hunter, jumper and hackney horses. McNair said that many will be of the bridle path type.

In addition to Illinois, the following states are represented by exhibitors and breeders: Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Nebraska, Texas, California, and New York.

In the playoff for third place, Bellfuss natatorium defeated Shawnee Country club, 11 to 6. Jim Eberle and John Pisak paced the Bellfuss team, each scoring four goals.

It's a Big Week in Indiana! Pick Prep Champion Saturday

Indianapolis, Ind., March 23 [Special].—Indiana will crown its 1940 state high school basketball champion Saturday night. From the Ohio river to the south to Michigan on the north, and from the Ohio border on the east to the Illinois line on the west, Hoosierland will celebrate the day by watching four teams battle for the championship won last year by Frankfort.

Sixteen thousand will fill every available inch of space in Butler university's fieldhouse to see the survivors of a field of 775 quintets—Fort Wayne South Side, Mitchell, Lapel, and Hammond Tech—begin their final drives for the title at 1:30 o'clock Saturday. Hammond Tech will open the program with Lapel and an hour later Mitchell will oppose Fort Wayne South Side. The winners then will clash at 8 o'clock for the championship.

Little Cities Powerful.

Lapel and Mitchell have proved to Hoosierland that the little cities always can take their place beside the giants when it comes to basketball competition. Lapel, which won the semifinal meet in Anderson by defeating North Vernon, 42 to 25, represents a thriving little city of 1,140 residents. Mitchell, which triumphed at Vincennes over Washington, 20 to 19, will present figures of 3,226 when the census takers visit the little town.

Souvenir hunters are expected to accompany Lapel's squad into Indianapolis. Reports of Lapel's followers taking over Anderson's gymnasium after winning from North Vernon have trickled into the capital. These rabid rooters will be in the stands when Lapel begins firing away against Hammond Tech. At Anderson the Lapel rooters raided the press box and ripped cardboard signs from benches for souvenirs.

All Tickets Are Sold.

All tickets for the games have been sold. The Indiana State High School Athletic association headquarters in Indianapolis is getting requests for additional seats from school officials thruout the state. In downtown Indianapolis only a few tickets can be found in the hands of scalpers.

Fort Wayne South Side, with its sharpshooting Ralph Hamilton, will enter the Butler fieldhouse as the favorite. It was Hamilton who scored 10 field goals and two free throws as South Side defeated New Castle, 39 to 37, in the semifinal at Muncie. In addition to Hamilton, South Side possesses accurate shooters in Bob Hines, Don Hire, Keith Spiker, and Carl Braden.

Hammond Strong Contender.

Hammond Tech's tall quintet also is considered as a leading title contender. The representatives of the Northern Indiana conference displayed speed, cleverness, and perfect shooting as they defeated Logansport, 39 to 33, in the semifinal at Logansport. In winning its way to the finals Hammond Tech sank 13 of its 17 free throw attempts against Logansport.

The squad Coach Louis Birkett expects to start against Lapel includes Robert Kramer and Michael Bicanic, forwards; John Thomas and John Gaul, guards, and Stanley Shimala, center. This regular quintet averages slightly under 6 feet 1 inch in height and 169 pounds in weight.

YOUNG PLAYERS SEEK JOBS WITH MILLS, SPENCERS

Chicago's potential major league baseball players are preparing to begin spring training with the city's two semi-pro clubs—the Mills and the Spencer Coals. More than 200 youngsters are expected to report at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, and at Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue, for the opening drills, which probably will be held on April 7.

Manager Bill Harley of the Mills is seeking to replace five regular members of last year's team. The five have been graduated into organized baseball. Milton Carmen, first baseman; Clarence Finucane, catcher, and Roy Malstrom, pitcher, have been signed by the Cubs and will report to their Moline, Ill., farm club. Gregory Lippold, another pitcher, now is the property of the Brooklyn Dodgers and will play at Elmira, N. Y.; Ed Bastine, an infielder, will spend 1940 with Tulsa of the Texas league.

Nate Shyer, manager of the Spencer Coals, has lost one of his best pitchers, Dick Hearn, who is in the camp of the St. Paul club of the American association, White Sox farm. Shyer also expects to add several new players to his roster this spring.

STILL A HIGH JUMPER.

Harold Osborn, assistant track coach at Illinois and once world high jump record holder, can still clear 6 feet tho he is 40 years old.

OPEN ILLINOIS STATE FENCING TOURNEY TODAY

The top ranking swordsmen and swordswomen of the Chicago area will meet today in the Lake Shore Athletic club in the opening matches of the state tournament of the Amateur Fencers League of America. Winners in the Illinois foil, epee, and saber events will qualify for the national meet in New York. The meet opens at 11 a. m.

Miss Carol King, Lake Shore fencing star, will defend her Illinois state title in the women's event against a field of 15 challengers. Among the favorites to reach the women's finals are Dorothy Ingram and Maryalice Von Wesche, both of the University of Chicago, and Norma MacIntosh of the Edgewater Fencing club.

In the men's foil tournament there are more than 30 challengers for the title, which is not being defended by Frank Righeimer Jr., 1939 winner. The foil experts entered include Herbert Strauss, Hermanson Fencing academy; Clifford Groh of Northwestern, who is Big Ten champion; Alex George of the University of Chicago, Big Ten runnerup; Eugene Williams of the Edgewater Fencing club; Floyd Traynham, Hermanson Fencing academy; Tully Friedman, Northwest Fencing club, and Fred Siebert of Lake Shore.

The men's saber and epee preliminaries are scheduled next Sunday and finals in all four events will be held on April 7.

COLORADO BOARD STUDIES PETITION TO OUST COACH

Denver, Colo., March 23 (AP).—Colorado university regents today adjourned subject to call, their study of demands by 35 members of the 1939 Big Seven conference championship football team for dismissal of Head Coach Bernard F. [Bunny] Oakes.

"There is absolutely nothing to report," President Robert L. Stearns said after adjournment of the two day session.

Coach Oakes appeared before the regents today. He was interviewed by the board yesterday, shortly after a special faculty committee met with the board to report its findings in the row.

The players' petition accused Oakes, whose Colorado teams have won two Big Seven conference championships and tied for a third, of violating rules on length of practice periods, advising players to neglect studies for football and otherwise disregarding players' rights.

NASSAU, Bahamas, March 23.—John White's Shucks captured the Walker cup today in the last race of the annual Star class series sailed off here. A single point was the margin of victory. The Western Long Island Sound boat had 35 points after her three races, while Harry Nye Jr.'s Gale from the Southern Lake Michigan fleet was next with 34. White's craft won twice and was second once, while Gale won once and was runner-up twice. Gale's victory came today.

Tonight marks the next to final program of the 1939-1940 midget auto racing season in the 124th Field Artillery armory. The more than 40 drivers bidding for the national indoor title will learn tonight whether or not their labors have produced the results necessary to make their cars fit for the grueling races tonight and next Sunday.

Eight or 10 of the leading drivers of the country have at least a mathematical chance to oust Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis, the defending champion, from the lead. MacQuinn has not won a main event for the last six weeks and other drivers have been gaining on him.

Dr. E. F. Bennett, sponsor of the South Central Football league, has posted a trophy for the winner of the handicap race.

RANGERS, BRUINS MEET TONIGHT IN 3D PLAYOFF GAME

New York Coach Claims New Mystery Play.

Boston, Mass., March 23 (AP).—The tip-off that the New York Rangers have concocted a strategic masterpiece that will explode in the Boston Bruins' face and revolutionize hockey was given by Coach Frank Boucher today after he directed his forces thru an hour's drill in the Boston garden.

During the workout, however, the Rangers displayed nothing but orthodox hockey as they prepared for tomorrow night's third game with the Bruins, Stanley cup defenders, who pulled on even terms Thursday when they came from behind for a 4 to 2 victory to cancel the Rangers' 4 to 0 triumph in Tuesday's opener in New York.

Predicts Six Game Victory.

Lester Patrick, the Rangers' manager, arrived too late for his team's practice session, but he repeated his pre-series prediction that his club would defeat the Bruins in six games.

Art Ross, the Boston manager, supervised his team's brief practice and reported that all players except Mel Hill, the right winger who scored three sudden death goals against the Rangers last season, were physically fit for tomorrow's contest. Red Hamill, who sat out Tuesday's contest, will dress as Boston's 15th player, Ross said.

Lineup Unchanged.

Both camps indicated that the usual lineups would take the ice for the opening faceoff. Rangers will put on Forwards Phil Watson, Dutch Hiller and Bryan Hextall, and Defensemen Murray Patrick and Art Coulter, with Dave Kerr in goal. The Bruins will start Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer in front of Dit Clapper and Johnny Shewchuck with Frankie Brimsek the goalie.

WINGS FACE AMERICANS.

Detroit, Mich., March 23 (AP).—Age and youth come to grips again here tomorrow night when the Detroit Red Wings and the New York Americans skate out for the third and deciding game in the preliminary Stanley cup play-offs.

The youthful Red Wings, having the advantage of playing on home ice, were favored to win and enter the semi-finals, but they must beat back a club long on experience and masters of rink strategy.

Two goals behind and with less than six minutes of play remaining, the ageing Americans rallied brilliantly in the final period at New York last night to win the second game, 5 to 4, and deadlock the series.

The winner of Sunday's game will open the semi-final series against the Maple Leafs at Toronto on Tuesday.

THOMPSON GETS PAY INCREASE AS HAWKS' MANAGER

As a reward for his fine work as manager of the Chicago Blackhawks during the season just closed, Paul Thompson yesterday was signed to a new contract as boss of the team for next year at an increase in salary. Announcement of his signing was made by Maj. Frederick McLaughlin, owner of the team.

Thompson, who was voted manager of the National Professional Hockey league's all star team, brought the Hawks from last place in the league last year to fourth place in his first season as boss. He will leave with the team today for Vancouver, B. C., where a four game series will be played with the Lions of that city this week.

BULL WHIP WINS OVER 10 ELIGIBLES FOR BIG HANDICAP

Does an Encore by Nosing Out Technician Again.

Miami, Fla., March 23 (AP). — Bull Whip, a seasoned, but none too successful campaigner from the Donald P. Ross Brandywine stable, outran a field of eligibles for the $10,000 Tropical handicap today to gain a surprise victory in the Royal Palm handicap at Tropical Park.

Altho the 5 year old ran right up to the form he showed the last time out, when he nosed out Technician, Herbert M. Woolf's 1939 Flamingo stakes winner, Bull Whip was given little support in the betting and paid $42.70 to win. Technician again was second, two lengths behind, with E. L. Martin's Supreme Sir third.

Favorite Runs Out.

Leo Mark's Mar Le, stablemate of the Widener Cup winner, Many Stings, was favorite, but dropped back after showing the way for the first half mile, and was kept from third place by Superior Sir. Only one of the 12 starters was not eligible for the Tropical, closing day feature at the Coral Gables track.

Technician took the lead when Mar Le weakened, but it was a close race right up to the finish, with Bull Whip winning in the last stride. Ken McCombs, who rode Technician, claimed foul after Bull Whip bore in slightly during the stretch drive, but the claim was disallowed. The race was worth $2,940 to owner Ross, and Bull Whip ran the mile and 70 yards in 1:42 1-5.

FAVORITE WINS IN STRETCH.

San Francisco, Cal., March 23 (AP).—Weigh Anchor, the favorite, came up from fifth place in the stretch to win today's mile and a sixteenth Golden State Derby at Tanforan. The victor won $3,910 for Owner W. B. Simpson of Chicago and Menlo Park, Cal.

It was the fourth victory of the day for Johnny Longden, Calgary, Canada, rider who is Tanforan's leading jockey. He brought in Weigh Anchor in 1:44 to pay backers $5.00, $3.40 and $2.80, after winning on Orra, Sales Talk, and Smoky Snyder in early races. Chatted was second by two lengths, and Bachelor Tom, third.

Sweep Ida and Hard Lu alternated setting the pace in the early part of the race, with Weigh Anchor taking an inside lead at the stretch. More than 20,000 were on hand to see the event, limited to 3 year olds.

MISS ETHEL WINS DASH.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 23 (AP).—Miss Ethel, odds-on favorite owned by J. A. Blackwell, took the featured dash for 3 year olds at Oaklawn Park today, beating All Lizzie and Earlsboro. The winner raced the Oaklawn course, a little less than 6 furlongs, in 1:09.

Aurora Track Drops Spring Meeting Plans

The Illinois Jockey club, which operates the Aurora race track, notified the Illinois racing commission yesterday that it had decided to abandon its 1940 meeting, which would have run from April 27 to May 25.

Thus the Illinois Jockey club, which was incorporated last November after the Fox Valley Jockey club had disbanded, follows the lead of its predecessor. The Fox Valley organization decided not to hold an Aurora meeting last spring because, officials claimed, it could not obtain dates which would include Memorial day.

The Illinois Jockey club's move cuts 25 days off the Chicago district racing season, which now will open with the meeting at Lincoln Fields on May 27. The schedule of all Chicago district tracks for the season follows:

Lincoln Fields—May 27 to June 22.
Arlington Park—June 24 to July 27.
Washington Park—July 29 to Sept. 2.
Hawthorne—Sept. 3 to Oct. 5.

Sportsman's Park, the half mile track in Cicero, which customarily holds a fall meeting, has not been allotted dates.

The Fairmount Jockey club, which operates the Collinsville, Ill., track, asked permission from the commission to operate for a total of 60 days in a spring session opening May 30 and a fall session beginning Aug. 31. The commission is expected to act on the request at its next meeting.

CREIGHTON SIGNS GORMAN AGAIN AS LINE COACH

Omaha, Neb., March 23 [Special].—Tom [Kitty] Gorman of Chicago, who on Dec. 13 resigned as line coach at Creighton university, was reëngaged yesterday under a two year contract. The former Notre Dame center will come here Monday. His authority will be widened to include supervision of the ends.

Gorman went out with Marchie Schwartz, who now is an assistant at Stanford. Maurice Henry Palrang, former Creighton Prep High school and Legion baseball coach, replaced Schwartz as head coach. He first hired Marty Kordick as his assistant, but Kordick this week asked to be released to become St. Mary's line coach.

Culver Polo Team Beats Black Horse Troop, 14-13

Culver, Ind., March 23 [Special].—Cadet Ralph Harris of Chicago, playing No. 1 for the Culver Military academy polo team, today scored a long goal in the closing seconds of the game to defeat the Chicago Black Horse troop, 14 to 13. A capacity crowd saw the two teams play on even terms thruout. The score was tied six times. Harry Owen of Chicago, No. 2 for the Black Horse team, led the scoring with seven goals.

150 WILL SEEK MAT TITLES IN ILLINOIS MEET

National Event Returns to Central States Friday.

Champaign, Ill., March 23 [Special].—One hundred and fifty of the country's outstanding wrestlers representing 50 colleges and universities will vie for team and individual honors in the 13th annual national collegiate tournament to be held at the University of Illinois Friday and Saturday.

The following institutions already have submitted their entries for the first appearance of the national meet at Illinois:

Michigan, Northwestern, Minnesota, Iowa State, Temple, San Jose State college [San Jose, Cal.], West Virginia university, College of the City of New York, University of Dubuque, and St. Lawrence university.

Expect Oklahoma Aggies to Enter.

Entries are expected within the next few days from Oklahoma A. & M. of Stillwater, national champion six out of the last seven years; Indiana, Big Ten winner for the last two seasons; Lehigh, Eastern intercollegiate champion for three successive years; Penn State, runner up in the Eastern intercollegiate meet, and Kansas State, Big Six champion for the last two seasons.

Despite the absence of seven of last year's regulars who compiled a phenomenal total of 33 points in winning the team title at Lancaster, Pa., last year, Oklahoma A. & M. is again an overwhelming favorite.

Other leaders in the 1939 standings were Lehigh, 12; Illinois, 11; Franklin and Marshall, 10, and Michigan, Indiana, and Minnesota, 9.

The only returning Oklahoma A. & M. regular is Vernon Logan, junior 155 pounder, who placed third in the national meet at 145 pounds last spring. However, Coach Ed Gallagher's 23d Oklahoma A. & M. team was undefeated in 10 dual meets, and he has been quoted as saying it's the greatest he ever coached.

Three Enter Each Weight.

Oklahoma A. & M., Indiana, and Illinois probably will be the only institutions to be represented by men in each of the eight weight divisions.

Altho the Aggies are favorites for the team title, Coach H. E. Kenney of Illinois, general manager of the meet, believes several Big Ten performers should finish high in the individual title events.

The conference has the only returning champion in Capt. Dale Hanson of Minnesota at 128 pounds, also the outstanding individual of the 1939 tournament as determined by vote of the coaches.

Returning place winners from 1939 will include Joe Roman, Indiana, second, 136 pound class; Paul Petry, Illinois, third, 128; Logan, Oklahoma A. & M., third, 145; Bill Combs, Michigan, second, 155, and John Sikich, Illinois, second, heavyweight.

Considered Title Timber.

Most of the Big Ten individual winners are considered as championship timber, especially Chauncey McDaniel, Indiana, 165 pounds; Harland Danner, Michigan, 155, and Hanson. McDaniel was undefeated during the last season, winning the conference title for the second successive year. Besides being one of the nation's foremost wrestlers, Danner has acquired a reputation as an adventurer, quitting school to explore the South American jungle alone last year.

Altho he finished third in the Big Ten meet March 9, John Sikich of Illinois is a ranking contender for the heavyweight championship. He took second in the national meet in 1939 as a sophomore after failing to place in the Big Ten and Coach Kenney is hoping for a similar performance this year. Paul Petry, third at 128 pounds in 1939, is the other possible winner for Illinois.

Masem Leads Eastern Delegation.

The eastern delegation will be led by Capt. Harold Masem of Lehigh, the first wrestler in the history of the eastern intercollegiate meet to capture three titles at three different weights in three successive years. He is the current 155 pound champion.

Ben Schrader, 165 pounder, was another first place winner as Lehigh won its 10th Eastern intercollegiate championship recently. Other eastern entries are expected from Penn State, Princeton, Harvard, Yale, Syracuse, Pennsylvania, and Navy.

The Big Six's leading title aspirant will be Capt. Leon [Red] Reynard of Kansas State, three times 175 pound Big Six champion and the possesor of 25 straight match victories.

Meet in Old Gym Annex.

Scene of the meet will be the Old Gym annex with a seating capacity of 2,000. Preliminaries and quarter-finals are scheduled for Friday, semi-finals for Saturday afternoon, and the finals for Saturday night. Bouts will be held simultaneously on three mats thruout the tournament.

As is customary, team trophies will be awarded to the first and second place winners with medals going to the first three individuals in each weight division. Each of the officials will receive first place medals and the outstanding individual will be awarded a belt with a bronze buckle.

Next week-end will be the first time the national tournament has been held in the central states since 1937 when it was held by Indiana State Teachers college of Terre Haute.

Last year it was held at Franklin and Marshall college, Lancaster, Pa., with 109 wrestlers from 31 colleges and universities competing.

The shifting of the event to the central states promises to bring a record entry and one representing practically every section of the country.

Night Club's Offer to Help Check Tipsy Driving Hits Snag

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 23.—A hefty strip tease dancer strutted about the tiny floor almost in rhythm to a three piece orchestra. A greasy-haired master of ceremonies muttered smutty comments into a microphone. The click of dice could be heard from downstairs. It was the midnight show at one of the dives on the edge of the Illinois capital, catering mainly to the easy money of easily entertained state politicians.

A tired bartender at one end of the smoky room smiled wearily at a self satisfying witticism from a customer with cigar ashes on his bulging vest. Three local yokels with fuzzy chins were engrossed in the dance. Other customers, including middle aged men escorting state house girls, looked bored.

Announcement Is Made.

"One word of warning," said a static amplification from the microphone, and the overweight dancer bowed an exit. "This ends our midnight show. When the gentlemen get ready to leave, the management requests that you be certain that you're able to drive your cars safely.

"For those who want to drink freely, the management will be glad to call a taxi. We'll take care of your automobile until you want to kill any one driving home.

"Humph," said a dice player, draining a highball.

"Never heard anything like that round Chicago," was the compliment from the gent with ashes on his vest.

The orchestra began to play again. The two waitresses scurried among tables where glasses had been emptied during the show.

Good Idea Doesn't Work.

Two couples, talking a bit loud, got their coats from the check room and said good night to the door man. They got into a small sedan. A cold engine was raced. Gears crashed and away they went for home.

In the parking lot were a dozen other automobiles. A taxicab driver, waiting hopefully for a fare, said the master of ceremonies had a good idea, but that it didn't work.

"If the cops watched these places," said the cabby, "some of the drunks would leave the cars here all night—and we'd get more business, and we wouldn't have so many crazy drivers."

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

FLAT RATE LICENSE FEE.

Oakland, Cal., March 20.—The time is at hand when the state highway force will be making a drive on car owners for operating their cars on last year's license plates. Most of the trouble the state has each year could be avoided by adopting a flat rate license fee of $5 and raise the gasoline tax 1 cent a gallon—that would make up for what was lost in license fees. Adoption of a flat rate $5 fee would not only benefit the car owner but would help the car dealer of new and used cars, and the gasoline and oil business too, and would make for more safety on our highways. There are thousands and thousands of good high grade cars sitting idle in used car lots and showrooms that are considerably more safe to operate than thousands in operation.

What is keeping those safer cars from replacing the old junky cars is the prohibitive license fees on those large, high grade cars. If it weren't for the license fees prohibiting the ownership of those larger and safer cars, many people now riding and risking their lives in old and unsafe cars, could enjoy the safety and luxury of the better cars. By the state adopting a $5 flat rate fee and adding 1 cent gas tax it would benefit the state, the car owners, the car dealer, the car manufacturer, the gas and oil stations, and make for safer travel on our highways.

The more big cars that are 4 or 5 years old that are put in use the more gas will be used and the more gas tax the state will get. The larger car isn't any harder on the slab highways than the smaller ones, so there's no reason for a car to be taxed by its horse power rating. H. P.

ENGLISH DRIVING PENALTY.

Chicago, March 20.—In reading the Feb. 22 issue of the Evening Chronicle, an English newspaper, I happened to run across this article which I am enclosing. In a way I am inclined to think that the English traffic laws are a little too severe, but in the event that it has cut down the cause of fatalities, I nevertheless believe it to be the solution of the war on accidents. The article follows:

"Frederick Brown [33], of Benson street, Middlesbrough, undertaker, successfully applied at York Assizes today for the removal of his disqualification from driving for 10 years. It was stated that in November, 1934, he knocked a motorcyclist down and killed him. He was sent to prison for six months and disqualified from driving for 10 years.

"Mr. Justice Croom-Johnston removed the disqualification on the condition that if Brown from today until midnight on Nov. 18, 1944, when the time of the ban expired, was involved in any motor driving offense, he would at once surrender his license to the chief constable at Middlesbrough, and not apply for a renewal without permission of the court.

"Mr. H. Bewick, for the appellant, said his client needed the car in the course of his night business."

ARTHUR B. LEGG.

GETS FAVORED LICENSE.

Lake Forest, Ill., March 19.—I've read so many grievances in this column regarding the issuing of low license numbers, that I feel compelled to state my own case in defense of the state license bureau, and I hasten to add that I do not know any state officials personally, not even a road cleaner.

About the first week in November, I pessimistically sent in my application requesting the lowest four digit license number obtainable, hoping to be able to remember that.

Eventually the license arrived bearing the number 50 and my three digit house number, and I am able to remember my license number for the first time in more than 20 years of driving without effort.

Some one in the bureau used their head and pleased me better than my original request would have done and I am glad to come to the bureau's support as a token of my appreciation. C. F. M.

POLICE WITHOUT LIGHTS.

Chicago, March 12.—It happened to me, too. Two officers trailed me on a rainy night without lights. I was doing 45 mile per hour and they said 52. O. K. I was speeding, because I was afraid I was in for a holdup. It was. They asked me what I expected them to do about it. I said, "Write your ticket." I paid $8 at 1121 South State street. Something should be done about police cars running without lights. It isn't safe for motorists on our great outer drive after dark. R. P. D.

FENDERS HIDE TIRES.

Cicero, Ill., March 12.—I like streamlined autos but not the extreme streamlining which hinders necessary safety precautions. Why won't they design fenders so that you can inspect tires for cuts and wear and be able to put on anti-skid chains when needed in winter? Why completely hide the wheel? F. Z.

URGES PERMANENT PLATES.

Chicago, March 21.—Getting a new license plate every year would be an avoidable nuisance if permanent steel or copper plates were made available. To have the license renewed one would just send in his money. Many complain of the present plates' poor quality. A permanent plate would clear up that complaint also. N. L.

RADIOS AND TAXIS.

Chicago, March 19.—A radio has no business in a taxicab. Sometimes a prize fight will be on the air and safety first will be almost forgotten. The whole attention of a chauffeur should be on the driving. No responsible driver should be allowed diversion while driving a cab. KATE DACEY.

IMPATIENT MOTORISTS.

Chicago, March 14.—A chap will wait for hours with patience and good nature to buy tickets for a hockey game. And then when the game is over, he will toot his horn, rant, and rage because he has to wait five minutes for other automobiles to move before he can leave a parking lot. MRS. H.

LAG DOWNSTATE IN ENFORCEMENT OF LICENSE LAW

Nearly 200,000 Cars in Illinois Lack '40 Plates.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 23.—Downstate, here, where a state highway copper has to be a good precinct worker to hold his job, automobile owners travel streets and highways with 1939 plates on their cars with no apprehension of arrest. The worst that they fear from the Horner constabulary is a warning. The motorists appreciate that the primary campaign now gives them a degree of immunity until the polls are closed on April 9.

Inquiry at the office of Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes today indicated that there are nearly 200,000 motor vehicles in Illinois lacking 1940 plates. The statutory deadline for this license payment was Jan. 1.

One in Six Delinquent.

In some downstate cities visited by this reporter this week, it appeared without an actual tally that about one car in every six or seven was either with no plates or with 1939 plates. The delinquency is common here where law enforcement officers know, or are afraid they might know, the violators and have to solicit their votes. In Chicago, city police are impersonal in giving tickets.

Even in the capital, birthplace of the state's statutes, the 1939 plates are conspicuous in traffic. Near the armory here, headquarters of the state police, the tax dodgers park their cars with apparently no fear of arrest.

Not Exclusively Old Models.

The automobiles without 1940 licenses are not exclusively old models whose owners might be suspected of inability to pay the fees. Some of the obsolete plates are on recent models of more expensive makes.

On the other hand, Secretary Hughes' office today cited with pride that early enforcement efforts this year, especially in Chicago, increased the sale of plates during the first three months of 1940 compared with 1939.

Passenger car registrations have reached 1,273,879, compared with 1,056,572 for the same date of a year ago. The total for all of 1939, an all time high, was 1,626,689. The total for 1940 will include a few hundred thousand machines that will be junked and replaced by new cars before Jan. 1, 1941, a factor that must be considered in estimating the number now in operation without 1940 licenses.

Truck Registration Up.

Truck registrations this year have reached 158,139 as compared with 130,603 for the same date of last year. The total for last year was 232,888.

Published lists of license owners in numerical order, used by the police for quick identifications in crimes, accidents and traffic offenses, now cover the first 425,000 numbers. The printer has numbers as high as 800,000. Almost three months after the first of the year, police still have to communicate with the secretary's office to identify any of approximately 600,000 of the 1940 plates on the streets and highways.

NEWS AND VIEWS

A 1940 stock Mercury automobile will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning on a tour of 63 midwestern cities held under the auspices of the Ford Motor company to give some first hand information on economical operation. Arthur S. Hatch, Chicago branch manager of the Ford company, says it is a popular misconception that speeds of between 15 and 20 miles an hour are most economical with respect to gasoline consumption. The Mercury has demonstrated that its best performace is found at a speed of approximately 45 miles an hour. The tour car will visit each dealer who will be given a demonstration of driving faults that cause unnecessary fuel consumption.

Dollars spent for automobiles today have a greater buying power than at any time in the history of the automobile business, comments D. E. Ralston, general sales manager for Oldsmobile. Each year, he explains, the industry spends huge sums to devise ways of building bigger and better cars than can be retailed for less money. New machinery, new manufacturing methods and research all contribute to the production of better cars and the benefits are passed on to the buyers. Demonstrating what has been accomplished, Ralston compared the prices of a 1920 and a 1940 Oldsmobile of this same class. The 1920 car measured 164½ inches on a 112 inch wheelbase, weight 2,729 pounds, its 6 cylinder engine developed 44 horse power, and the price to the motorist was $1,995 at the factory. The comparable 1940 model measures 197¾ inches on a 116 inch wheelbase, weighs 3,100 pounds, its 6 cylinder develops 95 horse power, and it sells at $899 at the factory.

J. W. Hutchins, assistant general sales manager of the Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation, was the principal speaker at a meeting of Dodge dealers and salesmen in the Drake hotel last week. Hutchins outlined the spring sales plans.

Plymouth is offering an improved convertible coupe for spring delivery The top of the car is operated by power, the arrangement of which has been improved over last year. The 1940 model is more roomy and contains a number of refinements, including a weatherproof fabric that resists smoke, dirt, and dust.

GREENBERG HITS 450 FOOT HOMER, BUT TIGERS LOSE

Brooklyn Dodgers Whip Detroit, 12 to 4.

Clearwater, Fla., March 23 [Special].—Hank Greenberg hit one of his longest home runs today when the Tigers met the Dodgers for the fifth time this spring, but it was struck in a losing cause. Brooklyn won the game, 12 to 4, by pounding two of Detroit's three pitchers for 16 assorted hits.

Greenberg's blow came in the sixth inning with two Tigers aboard and two out, and ruined a shutout for Tex Carleton, who had turned in another stellar performance. It was a line drive to center field that cleared the high background barrier atop the fence and the ball traveled approximately 450 feet.

Jimmy Ripple took charge of the home run hitting for the Dodgers, belting a 350 foot drive off Bill Fleming in the seventh with two on.

Until the sixth Carleton had allowed only three hits and no runs. He was breezing along until Frank Croucher doubled. Tex then walked Earl Averill on four pitches, retired Barney McCosky on a foul, and threw his home run ball to Greenberg.

BREWERS, 2; SENATORS, 1.

Ocala, Fla., March 23 (AP).—Pitcher Buck Marrow's double drove in the winning run in the seventh inning today as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Washington Senators, 2 to 1, in an exhibition baseball game. Milwaukee jumped on Joe Krakauskas for both runs after Dutch Leonard had pitched two hit, scoreless ball for the first five innings.

Washington scored in the third when Jimmy Pofahl survived on a two base error and came home on Leonard's single. Score:

ROCHESTER, 4; PHILLIES, 1.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 23 (AP).—Baffled by the pitching of Hershel Lyons, Bill McLaughlin, and Henry Gornicki, the Phillies were defeated by Rochester of the International league here today, 4 to 1. Philadelphia's only run came in the ninth on Ed Levy's triple and Merrill May's single.

Rochester scored twice in the first inning off Silas Johnson when Harry Davis doubled with two on. In the second Blakely's single drove in another. The Red Wings' final run came in the seventh on Harry Walker's single off Ike Pearson. Score:

REDS, 6; CUBAN STARS, 1.

HAVANA, March 23 (AP).—With Bucky Walters and Whitey Moore pitching effectively, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Cuban All Stars today, 6 to 1, to even their exhibition series at one game apiece. Manager Bill McKechnie juggled the Reds' lineup, putting Billy Myers in the leadoff position and Mike McCormick in seventh. Score:

BROWNS, 10; TULSA, 2.

San Antonio, Tex., March 23 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns again defeated the Tulsa Oilers of the Texas league today, 10 to 2.

The Browns scored seven runs in the second inning, initiated by Johnny Berardino's homer with a man on base, but most of the scoring resulted from two walks and three Tulsa errors. George Susce, obtained from Pittsburgh to replace holdout Joe Glenn, caught part of the game for the Browns. Score:

BEES, 6; RED SOX, 3.

Sarasota, Fla., March 23 (AP).—The Boston Bees shelled Woody Rich hard in the third inning today and opened their intra-city series against the Red Sox with a 6 to 3 victory. All of the National leaguers' scores were made in the third, on two passes, four singles, and Hank Majeski's triple with two mates aboard. The veteran Jim Tobin settled down after a wobbly start for the Bees. Score:

INDIANS, 2; GIANTS, 1.

Fort Meyers, Fla., March 23 (AP).—A second successive five-hit job by pitchers of the New York Giants was just as meaningless today as yesterday—for the Cleveland Indians scored a 2 to 1 victory.

Cliff Melton was the goat of the Indians' two run uprising in the seventh. The Indians filled the bases with one out. Then when Johnny McCarthy tried for a double play, and got half of it, Melton intervened on the return throw, deflecting the ball into the stands as two runs scored. Score:

PIRATES, 8; ATHLETICS, 4.

San Francisco, Cal., March 23 (AP).—Successive home runs by Bill Brubaker and Maurice Van Robays sparked a four run rally in the 10th inning to give Pittsburgh an 8 to 4 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics today.

The As came from behind on three different occasions to tie the score, but the southpaw slants of Jennings Poindexter failed to stop the Pirates in the tenth. Frankie Hayes, catching his first full game for the As, hit a home run in the sixth. Score:

Pittsburgh [N.]..100 000 102 4—8 14 0

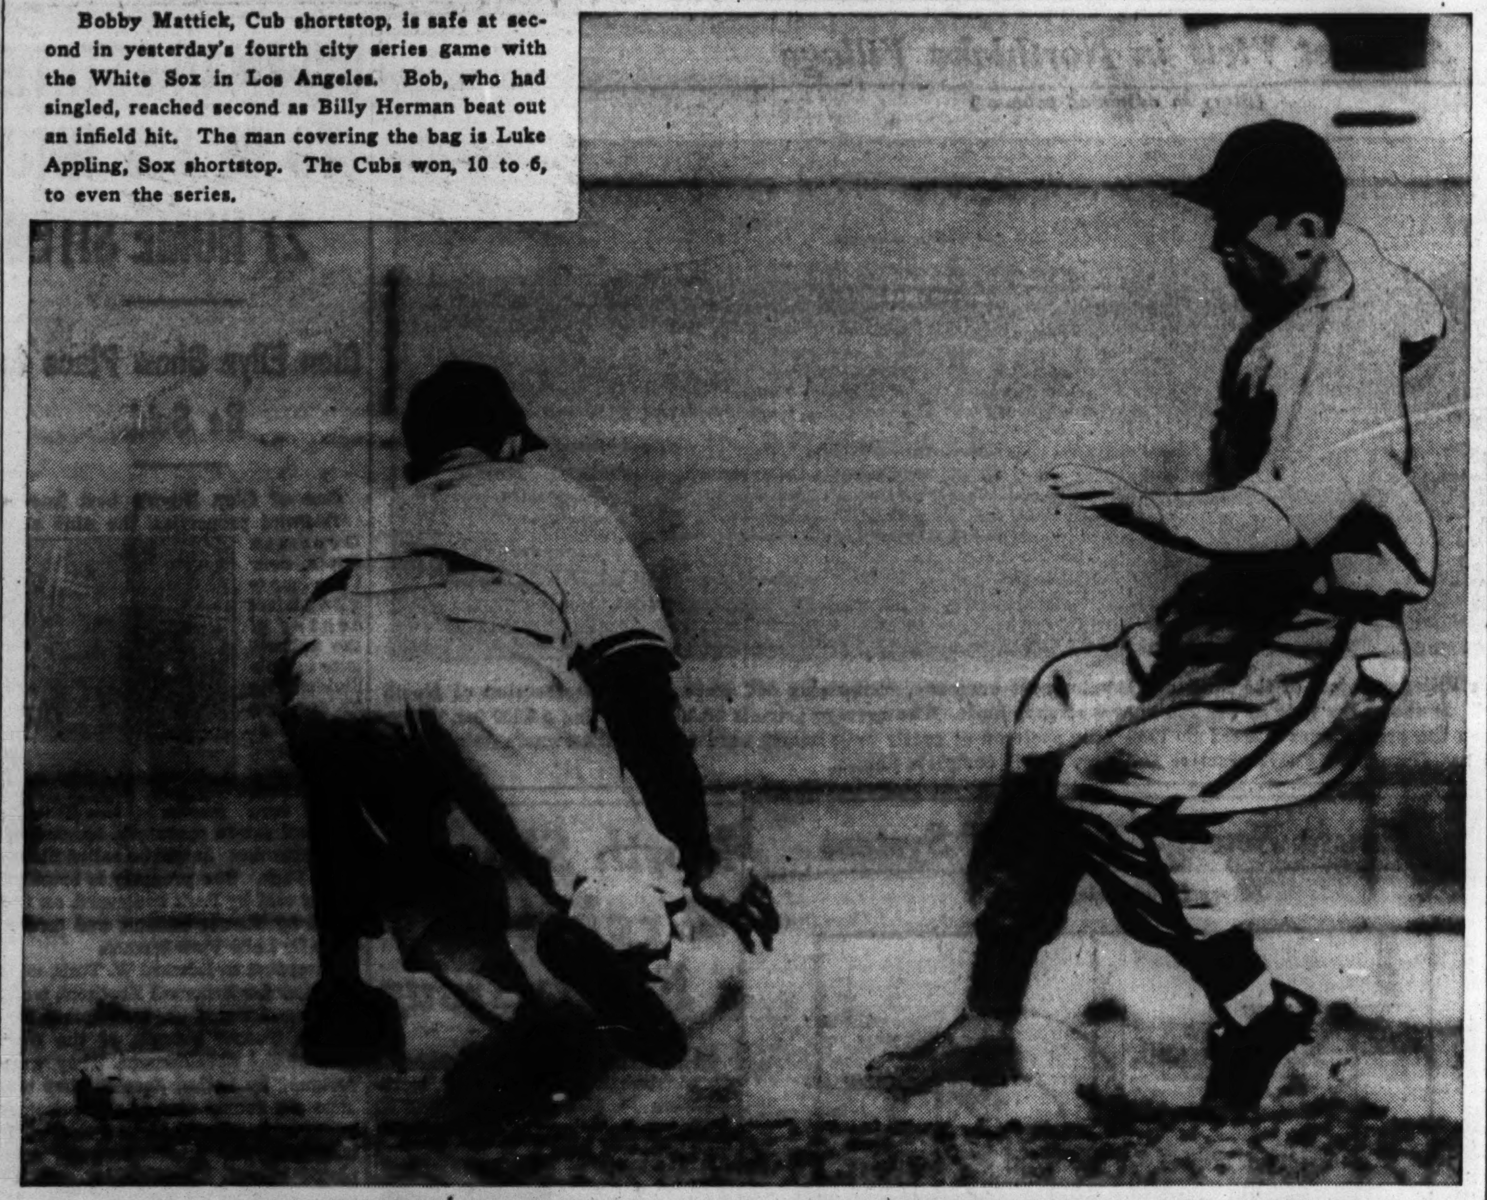
WESLEYAN WINS EASILY.

Madisonville, Tenn., March 23 [Special].—Illinois Wesleyan's baseball team again trounced Hiwassee university today, 33 to 3. Wesleyan meets Mississippi in Oxford, Miss., on Monday.

AND SO THE CITY SERIES IS EVEN AGAIN



Bobby Mattick, Cub shortstop, is safe at second in yesterday's fourth city series game with the White Sox in Los Angeles. Bob, who had singled, reached second as Billy Herman beat out an infield hit. The man covering the bag is Luke Appling, Sox shortstop. The Cubs won, 10 to 6, to even the series.

YANKS RALLY IN NINTH TO BEAT CARDINALS, 6 TO 5

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 23 [Special].—The New York Yankees rallied for three runs in the ninth inning today to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 5, in a battle involving 34 players, 19 of them used by the Cards.

The summary included eight doubles, five of them by the Yankees, and 15 strikeouts, nine of them by Yankee pitchers. The five St. Louis hurlers issued eight bases on balls.

Grissom Pitches Well.

Lee Grissom pitched the first five innings for the Yanks, holding the Cards scoreless and yielding only two singles. The Yanks entered the sixth with a two-run lead, the result of three successive singles in the first inning and Lon Warneke's wildness in the third.

Enos Slaughter's double and Johnny Mize's single in the sixth gave St. Louis its first run. The Yanks added another in the seventh off Clyde Shoun.

Cards Score Four in 7th.

Charley Stanceu, Yank rookie, went to pieces in the last of the seventh, issuing three walks and being touched for doubles by Don Gutteridge and Morris Jones. These, plus a long fly, gave the Cardinals four runs and the lead.

Frank Barrett walked two Yanks to start the ninth and was replaced by Bob Weiland. George Selkirk's double scored two runs. Babe Dahlgren doubled, Selkirk stopping at third. Murray Dickson replaced Weiland and walked Buddy Rosar and Mike Chartak to force in the winning run. Score:

MAJOR LEAGUE TEAM SOUGHT IN SO. CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23 (AP).—Richard Cantillon, an attorney, said today he was representing a group of wealthy sportsmen intersted in buying a major league baseball franchise for southern California. He said he had a capital of upwards of $5,000,000 for the proposed project. Cantillon is a nephew of Joe Cantillon, who managed the Washington Senators 30 years ago.

"We are prepared," said Cantillon, "to make outstanding offers to the St. Louis Browns, the Philadelphia Phillies and the Boston Bees. The offers will be sent to the owners of these clubs within the next few days. Southern California is ripe for big league baseball, and if money can swing the deal, our present idea will materialize."

Cubs and Sox to Meet in Fifth Game of Spring Series Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23.—The White Sox and Cubs will play game No. 5 of their spring series here tomorrow. The American league pitching assignment will be allotted to Eddie Smith, the little round southpaw; Jack Knott and Pete Appleton. Claude Passeau and Larry [Lefty] French will split the Cubs' pitching chores.

Dizzy Dean popped off last night about his inability to understand why he isn't permitted to pitch. He was accommodated today, probably much to his surprise. He was ordered to pitch batting practice and wasn't excused until he had spent 15 minutes in action. He then made the customary complaint about his arm, but later claimed he was only kidding.

There are rumors that the St. Paul club is angling for Bobby Mattick and that the Cubs seriously are considering the step. It might be well for the Cubs to retain him. They probably will need him at shortstop before the season has gone very far.

Hank Leiber, Cubs' outfielder who yesterday abandoned his $17,500 wage campaign and signed a contract, was in uniform today for his first workout. Leiber believes he'll be strong enough to work regularly in a few days.

The Sox have no game scheduled for Monday and their boss, James Dykes, isn't even going to ask them to put on their uniforms for a workout on their Pasadena training lot. The manager will spend the day at a mountain resort where he will have himself photographed on skis.

Eric McNair picked up Billy Herman's grounder in the third inning and tried to make a hurried throw to first, but barely pitched the ball across the infield. His sore throwing arm refused to work. When the inning ended McNair withdrew from action.

Joe Kuhel, Sox first baseman, is far behind on his spring hitting. It is believed a sore leg is hampering his bat swinging.

Stan Hack made his season's debut today at third base, but didn't appear on the field until the seventh inning. Hack is convalescing from a minor operation.

SPEAKER SEEKS TO GET YAROSZ TO FACE REEVES

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23 (AP).—Tris Speaker, chairman of the Cleveland boxing commission, arrived today for a conference with Teddy Yarosz in the hope of persuading the former midleweight champion to return to Cleveland for a bout with Jimmy Reeves.

The California State Boxing commission meets tomorrow to hear Speaker's claim that Yarosz is under contract to fight in Cleveland Wednesday. The boxer also is under contract to fight Turkey Thompson here Tuesday.

Jerry Geisler, chairman of the California commission, said Yarosz would not be released from his California contract. Jimmy Murray, Los Angeles promoter, claims to have advanced the Cleveland battler $500 and transportation expenses for the local appearance. If Yarosz does not fulfill his obligations he will be suspended in this state, Geisler indicated.

Yarosz said he planned to fight Thompson here. He recently was married and intends to spend his honeymoon in California, Murray said.

Indians Reject Offer to Meet Pirates April 13

Bloomington, Ind., March 23 [Special].—It's not often that a college team turns down an offer to play a major league club. But Coach Paul Harrell of Indiana university has refused an offer of the Pittsburgh Pirates to play against the Hoosiers here April 13.

Indiana is scheduled to play Ohio State in Columbus, O., on that date, the second of a two game Big Ten series. Harrell expressed hope that Indiana might be able to play the Pirates during next year's training season.

The Cubs got to Eaves for a run after two were out in the eighth on Gleeson's double and Cavarretta's single.

Bass, after two hitless innings, was jolted somewhat in the ninth when the Sox made three runs on singles by Wright and Kennedy, a double by Turner, and a single by Kolloway, before the game ended in a double play.

WINS BADMINTON OPENER DESPITE BLISTERED HAND

Spokane, Wash., March 23 (AP).—Patricia Donovan of Buffalo, N. Y., playing despite a blister on her racquet hand, defeated Canada's ninth ranking player—Doreen Clapperton of Calgary—in the inland empire badminton tournament today. The scores were 11-5, 13-14, 11-6. Miss Donovan halted the match after the second game to tape her hand. Once in a furious rally she lost her grip and her racquet sailed into the crowd.

Dave Freeman of Pasadena, Cal., national singles champion, won his opening match with John Huneke, Spokane, 15-2, 15-5, and teamed with Maxine Cruickshank of Seattle to win a first round mixed open doubles match from L. Parker and Miss M. Maugham of Calgary, 15-4, 15-4. Walter Kramer of Detroit defeated F. Fergie of Cranbrook, Alta., 15-5, 15-9, in a singles match.

Ken Quigley of Cleveland, playing in mixed open doubles with Mrs. Clark Erwin of Spokane, defeated Dale Hoaglund of Seattle and J. Moffatt, Calgary, 15-9, 15-7.

TRAINED DOGS TO OFFER TRICKS IN SHOW SATURDAY

International Club Presents All-Breed Event.

Big dogs, little dogs, long haired dogs, short haired dogs, trained dogs, trick dogs—all types of purebred canines—will invade Chicago's south side Saturday to take part in the International Kennel club's annual show in the International amphitheater.

This all-breed show, which will draw entries from nearly every Chicago kennel, as well as from 25 or 30 states, provides Chicago's annual opportunity to see many breeds assembled under one roof. The show opens Saturday morning and continues thru Sunday night when the outstanding judging event of the show, the selection of the best dog, takes place.

Dogs to Perform Tricks.

This show not only gives the dog fancier a chance to see all the popular and well known breeds, as well as many rare and uncommon ones, but it also stresses features designed to appeal to dog fanciers who are not especially interested in the judging program.

For example, Willy Necker's troupe of trained Dobermanns will perform several times during the two day show. These dogs do many intricate tricks. They retrieve objects over hurdles, do a balancing act on a wire 10 feet above the ground, and one of them has been taught to hold one end of a rope for a rope skipping act. Tiger, considered the star of the Dobermann troupe, has been trained to play the rôle of a clown and always does the unexpected during the routine.

Tribune Sponsors Obedience Tests.

Another popular feature of the show will be the children's handling classes which are to be judged by Owen Craighead, professional handler of Northbrook. Boys and girls demonstrate their ability to handle a dog in this competition, which is one of the most amusing features of any dog show.

Obedience tests sponsored by THE TRIBUNE will be another feature of the show with high entertainment and educational value. Dogs of many different breeds which have been trained to come when called, sit down, walk at heel, and respond to other useful commands, will go into the show ring to get a public examination on their alertness and their execution of the required commands. THE TRIBUNE will award trophies to the first, second, and third place winners in the various obedience classes.

Interesting to Watch.

In all recent dog shows the performances given by the many different breeds in these obedience tests have proved to be one of the most interesting features for spectators to watch. Dogs are scored on a percentage basis and those in the novice class which get a mark of 85 per cent or better in three obedience tests are given a "graduation diploma" certifying that they have won the C. D. [Companion Dog] title. It was announced last night that the entry deadline had been extended to tonight at midnight. Entries originally were to have closed last night.

SEMI-PROS NAME FRED HUTCHINSON TO HALL OF FAME

Detroit, Mich., March 23 (AP).—Freddie Hutchinson, the Detroit Tiger sophomore pitcher, today became the first semi-pro player to be named to sandlot baseball's hall of fame. His selection was announced by the National Semi-pro Baseball congress which, President Ray Dumont said, plans to choose annually for the award a sandlot player who graduates into professional ranks.

The 20 year old Hutchinson, obtained from Seattle of the Pacific Coast league, participated in the 1937 national semi-pro tourney in Wichita and was practically unnoticed. Hutchinson, then only 16, won one game and lost two for the Tacoma Paints. Later he became Seattle's boy star.

Dumont said the Detroit pitcher's rise to the majors prompted the congress to offer bonuses to sponsors of young players who enter professional baseball. Under the plan the sponsor of a semi-pro club receives a $500 bonus for its first player to graduate to class AA ball and stay a minimum of one year and $100 for other players who do so.

SONS OF PERICLES BASKET MEET TO OPEN SATURDAY

The athletic department of the Order of Ahepa will sponsor a basketball tournament for the junior order, Sons of Pericles, Saturday and Sunday in the Midwest Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue. Approximately 20 teams in the United States and Canada will compete.

Each team won the right to play in the meet in tournaments in its district. Chicago's representatives include Lord Byron, champions two years ago; Ypsilanti, Garfield, and Pullman.

Chicago Teachers Appoint Jehn to Athletic Staff

Mark Jehn, who earned three major letters at the Chicago Teachers' college before his graduation last February, was appointed head freshman baseball coach and assistant varsity coach yesterday by George Boyle, athletic director. He will take over his duties tomorrow when the 50 candidates for the teams open their third week of baseball drill indoors.

Gills a Threat to Win Titles in 2 Pin Leagues

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

A 300 game by Wally Freitag in the Windy City league Monday night, a 788 series by Bill Hargadon and a 1,237 game by the team, both league records, in the Gold Coast league Tuesday night—those are accomplishments last week of the Joseph L. Gill bowling team, feats, which, with the team's steady improvement, have made it a championship possibility in two of Chicago's major leagues and a certainty as runner-up in another.

Adolph Carlson.

Wally Freitag.

Freitag turned in his 300 game as one in a series that gave him 691 pins Monday night. His team won three games and went into a tie with Joe Wilman's Budweisers for the Windy City lead. The team hit a 3,150 total. Hargadon got his 788 count on games of 253, 255, and 280 Tuesday and his final game was a factor in the team's rolling 1,237, the best game rolled in league bowling in the state this season.

Has Best Average.

The team is tied with the Budweisers with 57 won and 21 lost at Windy City, but has the best average, 1014.16, in the league. It is one game behind the Buds and seven ahead of the None Betters in the Randolph league, with four more weeks to bowl. At Gold Coast, with 53 games won and 31 lost, it is seven games behind another Budweiser combination, but six ahead of the third place Pabsts.

The main factor in the team's success has been Adolph Carlson, the nation's No. 3 bowler on the basis of A. B. C. competition of the last ten years. Carlson who has averaged 201.29 in 90 games in the A. B. C. [Hank Harino, the leader, has a 201.72 average] has a 217 average in the Gold Coast league, 214 in the Randolph, and 210.8 in the Windy City. He leads in all three.

Notz Has 206 at Gold Coast.

Gorge Notz, another of the team's stars and leader of individuals who have competed in more than six but less than ten A. B. C. tournaments in the last decade with 201.27, has 206 at Gold Coast and 205.28 at Windy City. Hargadon likewise has 206 at Gold Coast and 202.69 at Windy City. Freitag's Windy City average is 202.55.

Spotting the Pins.

The Accountants' lead in the Fireman's Fund league was pared to seven games as they won only two from the Automobiles. The league has only three more weeks to bowl, however. The Sprinklers swept a set with the Hawkeyes and Cook County took two from the Underwriters. . . . The Schambergers led the Northwest Traveling league with 3,186 and won all three games from the North Town Recreation. The three leaders—West Ridge, Budweiser, and North Center—each lost two games. Joe Heinreich of the Schambergers was high individual with 697, followed by Leo Reininger of North Center with 688. West Ridge, with high average, will represent the league in the state tournament.

The ninth annual Holland-American tournament, a doubles and singles event, will be held April 25, 26, and 27 at Marzano's, 3315-33 West 63d street. On the opening two days doubles will be rolled at 8 and 10 p. m. and singles at 9 and 11 p. m. On Saturday, April 27, doubles are scheduled at 7 and 9 p. m., and singles at 8 and 10 o'clock. The handicap is two-thirds of the difference between an entrant's average and 190. H. J. Buikema, 7352 South Sangamon street, is secretary.

The Classic league will bowl at Milo Wiesner's, 835 West 35th street, at 8 o'clock tonight. Power House will meet Koenig; Pabst bowls Ambrosia; Schlitz opposes Michelob, and Prager faces Monarch. Schlitz leads the Sunday division with 44 games won and 19 lost. Monarch is six games off the pace, Power House two games further back, and Pabst two games behind Power House. Paul Krumske's 206 is top average.

Tomorrow night's schedule in the Windy City league:

Amidels vs. Bennetts; Budweisers vs. Vogels; Kralovecs vs. O'Keefes; McKessons vs. None Betters; Betinis vs. Mineralites; Furmans vs. Gills; Gooderham & worts vs. Quality; Whitecaps vs. Blazeks.

The Schambergers meet Pepsi-Cola at Milford; Birks oppose Samuelson's Kids at Samuelson's Arcade; Chapin & Gores take on Koenig at Faetz's Recreation, and the Jolly Jacks meet De Luxe Recreation at Monte Cristo in North End Traveling league competition tomorrow night: Schambergers lead with 51 games won and 30 lost. Birks have 48-33; Budweisers, 46-35; Pepsi-Colas, 46-35; Chapin & Gore, 44-37, and Koenigs, 41-40. The remaining four teams are below .500.

About the Women.

Stevenson's Friday and Monday women's league's scores:

Friday—Ella Thompson, 570; Ethel Kelly, 559; Flo Waterman, 554; Mary Covell, 551; Gladys Sines, 543; Pauline Comerford, 541; Laila Gierman, 536; Marion Drebing, 534; Josephine Drebsky, 526; Kate Biehler, 522. Monday—Adele Casey, 544.

Mary Fechtmeyer with 569 in the Major and Mary Bjurstrom with 564 in the Senior were high in the Pioneer recreation leagues.

BIRD FANS! IT'S TIME TO BUILD NEW DWELLINGS

Purple Martin Is One of Favorite Visitors.

BY BOB BECKER.

The time has come for bird fans to sharpen up their saws, get in a supply of small nails and screws, and assemble their workshop tools in order to make new bird houses. Altho spring in the central states has been a little tardy in its march up the Mississippi valley it won't be long until our favorite songbirds will be checking in from their winter rest grounds. Many of these songsters may be induced to build their homes in our yards if we give them well made nesting boxes.

The bluebird, robin, purple martin, house wren, chickadee, screech owl, phoebe, redheaded woodpecker, and flicker are among the better known songbirds which are willing to sign a season's lease on an attractive birdhouse.

Chickadees Move In.

We had our first chickadee family last season when a pair moved into one of our wrenhouses and raised their young. The wrens made a big fuss about this intrusion but they finally stopped their complaining and occupied another box not far from the chickadee home.

If a farmer or estate owner has an orchard he should make every effort to attract bluebirds to it by putting out nesting boxes, for this species makes constant war against insect pests and never destroys fruit grown in the orchard. A box that is 8 inches high with a floor 5 by 5 inches and an entrance hole 1½ inches wide is ideal for bluebirds.

Of all the birds that come up from the south during April and May and stay with us during the summer the purple martin usually gets the heaviest sales pressure from bird fans. Nearly every one wants a colony of these expert flyers around the home. They are both decorative and useful because they feed on insects. Unfortunately, many bird fans permit starlings to take over martin houses and now that the starling is becoming so abundant the martins in some localities are having no easy time getting possession of nesting boxes built especially for them.

Plans in Tribune Handbook.

Plans for building a martin house with 24 rooms and many novel designs for other nesting boxes are discussed in the Tribune's handbook on birds, entitled "Birds and Birdhouses." This 96 page illustrated book has an entire chapter on how to build boxes for all species that will occupy such shelters. The book gives directions on the correct sizes for these boxes, how large an entrance each should have, and also tells where they should be placed around the home. "Birds and Birdhouses" is sold by the Public Service Office of THE TRIBUNE for 32 cents by mail.

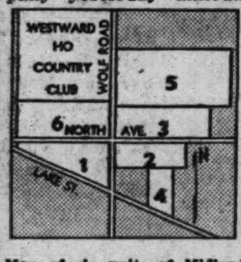
MIDLAND GROUP NOW HAS 2,500 RESIDENCE SITES

Termed Largest of Kind in United States.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

The Midland Development company yesterday announced another step in its Northlake village small home development at North avenue and Wolf road, when it purchased 330 additional acres for cash and secured an option on 40 more. There are now 660 acres in the development, platted into 2,500 homesites.



Map of six units of Midland project. Nos. 4, 5, and 6 are new areas.

Sol C. Spiegel, one of the partners in the Midland Development company, estimated over the next five years the 2,500 homesites will be improved with homes averaging $4,000 for land and building. This, he claims, will be the largest low cost privately financed housing program in the United States.

No Speculative Building.

There is no speculative building in the development. Homes are built to order. As 200 homes already have been sold, built, and occupied since April, 1938, the estimate of building up the entire development during the next five years seems reasonable, it was said.

In addition to the 200 finished homes 34 are now under construction; 31 homes have been ordered and plans are in the hands of the FHA, and 60 other applications are in the Midland Development company's offices where plans are being drawn prior to submitting them to the FHA.

Spiegel yesterday announced in addition to his purchase of the 330 acres and optioning 40 acres more the company has begun installing a complete water system thru the development. An artesian well about 1,600 feet deep will supply the 3,000 gallon underground pressure tank. More tanks will be installed as needed, it was said.

Furnish Gas to Two Areas.

Gas has been supplied to two areas of the development and will be extended to other sections as needed, Spiegel said. Another improvement expected to be available shortly will be bus service east on North avenue to Narragansett avenue, where connection will be made with Chicago Surface Line cars.

According to Spiegel, every house in the development since it started has had the approval of the state board of health as to the location of its septic tank and other sanitary and health features recently required by the county interim zoning ordinance.

The Northlake village project comprises six units. The first unit contains 80 acres at the southwest intersection of North avenue and Wolf road. Another 80 acre tract at the southeast intersection of the same roads was bought and platted.

Three Sections Sold Out.

Last September the Midland company bought 130 acres at the northeast intersection. With the exception of a few scattered lots these three sections have been sold out and all homesites either improved or about to be improved with small homes.

Yesterday three more units were purchased. The fourth tract comprises 40 acres and is south of unit No. 2 and extends south to Lake street. Unit No. 5 is the largest of all, containing 210 acres. It is directly north of unit No. 3 and across Wolf road from the Westward Ho Country club grounds.

Unit No. 6 is at the northwest intersection of the two roads and extends from North avenue to the grounds of Westward Ho. It contains 80 acres. The optioned 40 acres comprises land owned by the Westward Ho Country club, but never used. It is just north of unit No. 6.

All of the company's FHA insured mortgages are being negotiated thru the Bell Savings, Building and Loan association and the Percy Wilson Mortgage and Finance corporation, Spiegel said.

Petrillo Plans $25,000 Resort Home Remodeling

Fontana-on-Geneva Lake, Wis., March 23.—James C. Petrillo, president of local No. 10 of the American Federation of Musicians, Chicago, applied today for a building permit to make alterations costing $25,000 on his lake shore home here. The property, fronting 300 feet on Lake Geneva, with a depth of 1,000 feet, and improved with a 12 room brick residence, was bought in 1937 by the musicians' union at a reported cost of $25,500 cash, and then presented to Petrillo, it was said. The house previously was owned by Alfred C. Henschel. The property is part of what formerly was the Edward G. Uihlein estate, famous for its thousands of evergreen trees and shrubs imported from various parts of the world. The Uihlein summer home burned after Uihlein's death in 1921.

A Street View in Northlake Village

This is a view in the Northlake Village project of the Midland Development company, comprising 660 acres at the intersection of North avenue and Wolf road, taken last fall. It shows the type of the 200 homes already built. The average price is $3,500, including a $500 lot. They have four, five, and six rooms. When the project was started in 1938 only skeleton or partly built homes were erected, the owners doing much of the interior work. The company has discontinued this practice and now builds complete homes.

Palos Heights Gets First New Zone Permits

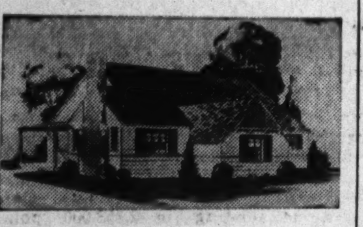
The first four building permits issued for home construction under Cook county's new interim zoning ordinance, and the first of their kind in the county's history, are all for residences to be built in Palos Heights. This is the southwest suburban development of the Robert Bartlett Building corporation. The development centers at Harlem avenue and 123d street.

The interim zoning ordinance, adopted by the county board on March 4, is planned to safeguard home developments outside of incorporated areas until a permanent county zoning ordinance is passed requiring safe water supply and sewage disposal facilities.

Large Number Pending.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, said a large number of applications for permits for homes in unincorporated areas are pending. Each must be investigated to determine if water supply and sewage disposal facilities conform to state health standards.

The county's No. 1 permit is for the house being built by the Bartlett corporation for Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Swanson, at 12122 Harold avenue, Palos Heights. How it meets the requirements of the interim zoning ordinance governing the installation of sewage disposal plant and its relation to wells and plumbing fixtures is shown by the accompanying diagram.



The residence of Theodore W. Swanson, 12122 Harold avenue, Palos Heights, is the first in Cook county's history to receive a building permit issued for an unincorporated area, under the new interim county zoning ordinance. The five room house cost $5,500 and the lot $1,000.

Location Is Important.

"As the law requires that the well be, in effect, the center of operations, its location is important, because no floor drains or waste pipes can be located within a 10 foot radius," said W. F. Brown, vice president of the Bartlett corporation.

"This requirement is to insure against contamination from possible leakage in piping. Next, the catch basin for the laundry tub and kitchen sink must be beyond a 25 foot radius and its overflow connected with the overflow of the septic tank.

"The septic tank, of 500 gallon capacity, is beyond the 50 foot radius and is connected to the house by a cast iron pipe with leaded joints. Its overflow is disposed of by 200 feet of farm drain tile with branch lines.

Take Extra Precautions.

"This 200 feet of drain tile is laid in crushed stone to prevent earth from clogging the joints, an extra precaution taken, altho not required by the ordinance.

"The approval of county, state, and FHA officials of lots and homes property arranged in this respect constitute a triple safeguard against improper installation. Inspection will be done by county authorities.

"From the diagram it can be seen that in order to meet the requirements of the new ordinance which necessitates the long distances from the well to the other facilities, ample sized lots are needed for this type of suburban building. These were provided for in the planning and development of Palos Heights long before the interim zoning ordinance was passed."

REMAINS IN WOODLAWN.

Gay Tauber, Inc., furniture, continues at 6231-33 Cottage Grove avenue, it was announced yesterday. Martin Tauber & Co. have leased space in the Standard Oil building, 902 South Michigan.

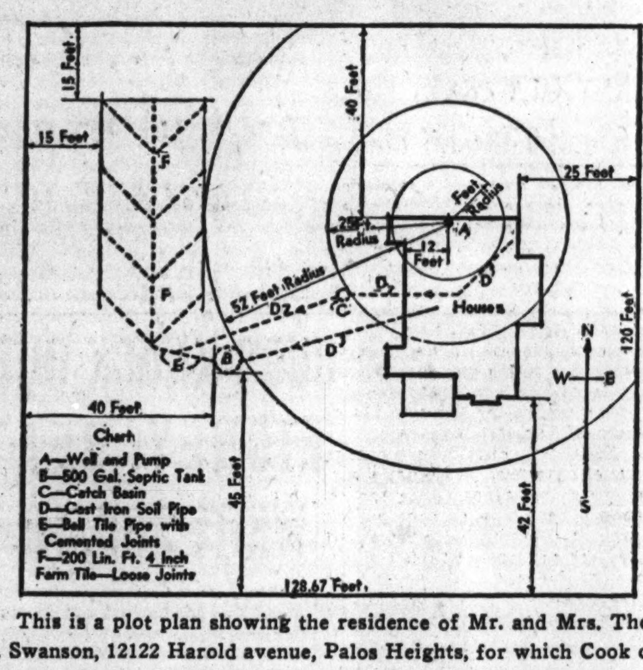
House Sewage Disposal System

(Story in adjoining column.)



This is a plot plan showing the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Swanson, 12122 Harold avenue, Palos Heights, for which Cook county issued the first residential building permit in its history for an unincorporated area, under the recently adopted interim county zoning ordinance. The plan shows how the private sewage disposal system is arranged so that the well water will not become contaminated.

Realty Miscellany

Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will speak at a meeting of the Ely chapter, Lambda Alpha land economics fraternity, next Thursday, March 28, at 12:30 p. m. at the Bismarck hotel. He will discuss rehabilitation possibilities for old dwellings under the new FHA plan for insuring loans on properties in slum areas.

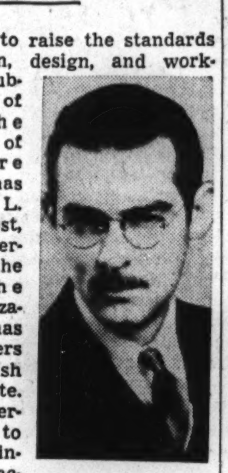
North Shore Architects Form Group

In an effort to raise the standards of construction, design, and workmanship in suburbs north of Chicago the Association of North Shore Architects has been formed. L. Morgan Yost, chairman, yesterday outlined the purpose of the new organization, which has its headquarters at 930 Spanish court, Wilmette.



L. Morgan Yost.

The membership is limited to architects in independent practice who live and practice on the north shore. It is in no way in conflict with the American Institute of Architects or the Illinois Society of Architects, Yost said, as most of the members also belong to one or the other of the state or national organizations.

Outlines New Program.

"The association will place information before the public to help prevent exploitation of the public by persons in the building game whose judgment in such matters is warped by self-interest," Yost said. "The association will coöperate with the state in eliminating men who pose as architects when they aren't licensed.

"The architects of the association will exchange information on the quality of work and reliability of contractors in this district, so that home builders are assured of the high standards, at competitive prices.

Seek to Raise Standards.

"And certainly not least, the association seeks to raise the standards of architectural appreciation so we may, years hence, be proud of the work we've done.

"Meetings are held each Tuesday noon, and it is hoped that soon every qualified north shore architect will be in attendance."

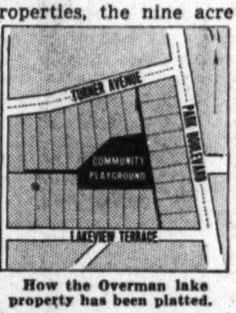
Evanston Shop Building Reported 100% Occupied

With the renting of the store at 1627 Chicago avenue, Evanston, to the Bon Ton Bake shop, the building in which it is located, adjoining the North Shore hotel, is now 100 per cent rented, according to Howard L. Storch, of Ross, Browne & Fleming.

OVERMAN ESTATE TO BE CUT INTO 27 HOME SITES

Glen Ellyn Show Place to Be Sold.

One of Glen Ellyn's best known residential properties, the nine acre Overman estate, near the geographical center of the suburb, is to be subdivided into 27 home sites. Broomell Brothers, Inc., mortgage firm and real estate operators, announced this yesterday. It will be called Stoneleigh Park. The property is bounded on the east by Park boulevard, on the north by Turner avenue, and on the south by Lake View terrace.



How the Overman lake property has been platted.

According to Edward W. Turk, sales manager for Broomell Brothers, work has been started on two homes facing on Turner avenue, at the west part of the development. They were designed by Arthur Jacobs. They will have six rooms each. Larger homes will be built later in the spring, it was said. The price range for completed homes, including lot, will be from $9,750 to $15,000.

Plan Central Playground.

The lots, which range in width from 55 to 110 feet and from 150 to 243 feet in depth, all will have access to a central playground of 46,000 square feet, part of the former lake which has been filled in.

The Overman property long has been a show place of Glen Ellyn. In the days before electric refrigerators ice was cut from what was then known as Ice lake, and stored in a large ice house. This building later was rebuilt into an attractive residence and occupied by Harry Overman for many years.

This eleven room building, partly veneered with stone, recently was sold to Aubrey L. Hall of the Chicago office of the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Rejected by School Board.

The school board at one time had an opportunity to trade the site of the old Duane street school, in the business district, for this 9 acre tract as a location for the then contemplated junior high. They rejected it and built the school on its present site, a business street.

The town park board also had an opportunity to buy this beauty spot and preserve the lake for the village but it also rejected it.

The property is wooded and landscaped like a park. Five hundred shade trees and 2,500 flowering shrubs were set out by Overman. There are many blue spruces and eleven other varieties of pines. The estate formerly was widely known as a bird sanctuary. Overman competed in many national garden shows.

Prior to Overman's ownership the land was part of a large tract owned by the Salvation Army and used as a summer camp.

PEAK EARNINGS SET BY ANOTHER PLANE COMPANY

North American Net Is $2.06 a Share.

Net income of North American Aviation, Inc., and its wholly owned subsidiaries reached $7,088,092, or $2.06 a share, in 1939, establishing a new record, the company disclosed yesterday in its annual report. Net income for 1938 was $1,904,086, or 55 cents a share.

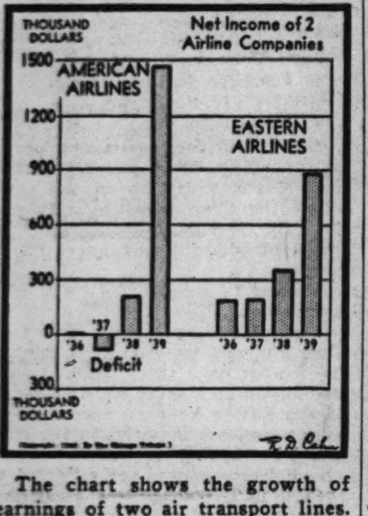
General Motors corporation owns about 30 per cent of the stock of North American Aviation, which is an important supplier of United States observation, basic combat, and training planes. The company, which maintains its plant at Inglewood, Cal., produces military craft exclusively.

Many other aircraft manufacturers have reported record earnings recently.

Otis Elevator Earns More.

Otis Elevator company also had a large increase in net income. The company reported 1939 earnings amounted to $2,751,026, equal to $1.18 a share, after setting up a reserve of $500,000 for foreign investments. Net profit for 1938 was $1,912,730, or 76 cents a share.

E. J. Fallon, president of Pettibone Mulliken corporation, Chicago manufacturer of railway track equipment, announced the company had earned $103,418, or slightly less than $1 a share in the nine months ended Dec. 31. During the corresponding period a year earlier, the company had a $271,172 loss. The fiscal year ends March 31.



The chart shows the growth of earnings of two air transport lines.

"Incoming business," Fallon said, "is running under shipments at present, but the company till has a backlog of unfilled orders more than three times the amount at the end of the last fiscal year."

Jefferson Electric Has Big Gain.

The report of another Chicagoland enterprise, Jefferson Electric company, maker of transformers and other products, showed 1939 net income of $181,581, or $1.51 a share, against $72,523, or 60 cents a share, in 1938.

"Current sales to date are ahead of 1939," John A. Bennan, president, said, "and future prospects are more than encouraging. Auxiliary equipment for fluorescent lighting has been favorably received by the trade, and in this direction the management looks forward to a substantial increase in business volume."

Pennsylvania company, a holding company controled by the Pennsylvania railroad, announced 1939 net income of $7,083,311, compared with $5,612,573 in 1938.

Paramount Earnings Fall.

Paramount Pictures, Inc., estimated its earnings for the quarter ended Dec. 30 at $1,030,000, against $2,229,000 for the 1938 period. Both totals are exclusive of dividends received from nonconsolidated subsidiaries in excess of Paramount's interest as stockholder. Estimated earnings for the year ended Dec. 30 were $3,870,000, including funds from nonconsolidated subsidiaries, compared with $4,105,675 in 1938.

Net income of the Duquesne Light company and subsidiaries increased from $9,100,673 in 1938 to $10,417,024 in 1939. F. R. Phillips, president, said: "General business conditions in this territory [Pittsburgh, Pa.] were much improved in 1939, resulting in new all time high service demands and revenues."

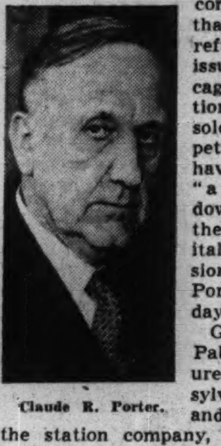
Charge Capital Stages Strike on Bond Bids

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—Suggestions by Interstate Commerce commissioners that a $16,000,000 refunding bond issue of the Chicago Union Station company be sold thru competitive bidding have met with "a sort of sitdown strike on the part of capital," Commissioner Claude R. Porter said today.



Claude R. Porter.

George H. Pabst Jr., treasurer of the Pennsylvania railroad and a director of the station company, testified at a hearing before Porter and Examiner A. C. Devoe that invitations to bid were sent to 107 banking, insurance, and investment firms, but that only Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago submitted an offer. Halsey, Stuart, for itself and unnamed associates, offered to buy the $16,000,000 issue of 3¼ per cent first mortgage bonds, series F, at 98.05 per cent of par.

Rejected as Unfavorable.

Pabst said the company rejected this bid, not regarding it as favorable. Subsequently the company negotiated a sale of the bonds, subject to ICC approval, to a syndicate including Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; Lee Higginson corporation; Harriman, Ripley & Co., Inc.; and their associates, for 99.43 per cent of par.

Porter asked Pabst whether he could explain why so many "responsible banking, insurance, and investment concerns" failed to submit bids.

The only explanation he could offer, Pabst replied, was that it is "generally known" that the principal members of the purchasing syndicate were not in sympathy with competitive bidding and had not participated in competitive bidding in the past.

"A sort of sitdown strike on the part of capital?" Porter asked.

"I have heard it referred to as that," Pabst said.

Commissioners Suggested Bids.

Pabst was the only witness at the hearing. He said that after it was decided to refund $16,000,000 of outstanding 4 per cent bonds informal conferences were held with "certain members" of the ICC. These commissioners, he added, suggested that "this issue might lend itself particularly to competitive bidding."

The station company plans to redeem the outstanding 4 per cent bonds on July 1, paying 105 per cent of par, or a total premium of $800,000. Pabst estimated that the refunding operation would result in a total saving of $2,000,000 during the life of the new bonds.

FIRST MINIMUM SCALES OF COAL PRICES ISSUED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 23.—The three trial examiners who recently conducted hearings on proposed government dictation on minimum prices for bituminous coal have begun to issue recommended price schedules, the department of interior announced today.

The examiners have filed their general report with Howard A. Gray, director of the bituminous coal division, and the recommendations will be announced Monday. The report outlines the factors for establishing minimum prices, recommends boundaries of market areas in the United States, sets up price schedules for the Rocky mountain and Pacific coast regions, and proposes findings of fact for rail coal shipments in that territory.

Work on the remaining price schedules and proposed findings is almost completed and they will be issued shortly, the examiners reported to Gray.

NAVAL STORES MAY BE CONFINED TO ONE MARKET

Savannah, Ga., March 23 (AP).—The weekly Naval Stores Review said today that with the advent of the industry's new year on April 1 indications were that Savannah may become the only official naval stores market in the United States, and, under existing war conditions, possibly in the world.

The Jacksonville naval stores trade will hold a meeting March 27, the trade publication said, to determine whether to continue its market.

The review said the Commodity Credit corporation wants Savannah constituted as the only official market because of the disrupting effects on trade by the disparity between Jacksonville and Savannah quotations.

Savannah has been the chief official primary naval stores market of the world for more than 50 years.

Expect Decline in Chicago District Steel Production

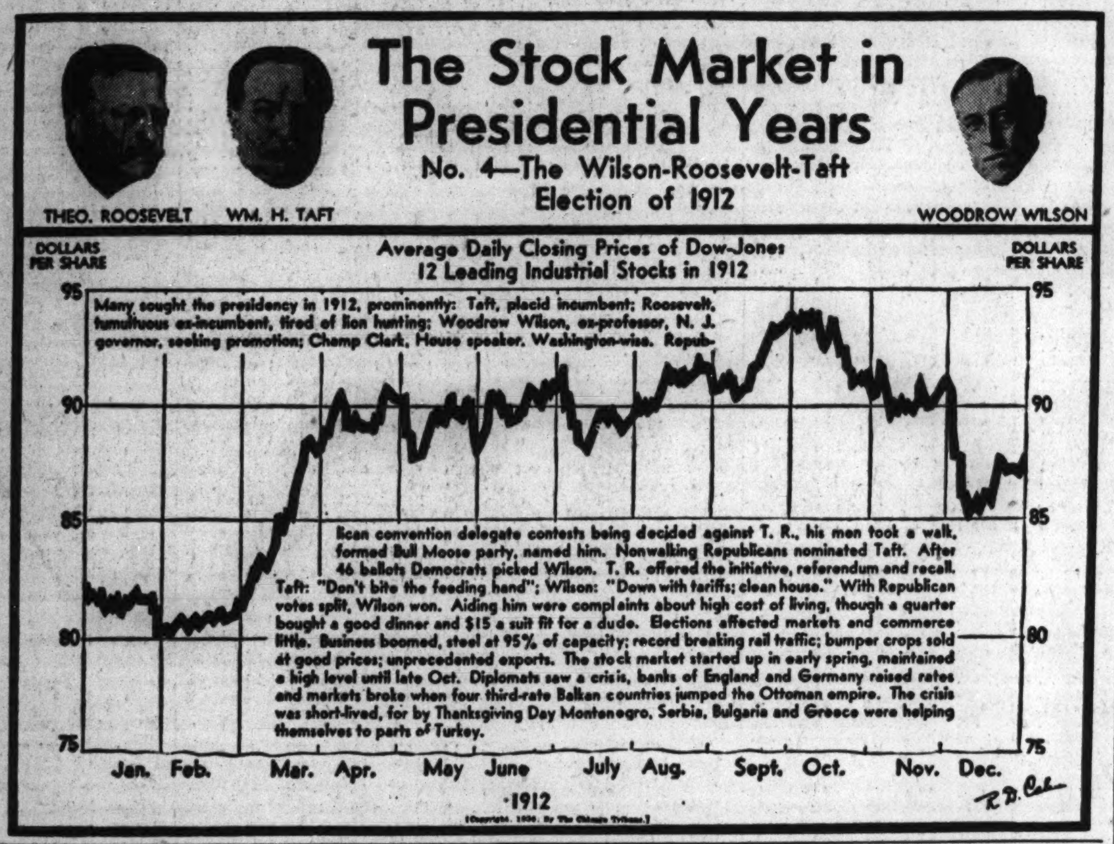
The Stock Market in Presidential Years

No. 4—The Wilson-Roosevelt-Taft Election of 1912



Average Daily Closing Prices of Dow-Jones 12 Leading Industrial Stocks in 1912

Many sought the presidency in 1912, prominently: Taft, placid incumbent; Roosevelt, tumultuous ex-incumbent, tired of lion hunting; Woodrow Wilson, ex-professor, N. J. governor, seeking promotion; Champ Clark, House speaker, Washington-wise. Republican convention delegate contests being decided against T. R., his men took a walk, formed Bull Moose party, named him. Nonwalking Republicans nominated Taft. After 46 ballots Democrats picked Wilson. T. R. offered the initiative, referendum and recall. Taft: "Don't bite the feeding hand"; Wilson: "Down with tariffs; clean house." With Republican votes split, Wilson won. Aiding him were complaints about high cost of living, though a quarter bought a good dinner and $15 a suit fit for a dude. Elections affected markets and commerce little. Business boomed, steel at 95% of capacity; record breaking rail traffic; bumper crops sold at good prices; unprecedented exports. The stock market started up in early spring, maintained a high level until late Oct. Diplomats saw a crisis, banks of England and Germany raised rates and markets broke when four third-rate Balkan countries jumped the Ottoman empire. The crisis was short-lived, for by Thanksgiving Day Montenegro, Serbia, Bulgaria and Greece were helping themselves to parts of Turkey.

New Television Probe Called; R. C. A. Target

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—The Federal Communications commission today ordered its television hearings reopened because, it said, of "promotional activities" by the Radio Corporation of America.

The new hearings, starting April 8, will be held, the commission declared, to "determine whether research and experimentation and the achievement of higher standards of television transmission are being unduly retarded by this company, its subsidiaries, or other licensees, and whether the effective date for the beginning of limited commercial operation should be changed from Sept. 1 to some subsequent date."

Sarnoff Amazed at Order.

Informed of the commission's order, David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, said he was "amazed" at the action.

"We have spent nearly $10,000,000 in developing television and in trying to create a new art and new industry," he said. "We thought we were proceeding exactly in accordance with the order on this subject recently adopted by the commission."

The commission's announcement said the current marketing campaign of the corporation was "held to be at variance with the intent of the commission's television report of Feb. 29."

"Such action," it continued, "is construed as a disregard of the commission's findings and recommendations for further improvement in the technique and quality of television transmission before sets are widely sold to the public.

Opposes Unfair Advantages.

"The possibility of one manufacturer gaining an unfair advantage over competitors may cause them to abandon the further research and experimentation which is in the public interest and may result in crowding them into the market with apparatus at present efficiency levels.

"Rapid advance is desirable, but television is of great and permanent significance to the public. It is, therefore, of greater importance that the task be done thoroly and with an eye to television's potential usefulness to the public. These are the goals which the commission deems the public interest to require."

BENEFITS BOOST FARMERS' CASH INCOME OVER '39

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—Cash income of farmers totaled $1,378,000 during the first two months of 1940, topping receipts of the same month last year by $218,000,000, the department of agriculture reported today.

More than half the increase was in government benefit payments. Income from farm marketings was reported to be $1,154,000,000, compared with $1,064,000,000 in the corresponding months in 1939, while payments to farmers who coöperated with 1939 crop production control programs amounted to $224,000,000, compared with $96,000,000 a year earlier.

The department said the increase in government payments represented principally an earlier and more rapid movement of subsidies to farmers. In 1939 payments did not reach a peak until March, whereas the peak in 1940 came in January.

FSCC BEATS EASTER BUNNY TO MARKET FOR 634,320 DOZEN EGGS

Eggs—634,320 dozen of them—destined never to see the inside of an Easter basket were bought by agents of the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation yesterday in the New York and Chicago markets. Produce dealers found no other outlet for heavy surpluses.

Despite the federal price pegging program the wholesale price was only slightly above 16 cents a dozen for the best grades, the lowest Easter quotation of the last six years.

The FSCC will distribute the eggs thru relief channels. Yesterday's purchases were the largest since the relief agency began its current buying program in December. Federal accumulations now total 6,400,000 dozen.

On the Chicago Mercantile Exchange prices of the storage packed contracts fell as much as ¼ cent a dozen.

FEDERAL INCOME ABOVE YEAR AGO FOR FIRST TIME

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—A spurt in income tax collections finally has pushed total receipts for the current fiscal year ahead of those for the corresponding period of 1939 for the first time, the treasury disclosed today. The treasury's statement showed total receipts for the year thru March 21 were $4,304,875,728.35, compared with $4,303,410,489.10 in the same period of 1939.

The total income tax collections since July 1, however, still was $193,135,450 behind those for the same period a year earlier, despite the fact that collections in the first 21 days of March were $141,540,416 ahead of those for the corresponding days last year. The current year total was $1,505,693,547.

Miscellaneous internal revenue, generally regarded as a better business barometer than income taxes, because the latter reflects conditions of the preceding year, was $94,516,297 ahead of last year. Total treasury receipts for the fiscal year were $2,569,485,298 behind expenditures, however.

LIABILITY DENIED BY INSULL JR. IN $75,000,000 SUIT

An amended answer was filed yesterday in Superior court by Attorney Floyd E. Thompson in behalf of Samuel Insull Jr. and four co-defendants in the suit brought six years ago by Sam Howard, trustee of the bankrupt Corporation Securities company, Insull investment trust. Howard seeks to recover $75,000,000, charging that mismanagement by the defendants forced the company into bankruptcy in April, 1932.

The answer held that Howard's complaint states conclusions, and not facts, and that there is no indication in it of fraud or injury to the creditors for which the defendants can be held responsible. The answer consists of 220 pages of briefs and exhibits.

Other defendants are H. L. Stuart, C. W. Sills, F. K. Shrader and C. T. MacNeille, officers or directors of the company or Securities Holding company. Howard charged them with personal liability for losses to investors.

Kimberly-Clark to Vote on 20 Millions of Bonds

Veto Forecast on Curbing of Treaty Power

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—Reports spread today that President Roosevelt would veto legislation continuing his reciprocal trade program if congress adopted a proposal to require senate ratification of trade agreements.

It was said that Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Hull had agreed and passed this word on to legislative leaders that the ratification proposal would destroy the usefulness of the trade program.

The question whether the treaties should be subject to senate ratification, by a two-thirds vote, is expected to be a major issue when the senate debates continuance of the trade program.

House approved legislation to continue the program unchanged for three years was brought to the senate floor late yesterday and debate will begin Monday.

Terms Program Unconstitutional.

One of those favoring ratification of the agreements is Chairman Pittman [D., Nev.] of the foreign relations committee. He said today that the present program, in his opinion, was unconstitutional. He said that the agreements were actually treaties and therefore should be subject to ratification.

"If the senate grants this authority to the President without the reservation of ratification," Pittman declared, "then it will set a precedent under which the President might be permitted to make such agreements as he deemed necessary for peace.

"Such an authorization would permit the President to enter the league of nations or the world court."

Senator Norris [Ind., Neb.] contended that a ratification amendment would kill the program for all practical purposes.

"It never would be possible to satisfy two-thirds of the senate," he said.

Finds Advantage in Law.

Norris told reporters that "the advantage of this law is that it enables the executive to make agreements which rectify the hundreds of mistakes which have been made by logrolling tariff legislation in the past.

"Every tariff bill ever enacted has been logrolling," he added. "There never has been one that was scientific."

Chairman Harrison [D., Miss.] of the senate finance committee, floor manager of the legislation, predicted the ratification proposal would be defeated.

Administration polls of sentiment on the question varied, with one listing a margin of three votes against ratification and three doubtful senators. Another counted a margin of six against ratification.

EASTER MEAT PRICES LOWEST IN SIX YEARS

Drop Due to Bigger Domestic Output.

Today's dinners in the Chicago area, if meat is the main course, will be the lowest priced Easter meals in six years as a result of increased meat production, lower live costs of animals at the stockyards and declines in wholesale prices in Packing town, live stock men said yesterday. Butcher shop owners last week stocked up their counters at costs which averaged about 10 per cent less than just prior to Easter last year.

A review of wholesale markets disclosed that there has been a reduction of about 25 per cent in the general level of meat prices since three years ago. At that time meat was scarce and high as a result of the two major drouth years, 1934 and 1936, and the administration's crop curtailment program which started in 1933.

Lamb Cuts Higher.

Lamb is the only meat that costs consumers more than in 1939. The various cuts of lamb meat sold in wholesale markets 4 to 21 per cent higher than prior to Easter last year. Legs showed the least price increase and loins advanced most.

Higher priced cuts of beef went to butcher shop owners 4 to 10 per cent lower prices than in 1939, and the cheaper beef cuts showed reductions of 13 to 32 per cent. The greatest savings and the largest increase in supplies were in pork. Fresh cuts ranged from 25 to 33 per cent lower in price than a year ago, and they showed reductions of 37 to 45 per cent compared with two years ago. Hams sold off 20 to 24 per cent from 1939 and were 24 to 26 per cent cheaper than in 1938.

United States packers had practically the entire Easter ham trade to themselves. This is the first time in four years that they have not had to compete for this trade against huge imports. The invasion of Poland by Germany stopped the biggest exporter of hams to the United States, while the danger of shipping has practically ended the flood of this product from other European countries.

Shipments Fall Off.

Only three countries, Italy, Holland, and Hungary, had Easter hams in the United States this year. Their total shipments the last three weeks unloaded in the New York harbor were only 73,248 pounds. Fourteen countries during the three weeks prior to Easter last year unloaded 2,851,250 pounds of hams, Poland alone sending in 2,158,000 pounds, enough to supply more than 8,000,000 people. Two years ago the three weeks' ham imports were 2,660,659 pounds from 12 countries. Three years ago they totaled 3,213,806 pounds, also from 12 countries.

Further price reductions were made in all classes of meats except lamb in wholesale channels in Chicago last week. Reductions of 50 cents to $1.50 per hundred pounds were registered in fresh pork loins, bringing this cut to the lowest level in about six weeks. Top light loins went to retail stores at $12 a hundred pounds. The heaviest loins brought $10. Fresh beef carcasses ranged from $11.50 to $17, steady to 50 cents lower for the week. Lamb carcasses were up 50 cents to $1. closing at $14.50 to $20.

FHA FUND IS FAR BELOW DEMAND, STRAUS REVEALS

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—Even if the house passed a senate-approved bill to provide $800,000,000 for additional United States housing authority loans, the sum would be $200,000,000 short of unfilled loan requests now on hand, Administrator Nathan Straus said today.

He said, however, that if the appropriation were made it could be prorated to meet the more urgent needs of the communities which made the 181 unfilled requests totaling $1,006,900,000. All funds provided by the $800,000,000 program congress voted two years ago have been committed.

Unfilled requests, the number of communities making them and the total of loans asked include: Illinois, fifteen, $91,994,000; Indiana, ten, $6,445,000; and Michigan, three, $43,000,000.

Navy Contracts Awarded for Fuel Oil, Plane Parts

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—The navy awarded today a $611,330 contract for fuel oil to the Sinclair Refining company. The Curtiss Wright corporation, Buffalo, N. Y., was awarded a $88,265 contract for airplane parts.

Britain Pulling Harder on Her Economic Rein

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 23.—Financial and economic controls imposed by the British government as war emergency measures were tightened and extended this week. Stock market operators, industrialists, and housewives all felt the impact of the new restrictions. They were designed to stabilize the country's financial structure, regulate wartime food imports, and ration steel supplies for the arms industry, export trade, and the home market.

Sir John Simon.

With the flotation of a new £300,000,000 [about $1,116,750,000] 3 per cent war loan, the government announced an increase in minimum prices for gilt edged stocks. The new ordinance issued this week covers a wide range of government stocks and means that none henceforth can be sold below fixed quotations which are well above the low rate touched since the war started.

Would Avoid Market Price.

The main object is to erect a barrier against possible market panic and large scale selling of gilt edged stocks, which would break prices to slump levels and increase the cost of government borrowing. The plan is to safeguard the basis of 3 per cent maximum interest for war loans which Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, in the house of commons this week made clear was the main plank of the government's financial policy. Without giving exact figures, he announced that the 3 per cent war loan launched last week had been oversubscribed and investors seeking a big slice of the loan got only 80 per cent of the amounts applied for.

April will mark a fresh phase in British war economy. Apart from the new budget, a new rationing scheme, under which all steel users, from the makers of big guns to needle manufacturers, will be grouped into industries attached to government departments, comes into force. Government departments will be allocated fixed quotas of steel and will be responsible for distributing supplies to industries under their control and at the same time see to it that no firm gets more than a fair share.

Food Prices Are Boosted.

The effect of the war on household budgets was emphasized in food ministry announcements that retail prices of potatoes will increase immediately 20 per cent and milk prices shortly will be raised by 14 per cent. Good Friday found the country facing a fish shortage and housewives were forced to pay 200 to 300 per cent more than prewar prices—a jump of 20 to 40 per cent in the last week.

According to the official government index, retail food costs have gone up 31 per cent in the last six months. Under a new government order Food Minister W. S. Morrison took over control of all food imports and became virtually the sole purchaser for the nation. Imports of all foodstuffs, including animal feeds, is prohibited without a government license.

An indication that Britain has started to cut down its buying from overseas was contained in Board of Trade returns showing total exports, including reëxports, during February were valued at £39,835,000 [about $148,274,000], or £8,096,000 less than in January. Imports at £95,638,000 [about $353,107,000] dropped more than £9,000,000 [about $33,480,000] compared with the preceding month.

BIGGEST OIL WELL BROUGHT IN ON CENTRALIA LEASE

Centralia, Ill., March 23 (AP).—Biggest oil well ever completed in the Centralia field was reported today by Clint Crosby who said his Algona Oil company No. 1 Marshall flowed about 2,050 barrels in 20 hours.

The well, just north of city owned Fairview Park, is producing thru open casing from Devonian lime saturation at 2,929-39 feet, Crosby said. It is west of other Devonian production.

Crosby reported the well was maintaining a flow of 10 barrels an hour, indicating a probable production of 2,400 barrels in 24 hours. Best previous completions in the field made between 1,800 and 2,000 barrels in 24 hour tests.

RETAIL TRADING SHOWS GAIN AS INDUSTRY LAGS

Home Building May Bring Spring Rally.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

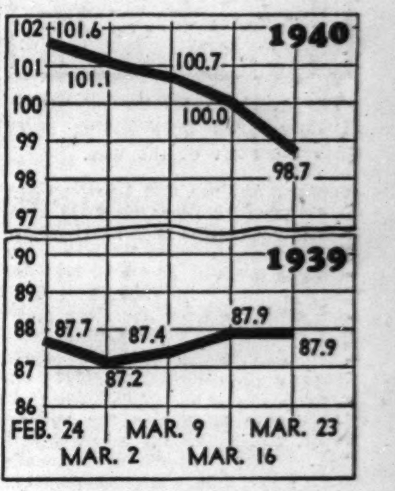
Business trends were mixed last week. Letdowns in the automobile and steel plants, pace setters for industry, contrasted with the liveliest retail trade since Christmas.

In the clothing stores and finery shops the stocks on racks and shelves were thinned by purchases of the apparel and accessories that will lend color to the Easter parade today. Another division of merchandising which was reported more active than in the preceding week was that which caters to spring household needs.

Retail sales in various sections of the nation showed gains of 10 to 16 per cent as compared with the corresponding 1939 period, Dun & Bradstreet estimated. Wholesale business, however, was spotty, with no immediate prospects of improvement, the mercantile agency said.

Home Building Expands.

Associated Press dispatches said that one of the most promising signs of a spring-summer business rally from the 1940 decline came from the home building industry which has begun a seasonal expansion. A record volume of applications for FHA mortgage insurance in March was cited as indicating that the building of residences will soon expand extensively.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press' seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100, and shows a comparison with the corresponding weeks of last year.

Steel mills cut their operating schedules 2.3 points to 62.4 per cent of capacity in the face of an increase in orders. Export business in steel continued to expand, Iron Age said.

A Good Friday shutdown in one automobile plant was said to have contributed to the week's drop in motor output, which totaled 103,395 cars and trucks, compared with 105,720 in the preceding week.

Business indices which pointed upward included new security offerings, engineering construction awards, cotton textile manufacturing, bank clearings in 22 cities and bank loans to business.

Freight Loadings Decline.

Declines were shown in the figures for railroad freight loadings and electric power production, which, however, were for the week ended March 16. The Midwest Shippers' advisory board predicted that shippers in its territory will need 5.9 per cent more freight cars to handle their business in the second quarter of 1940 than in the corresponding period

AIR TRANSPORTS RISE IN SPOTTY STOCK MARKET

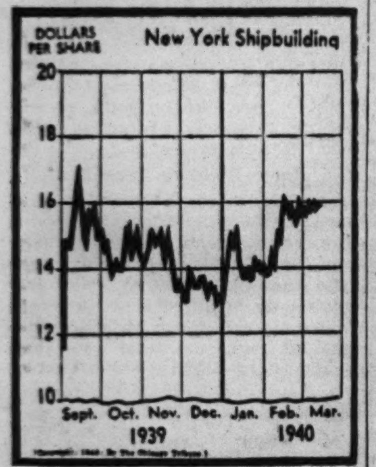
Cheerful Forecasts Buoy Issues in Group.

New York, March 23 (AP). — Air transport company issues and a few specialties sold higher in today's stock market and left many leaders to finish the week in a trendless area. Selective buying came in at the start but steels, motors, rubbers, rails, utilities, and other groups failed to respond.

Traders returned from the Good Friday holiday without definite opinions either way, altho the majority were a shade more bullish than otherwise. The idea seemed to be growing in Wall Street that the European war would be intensified as spring gets under way and thoughts of expanding purchases from abroad kept many stocks on an even keel.

Air Transport Issues Gain.

Optimistic forecasts for air transport concerns helped stimulate stocks in this category. Reaching new highs for the year or longer, with advances of fractions to three points, were American Airlines, Pan American Airways, United Air Lines, National Aviation, Transcontinental & Western Air and Eastern Air Lines.



The graph shows the movement of New York Shipbuilding stock since the start of the war.

Despite sporadic bursts of activity, turnover fell to 392,470 shares from 478,970 a week ago. The closeness of the day's proceedings was exemplified by the fact 198 stocks were up 201 down and 177 unchanged.

Loft once more was the volume leader, getting up 1⅛ at 33, a new peak. Gossip regarding dividends which this company may receive from its Pepsi-Cola holdings was credited for the buying.

Plane Makers Up Slightly.

Aircraft manufacturing issues held fractional gains as financial quarters heard the government might permit the empires to order large numbers of latest type warplanes in the United States. Ahead were Boeing, Lockheed, Douglas, and Glenn Martin.

Among other gainers were Spicer Manufacturing, which was spurred by a generous dividend; Sears Roebuck, Texas corporation Great Northern, Dow Chemical, du Pont and Westinghouse.

Showing declines were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, United States Rubber, Santa Fe, New York Central, Anaconda, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, Union Carbide and Consolidated Edison.

GRAIN MARKET TRADING IS DULL DUE TO HOLIDAY

Bad Weather Increases Fears for Crops.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$1.05¼	$1.05⅝	$ .68
Corn	.56¼	.56⅝	.47⅝
Oats	.41¼	.41⅝	.29⅝
Rye	.67½	.67¼	.41⅞
Soy beans	1.12	1.12¼	.88⅝

Holiday dullness prevailed in the grain markets yesterday, and outside interest was at a minimum. Wheat futures held within a range of about ½ cent the greater part of the day. A feature of the trading in that grain was liberal selling of July by a house with southwestern connections, which brokers believed represented spreading operations with Kansas City.

Closing trades on wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were unchanged to ¼ cent lower. Price changes in corn and oats were confined to small fractions of a cent a bushel.

Pessimistic Crop Reports.

Lack of good crop weather over the larger part of Oklahoma and Kansas, is increasing apprehension as to the outcome of the winter wheat crop in that area, brokers said. Many of the professional element are said to be acting with extreme caution on the selling side. Alternate freezing and thawing weather east of the Missippi river, it is feared, will be followed by crop damage reports. A dust storm occurred yesterday at Dodge City, Kas.

Southwestern grain men who toured parts of Oklahoma and Kansas over the Friday holiday sent in pessimistic reports yesterday. One report indicated that the ground had crusted in western Kansas and Oklahoma and the newly sprouted wheat could not get thru.

Situation Is Unfavorable.

Reports to A. E. Anderson, state and federal statistician for Nebraska, indicated that correspondents regarded the wheat situation as generally unfavorable, especially in the areas where the grain failed to germinate last fall. It was the consensus that this acreage would produce little or no grain.

Trading in corn was largely of a professional character with little attention paid to routine developments. Cash interests were on both sides of the market on a small scale. Owing the market on a small scale. Because of the Easter holidays abroad there were no export inquiries in the market, it was said.

Low temperatures are expected to prevail in the southwest early this week, and seeding of oats and other small grains is expected to make slow progress.

JAPANESE BLOCK AMERICAN TRADE IN CHINESE WOOL

Set Up Monopoly in Rich Northern Markets.

BY S. A. GRAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONGKONG, March 23.—Japan has virtually eliminated American, Russian, and other foreign business men from the rich wool markets of North China. Thru a huge combine the Japanese have enforced a monopoly in Paotow, leading wool trading center of the northwest.

Japanese efforts to capture the market began to be felt seriously in 1938 when an American concern was forced to sell 2,000 bags of wool to the Japanese Union Trading company at a loss. Since then the position of foreign traders has become more acute. Now they are faced with the machinations of Japanese militarists who buy up wool stocks at their own prices. In addition, preferred treatment is given to Japanese traders thru export restrictions and pressure by Japanese controled banks.

How Monopoly Hits Americans.

How the Japanese monopoly of Paotow wool has meant disaster to foreign, and particularly American, merchants is reflected in the refusal of the Japanese controled Peiping-Suiyuan railway to ship 2,000 bags of wool for an American concern. The Japanese owned "Mongolian bank" at the same time refused to issue a shipping permit. As a result, the American concern was forced to sell the cargo at a loss and close down.

Suiyuan province, which is under Japanese domination economically, is one of China's finest pasture lands. Before the war it had vast numbers of sheep and annually produced about 12,000,000 pounds of wool. Paotow, standing at the western terminal of the Peiping-Suiyuan railway, served as the distributing center for all products of the northwest, including fur, hides, and medical herbs besides wool. Annual shipments of not less than 55,000,000 pounds of these products passed thru Paotow before the hostilities. Two thirds were shipped to the United States and Europe. The balance went to Japan.

Militarists Seize Stocks.

Now the situation is reversed. When Japanese militarists moved into the Suiyuan in 1937 they bought up all wool stocks at their own prices. Later the wool trade became the monopoly of the Japanese Union Trading company, organized by eight Japanese concerns.

The company handles all the classifying, price setting and shipping of wool in Paotow. Often the monopoly sets prices at less than half the prewar figures. Chinese and foreign companies are not allowed to buy and export wool. Chinese may ship goods by rail to Tientsin only under permits from the "Mongolian bank." Working in coöperation with the trading company to maintain the monopoly, the bank refuses shipping permits if the stock is sold to non-Japanese concerns.

Faced with this situation, American and other foreign concerns have found it hopeless to continue wool trading in Paotow and the province. Before 1941 many fear the Japanese will have destroyed foreign competition in North China.

COTTON SURPLUS MAY MELT AWAY TASTILY IN ICE CREAM CONES

Dallas, Tex., March 23 (AP).—King Cotton, problem child of the south, has a new offspring: Ice cream. The development of ice cream made with special meal and extract from cotton as a base, was revealed today by Sim T. Lake, president of the State Restaurant Association of Texas. It will be served to more than a thousand restaurant men at a convention dinner next Thursday.

The product was originated by Prosper Ingels, hotel pastry chef, in coöperation with the state of Texas and the National Cotton council in the campaign to find new uses for the cotton surplus. Ingels had experimented with cotton ice cream for more than a year and only recently perfected the formula.

If the restaurant men pass a favorable verdict, Ingels said, the Borden company, one of the largest manufacturers in the country, has agreed to market the ice cream,

COURT MAY RULE ON RAIL PRODUCE CASE TOMORROW

Union Pacific Is Accused of Granting Rebates.

Kansas City, Mo., March 23 [Special].—Federal Judge J. C. Collet today took under advisement government charges that the Elkins act had been violated by the Union Pacific railroad, the city of Kansas City, Kas., and a number of produce dealers.

He indicated he would hand down a decision Monday on charges that the defendants had conspired on the granting of rebates to induce produce dealers to move from a produce market built by Kansas City, Mo., to one financed by the Union Pacific across the Missouri river in Kansas.

The Kansas City, Kas., market was constructed on the public levee at a cost of about $4,000,000 with funds supplied by the Union Pacific and the Public Works administration.

Sought Competitors' Trade.

Thomas A. Costolow, assistant United States district attorney, charged that the railroad built the Kansas terminal for the purpose of gaining perishable food business in Kansas City, Mo., from the Burlington, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and Santa Fe, competing railroads.

Costolow alleged that the Union Pacific helped to promote the plan for the Kansas City, Kas., market. Inducements in the form of $111,850 in cash and $30,700 in free rentals were alleged to have been offered produce dealers to get them to move to Kansas.

The interstate commerce commission, which was an interested party to the case, copied more than 600 pieces of correspondence from the Union Pacific files in an effort to substantiate allegations of rebates.

Criticize Purchase of Bonds.

It was alleged that the advance of funds and the purchase by the Union Pacific of unsalable revenue bonds issued on the project were devices for rebating and discriminating.

The defense held that the city of Kansas City, Kas., joined with the Union Pacific in developing the public levee, that the entire transaction had PWA approval and that it was the city and not the railroad that made the deals.

The hearing extended over five weeks. Dozens of witnesses were heard.

EAST TENNESSEE UTILITY MERGER 'APPROVED BY SEC

Bristol, Tenn., March 23 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission has approved a proposed merger of the East Tennessee Light and Power company, a Cities Service unit, with its subsidiaries, the Tennessee Eastern Electric company and the Tennessee Realty company. Charles E. Ide, vice president of E. T. L. & P., said the general organization would conform to federal laws regulating utility holding companies.

The utilities would be combined into a single operating utility, removing E. T. L. & P. as the parent company and combining plants, assets and gas and electric facilities valued at approximately $11,000,000. The company will have 24,000 customers in Tennessee, Virginia, and North Carolina.

Approval by 97 per cent of the preferred stock holders will be necessary to complete the merger, as well as company compliance with SEC provisions for exchange of preferred stocks, payment of dividend arrears and refunding of bond obligations, Ide said.

LINE CHARTERS 3 MARITIME BOARD CARGO VESSELS

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—The Maritime commission announced today it had chartered three of its new ships to Moore-McCormack Lines, Inc., for service between United States Atlantic ports and the east coast of South America.

The vessels are the Lightning and Flying Fish, C-2 type 15 ½-knot cargo ships, and the Sea Fox, a C-3 type 16 ½-knot cargo ship. The charter is for five years with Moore-McCormack having an option to purchase. Basic charter hire is: Lightning, $110,000 a year; Flying Fish, $110,400; Sea Fox, $116,000.

The commision also anounced that it will take delivery Monday at the yard of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company, Kearny, N. Y., on the first of its new ships to be operated by the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship company. The vessel, named the Comet, is to be purchased by the company and used in freight service between New York and Mexico.

Grinnell College Students Coming Here in Job Survey

Sixty-one Grinnell college students will come to Chicago Tuesday morning for a four day study of the job market. The group, many of whom still have two or three years of college ahead, will interview leaders of Chicago industries in an attempt to learn what qualifications employers seek in their employés. The students will have headquarters at the Hotel Sherman. Information gathered will be used in a vocations course at Grinnell. The procedure has been used for four years.

Stocks of domestic oil increased 610,000 barrels for the week and foreign crude increased 390,000 barrels.

EUROPEAN NEWS GOVERNS TREND OF COMMODITIES

Week's Prices Fluctuate on War, Peace Talk.

Commodities' prices closely followed war news from Europe last week. They dropped slightly during the fore part of the week on peace rumors, then rebounded on the exchange of air bombings by England and Germany.

By the end of the week the increase in prices was general with the exception of copper and lead. Cotton, sugar, and rubber—three of the so-called "war staples"—moved ahead on both the future and cash markets.

Cocoa Futures Gain.

Cocoa gained more than ½ a cent a pound on the futures market, and cottonseed oil, hides, and wool tops showed slight increases on the general upturn.

Metal prices were forced lower by slack demand and anxiety over the latest twists in the war. Dealers explained that, in spite of repeated peace denials from the capitals of Europe, the outlook was too unsettled for long term buying.

Copper in the resale and custom smelter markets was cut ¼ of a cent a pound to 11¼ cents. Lead dropped 1-10 of a cent a pound to 5 cents. Prices follow:

Pound Sterling Declines as Trade Total Dwindles

A drop of 1⅝ cents cut the price of the British pound sterling to $3.71 yesterday in the New York market. Traders said volume of trading in the pound has become so light that even small transactions caused wide swings in the price. The Canadian dollar declined ⅛ cent to 81.25 cents and the French franc was a shade lower.

SPEEDIER CARS, SAFER MILK DUE TO METALLURGY

Leaders Cite Progress Made by Industry.

J. H. Clough discusses value of X-ray.

Progress in the art of metallurgy during the last 25 years has produced faster automobiles, safer milk, brighter colors, slicker grease, and many other improvements, James P. Gill, president of the American Society for Metals, said yesterday on the organization's 25th anniversary.

Lightweight, fast, and comfortable automobiles and streamlined trains are made possible by the use of alloys, or combinations of metals, designed to give maximum strength and savings in weight, Gill said. Milk is made safer because of the progress made in metal containers. Bright colors say brighter longer because of advances made in their preparation, in which the metallurgist has taken a hand. Grease is slicker because high corrosion resistant metals are used in crude oil refineries.

Chicagoans Cite Progress.

Several leading Chicagoans in the metallurgical industry added their comments to those of others thruout the nation on the progress made in the 25 years since the American Society of Metals, which has its headquarters in Cleveland, was founded. Several Chicagoans mentioned contributions to metallurgy made by their own companies.

A. N. Lindberg, president, Lindberg Steel Treating company, said: "The American Society for Metals has taken heat treating out of the blacksmith's shop, changed a trade to a science, made possible the development of precise heating tools to replace the forge and changed the heat treater from a medicine man to a technician."

The irrepressible demands of industry, said Lindberg, which have been whetted by the inspirations, dreams and successes of the metal men in industry for stronger, lighter and more uniform materials, make possible the modern methods of living.

Tool Steel Aid Shown.

Arthur T. Clarage, president, Columbia Tool Steel company, telling of the progress made in his field, said: "Tool steels have had an essential part in producing some 50,000,000 automobiles, helped keep the railroads rolling and helped produce agricultural machinery. They had a part in making millions of iceless ice boxes, billions of tin cans and gadgets from ball bearings to brassiere buckles."

J. H. Clough, president, General Electric X-Ray corporation, said that "while industrial scientists have made magnificent advances in development of new materials and new uses for the products of their research, X-ray engineers provided a means for determining the suitability of metals for their intended uses and have guided the development of new metals and alloys to fulfill a variety of human needs."

New Alloys Created.

Developments from research carried on by the Inland Steel company, said P. D. Block, president, includes the creation of two new alloys, one which improves the operating efficiency of mobile equipment and the other which reduces the cost of machined parts.

The Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company, thru its metallurgical research laboratory, made notable contributions to the science of metals, such as the development of the paraffin disk method of sample preparation, which saves 90 per cent of preparation labor on research quality samples, R. B. Harper reported.

LOW PRICED RAIL BONDS UP; OTHER LIENS IRREGULAR

New York, March 23 (AP).—The bond market had the benefit of good buying in the low priced rails today and while the trend was not uniformly higher, the biggest changes were on the up side. Issues gaining fractions to 2 points or more included Erie 5s, Milwaukee 5s, Illinois Central 4¾s, Boston and Maine 5s, and Missouri Pacific 5s.

Ahead in other groups were Bethlehem Steel 3½s, Montana Power 3¾s, Remington Rand 4¼s, and Western Union 5s.

Finland 6s gave up 2 points on light offerings but other north country bonds in the foreign dollar group were neglected by traders. United States governments reversed the trend prevailing most of the week and ended up 2-32ds to 10-32ds of a point.

DISTILLER'S PAY $179,980, PROXY REPORT REVEALS

Seton Porter, president of the National Distillers Products corporation, received $179,980 in salary during 1939, and Charles L. Jones, executive vice president, $137,980, the proxy statement of the company disclosed yesterday. Matthew J. MacNamara, vice president, received $70,480, it showed.

Lingan A. Warren, president and treasurer of Safeway Stores, Inc., got $156,709 and an option to buy 2,000 shares of the company's common stock at $40 a share before Jan. 15, 1947. Lawrence Giles, vice president and controler, was paid $78,354.

Studebaker corporation gave Paul G. Hoffman, president, and Harold S. Vance, chairman of the board, $50,000 apiece during 1939. Exercising options, each bought 25,000 shares at $5.73 a share, Dec. 27, when the market price was $9.

ORDER INCREASES WAGES OF 60,000 SHOE EMPLOYES

Set Industry's Minimum Pay at 35c an Hour.

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—A flat 35 cent an hour minimum wage in the shoe industry, increasing earnings of 60,000 employés, was ordered today by the wage-hour division, effective April 29.

The shoe industry is the fifth for which an order has been issued since the wage-hour law became effective in October, 1938. The others were textiles, hosiery, millinery, and knitted wear industries.

Commenting on the order, vigorously opposed by St. Louis area manufacturers who had demanded a wage differential for small communities, Administrator Philip B. Fleming declared:

"The 60,000 shoe workers who will benefit immediately by this guarantee of 35 cents an hour are located in many states, but are largely concentrated in New England and the St. Louis area."

Many in New England.

Labor officials estimated that of these workers, 12,000 are in Massachusetts, 5,000 in New Hampshire, and 4,000 in Maine. Among other states about 20,000 were receiving less than 35 cents—9,000 in Missouri, 5,000 in Illinois, 1,400 in Tennessee, and 3,800 in Ohio. About 240,000 workers are employed in the industry, labor officials estimated.

The order may open the way for the second court test of the validity of the wage-hour act because representatives of more than a score of St. Louis manufacturers have indicated they would challenge both the validity of the order and the law itself.

Committee Votes Boost.

An industry committee, composed of employers, employés and representatives of the public, voted the 35 cent minimum unanimously.

Fleming remarked that although there were just as many shoe workers making less than 35 cents an hour in New England as in the midwest, the New England Shoe and Leather association approved the recommendation.

The National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association, however, had opposed the recommendation.

A test of the wage-hour law's constitutionality already has been instituted by southern textile manufacturers and is pending in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

ORDER HEARING ON 'WRITE-UPS' BY DULUTH UTILITY,

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—The Federal Power commission announced today it would open a hearing in Duluth, Minn., on Monday, as scheduled, to determine whether there has been any violation of the federal power act by the Minnesota Power and Light company. The commission said the company's petition for dismissal of the proceedings was "insufficient."

The hearing was ordered to ascertain also the whereabouts, possession, control, or custody of the records, books, and papers of the Duluth Edison Electric company, properties of which have been acquired by Minnesota Power and Light.

The commission said "it appears that the report of the federal trade commission indicates that the books of the Minnesota company contained write ups in the amount of $30,293,346 charged to fixed capital, and that information concerning such write ups may be contained in the books and records in question."

FEDERAL POWER URGED TO BREAK TRADE BARRIERS

Elliott Would Withhold State Road Funds.

Washington, D. C., March 23 (AP).—Congress was urged today to use the power of federal funds and federal laws to break down the network of trade barriers erected by states and local governments thruout the nation.

The suggestion was presented to the monopoly committee by Dr. W. Y. Elliott, Harvard university authority, in summarizing a week of public hearings on interstate trade barriers. Testifying that recent Supreme court decisions indicated that tribunal "washes its hands of the problem" of protecting the free flow of interstate commerce, Dr. Elliott said the justices had invited "congress to remedy the evil."

Urges Withholding Funds.

He suggested that when states or municipalities discriminated against the free flow of commerce, such as motor truck traffic and milk sales, then congress would be justified in holding back federal grants for highways, health, and other aids.

He also urged joint state-federal coöperation and federal legislation to end obstacles.

Recalling testimony about the growing multiplicity of inspections, licenses, and red tape that hinder interstate trade, Dr. Elliott said "retaliatory action tends to grow in the same way as it does in international relations."

In this field, he said "congress may have to forbid where it does not prescribe."

Suggests Permanent Committee.

The professor also suggested a "permanent joint federal-state committee on intergovernmental problems" which would study disputes and refer justified complaints to federal agencies for action.

He proposed that the attorney general aid in court tests of "doubtful or unconstitutional acts of the states" because the "little man," chief victim of these barriers, frequently was unable to finance litigation.

Secretary Wallace, in a letter to Chairman O'Mahoney, said he favored a "continuing committee on federal state relations."

PREPARING FOR DEATH—2.

Death taxes take their heaviest toll upon large estates. As the size of an estate increases it is subject to larger federal estate taxes. The necessity for minimizing such taxes becomes more imperative in estates exceeding $100,000 than in those that are smaller.

The federal estate tax is levied against the estate and is a tax upon the right to transfer property [as are gift taxes]. The state inheritance tax usually is imposed upon the recipients of property from estates and is a tax on the right to receive a bequest. The state tax falls most heavily upon distant relatives and strangers.

The federal estate tax increases from 2 per cent on a net taxable estate of $10,000 or less after deducting the $40,000 exemption allowed to as much as 70 per cent on net estates of more than $50,000,000.

To minimize the effect of these taxes, estate experts suggest several commonly employed devices:

1. Double taxation may be avoided by creation under terms of a will of a testamentary trust estate giving, for example, the widow a comfortable life income and, upon her death, providing income for the children until certain ages, at which time the principal of the estate would be distributed. By this method, the property is transferred to the children without the payment of a second estate tax which would have been assessed if the estate had been left outright to the widow and then transferred by her to the children. The testamentary trust is the most common device to avoid unnecessary death taxes.

2. Another method is to distribute part of the estate thru gifts during one's lifetime. Gifts during life instead of bequests at death are encouraged by federal revenue laws. Gift taxes rates are about 75 per cent of the federal estate taxes. The donor under federal law can take an exemption of $4,000 for each gift to an individual each year, and must report only those gifts of more than $4,000 each. In addition, he is entitled to a long term exemption of $40,000 during his lifetime. Thus a sizeable part of an estate could be disposed of during a person's life. The gifts, however, can escape the larger estate taxes only if they were made not in contemplation of death.

3. The living trust is a useful instrument when an important part of an estate consists of stock of a closed corporation, a family owned business or other nonliquid assets which would be difficult to sell or of which continued control is desired. The living trust is created during the individual's lifetime and must be irrevocable—all ownership rights must be renounced by the creator of the trust. Under such a trust provision could be made for payment of income to beneficiaries during the donor's lifetime and after his death. The living trust has come into more frequent use in recent years.

4. Bequests to charity also reduce federal estate taxes because the bequests are deducted from the gross estate and are not taxable.

Consultation of an attorney experienced in drafting wills and in estate matters, the trust department of a bank, or a life insurance company, is advisable before preparing a will to incorporate methods to protect your estate against unnecessary taxes.

of 1939. Shippers' estimates are regarded as a sensitive business barometer.

A $165,000,000 merger of Curtiss-Wright corporation and Atlas corporation was one of the corporation news developments of last week. Out of the transaction emerged Floyd B. Odlum, head of Atlas, as one of the front rank figures in aviation finance. Curtiss-Wright is a leading aircraft builder. Atlas is an investing company.

Hobby Makes Millions.

Odlum, utilities leader who has made news [and millions] in the depression years, founded Atlas as a hobby. His latest deal gives him control of the largest single block of Curtiss-Wright stock.

Other items in the week's news:

William C. Durant, General Motors corporation founder and veteran promoter, was barred from all commodity markets in America by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

A Dallas-Mexico City air line that would give Chicago its first direct one line connection with Mexico City was proposed.

Illinois displaced Oklahoma as the third largest oil producing state.

Disclosure was made that China again is buying American arms on a large scale.

The two leading mail order houses, Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co., reported that their 1939 profits were the largest on record.

Bankers Open Attack on SEC.

The Investment Bankers' association charged that the Securities and Exchange commission is exceeding its authority in its regulation of the sale of securities by public utility holding companies and their subsidiaries.

A textile maker boosted woolen and worsted fabric prices 27½ to 33 cents a yard for the 1940 fall season.

Orders were placed for several air conditioned buses and air line transport planes.

The federal reserve board reported its industrial index fell to 109 in February from 119 in January and 128 in December.

On the basis of statistics available last week the Associated Press combined index of industrial activity, which is calculated on 1929-'30 levels as 100, slowed another decline. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.

EASTER CALLS DEVOUT TO CHURCHES

9 WOMEN SEEK PRIMARY VOTES FOR ASSEMBLY

Demand Economy in Government.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Nine women from the Chicago area are seeking nominations for the general assembly in the April primary. Their platforms contain not the faintest hint of what once was known as "woman's rights."

Without exception the nine are campaigning for economy in government. Most of them favor parole reform. All favor removal of the sales tax on food and the extension of the merit system in civil service.

Of the nine candidates in and about Chicago, three, all from outlying suburbs, now sit in the legislature. They comprise three-fourths of the legislature's femininity, the fourth being Mrs. Lizzie Barnes of Carmi. All three are Republicans, and the nomination of each seems assured. Nonetheless, all are campaigning.

From "Shoestring" District.

One is Mrs. Bernice Van der Vries of Winnetka, who has represented the winding 7th, or "shoestring," district, which embraces 94 country towns on Chicago's outskirts, since 1934. The second is Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downers Grove, who went to Springfield from the 41st district [Will and Du Page counties] in 1922 as the "woman's hope" and has been, with the exception of one term, a legislative fixture ever since.

The third is Mrs. Maude N. Peffers o Aurora, now serving her first term in the footsteps of her husband, John, who represented the district, the 14th [Kane and Kendall counties], for six terms until his death in 1936.

Mrs. Van der Vries is considered an able legislator and debater of note. She has done effective work on many important committees, and now is chairman of the Illinois commission for intergovernmental coöperation, which seeks to overcome interstate trade barriers. Of the legislature's 34 commissions, she is the only woman chairman.

Record for Women.

According to a recent survey, Mrs. O'Neill has had more legislative experience than any other woman in the country. She doesn't know whether this is true, but says, confidently, "I'll have had 18 years when I get thru the next session."

Little, aggressive, and a bit acid if given cause, she is stressing public education, the merit system, and removal of state institutions from politics. She voted for parole reform, as did Mrs. Van der Vries.

Mrs. Peffers turned out to be a serious legislator and developed an avidity for committee work. "I liked studying the bills in committee and hearing the arguments," she says, "but then I found it all interesting."

Three in Race.

In Chicago proper, the 5th, or Hyde Park, district with its polyglot of intellectuals, immigrants, and Negroes has become a feminine battle ground. Three women [as well as 18 men] are tussling for its three seats in the legislature.

They are Matilda Fenberg [R.], 5401 Cornell avenue, attorney, who won the Republican nomination in 1938; Helene Leach [D.], 5481 Ellis avenue, also an attorney and an active Young Democrat, and Margaret Kathryn Woods [R.], 5408 University avenue, a skin analyst and self-styled amateur playwright.

Miss Fenberg has a background of 18 years' legal practice and two years [1929-'31] as assistant corporation counsel. She was the first woman to matriculate at Yale law school. Miss Leach, so young she will not reveal her age, has been practicing law five years and has been active in Democratic circles since 1936, when she headed the state First Voters' league. She is supporting the Stelle-Barrett-Adamowski ticket. Miss Woods, a newcomer to politics, says she has been worried about general conditions in the 5th district since 1928.

Negro Social Worker.

Irene McCoy Gaines [R.], 3262 Vernon avenue, who is running in the 1st district, is a well known Negro social worker. A graduate of Fisk university, with graduate work at the University of Chicago and Loyola university, she served on Hoover's housing commission and his Republican national planning board. She worked six years with the social service bureau of the Cook county bureau of public welfare and later was a caseworker with the IERC and the CRA.

Mrs. Cora A. Graham [R.] of 4033 Ellis avenue is running in the 3d district, that portion of the near south side into which 48 per cent of Chicago's relief goes. Mrs. Graham, a fire insurance broker, has been active in politics and civic affairs for 25 years.

Right now she wants to get gasoline tax funds to open Pershing road as far as Brookfield and to open 43d street to Western avenue. She thinks she knows the district's needs and could do it great good in Springfield.

Mrs. Rose Lamberty [R.] of 2104 North Keystone avenue seeks the nomination in the 25th district on the northwest side. She has been active in 36th ward politics for 20 years. She and her husband, Theodore, have four children, and this is her first campaign. She is interested in abolition of the sales tax, the open primary, prison, and parole reform. "I sound like Salvation Nell," she laughs, "but I mean it."

Kites to Soar Over Parks in City Contest

Novelty kite in 1939.

More than 3,000 Chicagoland kite flying fans, ranging in age from youngsters in rompers to their grandparents, will enter the second annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE city-wide kite contest to be held with the coöperation of the park district April 27 in Grant park.

Out of the thousands of entrants eight Chicagoland kite flying champions are to be chosen by expert park district judges. The eight champions will be awarded silver trophies furnished by this newspaper. Other winners are to be given ribbon awards by the park district.

The rules are simple. There is no age limit; anybody who can fly a kite is eligible. The one main restriction is that all kites in the contest must be homemade. No factory made kites will be admitted. You may construct your own kite with expert assistance in the craft rooms of your local park fieldhouse. Materials will be supplied free.

Starts in Neighborhoods.

The contest, like last year's, will be run in the form of a round robin tournament. Preliminary elimination contests will be held at neighborhood parks on April 5, 6, and 8. You have until April 5 to enter the contest.

An entry blank is printed in today's paper. Simply fill in your name, address, and age, then check the contest division or divisions you wish to enter. Take the coupon to your nearest fieldhouse. No entry blanks will be accepted if mailed to THE TRIBUNE. [A list of fieldhouses in your section accompanies this story.]

The local eliminations will qualify 20 kite flyers from each park for the semifinals to be held April 20. These contests will be held at six parks in representative sections of the city. From these semifinals 372 contestants will be selected for competition in the finals on April 27.

One New Contest.

The eight divisions in the contest are:

Artistic—Kites to be judged for color, beauty, and original design, as well as flying performance.

Novelty—Kites to be judged for unusual construction, mechanical motion, or unusual materials used.

Handwinding contest—Each contestant to fly his kite unaided and from his hand to the end of 75 yards of string. At a given signal contestant will wind in his string and the first to finish will be declared winner.

Mechanical winding—Kites to be flown to the end of the 75 yards of string and wound in by reel.

Solo box kite—Any type of box or combination plane box kite may be flown in this event. No kite carrying a tale will be eligible.

Messenger—Message to be attached to kite string by helper or contestant no more than 25 feet from flyer's hand.

Pulling contest — This event has been substituted for the smallest kite contest of last year. Kites will be flown a designated distance into the air and the pulling power will be tested by means of a mechanical device.

Largest kite—The largest kite to be entered last year measured more than 14 by 4 feet.

Suburbanites May Enter.

The tournament will be supervised by F. E. Kardes, craft technician for the park district.

Suburbanites are eligible for the contest. They must send their entry blanks to their nearest Chicago fieldhouse. All coupons must be in the hands of local park directors by April 5.

Following is a list of north side contest directors and parks where local contests will be held:

Chase, Leland, and Ashland avenues, John Duffield, director.

Green Briar, 2650 Peterson avenue, Robert G. Finn, director.

Hamlin, Wellington and Hoyne avenues, George Dunne, director.

Indian Boundary, Lunt avenue and Rockwell street, Joseph Rosich, director.

Lake Shore, East Chicago avenue and Lake Shore drive, John Dolce, director.

Pottawattomie, Rogers and Hilldale avenues, Clara Boldenow, director.

River, 5100 North Francisco avenue, John Bremer, director.

Seward, Elm and Sedgwick streets, Anthony De Julio, director.

Stanton, Rees and Vine streets, Clifford Cason, director.

Waveland fieldhouse, Lincoln Park, Addison street and the lake, John Merlo, director.

Woman's Chorus to Present Pageant at Home Thursday

The Armstrong Woman's Choral society will present "The Pageant of the Sessions" at the Theodora home, 6036 North Ravenswood avenue at 2 o'clock Thursday. Jessie Graham Smith will direct the choir and sing solos.

It's Bunny Feeding Time

The Easter rabbit is no mysterious or mythical figure to the kindergarten pupils in the Bateman Penthouse school, 5050 Marine drive, but just a nice animal which eats a prodigious amount of carrots. John Bullock and Audrey Borgenicht here are taking their turn at feeding the rabbits the pupils are studying and caring for. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

HUGO WILL NOTE HALF CENTURY AS A GYMNAST

Turnverein Friends to Help Celebrate.

Jolly, barrel-chested Hugo Kuersten will celebrate a half century of touching his toes without bending his knees on Thursday evening on his 79th birthday.

Hundreds of German Turnverein members and devotees of exercise will drop in at Social Turner hall, 1651 Belmont avenue. They will watch Hugo Kuersten putting the senior men's gym class thru its paces, just as he has been doing almost every Thursday for the last 50 years. It's his class; he helped organize it and he is turnwart [captain]. He was elected during the first year and has been reëlected year after year ever since. Nobody else in Turner history has ever held such a record, according to officers of the organization.

Will Be Gala Event.

Thursday evening will be a gala event in the Turner gymnasium world, but to Hugo Kuersten it will be just another exercise night with, as he says, "maybe a little kommersing [community singing] und a glass of beer."

Many of his old pupils, friends, and fellow gymnasts will pay their respects to this 79 year old roly-poly high priest of calesthenics as he leads 65 other men in a ceremonial of bending, stretching, twisting, and turning.

Mr. Kuersten, who resides at 4534 North Oakley avenue, is a grandfather and a great-grandfather. He has seen to it that his children and grandchildren have taken their exercise at a Turner gymnasium and he has insisted that they include in their daily lives a program of calesthenics. Health, he says, is a habit that comes with good living and regular exercise.

Never Been Sick.

"In all my life I have never been sick, not even for one day," he declares. "I don't eat too much, I don't drink too much, and I don't over exercise—everything in moderation."

He is a retired wood carver and cabinet maker. When the movies were still in the little-business class, back in the days of the Keystone comedies, Mr. Kuersten got a job as a mechanical engineer in a Chicago movie studio. He spent 10 years constructing, on short notice, such film props as cannon, battleships, bridges, locomotives, and other paraphernalia.

In addition to his exercise, Mr. Kuersten spends several hours daily puttering in his workshop at home, for he doesn't like to be idle.

696 DIE IN CITY TRAFFIC; 504 WERE PEDESTRIANS

Sixty hundred and ninety-six persons were killed in Chicago last year in 677 traffic acidents, according to official statistics released last week by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

A total of 719 motor vehicle drivers were involved, the survey shows. Sixty-seven of the 719 drivers were killed. The survey shows that of the 696 fatalities, 504 were pedestrians, 91 were passengers in motor vehicles, 16 were bicyclists, 14 motorcyclists, three were motorcycle passengers, and one was a motorman of a street car.

Seventy-five of the motor vehicle drivers were hit and run drivers.

Hope to Be the Ideal Date

Sophomores at Loyola university are going to settle a question that has been bothering them a long time when they hold their annual cotillion Friday evening. They are going to choose a co-ed to bear the title, "Ideal College Date of 1940." Two north side candidates who will make the choice a difficult one are [left to right] Helen Gast, 6522 North Damen avenue and Kay O'Connell, 6357 North Paulina street. The dance will be held at the Hotel La Salle. [Hoffman Photo.]

TRIBUNE RADIO PROGRAM TO BE YOUTH GUIDE

Future Citizenship Is Basic Idea.

Philip Maxwell. [Nelidoff Photo.]

A new half hour radio program of special interest to youth of America entitled "Citizens of Tomorrow," and sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be initiated on W-G-N Wednesday night, April 3, from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. Six hundred students from a Chicago high school will be guests in the audience studio each Wednesday night.

Lake View High will be the first school to attend one of these programs. On the following Wednesday evenings Austin and Parker High schools will be the guests.

Stress on Responsibility.

All the programs will stress the students' responsibility for future citizenship. Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE TRIBUNE, director of its annual Chicagoland Music Festival, who speaks before 50,000 high school students each fall at the presentation of THE TRIBUNE R. O. T. C. medals, will be master of ceremonies. He will take the part of "The Principal."

Other characters will be "Jerry," a cute and lovable co-ed of all high schools, and Charlie Jones, every school's engineer. The school chorus will sing and cheers led by the yell leaders will be heard on the air. The stage will be decorated with the school colors and banners.

Another feature will be a TRIBUNE headline news quiz conducted by "The Principal." Participants will be two teams, three boys and three girls, chosen just before the beginning of the program by the studio announcer. News reports from high school campuses thruout Chicagoland, the items gathered by star correspondents of THE TRIBUNE, will be given.

Help on Program.

Coöperating with Blair Walliser, production man on W-G-N, will be Harold Kent of the Radio Council, and Miss Helen Howe, director of music, both of the Chicago public schools.

Following the broadcast the 600 students will be shown the film, "Trees to Tribunes," and 100 of the audience will be taken on a tour of Tribune Tower. This trip will include visits to the editorial, composing, stereotyping, engraving, press, and circulation rooms. The tour will be so scheduled that this smaller group may leave for home around 9 o'clock.

Schools wishing to be guests of this program should write direct to Mr. Maxwell, care of THE TRIBUNE.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

Mrs. Samantha Brown.

ONE HUNDRED years old this month, Mrs. Samantha Palmer Brown, colored, spent her birthday with her two daughters, Mrs. Lydia Brown and Mrs. Eliza Devlin, with whom she lives at 1511 Emerson street, Evanston. She has outlived all the rest of her 16 children.

Most of her life Mrs. Brown did laundry work and in general had small chance to pamper herself. A fall in her home while her daughters were at work has made her bedfast, but until less than two years ago she was active, and even now chafes at having to stay in bed when she feels so well. Mrs. Brown was born in Peel township, Ontario, Canada, and settled in Evanston six months before the Chicago fire.

Vincent F. Werner of 6330 North Hermitage avenue now has 1,120 cars to look after. Formerly assistant superintendent of mails, he was promoted this month and now is superintendent of motor vehicle service in the Chicago postoffice.

He has to maintain and operate 750 government vehicles in Chicago which collect and distribute mail. He directs repairs of another 370 trucks which operate in Muncie, Ind., Rockford, Ill., Madison, Wis., and other cities but are brought here for repairs.

Mr. Werner was the first commander of Van Buren post, 401, the Chicago postoffice unit of the American Legion.

Hilary Conroy.

HILARY CONROY has done more than escort the interfraternity queen, Miss Jean Chubb, to the recent interfraternity ball. He is one of the editors of the Daily Northwestern. He is secretary of Phi Mu Delta fraternity and has been elected to represent his chapter at the national convention in Providence, R. I., in August. He is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, honorary fraternity. He lives in Bloomington.

Wilmette pupils of public and parochial schools are eligible to compete in an essay writing contest sponsored by American Legion post 46. The subject is "Why Should I Obey the Wilmette Bicycle Ordinance?" The essays must be submitted to teachers by midnight Monday, April 8. Prizes totaling $15 will be given.

Robert Fogel will play his clarinet thruout northern Iowa and Minnesota next week when he goes on tour with the 85 piece concert band of Drake university, Des Moines, Ia. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fogel, 5012 Winthrop street.

THRONGS TO FILL SANCTUARIES IN RITES TODAY

Joyous Anthems Hail Reborn Christ.

From sunrise to after sunset today churchgoers will stream into north side houses of worship to take part in and observe the drama more than 19 centuries old of a resurrected Christ, as it unfolds, with biblical symbolism in cantata, pageant, sermon, and song.

In many churches ante rooms adjoining the main auditoriums are to be opened to accommodate overflow crowds. Hundreds, if not thousands, of children will enact the Christ story before altars decked with palms and Easter flowers. Choirs robed in white will sing the story in classical and sacred musical hosanna.

Easter services at the Edgewater Baptist church, 1401 Hollywood avenue, will be combined with the celebration of the church's 31st anniversary. Three of the 34 charter members who attended the first Easter program in 1909 are expected to be present. They are Frank Lindberg, 6512 North Washtenaw avenue; Mrs. J. A. Froberg, 6304 Magnolia avenue, and Mrs. Charles Sweiberg, 114 South boulevard, Evanston. Services will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning and at 6 and 7:30 o'clock this evening. The Rev. H. A. Hermansen is pastor.

At Fourth Presbyterian.

Two morning services will be held at the Fourth Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and Delaware place, at 8 and 11 o'clock. The crowd at 11 o'clock is expected to fill the auditorium and an adjoining hall. An afternoon service will be held at 4 o'clock and another at 8 o'clock in the evening. The Rev. Harrison Ray Anderson is pastor.

An elaborate program of Easter services at the First Methodist church, or Chicago temple, Clark and Washington streets, opens at 9 o'clock with the minister, Dr. John Thompson, using as the text of his sermon, "Why Jesus Rose from the Dead."

At 11 o'clock he will speak on "Jesus and the Easter Amen." Special music will be by the junior and senior choirs. At 7 o'clock in the evening the Rev. John L. Dickson, who speaks daily over W-G-N, will be in the pulpit. At noon young persons are expected to fill the church to attend Sunday school exercises.

Edgewater Presbyterian.

At the Edgewater Presbyterian church, Bryn Mawr and Kenmore avenues, a resurrection sermon and anthems will mark services at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Evening services at 8 o'clock will include an Easter oratorio, Gounod's "The Redemption," sung by the robed choir under the direction of Dr. S. R. Burkholder. Dr. Adolph Bohn is pastor.

Dr. Burkholder will be assisted by Gloria Dowson, harpist; Frank Cookson, organist, and Blythe Owen, pianist. Soloists, all of whom were in the 1939 Chicagoland Music festival, include Miss Marian Huebner, soprano; Miss Gladys Zeiher, contralto; Gene Askin and Arthur Nordhem, tenors; Garth Van Vlett and Alex Williams, baritones, and Arthur Burdick, bass.

Members of Ascension Lutheran church, at Wolcott and Cornelia avenues, will begin celebrating Easter bright and early. At 6 o'clock this morning they will assemble for a sunrise service. At 11 o'clock services will include the Lord's supper. At 7:30 o'clock the Bible school will give an Easter program. The choir will sing at all services. The Rev. E. O. Wannagat is pastor.

Robed choirs will add triumphant voices to Easter services at Rogers Park Presbyterian church, Greenview and Greenleaf avenues. The junior choir will sing "Alleluia, Christ Is Risen." "By Early Morning Light" will be sung by the adult choir. "Ye Sons and Daughters of the King" will be sung by combined choirs, and the adult choir will sing "The World Itself Keeps Easter Day." The Rev. Alvin A. Smith will deliver a sermon on "When Does Life Begin?"

Communion at Sunrise.

Holy communion will be given at Easter sunrise services at 6:30 o'clock in St. Paul's church, Orchard street and Fullerton parkway. A service for young persons will be at 9 o'clock, and an Easter service with special music by choirs, organ and orchestra, and with holy communion will be at 11 o'clock. The Rev. George L. Scherger is pastor.

At St. James church, North Wabash avenue and Huron street, the Rev. Duncan H. Browne will conduct holy communion at 8 and 11 o'clock this morning and deliver a sermon at the latter hour. Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" is to be included in special music.

In another Episcopal church, the Church of the Atonement, 5749 Kenmore avenue, Holy Eucharist services will be held at 6, 7:30, 8:15, 9, and 11 o'clock this morning. A sermon and solemn high mass will mark the 11 o'clock service. At 5 o'clock this afternoon the church school will present its Lenten offering.

Holy communion will be at 6 and 8 o'clock in the morning at the Church of Our Saviour, 530 Fullerton parkway. A festival Eucharist and a sermon by the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot will be at 11 o'closck. A children's CIGARETS BUT NO SALOONS.

Suburbanite's remarks about Northwestern university co-eds smoking cigarets on the streets of Evanston interested me, but failed to alarm me. Last Sunday she said she was a mother and that she had moved to Evanston so that she could bring up her daughters correctly. She hinted that she was disillusioned about the town because it permitted young girls to smoke openly on the steps of Frances Willard hall.

I can understand her position. There is irony in the fact that co-eds smoke within the shadow of a building dedicated to the great temperance worker. But times have changed. People even smoke publicly nowadays in Zion, Ill.!

I can only offer her one small bit of comfort. There are no open saloons in Evanston—yet. And I hope and pray there will be none to distract Northwestern students from their studies.

EVANSTON SYMPATHIZER.

WANTS TRASH BOXES.

This morning while walking down one of our Rogers Park streets to the "L" my attention was directed to the littered conditions of the sidewalk and street. Paper and other debris were evident everywhere.

When I opened my TRIBUNE on the train I noticed M. W. North's letter to the Voice regarding this same thing.

I, too, was born in Chicago and so was my mother and father, and it burns me up to see such disregard for cleanliness in our fine and beautiful city.

My suggestion is for the city to put waste boxes such as are used in the loop in outlying districts, and for the TRIBUNE to mention in its columns this fact. Then all good citizens should be conscious of the boxes and in that way help keep the city clean.

LIGHTS ON McCORMICK.

Not in the far distant past McCormick road was adequately lighted. At least every other lamp on this road has now been dismantled. Why this is so most of us will probably never know. Perhaps they've been sold. If not, where are they?

Certain politicians boast that they've made Chicago safe. If their safety measures include blackouts on our city streets, I suggest that they refrain from the European method.

J. M. FORD.

G. O. P. HAS OPEN VOTE FIELD IN M'HENRY COUNTY

Democrats Fail to File for Any Office.

It's almost "no contest" in the April 9 primary in McHenry county, insofar as the race for county office nominations is concerned.

Democrats, for the first time in years, aren't even troubling to file a ticket and the only competition on the Republican side is for the coroner nomination.

William M. Carroll of Woodstock is seeking renomination to a second term as state's attorney, and Will T. Conn of Harvard, circuit clerk since 1928, aspires to the G. O. P. nomination for a fourth term in this office.

Seeks Fourth Term.

Edward H. Cook of Huntley, veteran coroner, has his hat in the ring for a fourth term, and is being given spirited competition by Harry L. Ehorn, Richmond undertaker. The same candidates fought it out four years ago for the Republican nomination, Cook winning by 62 votes, 3,509 to 3,447. Observers predict another close contest next month.

Coroner Cook, a druggist, furniture dealer and undertaker, is the third member of his immediate family to have held the coroner's office. His late brother, Dr. William W. Cook, was coroner from 1878 until his death, and was followed in the office by another brother, the late Dr. Charles E. Cook.

Held Unusual Record.

Thus three brothers have held the office from time to time over a span of 62 years—considered an unusual family record for public service.

C. Frank Daly of Woodstock, chairman of the McHenry County Republican Central committee, predicts a further increase in the Republican primary vote this year, and points to the fact of the Democrats ignoring the county primary as an indicator of this fact. Daly believes the county will poll around 22,000 votes on primary day, with the G. O. P. out in front about 17 to 5.

NIGHT WORKERS' TEMPLAR UNIT TO BE INSPECTED

St. Cecilia commandery, Knights Templar, will hold its annual inspection Thursday at 32 West Randolph street. James Norris Finn, grand generalissimo, will be the inspecting officer.

This is the only daylight commandery in the state. Its membership is made up of night workers. The grand commander, Charles Hunt Toothe of Galesburg, will be officially received preceding the Order of the Temple, which will start at noon. Buffet luncheon will be served.

Commandery officers are: Joseph F. Brown, commander; Arthur D. McQuillen, generalissimo; Rodney S. Green, captain general; Harry J. McCann, senior warden; Franklin R. Smith, junior warden; John A. Dorn, prelate; George A. Van Berge, treasurer; Walter Harding, recorder; Harold D. Brown, standard bearer; Charles Nagel, color bearer; Edward N. Nelson, sword bearer; Paul Andrews, warden; Ernest F. Briggs, sentinel; C. Gordon Wedertz, organist, and George A. Van Bergen, instructor.

NIGHT MEETINGS SPEED UP RACE FOR LEGISLATURE

Majority in Fight Favor Food Tax Repeal.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

The merry-go-round of candidates aiming at the brass ring of nomination to the state legislature was speeded up last week by nightly political meetings. A dizzy whirl will be maintained from now until the April 9 primary with contestants dashing to three or four ward and precinct rallies every evening.

Beneficiaries of most meetings will be candidates backed by regular party organizations with funds for halls and entertainment. Independents are striving to keep up the pace by appearing before clubs and civic organizations. Some have scheduled "booster night" dances with the aid of friends.

Early replies to a questionnaire sent to candidates by THE TRIBUNE show that an overwhelming majority of those running favor removal of the 3 per cent sales tax from food, altho some question whether the move is possible under the Illinois constitution. Surprisingly, many candidates in this bracket are Democratic incumbents who refused to support the Lund bill for this purpose in the 1939 session of the legislature.

SIXTH DISTRICT

Republican fights for two house nominations and one to the state senate are the high lights here, with nine candidates entered. There is a scrap of narrower scope over the two Democratic house nominations, while the Democratic sitting senator is unopposed.

Former State Senator James J. Barbour, with 20 years' service in that body, heads the G. O. P. list of house contestants. Barbour's home is at 2422 Hartzell street, Evanston. A student of government and the passing scene for the 52 years he has lived in the district, Barbour has been circulating his published reminiscences widely to give an unusual touch to his legislative campaign.

Barbour expects support from the Erickson G. O. P. organization in Evanston, and from Judge Oscar Nelson and his friends in the 46th and adjacent wards. The Jensen 50th ward organization has indorsed him, he said. Barbour is not to be confused with James G. Barber of Evanston, a candidate for the senate.

The Evanstonian scheduled to receive the backing of the regular Republican, Women's Republican, and Young Republican organizations of the suburb is Alan E. Ashcraft Jr., of 731 Forest avenue. He also has been indorsed by most of the regular G. O. P. groups in Chicago wards.

Ashcraft has been an alderman of the 3d ward in Evanston since 1935. An attorney, he has been active in boys' clubs and social work as well as in the political activities of his community. He is 34 years old.

Charges Machine Control.

Ashcraft attacked the practice of many members of the state lawmaking body in holding lucrative political jobs under various local governments. He charged that the many Cook county members of house and senate, who are pay rollers, are controled by their political sponsors.

"This stifles any pretense to independent action in the legislature," Ashcraft said. "These pay roll legislators are directed absolutely by the Democratic machine."

Charles W. Swanson, who led the G. O. P. ticket when he ran for city treasurer in 1935, has the backing of all factions in all wards in the district. As a member of the Republican senatorial committee for the last six years he has always opposed moves to make the district a "setup" in which only one Republican would be nominated for the house.

Swanson lives at 1829 Leland avenue with his wife and daughter and has been a resident of the district all of his 35 years. Friends say he would be a force for clean government in the legislature.

Benjamin J. Schultz, 7345 North Damen avenue, is an independent Republican candidate. Born in London, England, in 1903, he attended Northwestern university.

Slater in Congress Race.

There is no Republican incumbent in the race. The lone G. O. P. representative, Drennan J. Slater of Evanston, is running for congress.

On the Democratic side of the house contest, Patrick T. Driscoll, 6620 North Ashland avenue, is showing considerable activity in attempting to unseat one of the two incumbents, George H. Smith, 2200 Carmen avenue, and Charles H. Weber, 2924 Southport avenue.

Of Representative Weber, who has had his house seat for 14 years, the Legislative Voters league said recently: "His long experience should justify expectations of a more satisfactory voting record, not so studded with failures to vote at all on many important bills." He failed to support the Ward-Schnackenberg parole reform bill, which Driscoll heartily indorses.

A Texan by birth, Driscoll worked as a farm hand, oil field driller, ice man, mail man, before he put out his lawyer's shingle in 1932.

Representative George H. Smith got a far better rating than Weber from the L. V. L. which reported that he is "earnest and a hard worker, with voting record mixed, but showing some independence." He aided in the attempt to reform the parole system in the 1939 session, which was his second. He is a brother of Clayton Smith, president of the Cook county board.

Knox Is Endorsed.

Despite Weber's weak record, he shares with Smith the support of the regular Democratic machine. The last candidate on the Democratic house ballot list is James P. Maloney, 7747 North Hermitage avenue, who did not reply to a request for information about himself.

For the nomination to the Illinois senate, all Republican regular organizations have endorsed William G. Knox, 1449 Fargo avenue. Knox is a manufacturer and distributor of electrical appliances. He is completing his second year as Cook county chairman of the Illinois Republican Service Men's league.

Born in Springfield not quite 47 years ago, Knox came to Chicago in 1923. Since then he has been prominent in community civic affairs. His father-in-law was the late State Senator John Dailey of Peoria.

Harry F. Hamlin, 1120 Loyola avenue, is a strong contender who has the support of most workers in the Dwight H. Green organization. Hamlin was a Municipal judge for six years and served two terms as state representative, earning the description of "capable and honest" from the L. V. L.

Hamlin also has experience as assistant corporation counsel, assistant attorney general, first assistant United States district attorney, and chairman of the board of the Edgewater Trust and Savings bank.

Two Are War Veterans.

In the world war Hamlin fought with the 33d division and won the rank of major after being cited for gallantry in action.

James G. Barber—not to be confused with former Senator Barbour—is the only Evanston candidate for this office. He has been justice of the peace for 11 years. Altho an attorney, he has business experience thru his 10 year operation of an automobile company. Earlier he was an electrical engineer.

Barber also appeals to the war vet voters. He spent 19 months in overseas service and was discharged as a lieutenant.

Oscar Emil Lundgren, 3529 North Greenview avenue, a statistician, claims support of the Green-for-governor organizations in the 45th, 46th, and 49th wards. Always a resident of the district, he attended Lane Technical High school and Northwestern university. Lundgren is 33 years old.

Edwin R. Eckersall, 1636 Rascher avenue, a railroad attorney, holds last place on the list. He attended Lake View High school and Northwestern university. Eckersall said that he has had broad experience in business. He is 31 years old.

State Senator John J. Meyers, 1534 West Roscoe street, is the only Democrat out for the nomination this year. The L. V. L. recently spanked him with the following report: "Voting record mighty poor. Has failed flatly to measure up to standards people of such an intelligent district have the right to expect."

25TH DISTRICT

Blanketing almost the entire northwest side, this most populous of all districts in Illinois also cuts into the 45th, 47th, and 50th wards of the north side as far east as Western avenue.

A free-for-all scramble is under way for the two Republican nominations to the house. Representative Elroy C. Sandquist, who made a good record in the house and holds the coveted top spot on the ballot for this office, is believed to be certain of one nomination.

There are 17 other contestants, including one woman, in the G. O. P. race. John L. Coffield, 5939 North Rockwell street, editor of a political newspaper and vice president of the Young Republicans group, has 50th ward organization backing.

Besides urging sales tax reduction, as do all these Republicans, Coffield's cards advocate the building of a lake front airport.

"For years the New Dealers have dallied and refused to approve the airport," he said. "City officials are asleep. The legislature should act, because the improvement would help all of Illinois."

Young Lawyer in Race.

The 47th ward regular G. O. P. club is aiding a young lawyer, Sidney S. Schiller, 4868 North Talman avenue, who has practiced law before many state boards and commissions. Self-supporting since he was 12, Schiller was graduated with honors by Crane college and the De Paul university law school.

Among the Democrats, Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe and Stanley R. Kosinski, 5774 Lawrence avenue, were reported to have a margin in their favor. Both are endorsed by the regular Democratic organization and have long been in public service.

Herbert I. Novitsky, 4943 North Lawndale avenue, is an independent, while Edwin Kania, 5348 School street, expects backing from supporters of the Stelle-Adamowski-Barrett faction of the Democrats.

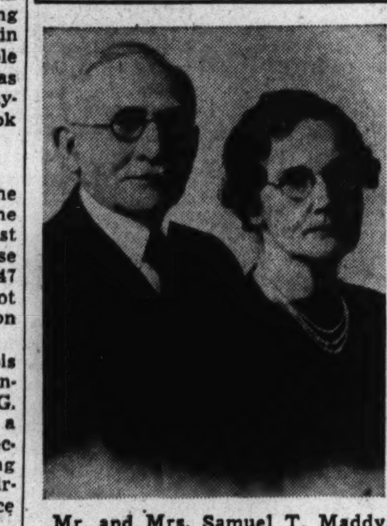
In Race for Assembly

Martin Jensen [R.], 8th District. Jack H. Hoff [D.] 8th District. Patrick T. Driscoll [D.] 6th District. Charles W. Swanson [R.] 6th District.

Alan Ashcraft Jr. [R.], 6th District. Pierce L. Shannon [D.], Incumbent, 31st District. Wilbert J. J. Wahler [R.], 31st District. Geo. A. Williston [R.], 31st District. James J. Barbour [R.], 6th District.

North section voters are likely to see these faces near their polling places April 9. The faces belong to candidates for the state legislature. The 31st is the Edgewater, Uptown, and Belmont Harbor district. The 6th district is mainly composed of Rogers Park and Evanston. The 8th takes in Lake, McHenry, and Boone counties.

Their Golden Jubilee



Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Maddy, 1013 Simpson street, Evanston, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last week. Active members of the Wheadon Methodist church in the suburb, they have resided in Evanston for 10 years. They formerly resided in Pleasantville, Ia.

Church Group Due to Hold Its Annual Easter Social

The annual Easter social of St. Henry's Ladies Catholic Benevolent association will be held Tuesday afternoon and evening at St. Henry's church, Devon and Ridge avenues. Officers in charge of the party include Eleanor M. Hozek, president; Therese Mertens, recording secretary; Helen Trausch, financial secretary; Magdalene Schaefer, treasurer, and Ann Flynn, co-chairman.

Education Program Class at 'Y' to Hear Safety Talk

Safety rules for pedestrians and motorists will be outlined Tuesday afternoon by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, at the adult education program class at the Larrabee Y. M. C. A., 1508 Larrabee street. Three safety films, "We Drivers," "Everybody's Business," and "The Chance to Lose," will be shown.

HOPES OF G. O. P. FOR SEATS IN CONGRESS RISE

North Areas Likely to Go Republican.

Indications that voters in three congressional districts on Chicago's north and northwest sides who now are represented by Democrats will return to the Republican fold in November have intensified the furious battles that G. O. P. candidates for nomination are waging among themselves. The changes are expected in the 1st, 7th, and 9th districts.

Both the 1st and 9th have been Democratic since 1934, altho both have a long history as Republican strongholds. The important 7th district, with more than a quarter of Chicago's total population within its limits, has been Democratic since 1930. A swing to the G. O. P. in these three would leave the score: Republican 5 and Democratic 1 for the six districts either wholly or partly in this section of the Chicago area.

The Republican fight in the first centers around William E. King, 2d ward committeeman, who apparently has organization support and seems the standout. He is ohtly pursued, however, by Oscar De Priest, former congressman and 3d ward committeeman, and Patrick B. Prescott, son-in-law of the late Bishop A. J. Carey of the African Methodist Episcopal church. All are Negroes.

Considerable money is being spent here and an active campaign is being waged by Carl A. Hansberry, prominent colored businessman. In this, his first attempt to win public office, Hansberry is running as an independent. Both his and Prescott's chances appear to be remote unless King and De Priest split the vote.

Seven Are in Race.

The jumbled Republican race in the 7th district, where seven candidates are in the field, seems to be dwindling to a dog fight between James C. Moreland, former alderman and the nominee here in 1930, '36, and '38, and former Congressman M. A. Michaelson, who served five terms from 1920 to 1930 from this area. Moreland's strength appears to be growing and he is receiving organization support.

In the general election of 1938 Moreland received 162,000 votes and the plurality of the Democratic winner, Leonard W. Schuetz, who appears to be the certain nominee of his party again, was 30,681. Moreland's supporters say that if nominated he will turn the tables on Schuetz by a large margin. Alex Loeffler, Republican candidate favored by Joe Porcaro, committeeman in the 28th ward, appears today to be out of the running.

Charles S. Dewey, who was the Republican nominee from the 9th district in 1938, is considered now a certainty to repeat. His organization support is growing and neither of his two opponents, Don Donnelly and T. McCormick Hartford, is granted a logical chance to topple him.

In the November election in 1938 Dewey was only 4,552 behind James McAndrews, the Democratic incumbent. This year, according to the ward and precinct workers here, Dewey should win handily. The shift in sentiment in this district, which for more than 30 years was Republican until McAndrews won in 1932, is pronounced, they say.

Paddock Seems in Lead.

Four of the six Republican candidates in the 10th district are already making victory claims, but those of George A. Paddock of Evanston seem the strongest. Paddock announced last week that he has received the unqualified endorsement of all elected committeemen in Chicago. This is evidence of his organization strength and he should be strong in both Evanston and along the north shore in Lake county.

His close rivals are Drennan J. Slater, who has served four terms as state representative from the 6th district, James M. Crume, insurance actuary, who is making an active personal campaign, and Dr. Robert E. Schaefer, who also is an independent. Slater has the blessing of Hill Blackett, Illinois Republican national committeeman, and both Crume and Schaefer say they are obtaining considerable encouragement.

Tantamount to Election.

This district has never elected a Democrat since the 1901 reapportionment so the Republican nomination is considered tantamount to election here. John Haderlein is the lone Democrat who filed for the nomination.

The other two congressional districts in this area are the 8th, for years a Democratic stronghold and one of the smallest districts in the state, and the 11th, where no Democrat ever has been elected. There are no important fights among candidates of either party in these areas.

A massmeeting of Republicans in the 35th, 38th, and 41st wards, all in this section of Chicago, will be held tomorrow evening at the Portage park fieldhouse at Berteau and Long avenues. All the Republican candidates in the 7th district will speak and more than 5,000 persons are expected to attend.

Wed Yesterday

The former Miss Effie Patricia Nelson, 1463 Farragut avenue, became the bride yesterday afternoon of Joseph C. Dougherty of Philadelphia. The wedding took place in the Edgewater Presbyterian church, 1020 Bryn Mawr avenue. The Rev. Adolph Bohn, pastor, performed the ceremony. Mrs. Dougherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Nelson, is a graduate of Senn High school.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

CLUB TO OBSERVE 28TH BIRTHDAY NEXT THURSDAY

Early Members to Have Roles in Skits.

The North Shore Woman's club will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and its own 28th anniversary Thursday afternoon in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Mrs. William Severin.
[Rayhuff-Richter Photo.]

Surviving founders of the club to be honored are Mrs. Edward M. Meder and Mrs. Thomas O. Wallace. Nine active members who joined the club in its first five years also will be honored. They are Mrs. Louis Becker, of 6623 Conchatrain avenue; Mrs. Amy Clarke, 2026 Leland avenue; Mrs. Alfred Cox, 7645 Sheridan road; Mrs. Oscar Hebel, Wilmette; Mrs. Emil Kunze, 5522 Wayne avenue; Mrs. Ernest Reniff, 7712 North Ashland avenue; Mrs. William Severin, 1130 Morse avenue; Mrs. George Veesenmeyer, 826 Eastwood avenue, and Mrs. Charles Weiland, 909 Lakeside avenue.

Oldest of the active members is Mrs. Severin. An inveterate club woman, Mrs. Severin has been a lively member of clubs which have come and gone, but she continues, year after year, without any noticeable diminishing of her activities.

"I don't think mother would mind if I said she was approaching her 70th birthday," said her daughter, Mrs. Emily Bloom, who freely admits her own 39 years. Mrs. Severin makes her home with her daughter.

Mrs. Ernest Reniff.
[Koehne Photo.]

"Mother is just as active in the 10th district as ever. I know she has attended 38 consecutive conventions of the federation. She missed the year I was born, but just because the conventions are always in May, and I had to be born in May."

A few of her activities include the founding of the Illinois Women's Athletic club, now out of existence; the past presidency of the Wicker Park Woman's club, and of the 7th district, and the founding of the Illinois Republican Woman's association. She was a member of the national woman's campaign committee for Charles Evans Hughes for president in 1916.

Mrs. George Veesenmeyer.
[De Haven Photo.]

Mrs. Reniff, a former president, Mrs. Severin, and Mrs. Veesenmeyer are among the members who will play in a skit to be directed by Mrs. Richard P. Finnegan. It is a satire on radio programs and contains considerable burlesquing of the club and its members, moreover.

Mrs. Severin will take the rôle of Aunt Amada, bedtime story teller, a giddy woman trying to keep her youth.

Others in the cast include Mrs. Martin Nelson, Mrs. George Schickluna, Mrs. Herbert Weed, Mrs. William Phares, Mrs. William Carbone, and Mrs. George Haumerson. Mrs. Walter LaVariere and Mrs. Harry Bibb will supply music.

North End Woman's Club.

The literature study group will meet at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to hear American poetry read and discussed.

RANKS OF G. O. P. ARE SPLIT OVER COMMITTEEMEN

Serious Contests Waged in Three Wards.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Republican ranks in three north side wards are splitting widely as the April 9 election of ward committeemen draws near. The wards where serious contests have developed are the 47th, 48th, and 50th.

In the 47th Committeeman Frank R. Leonard, candidate for reëlection, is receiving real opposition from Fred G. Koehler. Leonard was president of the ward Regular Republican club for 20 years and was selected by precinct captains to lead the area after the death of Committeeman John J. Hoellen in 1937.

This is his first campaign for election. He has lived in Ravenswood all his life, was educated in the public school and at Northwestern and Loyola universities. He is an attorney and lives with his family at 2647 Wilson avenue. He is allied with the Brooks-Lyons organization.

Koehler has conducted militant campaigns in the ward for both general assembly and alderman. His organization has followed a policy of carrying on a campaign during off years and keeping active. The name of his supporting group is the 47th Ward National Republican Party organization. He is allied with the Green organization.

Koehler's headquarters are at 4731 North Western avenue, where meetings are held every Tuesday night. Koehler lives with his family at 1609 West Cullom avenue. He is in the insurance business and for many years has been active in both ward and neighborhood affairs.

Split Three Ways.

In the 48th ward the Republican ward committeeman fight is still split three ways. Robert E. Owens, 4246 Sheridan road, an attorney, is the candidate of the "Official Republican Organization of the 48th Ward." The organization is that of the former committeeman and alderman, John A. Massen.

Owens has been a member of the 48th ward Republican organization since 1920. He is a charter member of the Edgewater Uptown Civic council and a member of the Chicago Bar association and Executives' club. He is also judge advocate of North Shore post of the American Legion. He is supporting the Brooks-Lyons forces in the campaign and states, "I oppose alike the evils of bipartisan deals and the selfish interests of factionalism." He has headquarters in the Sheridan Plaza hotel.

Lawyer Is in Race.

Another 49th ward candidate is Emerson C. Whitney, a young lawyer and Republican, who was formerly associated with Massen in the latter's law office.

Whitney is directing an aggressive campaign. He has lived in the ward for almost 23 years and his home is at 1136 Ainslie street. He is a graduate of Northwestern university. His headquarters are at 4558 Kenmore avenue, where meetings are held every Monday night. Tomorrow night Robert L. Hunter, president of the Better Government association, is scheduled to talk. Whitney is supporting the Green organization.

Former Judge Edgar A. Jonas is also conducting an active campaign in the ward, as well as campaigning for Municipal court judge. Jonas maintains headquarters at the New Lawrence hotel, 1020 Lawrence avenue. He has indorsed the Lyons-Brooks faction of the party.

Jensen Has Opposition.

In the 50th ward the incumbent committeeman, Jens Jensen, is receiving stiff competition from two former members of his organization, William B. Lipps and Henry C. Doehne.

Jensen is with the Green faction, while both Lipps and Doehne have indorsed Richard Lyons for governor. Lipps also has indorsed Wayland Brooks for United States senator and Doehne is allied with Ralph Church.

Jensen's organization received some additional support recently when former Alderman A. K. Mose withdrew from the committeeman campaign and has since swung his support to Jensen.

Lipps, son of the late Alderman William F. Lipps, for many years alderman of the old 26th ward, now the 50th, has headquarters at 6406 North Western avenue.

Claims Business Support.

Lipps contends he has been active in the Republican party for 18 years and that his basic support comes from the business leaders of the ward. Last week he received the indorsement of Milton Joseph, president of the Northtown Business Men's association, and of Paul Brandel, secretary of the Swedish Covenant hospital.

Henry Doehne has headquarters at 2345 Devon avenue, with meetings on Thursday nights. He is employed by the National Refining company. He says he has resided in the ward 10 years and has been active in Republican work during that time.

[J. D. Toloff Photo.]

The Buehrs have been residents of Rogers Park since 1913. Karl Albert Buehr, the father, resides at 1738 Jarvis avenue and has a studio at 509 South Wabash avenue. He does not like to tell his age. He is as bad as a woman about it, he said.

In 1894 he began teaching at the Art institute and until his retirement last fall taught classes in life and portrait painting there. He is now working busily on portraits. His wife, Mary Hess Buehr, who does landscapes and miniature portraits, is a former prize winner in the latter field.

George Frederick Buehr, their son, who will speak at the tea, lectures as a member of the staff of the institute. His wife, Margo Huff, does decorative things, and he does landscapes and figures.

Mrs. Kathleen Buehr Granger, daughter of Karl and Mary, lives in Barrington and paints portraits of her family. She has three children and they have been the subject of much of her work.

All of the family, except possibly the father, will be at the tea. It is sponsored by the club's art division, headed by Mrs. T. F. Thompson, and the art division of the junior club membership, whose chairman is Mrs. Franklin Cook.

At 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning Margaret March-Mount of the department of agriculture forest service will talk on conservation.

Charles Hunt Toothe.

Fourteen groups of the first and second district will parade before the services. The speaker will be the Rev. Edwin V. Griswold of St. Elizabeth Episcopal church, 62d and St. Louis avenue. Two features of the afternoon will be a living cross formed on the stage by the Daughters of Job under the direction of Mrs. Alma T. Bolton and the 9 o'clock prayer by the De Molay boys.

Norman J. Kissick will be marshal and William T. Slyce will be general chairman. In the march will be William N. Boller, illustrious potentate of Medinah temple.

STATE CENTRAL CAMPAIGN IS MOSTLY ROUTINE

Democratic Peace Robs Race of Spice.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

A few factional fights were brewing last week among candidates for the Republican state central committee in the north and northwest sections of the Chicago area, but in general the campaigns for elections to these party jobs were tame affairs. Reports of harmony within the Democratic machine robbed this phase of the primary of its 1938 interest.

State central committeemen for both parties are picked by congressional district and are elected, not nominated, every two years in the April primary. One committeeman for each party will be chosen from the following congressional districts either wholly or partly within the north and northwest areas: 1st, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th.

Are Important Cogs.

They are regarded as important cogs in party machinery because they perform a number of influential functions, such as running the state convention, handling party matters between elections, nominating candidates for trusteeships of the state university at Champaign, and choosing Illinois' eight delegates and alternates at large to the national conventions. They also draw up a state platform.

According to word from the firing line the Republicans battle over the retention by Hill Blackett, advertising executive, of his national committee seat, has not involved the state central committee. And this year there is no conflict between the Kelly-Nash forces in the Chicago city hall and Gov. Horner in the statehouse at Springfield.

Thus Democratic organization support of candidates is tantamount to election. In 1938 the Horner-Courtney forces were trying to seize two or three of the 10 seats the Kelly-Nash organization considers its own in the Cook county area. They failed, but at the state convention the breach was smoothed over and the Hornerites were allowed control.

A report, district by district, upon the state central committee campaigns follows:

FIRST DISTRICT

Joseph Clark, 67 West Madison street, personal secretary to Ald. Michael Kenna [1st], is the Democratic organization candidate to fill the shoes of the late John [Bath House] Coughlin. His opponent, Alonzo Mead, 53 East 42d street, has virtually no chance.

Mrs. Cornelia J. Pickett, 4252 South Vincennes avenue, is the probable Republican winner. She was elected in the 1938 primary and again has organization support. James R. Zinn, 3801 Wentworth avenue, and William H. Robinson, 4225 South Prairie avenue, are also running.

SEVENTH DISTRICT

A split in the Green and the Brooks-Lyons camps in this district may indicate a hot fight between Charles L. Sampson, incumbent, and Ingolf P. Pedersen, 4823 North Kimball avenue. Sampson, who lives at 2642 North Spaulding avenue, is supported by the Green organization while Pedersen is aided by the other faction. Pedersen was a committeeman in 1926 and a candidate for congress in 1928. Others who filed here are Claude Foster, 2142 North Western avenue; Harry F. Helder, 2433 North Francisco avenue; Joseph C. Kanak, 1514 North Monitor avenue; Paul F. Peters, 2044 St. Paul avenue; Richard Walby, 5108 West North avenue; Mitchell L. Zuber, 2328 Augusta boulevard, and Thomas F. Cline, 3628 North Tripp avenue.

Former Ald. George D. Kells [28th], 3146 West Franklin boulevard, has the Democratic organization support to succeed the late Joseph F. Higgins. Joseph Janowiak, 2909 Dickens avenue, ran second to Higgins in 1938.

EIGHTH DISTRICT

For the third time in succession Elliodor M. Libonati, 925 South Halsted street, and Ben F. Chmielewski, 1538 North Throop street, will tussle for the Republican seat. In 1938 Chmielewski failed to unhorse Libonati by three votes. In 1936 Libonati won by a 2 to 1 margin. Charles J. Pehrson, 1533 Milwaukee avenue, and Edward F. Kowalski, 1933 North Wood street, also are running.

Stephen R. Carynski, 1329 West Chicago avenue, the incumbent, has the Democratic organization support. Max Richter, 1031 Milwaukee avenue, and John Przetacznik, 1249 Fry street, also are on the ballot.

NINTH DISTRICT

Edmond L. Mulcahy, 25 East Walton street, Democratic incumbent, is the organization favorite. William M. Kane, 3714 Fry street, is his opponent.

Arthur B. Dehmlow, 823 Sheridan road, who has been a committee member for the last eight years, is favored by the Republican organization. His opponents are Charles W. Vail Jr., 1260 North Dearborn street; Harry L. Warner, 3821 Pine Grove avenue; T. McCormick Hartford, 1122 North Clark street, and Arthur H. Renier, 933 Belmont avenue.

TENTH DISTRICT

The Republican organization is reported to have withdrawn its support from Thomas J. Houston, 5733 Sheridan road, the incumbent, and is favoring James Simpson Jr., of Wadsworth. Two other candidates are Louis Andracki, 1428 Jackson boulevard, and Oscar Lindstrand, 3737 North Hermitage avenue.

Arthur A. Sullivan, 652 Buena avenue, is the Democratic organiaztion choice to succeed John P. Dougherty, who died last December. Sullivan is a member of the Cook county central committee from the 45th ward. Other Democratic candidates are Thomas Loftus, 4306 North Clark street, and Samuel Fink, 1640 Greenleaf avenue.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, dean of the Republican cmomittee and former chairman, has retired here to run for secretary of state and the organization favorite as his successor is Frank A. McCarthy, Elgin attorney. His opponent is George R. Perrine, Aurora attorney and law partner of Charles O'Connor, Kane county state's attorney.

Francis J. Loughran of Joliet, Democratic incumbent, is unopposed.

OLD FRONT PORCH ON FLAT BUILDING GOES IN DISCARD

Removal Helps Lighting and Aids Appearance.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

People are thinking seriously about their houses these days—what to do for them, how to improve them. They know they have good money invested in them and they want to safeguard their investments.

Usually in this department we discuss only one family homes. There is, however, a four apartment home at 7314 South Lowe avenue, which is such a practical and excellent example of what a slight piece of plastic surgery can do for the exterior of a building that it is well worth noting. It is a popular piece of surgery, tho usually the operation is performed on houses rather than on apartments. It is the removal of an old front porch and the installation of a new entrance and steps.

The owner, William M. George, has believed in the value of change and improvement for a structure which doesn't grow any younger each year—unless its youth is retained by definite outside assistance.

Improves Lighting.

A few years ago Mr. George made quite a change by converting the two apartment home into a four apartment building. Then last fall he decided that further improvement could be effected by removal of the old, heavy front porch. This would lighten the first floor apartment and simplify the exterior. He also selected a quiet, attractive new entrance and door and built new concrete steps with wrought iron rails. Mr. George's decision was more than justified by results. The operation was slight, but the improvement was worthwhile.

Many other exterior changes are possible for spring and summer accomplishment.

Sometimes attractive landscape planting will improve an exterior. It will tie a house closer to its site and alter its appearance surprisingly.

Often heavy, overhanging eaves can spoil the roof lines, and removal of these eaves works a great deal of difference.

New Sash Practical.

Replacement of awkward and ungainly windows can repay the cost of renewal by the improvement in exterior appearance. If sash is warping or rotting, new sash is practical, as well as ornamental. Then, too, a new bay, added to give more light and space to a room, also can be made the axis of a nice little garden court for summer living.

Expertly handled shutters can likewise contribute a happy exterior note to a house—well proportioned, simple shutters, according to modern tastes. We see shutters at entrances, too, sometimes. And in considering shutters, there are always the many potentialities of color they offer and the added vitality which dark shutters give to white or light walls.

Then, too, spring is the time when the restorer of a home takes to paint. In its dual capacity of decorative surface and protective covering, paint's value cannot be overstressed.

Paint and Style.

Styling with paint is now a recognized term in house parlance. This means, in brief, using color on a house in a manner that is in tune with the times, and paint manufacturers have gone to considerable lengths in the last few years to determine style trends by surveys of painted homes all over the country.

The recent tendency towards white as a body color still holds up, where this is practical, with the roof treated in a manner to render it not too conspicuous. Sash color can be same as trim and body color, or different, according to individual tastes.

Naturally, in the selection of an exterior color scheme, there are other considerations which should not be overlooked if one is vitally concerned with the final appearance of a house. Color can influence the apparent size of a house and small houses look best when carried out in light colors. Two color body treatments can be brought into play on certain types of homes. The houses in the immediate vicinity always must be considered. This is from a purely selfish viewpoint, since your house may have a fine color treatment, but if the house next door "clashes" with it, your own nice color scheme is impaired.

Sorority to Dine.

Members of Sigma Kappa sorority will hold their annual dinner meeting tomorrow evening at the Chicago Towers club, 505 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. L. A. Harper, national president, will be a guest.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 25.

Nicotine, such as Black Leaf 40, used at the rate of a teaspoonful to a gallon of water, is very effective for controling sucking insects on indoor and outdoor plants. Aphis spreads faster than any other insect and appear on all kinds of plants. They are the little green bugs found on the under side of the leaves and on the tender tips of a plant. They prefer the soft, juicy parts and are most destructive until controled. Outdoor plants that are sprayed with nicotine seldom are bothered by dogs.

Tuesday, March 26.

Fish oil soapy water used as wash on palms, rubber plants, lilacs, and other shrubs will kill scale insects. This is a simple method; the material can be obtained from supply houses. The red spider is a sucking insect that may be controled by spraying with water under pressure or by dusting with sulphur. Oil sprays are recommended. The lawn can be given the annual spring application of plant food now. Use a complete commercial food. It is unnecessary to water the material down if applied now. If an old lawn is repaired, work over the parts, top-dress with rich soil, and seed rather heavily with a high grade seed mixture. Never buy cheap grass seed. Roll the lawn as soon as the ground can be walked on.

Wednesday, March 27.

Transplant all seedlings that are above the soil and large enough to handle. Use a screened soil with little manure; never use dry soil, but have it moist enough to crumble easily. Cover drainage holes with pot shreds or other material, press down the soil with a board, and make straight lines. A sharpened pencil is a good dibber. Sprinkle after planting and cover with newspaper during the day or when in sun until the plants are established.

Thursday, March 28.

Petunias are among the finest of all window box plants, especially the small flowered rosy morn type for they are profuse bloomers and tend to cover the face of the box. They require a sunny location. Buy established, pinched plants from the greenhouse for good results. New hybrid grafted nut trees are available and should prove valuable to those living in suburban districts. Black walnut "stabler" has the thinnest shell, and a rich, mellow flavor. The "Thomas" grows rapidly, is easy to grow, and is ornamental. The English walnut variety Wiltz-Mayette requires a lime soil and fruits in four years. These are worthy of a trial. Multi-grafted fruit trees also are offered. Five varieties of apples or peaches are worked on a single tree.

Friday, March 29.

Annual vines that are good in baskets are the black-eyed Susan, maurandia barclaiana, and Kenilworth ivy. Here are a few annulas that may be grown in partial shade: China aster, cornflower, pansy, torenia, sweet alyssum, snapdragon, monkeyflower, and forget-me-not. If the China asters have failed to do well in the past, change locations.

Saturday, March 30.

Do not waste seed by sowing too thick. Seedlings that crowd one another frequently damp-off and die because of the excess of moisture around them and the resultant entrance of fungus disease. Transplant very early to avoid root disturbance. Stir the soil between rows of seedlings. Never permit the soil in the seed box to dry out or the young, tender plants may be injured. Do not keep the seed box in too dark a place, especially after the plants have appeared. If the slightest spot of disease is noticed, sprinkle with recommended materials that are used to combat disease. Repot house plants that need it. Do not use too large pots. Use clean pots whenever plants are shifted. Large plants of geraniums make a fine display in the proper place, such as alongside a walk.

The group will meet at 2 o'clock Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Rowland Wehr, 889 Sheridan road, Winnetka.

Mrs. Matthew P. Gaffney, wife of the superintendent of New Trier Township high school, will read a play. Mrs. Walter N. Stuckslager will introduce her. Mrs. W. A. Nabors, 1242 Lake Shore drive, will lead a discussion of current plays.

Mrs. Maurice C. Boothe is arranging the party.

Kenneth Horan of Evanston will review books at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Kildeer Country Club.

POWERS OF FCC LIMITED AS TO INTERFERENCE

Can Control the Radio 'Hams,' However.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—With complaints continuing to pour in about local interference to radio broadcast reception, the Federal Communications commission has reiterated that it has no authority to require elimination of interference if it is of inductive origin.

This means that it is powerless to do anything drastic about noises caused by diathermy or other electrical apparatus; the ignition systems of automobiles, electrical signs, or other contributing agents.

With regard to interference caused by the operation of amateur stations the commission has jurisdiction. Before reporting complaints of such interference, however, it suggests that the performance of many receiving sets encountering cross-talk [or dot and dash] interference may often be improved materially both for selectivity and sensitivity if properly aligned and tubes checked and replaced if found defective.

Some receivers which are not capable of separating the desired from the undesired station, which is 20 or more kilocycles away, may be improved materially by employing a simple "wave trap" obtainable at most radio or electrical goods stores. An expert service man can often locate the source or cause of interference and eliminate it.

Should Note Call.

If, however, a listener is certain that an amateur operator is causing him distress, he should note carefully the call letters of the interfering "ham," and obtain his name and address before making a complaint. If the complainant is uncertain as to whether he has the call letters and name identified correctly he can check them in the radio amateur call book, obtainable at radio stores at a nominal charge.

In the Chicago area alone there are more than 2,000 amateurs. Therefore, it is important that the local communications' commission inspector have accurate identification of the amateur causing the nuisance. It is not sufficient for a complainant to say that the interference is coming from some one in his neighborhood or in his block.

When the suspected offender has been identified, the information in Chicago should be directed to the FCC inspector's office, 225 South La Salle street. The telephone is Wabash 4700. The inspector will then proceed to correct the difficulty thru a personal contact with the offending operator.

Many municipalities and several states have enacted ordinances seeking to control the radio interference problem. These are not altogether successful, it is said.

Power Companies Aid.

A good many power companies today maintain investigating departments which coöperate with individuals in an effort to remedy interference. Complaints to power companies should be ready to furnish detailed information as to the type of interference experienced.

In some instances appeals for aid might properly be directed to the American Standards association, New York City. This organization affords representation to all interested in the reduction of electrically caused noises. The Institute of Radio Engineers, the Institute of Radio Service Men, the Radio Manufacturers association, the National Association of Broadcasters, and the Radio Club of America, among other groups, are coöperating with the Standards association toward the end of eliminating interference.

Interference caused by diathermy and other medical equipment is occupying the attention of FCC engineers, it has announced, because of its deleterious effect on television and other transmissions in the higher frequencies. The commission recently received a resolution from a police radio department association requesting it to declare diathermy a nuisance to police radio.

Pending further legislation clarifying the FCC's jurisdiction in this matter, the commission announced that it is making every effort to alleviate the diathermy interference thru coöperative efforts with manufacturers, the medical profession, and the radio industry.

GERTRUDE NIESEN TO BE GUEST ON RYHTHM HOUR

Whistler Also to Have Part in Program.

(Picture in rotogravure section.)

Petite and vivacious Gertrude Niesen, famed delineator of modern song who is currently featured at the Chez Paree, will be the guest star on the show, "Romance in Rhythm," directed by Harold Stokes, at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and Mutual. With Miss Niesen will be heard Fred Lowery, the blind whistler of Horace Heidt's band; Wesley Summerfield, tenor; Lawrence Salerno, baritone, and the W-G-N dance orchestra.

Miss Niesen will do "It's a Blue World" and "Yodelin' Jive." From her early teens, Gertrude has received an intensive voice training. Her versatility at singing everything from the classic to the "torch" numbers reveals the thoro schooling she received in music.

Within a week of her musical debut—at the age of 16—she was hailed as an outstanding singer, and her rise to the top was rapid. Gertrude claims Texas as her home, because her parents and grandparents come from that state, but actually the Atlantic ocean is her birthplace, since she was born on an ocean liner just three hours before the vessel docked in New York harbor.

Fred Lowery, the blind youth who overcame his handicap by making a career of whistling, will do "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" and the William Tell overture. He is known to thousands of radio listeners thru his work with the Horace Heidt programs and also thru appearances with the shows "We, the People," "Hobby Lobby," and Rudy Vallee's program.

Lawrence Salerno will sing "Make Love with a Guitar" and "Marcheta." In the Memory Lane feature, Summerfield will sing "Because" and the orchestra and chorus will do "Isn't It Romantic" and "A Brown Bird Singing." Other numbers will include "Hindustan," "I Got Rhythm," "Do I Love You," "Little Girl," and "No, Mama, No."

"And the Angels Sing," the half hour popular music show directed by Harold Stokes and featuring Edna O'Dell, Kathryn Witwer, and the women's choir, will be heard at 8 p. m. today on W-G-N, with a program dedicated to Easter.

Miss O'Dell will sing "Spring Is Here," from "I Married an Angel," and will join the chorus in "I'm Comin' Virginia." Miss Witwer, operatic soprano, will sing the perennial favorite, "Alice Blue Gown," and "My Prayer."

The Three Graces will do "Ducklings on Parade." Numbers to be played by the orchestra will include "Got a Brand New Hat," "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," from the Ziegfeld Follies of 1919, and "Easter Parade," with choral accompaniment. "The Rosary" will be presented in a violin solo, accompanied by the women's choir.

A featured spot on the show will also be given to talks by Sydney, noted makeup expert, who has come to Chicago from Hollywood. He has created the makeup for Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Myrna Loy, and other movie stars. Sydney plans to reveal tricks of the trade.

The special Easter broadcast will be heard over W-G-N and MBS from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. John B. Crane, professor of economics, and Irving J. Lee, sociologist and professor of public speaking, will use listeners' comments as a springboard for their own discussion of possible avenues to peace in a world that is now largely at war.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

EASTER THRONGS TO FILL CHURCHES

9 WOMEN SEEK PRIMARY VOTES FOR ASSEMBLY

Demand Economy in Government.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Nine women from the Chicago area are seeking nominations for the general assembly in the April primary. Their platforms contain not the faintest hint of what once was known as "woman's rights."

Without exception the nine are campaigning for economy in government. Most of them favor parole reform. All favor removal of the sales tax on food and the extension of the merit system in civil service.

Of the nine candidates in and about Chicago, three, all from outlying suburbs, now sit in the legislature. They comprise three-fourths of the legislature's femininity, the fourth being Mrs. Lizzie Barnes of Carmi. All three are Republicans, and the nomination of each seems assured. Nonetheless, all are campaigning.

From "Shoestring" District.

One is Mrs. Bernice Van der Vries of Winnetka, who has represented the winding 7th, or "shoestring," district, which embraces 94 country towns on Chicago's outskirts, since 1934. The second is Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downers Grove, who went to Springfield from the 41st district [Will and Du Page counties] in 1922 as the "woman's hope" and has been, with the exception of one term, a legislative fixture ever since.

The third is Mrs. Maude N. Peffers o Aurora, now serving her first term in the footsteps of her husband, John, who represented the district, the 14th [Kane and Kendall counties], for six terms until his death in 1936.

Mrs. Van der Vries is considered an able legislator and debater of note. She has done effective work on many important committees, and now is chairman of the Illinois commission for intergovernmental coöperation, which seeks to overcome interstate trade barriers. Of the legislature's 34 commissions, she is the only woman chairman.

Record for Women.

According to a recent survey, Mrs. O'Neill has had more legislative experience than any other woman in the country. She doesn't know whether this is true, but says, confidently, "I'll have had 18 years when I get thru the next session."

Little, aggressive, and a bit acid if given cause, she is stressing public education, the merit system, and removal of state institutions from politics. She voted for parole reform, as did Mrs. Van der Vries.

Mrs. Peffers turned out to be a serious legislator and developed an avidity for committee work. "I liked studying the bills in committee and hearing the arguments," she says, "but then I found it all interesting."

Three in Race.

In Chicago proper, the 5th, or Hyde Park, district with its polyglot of intellectuals, immigrants, and Negroes has become a feminine battle ground. Three women [as well as 18 men] are tussling for its three seats in the legislature.

They are Matilda Fenberg [R.], 5401 Cornell avenue, attorney, who won the Republican nomination in 1938; Helene Leach [D.], 5481 Ellis avenue, also an attorney and an active Young Democrat, and Margaret Kathryn Woods [R.], 5408 University avenue, a skin analyst and self-styled amateur playwright.

Miss Fenberg has a background of 18 years' legal practice and two years [1929-'31] as assistant corporation counsel. She was the first woman to matriculate at Yale law school. Miss Leach, so young she will not reveal her age, has been practicing law five years and has been active in Democratic circles since 1936, when she headed the state First Voters' league. She is supporting the Stelle-Barrett-Adamowski ticket. Miss Woods, a newcomer to politics, says she has been worried about general conditions in the 5th district since 1928.

Negro Social Worker.

Irene McCoy Gaines [R.], 3262 Vernon avenue, who is running in the 1st district, is a well known Negro social worker. A graduate of Fisk university, with graduate work at the University of Chicago and Loyola university, she served on Hoover's housing commission and his Republican national planning board. She worked six years with the social service bureau of the Cook county bureau of public welfare and later was a caseworker with the IERC and the CRA.

Mrs. Cora A. Graham [R.] of 4033 Ellis avenue is running in the 3d district, that portion of the near south side into which 48 per cent of Chicago's relief goes. Mrs. Graham, a fire insurance broker, has been active in politics and civic affairs for 25 years.

Right now she wants to get gasoline tax funds to open Pershing road as far as Brookfield and to open 43d street to Western avenue. She thinks she knows the district's needs and could do it great good in Springfield.

Mrs. Rose Lamberty [R.] of 2104 North Keystone avenue seeks the nomination in the 25th district on the northwest side. She has been active in 36th ward politics for 20 years. She and her husband, Theodore, have four children, and this is her first campaign. She is interested in abolition of the sales tax, the open primary, prison, and parole reform. "I sound like Salvation Nell," she laughs, "but I mean it."

Pick Easter Blooms for Homes

Smooth petaled lilies atop tall, sturdy stems—serene symbols of Easter—will decorate many altars this morning. Their white beauty against the somber woodwork will add a living quality to the church scene. Lily plants also will stand in the windows of homes and others will serve as centerpieces on Easter dinner tables. From a mass of plants Mrs. Roger S. Lloyd of Elmwood Park (left) and Mrs. Alfred P. Stresen-Reuter of Bensenville are using their garden knowledge to select the choicest blooms for their homes. Both women are assisting with plans for the Chicago Flower show, to be held on Navy pier from Saturday thru Sunday, April 7. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Kites to Soar Over Parks in City Contest

Out of the thousands of entrants eight Chicagoland kite flying champions are to be chosen by expert park district judges. The eight champions will be awarded silver trophies furnished by this newspaper. Other winners are to be given ribbon awards by the park district.

The rules are simple. There is no age limit; anybody who can fly a kite is eligible. The one main restriction is that all kites in the contest must be homemade. No factory made kites will be admitted. You may construct your own kite with expert assistance in the craft rooms of your local park fieldhouse. Materials will be supplied free.

Starts in Neighborhoods.

The contest, like last year's, will be run in the form of a round robin tournament. Preliminary elimination contests will be held at neighborhood parks on April 5, 6, and 8. You have until April 5 to enter the contest.

The ladies auxiliary of St. Andrew's will serve breakfast after the service.

Recalls Saga of Ocean Fury in South Seas

BY CLAYTON KIRKPATRICK.

Prominent in the annals of the navy, but little known outside the seafaring fraternity, is the story of the tempest of Upola which cost more than 150 German and American seamen's lives during undeclared imperialistic warfare in the South Pacific in 1889. It was told in vivid detail last week by August V. Christophersen, one of the few survivors.

Last Monday he was 76 years old, the oldest member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in the city. But when he begins to tell the tale of the tempest the years slip from his slender shoulders. He paces about his living room in his home at 4047 North Central Park avenue, stretching every inch of his 5 feet 3 in recapturing his days as a chief petty officer in the navy.

Trouble in Samoa.

He speaks of names and dates and places with the precision and authority of an admiral on a quarterdeck, and he squints his blue eyes as tho he were facing a gale. Just as the wind whipped waves that nearly carried him away from his ship 51 years ago so now do the memories of it almost carry him back to his birthday week the year he was 25.

This is his story:

"I was a bo'sun's mate on the U. S. S. Vandalia, a sloop of war, in the spring of 1889 when trouble began to brew in the Samoan Islands. They were a joint protectorate of the United States, Germany, and Great Brittain then, but there was a lot of jockeying between the three powers to gain control of the native government.

"Germany particularly was anxious to dominate the islands since she carried on a rich trade in copra. Malito, the native king, however, was hostile to the Germans and did all he could to hinder the trade. They got rid of him by kidnaping him and leaving him in exile on the distant Caroline Islands now owned by Japan.

Mr. Huhnke says he admires the vice president because of his independent attitude in politics.

ALASKA RAILWAY EXECUTIVE WILL SPEAK IN SUBURB

A lecture on "Alaska, by Air, Water, and Rail," illustrated with colored movies, will be given by Harold W. Snell, assistant general manager of the Alaska railroad, before the Men's club of the First Presbyterian church of Arlington Heights at a 6:30 o'clock dinner meeting Friday night.

The Alaska railroad is the only line serving Alaska and is owned by the United States government. It extends from Seward northward to Fairbanks, a distance of almost 500 miles. Known as the Mount McKinley National park route, it is operated under the department of the interior.

Mr. Snell spends the summer months in the north and the winter in the states. He will show his own movies. Reservations for the dinner should be made with C. B. Jones, 651-W, or I. J. Tesch, 574-R, both of Arlington Heights.

STREET CAR SERVICE.

You can always depend on the good old surface lines to come thru with some highclass passing up of would be passengers on a rainy day. Today [March 13] on this very slick and icy morning, it was enough trouble trying to stand up on the icy walks in the rain for 15 minutes without having practically an empty street car—No. 6047—pass us at Byron and Kedzie avenue, at approximately 8:15 a. m. Boy! was I burned up. To top it off, while riding the C. & N. W. [which I got at Belmont and Kedzie] I ripped a perfectly good stocking on an old rough straw seat. So, with being wet clear thru and waiting about 20 minutes in the rain for a street car, and having a run in a new stocking, I can't say that I'm in a particularly good mood to start out this morning, and I'm disgusted more than ever with the "take the surface lines to your door" service.

PRAISES CLEANUP.

One of the finest projects sponsored by the Chicago Public schools is the annual spring cleanup campaign. The children are taught that a clean home, school, and community is essential for their health and then they are given a chance to carry out their lessons by cleaning up these living places. The students compete against each other, trying to maintain the cleanest rooms. They take their ideas home and urge mother to clean out the basement and the attic. The whole community becomes conscious of its dirty spots and proud of its clean ones. I think the parents and neighbors should encourage their children in this campaign and do everything possible to clean out the winter's accumulation of filth and then keep the community clean thruout the year.

A MOTHER.

FAVORS GARBAGE INCINERATION.

Well, Oscar Hewitt and the city council should be convinced by this time that the medieval system of garbage disposal, i. e., dumping it in open pits, is at last outmoded, even in Chicago. Civil strikes, injunctions, demonstrations, petitions of protest, and every other form of displaying objections have accompanied their efforts to create a nuisance first in this and then in that location on the northwest side. The latest storm of disapproval has been roused in Park Ridge where citizens object to a proposed dump near Higgins and East River roads. They ought to know by this time that no matter where they turn people will protest. It should be clear even to them that incineration is the only acceptable solution and the people won't be satisfied until they try it.

G. O. P. HAS OPEN VOTE FIELD IN M'HENRY COUNTY

Democrats Fail to File for Any Office.

It's almost "no contest" in the April 9 primary in McHenry county, insofar as the race for county office nominations is concerned.

Democrats, for the first time in years, aren't even troubling to file a ticket and the only competition on the Republican side is for the coroner nomination.

William M. Carroll of Woodstock is seeking renomination to a second term as state's attorney, and Will T. Conn of Harvard, circuit clerk since 1928, aspires to the G. O. P. nomination for a fourth term in this office.

Seeks Fourth Term.

Edward H. Cook of Huntley, veteran coroner, has his hat in the ring for a fourth term, and is being given spirited competition by Harry L. Ehorn, Richmond undertaker. The came candidates fought it out four years ago for the Republican nomination, Cook winning by 62 votes, 3,509 to 3,447. Observers predict another close contest next month.

Coroner Cook, a druggist, furniture dealer and undertaker, is the third member of his immediate family to have held the coroner's office. His late brother, Dr. William W. Cook, was coroner from 1878 until his death, and was followed in the office by another brother, the late Dr. Charles E. Cook.

Held Unusual Record.

Thus three brothers have held the office from time to time over a span of 62 years—considered an unusual family record for public service.

C. Frank Daly of Woodstock, chairman of the McHenry County Republican Central committee, predicts a further increase in the Republican primary vote this year, and points to the fact of the Democrats ignoring the county primary as an indicator of this fact. Daly believes the county will poll around 22,000 votes on primary day, with the G. O. P. out in front about 17 to 5.

SUBURBAN BOY SCOUTS TO HAVE ANNUAL ROUNDUP

More than 600 Boy Scouts will attend the annual roundup of the Northwest Suburban council tomorrow at Barrington. Entertainment provided by members of the Barrington Lions club, the Business Men's association, and others will include a free motion picture, "Geronimo," games in the high school gymnasium, and visits to a tea company.

Scouts will arrive shortly before 9:30 a. m. on a special train to leave Park Ridge at 8:49 and make stops at Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, and Palatine. They will return on a train leaving Barrington at 6 p. m.

TURN TO NIGHT RALLIES IN RACE FOR LEGISLATURE

Most Candidates Favor Food Tax Repeal.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

The merry-go-round of candidates aiming at the brass ring of nomination to the state legislature was speeded up last week by nightly political meetings. A dizzy whirl will be maintained from now until the April 9 primary, with contestants dashing to three or four ward and precinct rallies every evening.

Beneficiaries of most meetings will be candidates backed by regular party organizations with funds for halls and entertainment. Independents are striving to keep up the pace by appearing before clubs and civic organizations. Some have scheduled "booster night" dances with the aid of friends.

Both attached and unattached candidates are getting whatever help may be obtained from intensive hand shaking and card distribution, with the independents perhaps holding the edge in this line of endeavor.

Against Food Tax.

Early replies to a questionnaire sent to candidates by THE TRIBUNE show that an overwhelming majority of those running favor removal of the 3 per cent sales tax from food, altho some question whether the move is possible under the Illinois constitution.

Surprisingly, many candidates in this bracket are Democratic incumbents who refused to support the Lund bill for this purpose in the 1939 session of the legislature.

Nominations will be equivalent to election in half of the eight northwest section districts—the 7th, 8th, 21st, and 27th. Final contests will go over until November in the 14th, 23d, 25th, and 41st districts.

TWENTY-FIFTH DISTRICT

Blanketing almost the entire northwest side, this most populous of all legislative districts in Illinois presents a free-for-all scramble for two Republican nominations to the house. So vast is the district that candidates necessarily rely upon friends in the more distant wards to extend their campaigns into such sections.

There are eighteen G. O. P. contestants, including one woman, in the race. Representative Elroy C. Sandquist, who made a good record in the house and holds the coveted top spot on the ballot for this office, is believed to be certain of one nomination. He is getting support from both the Dwight H. Green and Richard J. Lyons camps in the governorship contest.

From there on the candidates have divided the Lyons and Green backing into various ward organizations in a dozen wards making up the district. The right of a voter to give a single candidate three votes or to distribute three votes, also would give a headache to odds makers.

Has Second Place.

Otto M. Webb, 3552 Dickens avenue, has second place on the list—nothing to be scoffed at in a field of 18. An estate manager and investment advisor, he has been athletic director of Northwest park district and a state grain inspection supervisor. He is a Mason and assistant finance director of the northwest district of Boy Scouts.

John L. Coffield, 5939 North Rockwell street, is editor of a political newspaper and vice president of the Young Republicans in the 50th ward. He is indorsed by the regular G. O. P ward group. Besides urging sales tax reduction, as do all of these Republicans, Coffield's cards advocate the building of a Chicago lake front airport.

"We must have a lake front airport," Coffield said. "For years the New Dealers have dallied and turned the project down. City officials are asleep. The legislature should act, because the improvement would help all of Illinois."

Has Wide Experience.

Sidney S. Schiller, 4868 North Talman avenue, is a young lawyer with unusually wide experience in state matters. He has practiced before the parole board, and therefore advocates parole reform, and before the civil service commission, court of claims, sales tax division, and board of registration. Self supporting since he was 12 years old, Schiller was graduated with honors by Crane college and the De Paul University Law school. The 47th ward regular G. O. P. club is aiding him.

Ralph Nelsen, 2526 Moffat street, is only 29 years old but has twice been elected to the senatorial committee for his district by large majorities. He is indorsed by the 32d ward regular organization, of which he is vice president. In 1938 he withdrew as candidate for state representative and state senator to aid contestants from the 35th and 38th wards.

James A. Davis, 4634 Warwick avenue, is secretary of the 39th ward regular Republican organization. He was born in Chicago 47 years ago and his parents also were natives of the city. He is in the wholesale fish business.

Is 21 Years Old.

Walter E. Schirmer, 3718 North Keeler avenue, is 21 years old and believes he is the youngest candidate among the thousand or more who are seeking public office in Illinois. He will vote for the first time on April 9. Schirmer is a statistician for a marketing research company and a partner in his father's contracting company. His followers are confident of carrying his home ward, the 39th.

Henry C. Jepson, 2458 West North avenue, a real estate manager, is an independent 32d ward candidate who declares that the current drive to remove the sales tax from food should be extended to include medicine and clothing.

Mrs. Rose Lamberty, 2104 North Keystone avenue, who remembers when there were cow paths in the 36th ward, has been interested in politics for 20 years. She is the mother of two sons and two daughters, the eldest 22 years old and the youngest 13. Also among her many interests are church and social work—and the sales tax.

Is in Last Place.

Last place on the ballot for this office is held by John M. Price, 2107 North Western avenue, who claims the backing of the Brooks-Lyons forces in the 33d ward. A member of the Polish-American Citizens' league, he has been endorsed by Matthew Taylor, leader of the elevator operators' union.

Herbert T. Yuenger, 4604 Deming place, another lawyer, is a Mason and a Shriner who thus far has no G. O. P. organization support. He said he favors removal of the sales tax from food but does not believe this can be done without changing the state constitution.

Seven other G. O. P. candidates had not responded to requests that they provide information about themselves.

Have Margin in Race.

Among the Democrats, Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe and Stanley R. Kosinski, 5774 Lawrence avenue, were reported to have a margin in their favor. Both are endorsed by the regular Democratic organization, and have long been in the public service. They hold first and last places on the list.

O'Keefe has been approved by the joint labor legislative board of the Illinois Federation of Labor. He is a salesman. Kosinski is chief clerk in the Chicago office of the secretary of state.

Herbert I. Novitsky, 4943 North Lawndale avenue, is a 27 year old real estate salesman. A graduate of the Chicago Law school, he seeks the votes of independent Democrats. He said he has the endorsement of the Cosmetic Workers' union, local No. 21107.

Edwin Kania, 34 years old, of 5348 School street, is supporting the Stelle-Adamowski-Barrett opponents of the "harmony" organization. He is a wood carver, but formerly was assistant superintendent of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium.

HARDY SURVIVOR RECOUNTS SAGA OF OCEAN'S FURY

51 Years Only Brighten Veteran's Memory.

In his place they had set up a puppet, Tamasea, who was friendly.

Match Ship for Ship.

"These developments were watched with suspicion by our navy department, and when it was learned three German battleships had anchored in the harbor at Upola, Secretary Benjamin F. Tracy ordered Admiral Lewis A. Kimberly to take three ships, proceed to the harbor, and remain there with steam up until the Germans left. [Admiral Kimberly, by the way, was the son of Dr. Edmund Kimberly, one of the incorporators of Chicago.]

"The Vandalia and the Nipsic were chosen to accompany Admiral Kimberly's flagship, the Trenton, on the expedition. We dropped anchor on March 12 within 500 feet of the German ships Olga, Adler, and Eber. A short time later the British battleship, Calyope, anchored in the channel near the entrance to the coral basin.

"For three days we lay there with steam up. Altho it was the time of equinoctial storms the sea was calm. The barometer was falling, tho, and by the end of the third day it was down to 27.15. Weather wise seamen would have run to sea, but the Germans made no move, so we had to stay. We dropped four anchors on 120 fathoms of chain, tied everything down tight, and waited for the blow. The English had started to weigh anchor for the run to the open sea.

Swept by 40 Foot Waves.

"It hit us late in the afternoon—a tremendous gust that whipped up waves 40 feet high which came crashing across the decks. I was wearing only a pair of cotton trousers and a light shirt, but without looking for more protection I climbed into the rigging and lashed myself to the ropes. Spray soaked me so continuously that I never knew whether it rained or not.

"We couldn't see in the darkness, but once I heard a tremendous grinding crash. That was when the rail gave way and the guns rolled into the engine room. That was the beginning of the end for the old Vandalia. She sank in the shallow anchorage, leaving her superstructure sticking out. In the morning those of us who were left shot a cable across to the Trenton and went hand over hand to the flagship.

"The storm was still raging, however, and we found it little better there. Chunks of coral broken off the atolls were carried up by the waves to scrape and lacerate us with their sharp edges. We had no food, no shelter. Most of us were little better than semiconscious. Those who could not tie themselves to the rigging were washed overboard.

Music Thru the Gale.

"None of the German boats were visible, but we could see the Calyope still trying to run the channel. The English sailors had been fighting the waves for more than 12 hours and were nearly ready to quit. At this time our admiral did an unusual thing; he called out the band to play the 'Star Spangled Banner' and 'God Save the Queen.' It was a sorry performance but it gave us heart and them too. They finally fought free from the currents and limped on to Aukland where the ship was found to be too badly beaten to be repaired.

"After 24 hours the storm died down and we had a chance to look around and see what had happened. We found the Adler beached on a reef with 24 men missing. The Eber had been sucked out of sight beneath the concave undersurface of the coral reef. All of her crew of 70 or 80 were drowned. The commander of the Olga had run her up on the shore.

"Among our ships, the Vandalia was sunk with a loss of 39 men and four officers including the captain; the Trenton was resting on the bottom in shallow water, and the Nipsic was beached on the sand. Six men in the Nipsic's crew had been lost.

Three Months of Coconuts.

"We were there for three months subsisting mostly on coconuts until word of the disaster reached the outside world. A rescue party was sent out by the commander of the Calyope and we eventually landed in New Zealand where we chartered a trading ship to take us home. The story was nearly six months old before the American newspapers printed it.

"In nine cases out of ten a naval commander who loses a ship is court martialed, but in this instance there was not even a court of inquiry since the commanders had done their best under their orders. In fact, all the men received an extra year's pay; it amounted to about $200 for me. And last year—50 years after the storm—I received a medal from the navy department for my service in that expedition."

STATE CENTRAL CAMPAIGN IS MOSTLY ROUTINE

Democratic Peace Robs Race of Spice.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

A few factional fights were brewing last week among candidates for the Republican state central committee in the north and northwest sections of the Chicago area, but in general the campaigns for elections to these party jobs were tame affairs. Reports of harmony within the Democratic machine robbed this phase of the primary of its 1938 interest.

State central committeemen for both parties are picked by congressional district and are elected, not nominated, every two years in the April primary. One committeeman for each party will be chosen from the following congressional districts either wholly or partly within the north and northwest areas: 1st, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th.

According to word from the firing line the Republicans battle over the retention by Hill Blackett, advertising executive, of his national committee seat, has not involved the state central committee. And this year there is no conflict between the Kelly-Nash forces in the Chicago city hall and Gov. Horner in the statehouse at Springfield.

Thus Democratic organization support of candidates is tantamount to election. In 1938 the Horner-Courtney forces were trying to seize two or three of the 10 seats the Kelly-Nash organization considers its own in the Cook county area. They failed, but at the state convention the breach was smoothed over and the Hornerites were allowed control.

FIRST DISTRICT

Joseph Clark, 67 West Madison street, personal secretary to Ald. Michael Kenna [1st], is the Democratic organization candidate to fill the shoes of the late John [Bath House] Coughlin. His opponent, Alonzo Mead, 53 East 42d street, has virtually no chance.

Mrs. Cornelia J. Pickett, 4252 South Vincennes avenue, is the probable Republican winner. She was elected in the 1938 primary and again has organization support. James R. Zinn, 3801 Wentworth avenue, and William H. Robinson, 4225 South Prairie avenue, are also running.

SEVENTH DISTRICT

A split in the Green and the Brooks-Lyons camps in this district may indicate a hot fight between Charles L. Sampson, incumbent, and Ingolf P. Pedersen, 4823 North Kimball avenue. Sampson, who lives at 2642 North Spaulding avenue, is supported by the Green organization while Pedersen is aided by the other faction. Pedersen was a committeeman in 1926 and a candidate for congress in 1928. Others who filed here are Claude Foster, 2142 North Western avenue; Harry F. Helder, 2433 North Francisco avenue; Joseph C. Kanak, 1514 North Monitor avenue; Paul F. Peters, 2044 St. Paul avenue; Richard Walby, 5108 West North avenue; Mitchell L. Zuber, 2328 Augusta boulevard, and Thomas F. Cline, 3628 North Tripp avenue.

Former Ald. George D. Kells [28th], 3146 West Franklin boulevard, has the Democratic organization support to succeed the late Joseph F. Higgins. Joseph Janowiak, 2909 Dickens avenue, ran second to Higgins in 1938.

EIGHTH DISTRICT

For the third time in succession Elliodor M. Libonati, 925 South Halsted street, and Ben F. Chmielewski, 1538 North Throop street, will tussle for the Republican seat. In 1938 Chmielewski failed to unhorse Libonati by three votes. In 1936 Libonati won by a 2 to 1 margin. Charles J. Pehrson, 1533 Milwaukee avenue, and Edward F. Kowalski, 1933 North Wood street, also are running.

Stephen R. Carynski, 1329 West Chicago avenue, the incumbent, has the Democratic organization support. Max Richter, 1031 Milwaukee avenue, and John Przetacznik, 1249 Fry street, also are on the ballot.

NINTH DISTRICT

Edmond L. Mulcahy, 25 East Walton street, Democratic incumbent, is the organization favorite. William M. Kane, 3714 Fry street, is his opponent.

Arthur B. Dehmlow, 823 Sheridan road, who has been a committee member for the last eight years, is favored by the Republican organization. His opponents are Charles W. Vail Jr., 1260 North Dearborn street; Harry L. Warner, 3821 Pine Grove avenue; T. McCormick Hartford, 1122 North Clark street, and Arthur H. Renier, 933 Belmont avenue.

TENTH DISTRICT

The Republican organization is reported to have withdrawn its support from Thomas J. Houston, 5733 Sheridan road, the incumbent, and is favoring James Simpson Jr., of Wadsworth. Two other candidates are Louis Andracki, 1428 Jackson boulevard, and Oscar Lindstrand, 3737 North Hermitage avenue.

Arthur A. Sullivan, 652 Buena avenue, is the Democratic organiaztion choice to succeed John P. Dougherty, who died last December. Sullivan is a member of the Cook county central committee from the 48th ward. Other Democratic candidates are Thomas Loftus, 4306 North Clark street, and Samuel Fink, 1640 Greenleaf avenue.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, dean of the Republican cmomittee and former chairman, has retired here to run for secretary of state and the organization favorite as his successor is Frank A. McCarthy, Elgin attorney. His opponent is George R. Perrine.

Francis J. Loughran of Joliet, Democratic incumbent, is unopposed.

Recently Married

Miss Thelma Braun recently became the bride of Maury Gutterman, son of Benjamin Gutterman, 4830 North St. Louis avenue. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Braun, 4949 North Monticello avenue. The wedding was held in the Webster hotel and the couple took a honeymoon trip thru the south.

HOPES OF G. O. P. FOR SEATS IN CONGRESS RISE

North Areas Likely to Go Republican.

Indications that voters in three congressional districts on Chicago's north and northwest sides who now are represented by Democrats will return to the Republican fold in November have intensified the furious battles that G. O. P. candidates for nomination are waging among themselves. The changes are expected in the 1st, 7th, and 9th districts.

Both the 1st and 9th have been Democratic since 1934, altho both have a long history as Republican strongholds. The important 7th district, with more than a quarter of Chicago's total population within its limits, has been Democratic since 1930. A swing to the G. O. P. in these three would leave the score: Republican 5 and Democratic 1 for the six districts either wholly or partly in this section of the Chicago area.

The Republican fight in the first centers around William E. King, 2d ward committeeman, who apparently has organization support and seems the standout. He is ohtly pursued, however, by Oscar De Priest, former congressman and 3d ward committeeman, and Patrick B. Prescott, son-in-law of the late Bishop A. J. Carey of the African Methodist Episcopal church. All are Negroes.

Considerable money is being spent here and an active campaign is being waged by Carl A. Hansberry, prominent colored businessman. In this, his first attempt to win public office, Hansberry is running as an independent. Both his and Prescott's chances appear to be remote unless King and De Priest split the vote.

Seven Are in Race.

The jumbled Republican race in the 7th district, where seven candidates are in the field, seems to be dwindling to a dog fight between James C. Moreland, former alderman and the nominee here in 1930, '36, and '38, and former Congressman M. A. Michaelson, who served five terms from 1920 to 1930 from this area.

In the general election of 1938 Moreland received 162,000 votes and the plurality of the Democratic winner, Leonard W. Schuetz, who appears to be the certain nominee of his party again, was 30,681. Moreland's supporters say that if nominated he will turn the tables on Schuetz by a large margin. Alex Loeffler, Republican candidate favored by Joe Porcaro, committeeman in the 28th ward, appears today to be out of the running.

Charles S. Dewey, who was the Republican nominee from the 9th district in 1938, is considered now a certainty to repeat. His organization support is growing and neither of his two opponents, Don Donnelly and T. McCormick Hartford, is granted a logical chance to topple him.

In the November election in 1938 Dewey was only 4,552 behind James McAndrews, the Democratic incumbent. This year, according to the ward and precinct workers here, Dewey should win handily. The shift in sentiment in this district, which for more than 30 years was Republican until McAndrews won in 1932, is pronounced, they say.

Paddock Seems in Lead.

Four of the six Republican candidates in the 10th district are already making victory claims, but those of George A. Paddock of Evanston seem the strongest. Paddock announced last week that he has received the unqualified endorsement of all elected committeemen in Chicago. This is evidence of his organization strength and he should be strong in both Evanston and along the north shore in Lake county.

His close rivals are Drennan J. Slater, who has served four terms as state representative from the 6th district, James M. Crume, insurance actuary, who is making an active personal campaign, and Dr. Robert E. Schaefer, who also is an independent. Slater has the blessing of Hill Blackett, Illinois Republican national committeeman, and both Crume and Schaefer say they are obtaining considerable encouragement.

Tantamount to Election.

This district has never elected a Democrat since the 1901 reapportionment so the Republican nomination is considered tantamount to election here. John Haderlein is the lone Democrat who filed for the nomination.

A massmeeting of Republicans in the 35th, 38th, and 41st wards, all in this section of Chicago, will be held tomorrow evening at the Portage park fieldhouse at Berteau and Long avenues. All the Republican candidates in the 7th district will speak and more than 5,000 persons are expected to attend.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 25.

Nicotine, such as Black Leaf 40, used at the rate of a teaspoonful to a gallon of water, is very effective for controling sucking insects on indoor and outdoor plants. Aphis spreads faster than any other insect and appear on all kinds of plants. They are the little green bugs found on the under side of the leaves and on the tender tips of a plant. They prefer the soft, juicy parts and are most destructive until controled. Outdoor plants that are sprayed with nicotine seldom are bothered by dogs.

Tuesday, March 26.

Fish oil soapy water used as wash on palms, rubber plants, lilacs, and other shrubs will kill scale insects. This is a simple method; the material can be obtained from supply houses. The red spider is a sucking insect that may be controled by spraying with water under pressure or by dusting with sulphur. Oil sprays are recommended. The lawn can be given the annual spring application of plant food now. Use a complete commercial food. It is unnecessary to water the material down if applied now.

Wednesday, March 27.

Transplant all seedlings that are above the soil and large enough to handle. Use a screened soil with little manure; never use dry soil, but have it moist enough to crumble easily. Cover drainage holes with pot shreds or other material, press down the soil with a board, and make straight lines. A sharpened pencil is a good dibber. Sprinkle after planting and cover with newspaper during the day or when in sun until the plants are established.

Thursday, March 28.

Petunias are among the finest of all window box plants, especially the small flowered rosy morn type for they are profuse bloomers and tend to cover the face of the box. They require a sunny location. Buy established, pinched plants from the greenhouse for good results. New hybrid grafted nut trees are available and should prove valuable to those living in suburban districts. Black walnut "stabler" has the thinnest shell, and a rich, mellow flavor. The "Thomas" grows rapidly, is easy to grow, and is ornamental. The English walnut variety Wiltz-Mayette requires a lime soil and fruits in four years. These are worthy of a trial. Multi-grafted fruit trees also are offered. Five varieties of apples or peaches are worked on a single tree.

Friday, March 29.

Annual vines that are good in baskets are the black-eyed Susan, maurandia barclaiana, and Kenilworth ivy. Here are a few annulas that may be grown in partial shade: China aster, cornflower, pansy, torenia, sweet alyssum, snapdragon, monkeyflower, and forget-me-not. If the China asters have failed to do well in the past, change locations.

Saturday, March 30.

Do not waste seed by sowing too thick. Seedlings that crowd one another frequently damp-off and die because of the excess of moisture around them and the resultant entrance of fungus disease. Transplant very early to avoid root disturbance. Stir the soil between rows of seedlings. Never permit the soil in the seed box to dry out or the young, tender plants may be injured.

OLD FRONT PORCH ON FLAT BUILDING GOES IN DISCARD

Removal Helps Lighting and Aids Appearance.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

People are thinking seriously about their houses these days—what to do for them, how to improve them. They know they have good money invested in them and they want to safeguard their investments.

Usually in this department we discuss only one family homes. There is, however, a four apartment home at 7314 South Lowe avenue, which is such a practical and excellent example of what a slight piece of plastic surgery can do for the exterior of a building that it is well worth noting. It is a popular piece of surgery, tho usually the operation is performed on houses rather than on apartments. It is the removal of an old front porch and the installation of a new entrance and steps.

The owner, William M. George, has believed in the value of change and improvement for a structure which doesn't grow any younger each year—unless its youth is retained by definite outside assistance.

Improves Lighting.

A few years ago Mr. George made quite a change by converting the two apartment home into a four apartment building. Then last fall he decided that further improvement could be effected by removal of the old, heavy front porch. This would lighten the first floor apartment and simplify the exterior. He also selected a quiet, attractive new entrance and door and built new concrete steps with wrought iron rails. Mr. George's decision was more than justified by results. The operation was slight, but the improvement was worthwhile.

Many other exterior changes are possible for spring and summer accomplishment.

Sometimes attractive landscape planting will improve an exterior. It will tie a house closer to its site and alter its appearance surprisingly.

Often heavy, overhanging eaves can spoil the roof lines, and removal of these eaves works a great deal of difference.

New Sash Practical.

Replacement of awkward and ungainly windows can repay the cost of renewal by the improvement in exterior appearance. If sash is warping or rotting, new sash is practical, as well as ornamental. Then, too, a new bay, added to give more light and space to a room, also can be made the axis of a nice little garden court for summer living.

Expertly handled shutters can likewise contribute a happy exterior note to a house—well proportioned, simple shutters, according to modern tastes. We see shutters at entrances, too, sometimes. And in considering shutters, there are always the many potentialities of color they offer and the added vitality which dark shutters give to white or light walls.

Then, too, spring is the time when the restorer of a home takes to paint. In its dual capacity of decorative surface and protective covering, paint's value cannot be overstressed.

Paint and Style.

Styling with paint is now a recognized term in house parlance. This means, in brief, using color on a house in a manner that is in tune with the times, and paint manufacturers have gone to considerable lengths in the last few years to determine style trends by surveys of painted homes all over the country.

The recent tendency towards white as a body color still holds up, where this is practical, with the roof treated in a manner to render it not too conspicuous. Sash color can be same as trim and body color, or different, according to individual tastes.

Naturally, in the selection of an exterior color scheme, there are other considerations which should not be overlooked if one is vitally concerned with the final appearance of a house. Color can influence the apparent size of a house and small houses look best when carried out in light colors. Two color body treatments can be brought into play on certain types of homes. The houses in the immediate vicinity always must be considered. This is from a purely selfish viewpoint, since your house may have a fine color treatment, but if the house next door "clashes" with it, your own nice color scheme is impaired.

EYES CENTERED ON BATTLE FOR COMMITTEEMEN

Races Are Held Close in Several Wards.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Northwest side political groups are continuing to watch with interest contests for ward committeemen in various areas where the races appear to be particularly close. Committeemen of both Republican and Democratic parties will be elected April 9.

In the 34th the contest is entirely on the Republican side. Neal T. Kelley, the Democratic committeeman has no opposition. Eugene L. Nusser the Republican incumbent still faces three opponents. Nusser, who is allied with the Brooks-Lyons forces, is campaigning on his record as committeeman. He contends he has held the regular organization intact and has a worker in every precinct.

One of the most vigorous of his opponents is George L. Kandlik, 34 years old, who was educated in public schools and the Chicago Kent College of Law. He practices law, owns a public garage, is partner in a real estate firm, and director of a building and loan association. He maintains headquarters at 2938 Armitage avenue and has meetings every Friday evening.

Bracken Also Active.

Another active opponent of Nusser is Fred C. Bracken, 1626 North Albany avenue. Bracken has resided in the ward for more than 20 years and is 53 years old. He is an insurance broker and boasts that he has never been in politics before.

He is a past president and director of the Insurance Brokers Association of Illinois and first vice president and director of the Norwegian Old People's Home Society of Chicago. He belongs to several other civic and neighborhood organizations.

William Rieger Jr., the fourth candidate on the list, is an old opponent of Nusser. He ran against him in the aldermanic campaign of 1935.

Democrats Have Contest.

In the 35th ward a contest has developed on the Democratic side. There John A. Szumnarski, committeeman and public vehicle license commissioner for the city, is opposed by Stanley A. Bezdon. Szumnarski is with the regular Democratic organization. Bezdon is allied with the Stelle-Adamowski-Barrett state faction.

On the Republican side the incumbent committeeman, Frank Peska, is without opposition.

In the 37th ward the Democratic incumbent, Roger J. Kiley, has no opposition, but Francis A. Horrigan, Republican committeeman, faces two opponents.

Horrigan, who is completing his third term as committeeman, has been in Republican politics in the ward for 26 years. He maintains headquarters at 458 Parkside avenue and has meetings every Thursday night. He is in the real estate business.

Attorney as Opponent.

Eugene W. Rogers, one of Horrigan's opponents, is an attorney and has lived in the ward 22 years. He has headquarters at 5624 Chicago avenue and also holds meetings on Thursday nights. Altho Horrigan is allied with the Green faction, Rogers boasts that he is allied with neither gubernatorial camp.

The third candidate in the ward is Dr. James H. Taylor, 446 North Pine avenue. Dr. Taylor, a former alderman, was selected by a committee representing several Republican factions in the ward. Henry W. Paff, an aggressive Republican leader, is his campaign manager and headquarters are at 415 North Central avenue. Meetings are held on Friday nights.

Taylor's group contends Horrigan has not given proper leadership to the Republicans of the ward. The Taylor group is supporting Richard Lyons for governor and Wayland Brooks for United States senator.

Miss Eleanor Szymanski.

The Apostleship of Prayer Girls' club will hold a leap year dance Saturday night in St. Hyacinth ballroom, Wolfram street and Lawndale avenue. Assisting her are Miss Helen Rydzon, Miss Irene Gudel, Miss Helen Siok, Miss Regina Brzanka, Miss Helen Wroblewski, and Miss Harriet Laskowski. Miss Delores Pachowski is the president of the group, and the Rev. Mitchell Starzynski is the chaplain.

The local eliminations will qualify 20 kite flyers from each park for the semifinals to be held April 20. These contests will be held at six parks in representative sections of the city. From these semifinals 372 contestants will be selected for competition in the finals on April 27.

One New Contest.

The eight divisions in the contest are:

Artistic—Kites to be judged for color, beauty, and original design, as well as flying performance.

Novelty—Kites to be judged for unusual construction, mechanical motion, or unusual materials used.

Handwinding contest—Each contestant to fly his kite unaided and from his hand to the end of 75 yards of string. At a given signal contestant will wind in his string and the first to finish will be declared winner.

Mechanical winding—Kites to be flown to the end of the 75 yards of string and wound in by reel.

Solo box kite—Any type of box or combination plane box kite may be flown in this event. No kite carrying a tale will be eligible.

Messenger—Message to be attached to kite string by helper or contestant no more than 25 feet from flyer's hand.

Pulling contest — This event has been substituted for the smallest kite contest of last year. Kites will be flown a designated distance into the air and the pulling power will be tested by means of a mechanical device.

Largest kite—The largest kite to be entered last year measured more than 14 by 4 feet.

Suburbanites May Enter.

The tournament will be supervised by F. E. Kardes, craft technician for the park district.

Suburbanites are eligible for the contest. They must send their entry blanks to their nearest Chicago fieldhouse. All coupons must be in the hands of local park directors by April 5.

POWERS OF FCC LIMITED AS TO INTERFERENCE

Can Control the Radio 'Hams,' However.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—With complaints continuing to pour in about local interference to radio broadcast reception, the Federal Communications commission has reiterated that it has no authority to require elimination of interference if it is of inductive origin.

This means that it is powerless to do anything drastic about noises caused by diathermy or other electrical apparatus; the ignition systems of automobiles, electrical signs, or other contributing agents.

With regard to interference caused by the operation of amateur stations the commission has jurisdiction. Before reporting complaints of such interference, however, it suggests that the performance of many receiving sets encountering cross-talk [or dot and dash] interference may often be improved materially both for selectivity and sensitivity if properly aligned and tubes checked and replaced if found defective.

Some receivers which are not capable of separating the desired from the undesired station, which is 20 or more kilocycles away, may be improved materially by employing a simple "wave trap" obtainable at most radio or electrical goods stores. An expert service man can often locate the source or cause of interference and eliminate it.

Should Note Call.

If, however, a listener is certain that an amateur operator is causing him distress, he should note carefully the call letters of the interfering "ham," and obtain his name and address before making a complaint. If the complainant is uncertain as to whether he has the call letters and name identified correctly he can check them in the radio amateur call book, obtainable at radio stores at a nominal charge.

In the Chicago area alone there are more than 2,000 amateurs. Therefore, it is important that the local communications' commission inspector have accurate identification of the amateur causing the nuisance. It is not sufficient for a complainant to say that the interference is coming from some one in his neighborhood or in his block.

When the suspected offender has been identified, the information in Chicago should be directed to the FCC inspector's office, 225 South La Salle street. The telephone is Wabash 4700. The inspector will then proceed to correct the difficulty thru a personal contact with the offending operator.

Many municipalities and several states have enacted ordinances seeking to control the radio interference problem. These are not altogether successful, it is said.

Power Companies Aid.

A good many power companies today maintain investigating departments which coöperate with individuals in an effort to remedy interference. Complaints to power companies should be ready to furnish detailed information as to the type of interference experienced.

In some instances appeals for aid might properly be directed to the American Standards association, New York City. This organization affords representation to all interested in the reduction of electrically caused noises. The Institute of Radio Engineers, the Institute of Radio Service Men, the Radio Manufacturers association, the National Association of Broadcasters, and the Radio Club of America, among other groups, are coöperating with the Standards association toward the end of eliminating interference.

Interference caused by diathermy and other medical equipment is occupying the attention of FCC engineers, it has announced, because of its deleterious effect on television and other transmissions in the higher frequencies. The commission recently received a resolution from a police radio department association requesting it to declare diathermy a nuisance to police radio.

Pending further legislation clarifying the FCC's jurisdiction in this matter, the commission announced that it is making every effort to alleviate the diathermy interference thru coöperative efforts with manufacturers, the medical profession and the radio industry.

Can Be Eliminated.

Radiation of electrical energy is not essential to the proper functioning of diathermy apparatus, the commission engineers stated. Such radiation can be eliminated without impairing the usefulness of the apparatus.

"Since the radio and medical services both involve the use of equipment in connection with the safety of life and property," the FCC stated, "and since the radiation of electrical energy from the electro-medical apparatus can be controled at small cost by screening the room in which the apparatus is used, it is felt that the interested parties should coöperate toward the adoption of standards of good engineering practice which will permit both services to operate without mutual interference."

WEST COAST EASTER SUNRISE SERVICES ON MUTUAL NETWORK

Celebrating Easter Sunday today W-G-N and the Mutual network will offer special programs.

From California the Don Lee network will send Mutual listeners a description of the Easter sunrise services in Hollywood bowl from 7 to 8 a. m. From 8 to 8:30 a. m. microphones will switch to the top of Mount Rubidoux, Riverside Cal., for other Easter services. Then from the steps of the state capitol at Olympia, Wash., additional Easter services will be aired from 8:30 to 9:30 a. m., central standard time.

A special Easter service for the benefit of European refugee students will be heard from Rockefeller Memorial chapel on the University of Chicago campus at 11 a. m. today over W-G-N. Prof. John Know of the divinity school will conduct the service and speak on "The Meaning of Easter."

Forty members of the Northland college choir, directed by Prof. Sigvart J. Steen, will sing nine Easter selections. The Easter service was arranged for the benefit of the Student Refugee Aid committee, which has provided 10 students with scholarships and funds to continue their education at the university.

NEW W-G-N SHOW PRESENTS LIFE IN SMALL TOWN

"The Deacon," a new 15 minute show featuring John Howard, character actor, is now heard on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9 a. m. Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

The program presents life in the mythical American village, "Main Street," thru the word-pictures of the "Deacon," played by Howard, who constructs the stories thru his monologs based on the lives of Onie Googins, the Deacon's housekeeper, and Lem Conover, a small town wag. Len Salvo, W-G-N organist, will provide musical background.

The Deacon is not a religious title, but is simply the nickname given by his friends to a small town philosopher.

Elson on Coast.

Bob Elson, W-G-N and Mutual sportscaster, is in California watching the major league baseball teams in training. Elson's trip to the coast has become an annual affair. He will be back in Chicago in time for the opening day game.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

GERTRUDE NIESEN TO BE GUEST ON RHYTHM SHOW

Whistler Also Will Have a Part in Program.

(Picture in rotogravure section.)

Petite and vivacious Gertrude Niesen, famed delineator of modern song who is currently featured at the Chez Paree, will be the guest star on the show, "Romance in Rhythm," directed by Harold Stokes, at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and Mutual. With Miss Niesen will be heard Fred Lowery, the blind whistler of Horace Heidt's band; Wesley Summerfield, tenor; Lawrence Salerno, baritone, and the W-G-N dance orchestra.

Miss Niesen will do "It's a Blue World" and "Yodelin' Jive." From her early teens, Gertrude has received an intensive voice training. Her versatility at singing everything from the classic to the "torch" numbers reveals the thoro schooling she received in music.

Within a week of her musical debut—at the age of 16—she was hailed as an outstanding singer, and her rise to the top was rapid. Gertrude claims Texas as her home, because her parents and grandparents come from that state, but actually the Atlantic ocean is her birthplace, since she was born on an ocean liner just three hours before the vessel docked in New York harbor.

Fred Lowery, the blind youth who overcame his handicap by making a career of whistling, will do "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" and the William Tell overture. He is known to thousands of radio listeners thru his work with the Horace Heidt programs and also thru appearances with the shows "We, the People," "Hobby Lobby," and Rudy Vallee's program.

Lawrence Salerno will sing "Make Love with a Guitar" and "Marcheta." In the Memory Lane feature, Summerfield will sing "Because" and the orchestra and chorus will do "Isn't It Romantic" and "A Brown Bird Singing." Other numbers will include "Hindustan," "I Got Rhythm," "Do I Love You," "Little Girl," and "No, Mama, No."

"And the Angels Sing," the half hour popular music show directed by Harold Stokes and featuring Edna O'Dell, Kathryn Witwer, and the women's choir, will be heard at 8 p. m. today on W-G-N, with a program dedicated to Easter.

Miss O'Dell will sing "Spring Is Here," from "I Married an Angel," and will join the chorus in "I'm Comin' Virginia." Miss Witwer, operatic soprano, will sing the perennial favorite, "Alice Blue Gown," and "My Prayer."

The Three Graces will do "Ducklings on Parade." Numbers to be played by the orchestra will include "Got a Brand New Hat," "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," from the Ziegfeld Follies of 1919, and "Easter Parade," with choral accompaniment. "The Rosary" will be presented in a violin solo, accompanied by the women's choir.

"CHRIST RISEN" ON ALL LIPS TODAY

9 WOMEN SEEK PRIMARY VOTES FOR ASSEMBLY

Demand Economy in Government.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Nine women from the Chicago area are seeking nominations for the general assembly in the April primary. Their platforms contain not the faintest hint of what once was known as "woman's rights."

Without exception the nine are campaigning for economy in government. Most of them favor parole reform. All favor removal of the sales tax on food and the extension of the merit system in civil service.

Of the nine candidates in and about Chicago, three, all from outlying suburbs, now sit in the legislature. They comprise three-fourths of the legislature's femininity, the fourth being Mrs. Lizzie Barnes of Carmi. All three are Republicans, and the nomination of each seems assured. Nonetheless, all are campaigning.

From "Shoestring" District.

One is Mrs. Bernice Van der Vries of Winnetka, who has represented the winding 7th, or "shoestring," district, which embraces 94 country towns on Chicago's outskirts, since 1934. The second is Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downers Grove, who went to Springfield from the 41st district [Will and Du Page counties] in 1922 as the "woman's hope" and has been, with the exception of one term, a legislative fixture ever since.

The third is Mrs. Maude N. Peffers of Aurora, now serving her first term in the footsteps of her husband, John, who represented the district, the 14th [Kane and Kendall counties], for six terms until his death in 1936.

Mrs. Van der Vries is considered an able legislator and debater of note. She has done effective work on many important committees, and now is chairman of the Illinois commission for intergovernmental coöperation, which seeks to overcome interstate trade barriers. Of the legislature's 34 commissions, she is the only woman chairman.

Record for Women.

According to a recent survey, Mrs. O'Neill has had more legislative experience than any other woman in the country. She doesn't know whether this is true, but says, confidently, "I'll have had 18 years when I get thru the next session."

Little, aggressive, and a bit acid if given cause, she is stressing public education, the merit system, and removal of state institutions from politics. She voted for parole reform, as did Mrs. Van der Vries.

Mrs. Peffers turned out to be a serious legislator and developed an avidity for committee work. "I liked studying the bills in committee and hearing the arguments," she says, "but then I found it all interesting."

Three in Race.

In Chicago proper, the 5th, or Hyde Park, district with its polyglot of intellectuals, immigrants, and Negroes has become a feminine battle ground. Three women [as well as 18 men] are tussling for its three seats in the legislature.

They are Matilda Fenberg [R.], 5401 Cornell avenue, attorney, who won the Republican nomination in 1938; Helene Leach [D.], 5481 Ellis avenue, also an attorney and an active Young Democrat, and Margaret Kathryn Woods [R.], 5408 University avenue, a skin analyst and self-styled amateur playwright.

Miss Fenberg has a background of 18 years' legal practice and two years [1929-'31] as assistant corporation counsel. She was the first woman to matriculate at Yale law school. Miss Leach, so young she will not reveal her age, has been practicing law five years and has been active in Democratic circles since 1936, when she headed the state First Voters' league. She is supporting the Stelle-Barrett-Adamowski ticket. Miss Woods, a newcomer to politics, says she has been worried about general conditions in the 5th district since 1928.

Negro Social Worker.

Irene McCoy Gaines [R.], 3262 Vernon avenue, who is running in the 1st district, is a well known Negro social worker. A graduate of Fisk university, with graduate work at the University of Chicago and Loyola university, she served on Hoover's housing commission and his Republican national planning board. She worked six years with the social service bureau of the Cook county bureau of public welfare and later was a caseworker with the IERC and the CRA.

Mrs. Cora A. Graham [R.] of 4033 Ellis avenue is running in the 3d district, that portion of the near south side into which 48 per cent of Chicago's relief goes. Mrs. Graham, a fire insurance broker, has been active in politics and civic affairs for 25 years.

Right now she wants to get gasoline tax funds to open Pershing road as far as Brookfield and to open 43d street to Western avenue. She thinks she knows the district's needs and could do it great good in Springfield.

Mrs. Rose Lamberty [R.] of 2104 North Keystone avenue seeks the nomination in the 25th district on the northwest side. She has been active in 36th ward politics for 20 years. She and her husband, Theodore, have four children, and this is her first campaign. She is interested in abolition of the sales tax, the open primary, prison, and parole reform. "I sound like Salvation Nell," she laughs, "but I mean it."

Kites to Soar Over Parks in City Contest

Novelty kite in 1939.

More than 3,000 Chicagoland kite flying fans, ranging in age from youngsters in rompers to their grandparents, will enter the second annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE city-wide kite contest to be held with the coöperation of the park district April 27 in Grant park.

Out of the thousands of entrants eight Chicagoland kite flying champions are to be chosen by expert park district judges. The eight champions will be awarded silver trophies furnished by this newspaper. Other winners are to be given ribbon awards by the park district.

The rules are simple. There is no age limit; anybody who can fly a kite is eligible. The one main restriction is that all kites in the contest must be homemade. No factory made kites will be admitted. You may construct your own kite with expert assistance in the craft rooms of your local park fieldhouse. Materials will be supplied free.

Starts in Neighborhoods.

The contest, like last year's, will be run in the form of a round robin tournament. Preliminary elimination contests will be held at neighborhood parks on April 5, 6, and 8. You have until April 5 to enter the contest.

An entry blank is printed in today's paper. Simply fill in your name, address, and age, then check the contest division or divisions you wish to enter. Take the coupon to your nearest fieldhouse. No entry blanks will be accepted if mailed to THE TRIBUNE. [A list of fieldhouses in your section accompanies this story.]

The local eliminations will qualify 20 kite flyers from each park for the semifinals to be held April 20. These contests will be held at six parks in representative sections of the city. From these semifinals 372 contestants will be selected for competition in the finals on April 27.

One New Contest.

The eight divisions in the contest are:

Artistic—Kites to be judged for color, beauty, and original design, as well as flying performance.

Novelty—Kites to be judged for unusual construction, mechanical motion, or unusual materials used.

Handwinding contest—Each contestant to fly his kite unaided and from his hand to the end of 75 yards of string. At a given signal contestant will wind in his string and the first to finish will be declared winner.

Mechanical winding—Kites to be flown to the end of the 75 yards of string and wound in by reel.

Solo box kite—Any type of box or combination plane box kite may be flown in this event. No kite carrying a tale will be eligible.

Messenger—Message to be attached to kite string by helper or contestant no more than 25 feet from flyer's hand.

Pulling contest — This event has been substituted for the smallest kite contest of last year. Kites will be flown a designated distance into the air and the pulling power will be tested by means of a mechanical device.

Largest kite—The largest kite to be entered last year measured more than 14 by 4 feet.

Suburbanites May Enter.

The tournament will be supervised by F. E. Kardes, craft technician for the park district.

Suburbanites are eligible for the Floral Beauty to Take Bows at Navy Pier

Spring is here for west area garden clubs. Whether March goes out like a lion or a lamb, large gardens, small corner ones, and window boxes all will be in mid-June bloom Saturday on Navy pier.

Until Sunday, April 7, the horticultural handiwork of west suburban women along with women thruout the state will comprise the 14th annual Chicago flower show sponsored by the Garden Club of Illinois. Mrs. O. W. Dynes of Hinsdale, general chairman of the show, and her hundreds of helpers have selected "Gardens to Today" as the theme. The thousands who annually see the show will be looking this year into modern suburbia.

The work is by Mrs. Elsworth Keith, Mrs. James Walker, Mrs. Sidney T. Collins Jr., Mrs. Robert Gordon, Mrs. William Hogenson, and Mrs. Edward A. Amacker.

The affair will be given under the auspices of the sisterhood of the West Suburban Jewish center, with Mrs. Ben Richter as chairman and Mrs. Bert Biller as co-chairman.

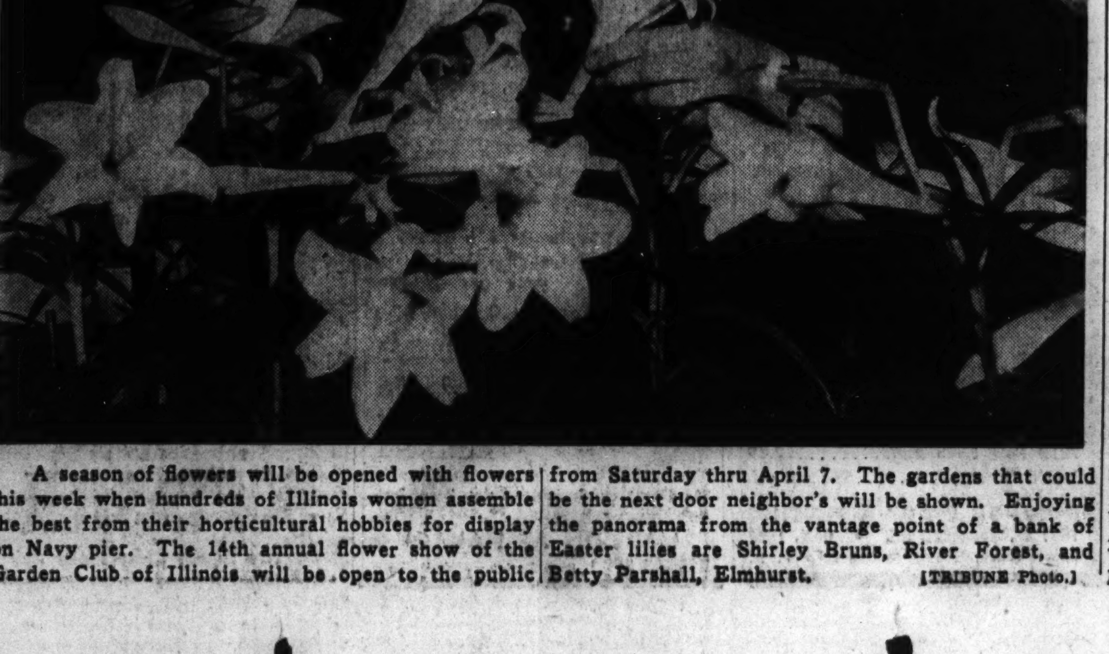
Getting Idea of Flower Show



A season of flowers will be opened with flowers this week when hundreds of Illinois women assemble the best from their horticultural hobbies for display on Navy pier. The 14th annual flower show of the Garden Club of Illinois will be open to the public from Saturday thru April 7. The gardens that could be the next door neighbor's will be shown. Enjoying the panorama from the vantage point of a bank of Easter lilies are Shirley Bruns, River Forest, and Betty Parshall, Elmhurst. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Voice of the West Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the West Side, The Tribune.

USE FOR NEAR WEST SIDE.

What a boon it would be for the white collar worker if some one would buy up blocks in the near west side and build new apartment buildings. There seems to be no place in the city for the low paid office worker to live. He can't afford the rents up the north and down the south shores. He doesn't want to live in the tenements for fear they'll fall down on him. Where else can he live? There is a vast area on the west side where abandoned buildings are eyesores and wastes. Some one could make some money and do the city and the white collar worker a favor by building new apartments there.

JAMES SMITH.

VOICE WITH A FROWN.

It seems to me that we could do with a little more courtesy on the part of street car conductors. There are some sections of the west side, the poorer sections, where the conductors match their moods to the surroundings. They bark at a question. They yell at those slow to get on the car and growl at the women who climb aboard with two babies and six packages in their arms. Everybody is entitled to a sour disposition if they like to be that way but why inflict it on the poor fellow that has to ride such a thing as a street car.

A WORKER.

PRAISE FOR LIBRARY.

One of the pleasures of living in Oak Park is to use the fine public libraries. I happen to have made use of the main library on Lake street a number of times and this alone makes me glad I moved to Oak Park. The magazine room is most complete. I do not believe there is one request in the way of reading matter that cannot be granted at the library.

NIGHT MEETINGS LEND SPEED TO ASSEMBLY RACE

Most Candidates Would End Food Tax.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

The merry-go-round of candidates aiming at the brass ring of nomination to the state legislature was speeded up last week by nightly political meetings. A dizzy whirl will be maintained from now until the April 9 primary, with contestants dashing to three or four ward and precinct rallies every evening.

Beneficiaries of most meetings will be candidates backed by regular party organizations with funds for halls and entertainment. Independents are striving to keep up the pace by appearing before clubs and civic organizations. Some have scheduled "booster night" dances with the aid of friends.

Against Sales Tax.

Early replies to a questionnaire sent to candidates by THE TRIBUNE show that an overwhelming majority of those running favor removal of the 3 per cent sales tax from food, altho some question whether the move is possible under the Illinois constitution.

Surprisingly, many candidates in this bracket are Democratic incumbents who refused to support the Lund bill for this purpose in the 1939 session of the legislature.

NINETEENTH DISTRICT

Battle lines of the Republican contestants for the single house seat at stake are anything but clearly drawn in this hodge podge of Chicago and suburban politics. Territorial claims of support are being disputed more than issues, upon which the serious contenders are agreed.

Norman J. McLeod, hard working precinct captain of the 29th ward, claims that he will draw G. O. P. organization support from all of the city wards in the district. He has been a civil service employé of the Chicago sanitary district for 21 years.

Frank Houcek, town clerk of Cicero from 1918 to 1928 and town assessor from 1928 to 1932, said he has the backing of the regular G. O. P. behind him on April 9. James C. Soper, former president of the Young Republican organization in Cicero, who ran for state senator in 1938, also expects Cicero backing and some from other sections as well.

Charles F. Seeman Jr., a former justice of the peace, is the only Berwyn candidate, following the withdrawals of two other residents of this suburb.

Has Regular Support.

John O. Manning who, like Roper, is 32 years old, will draw his main strength from the 30th ward regular Republican organization, of which he is a member. Last week he announced that he had been endorsed by the Retail Druggists' association and the Retail Grocers' association.

Joseph Scuccimaire, 29 years old, of 2914 West Polk street, is an attorney who bases his hopes on the independent voters.

Representative John O. Hruby is reported to be the leader in the Democratic contest. His record in Springfield has been praised by the Legislative Voters' league while that of his running mate, Representative John J. Gorman, was described as "disappointing." Both have the approval of the Nash-Kelly Democratic headquarters.

The most aggressive independent contender for one of the two Democratic nominations appears to be Jule O. Josephson, a young attorney who expects to pick up substantial backing in most portions of the district.

Josephson and Irving H. Weinstein, 709 South Independence boulevard, another young lawyer, also urge passage of the city manager enabling bills which have been defeated again in 1939. Weinstein attended the University of Illinois and the John Marshall Law school.

TWENTY-FIRST DISTRICT

The fight here, in parts of Wards 26, 28, 30, and 37, is against Representative Robert ["Happy"] Petrone, whose voting record at Springfield is regarded as "unsatisfactory" by the L. V. L. He could not find time to vote on many important measures and failed to support the Ward-Schnackenberg parole reform bill.

Three peppy candidates oppose Petrone—which may be too many to beat him for the single G. O. P. nomination at stake, since they divide the vote.

William J. Colohan Jr., 24 South Menard avenue, is an attorney whose slogan is: "Put me in the legislature to help Dwight Green pull Illinois out of its mess."

Also from the 37th ward, but favoring Richard J. Lyons in the governorship race, is Louis F. Peifer, 658 North Lorel avenue. Peifer advocates parole reform and said he always will oppose bipartisan deals.

In Realty Business.

George H. Brockmeier, 4804 Quincy street, claims good support in the 30th ward and is making a forceful campaign. He was successively teacher, principal of a village school, salesman, and is now in the real estate and building business. He is reported to have the support of many 30th ward precinct captains.

Two candidates have filed from the 26th ward, where Petrone is acting ward committeeman. They are Aaron Skolnick, 1120 West Huron street, who got less than 2 per cent of the 1938 primary vote, and Walter J. Garrity, 939 West Grand avenue.

See Little Trouble.

Little trouble is foreseen by the Democratic regular organization choices—Representatives Joseph L. Rategan and Edward J. McCabe. Both have good records in the house and rank among the most important members.

In the 1938 primary McCabe and Rategan received nearly twice as many votes as their eight opponents combined. This time they have only two opponents, Arthur J. McGurn, 145 North Central avenue, and Joseph Olszewski, 720 North Elizabeth street.

These sixteen candidates are representative of the large field of contestants for legislative seats from west section senatorial districts. All of them are promising voters that if sent to Springfield they will work for reduction of the sales tax and reform of the parole system.

POLITICIANS EYE TESTS FOR WARD COMMITTEEMEN

Races Appear Close in Several Areas.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

West side political groups are continuing to watch with interest contests for ward committeemen in various wards where the races appear to be particularly close. Committeemen of both Republican and Democratic parties will be elected April 9.

In the 29th ward the contest is entirely on the Republican side. Martin J. O'Brien, the Democratic committeeman, has no opposition.

A four way fight exists in the 29th Republican camp. Louis J. Meyers, the regular organization candidate, is opposed by Ralph B. Grosh, George J. Reithal Jr., and Joseph R. Orrico. Meyers, who is supported by the Robert Crowe faction, has indorsed Lyons for governor and Wayland Brooks for state's attorney. The other three candidates have indorsed Green for governor.

The three who are opposing Meyers are generally regarded as being of equal strength. Grosh and Reithal were formerly allied in a Young Republican movement. They have separated, due to differences over leadership. Orrico gets much of his support from the Italian element of the ward.

Faces Two Opponents.

In the 37th ward the democratic incumbent, Roger J. Kiley, has no opposition, but Francis A. Horrigan, Republican committeeman, faces two opponents.

Horrigan, who is completing his third term as committeeman, has been in Republican politics in the ward for 26 years. He maintains headquarters at 458 North Parkside avenue and has meetings every Thursday night. He is in the real estate business.

Eugene W. Rogers, one of Horrigan's opponents, is an attorney and has lived in the ward 22 years. He has headquarters at 5624 Chicago avenue and also holds meetings on Thursday nights. Altho Horrigan is allied with the Green faction, Rogers boasts he is allied with neither gubernatorial camp.

Doctor in Race.

The third candidate in the ward is Dr. James H. Taylor, 446 North Pine avenue. Dr. Taylor, a former alderman, was selected by a committee representing several Republican factions in the ward.

Henry W. Paff, an aggressive Republican leader, is his campaign manager.

Taylor's group contends Horrigan has not given proper leadership to the Republicans of the ward. The Taylor group is supporting Lyons for governor and Wayland Brooks for United States senator.

29th Ward Rivals

George J. Reithal Jr. [Gordon Photo.] Louis J. Meyers.

Ralph B. Grosh. Joseph R. Orrico.

In the Republican camp in the 29th ward, four candidates are fighting for the position of ward committeeman. Louis J. Meyers has the backing of the regular organization and the others are seeking to wrest this advantage from him.

TRAFFIC SURVEY IS SCHEDULED FOR OAK PARK

As a result of a recent meeting held with state, county, and village officials, the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce will institute a new village survey on parking and traffic.

The chamber made a thoro study of the situation a year ago and results prompted a new study for adding to the information already obtained.

William Wieboldt is chairman of the Lake-Marion parking and traffic committee of the chamber. Elmer Grable is chairman of the Avenue parking and traffic committee of the chamber.

"It is planned by the committee making the new survey to include all of the business districts in Oak Park," said Emile O. Bloche, president of the chamber.

CHARGE SABATH ILLEGAL VOTER IN OWN DISTRICT

Congress Race Opponents Point to Record.

Charges that Congressman A. J. [Anti-Dies] Sabath has not lived in his district for more than 20 years and that he has been voting illegally during that period in the 21st ward, were made last week by two other Democratic candidates for congress from the 5th district. These two, seeking to drive Sabath from the office he has held thru 17 consecutive terms, drew the spotlight in the city's west side congressional race.

The identical charges were raised simultaneously by Stanley T. Kusper, Polish attorney, and Harry G. Green, a writer, both of whom are residents of the district. Kusper's home is at 1808 South Ashland avenue, and Green's is at 1506 South Sawyer avenue. They both charge that Sabath has lived for two decades at the Graemere hotel, Washington boulevard and Homan avenue, in the 6th district.

"No person knows of Sabath ever coming to his district except to attend political meetings and to vote," said Green. "He votes regularly, but illegally, from his former residence at 1902 South Ashland avenue, in the 21st ward. Most of those who know Sabath say he believes the 5th district is not fashionable enough for him to live in."

Sees District Enslaved.

Kusper, who is general counsel for the Polish Roman Catholic Union of America and has his own offices at 18th street and Ashland avenue, charges that Sabath has taken complete advantage of the "rotten borough" situation that has resulted from a failure to reapportion the Illinois congressional districts since 1901, and has "enslaved" the district for years.

"Sabath has so dominated our district that he has not only been able to move out of it, yet represent it in congress," said Kusper, "but he also has permitted our residents to be represented by nonresidents in all the other offices that legally should be held by persons who live within the 5th district's limits."

Both these Democrats continued to flay Sabath for his vote last January, with 20 other congressmen, against continuance of the Dies committee's investigations into un-American activities in the United States. Sabath and four other Illinois congressmen were in the little "rubber stamp" bloc that was outvoted by 345. The Dies committee was later given $75,000 to continue its work.

Withdrawal Is Suggested.

"Why doesn't this man withdraw from public life before he brings further disgrace upon this district," asked Green. "Sabath's support of communistic efforts, such as the anti-Dies votes, has been characteristic of him. In 1910 Sabath gave a similar demonstration in congress."

Green charged that a bill at that time was introduced to abrogate a treaty with Russia. President Taft, favoring abrogation, obtained Sabath's promise to assist in the fight to pass the bill.

"But instead," charged Green, "he failed to attend the sessions which debated upon and later voted for the bill. It was found later that Sabath was interested in a firm that imported brush bristles from Russia. Presumably he didn't want to oxend the Russians on this account."

G. O. P. Stages Fight.

In the 6th district the real fight is among the Republican candidates. Ward committeemen have been caucusing nightly attempting to determine which of the seven aspirants to support and at this hour no choice has been made. Late reports were that William J. Mink, mayor of Bellwood, probably would receive country town support and Michael J. Creighton, Chicago attorney, that of city committeemen.

Still in the race were Jerome S. Breakstone, attorney, of 1515 West Monroe street, and Joseph Wagner, Berwyn dairy owner.

A. F. [Whitey] Maciejewski, Cicero's political boss, still is a certainty to gain the Democratic nomination here. His eight rivals are not expected to garner 10 per cent of the vote Maciejewski's machine will roll up for him.

Slow Moving Campaign.

In the 8th district the campaigning by both parties has been soft pedaled. Former Alderman George M. Rozczynialski probably will be the Republican choice and Congressman Leo Kocialkowski is also receiving Democratic machine favor for renomination.

NEW THIRD PARTY CAMPAIGNS FOR VOTES IN CICERO

Election Board Rules Ticket Is Valid.

In Cicero the Better Government party has a complete list of candidates in the field that is expected by many shrewd observers to give both the Democrats and the Republicans cause for concern in the April election.

Candidates on the Better Government ticket are James J. Pelikan for president; Ben Boerman for town clerk; Joseph F. Kafka for collector; James Sorna for supervisor; Walter Babitz for assessor, and Walter J. Smith for trustee.

The party is campaigning on a six-point program of civic improvement that calls for a stop to bipartisan dictation which denies the citizen his right to choose his own candidates, the restoration of Cicero's good name, the slashing of tax bills, elimination of political pay rolls, introduction of civil service type standards in municipal employment, an honest effort to solve the water problem, and coöperation with legitimate business and industry to promote employment and general prosperity.

Board Sanctions Ticket.

The party recently won the right to a place on the ballot after a contest on the validity of its petitions before the board of election commissioners. Introduction of its ticket promises a three cornered election battle for the first time in many years, and the organization is herelded by its supporters as an indication of the trend in other suburban municipalities to select their local governments without reference to national issues.

"Better government for all the citizens and a program of rigid economy to relieve the taxpayer of his present intolerable burden, is the goal my colleagues and I seek," said Mr. Pelikan, who served Cicero as town clerk from 1928 to 1932. He now is president of the township school trustees for township 39. He is in the insurance business.

Others on Slate.

Mr. Boerman, candidate for town clerk on the Better Government ticket, is a roofing contractor. Mr. Kafka, seeking the collector's position, also is in the roofing business. Mr. Sorna, in the race for supervisor, is an attorney. Mr. Babitz, candidate for assessor, is a theater proprietor, and Mr. Smith, candidate for trustee, is manager of a motor sales company.

DEBATE ON THIRD TERM TO CLOSE LIBRARY FORUM

A debate "Resolved that Roosevelt Should Run for a Third Term" will end the forum season at Toman branch library, 27th street and Pulaski road, at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening. Michael P. Foertsch and Eugene L. Mayer of Herzy Junior college will take the affirmative and George Picha and Joseph Praser of Morton Junior college, the negative. Roderick A. Ginsburg, member of the forum committee, will be the chairman. Judges will be Francis McGuire, teacher at Harrison Tech school, and Wanda Taeschner, Farragut High school teacher.

STATE CENTRAL JOBS RACE IS 'SLOW MOTION'

Speed Is Reduced Due to Other Contests.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Much of the heat of what otherwise would be a scorching contest among candidates for Republican state central committee in west side areas of Chicago, has been dissipated because of bitter fights for other party posts, notably those for ward committeeman. In the Democratic party, harmony has robbed this phase of the primary of its 1938 interest.

State central committeemen for both parties are picked by congressional district and elected, not nominated, every two years in the April primary. One committeeman for each party will be chosen from the following congressional districts either wholly or partly within the western areas: 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, and 11th.

These jobs are important because committeemen are essential cogs in party machinery. They perform a number of influential functions such as running the state convention, handling party matters between elections, nominating candidates for trusteeships of the state university and choosing Illinois' eight delegates and alternates at large to the national conventions. They also draw up a state platform.

No Conflict Now

According to word from the firing lines, the Republican battle over the retention by Hill Blackett, Chicago advertising executive, of his national committee seat, has not involved the state central committee. This year there is no conflict between the Kelly-Nash forces in the Chicago city hall and the Horner group in the state house.

Thus Democratic organization support for candidates is tantamount to election. In 1938 the Horner-Courtney faction attempted to seize two or three of the 10 committee seats the Kelly-Nash machine considers its own in the 10 Chicago congressional districts.

The attempt failed, however, and the Kelly-Nash committeemen, in votes on the basis of popular representation, could have controled the Democratic central committee In meetings at Springfield, however, the Kellyites gracefully withdrew and allowed Gov. Horner to control the convention for the sake of party teamwork. The peace then negotiated holds today.

A report by districts upon the fight for central committeemen, follows:

FOURTH DISTRICT

The fight for Republican state central committeeman here is one of the liveliest in the city. Henry H. Harris, 3327 South Aberdeen street, current committee member, is being hard pressed by both Frank E. Palacz, 3661 South Wood street and by Charles M. Fasan, 3346 South Hamilton avenue. This situation is complicated somewhat by tough fighting for ward committeeman jobs. Two other Republican candidates here are John L. Guminski, 3150 South Aberdeen street and Frank Belcik, 3307 South Damen avenue.

Patrick G. McGuire, 4335 Princeton avenue, who has been Democratic committeeman since 1922, is again the organization candidate. Sigmund Pawlik, 3742 South Wood street, is his opponent.

FIFTH DISTRICT

Ben Schwartz, 900 West 14th street, has the Republican organization support, as he did in 1938 when he was elected to the state committee. His only opponent is Frank E. Grabske, 1715 West 14th place.

Harry Schulman, 1865 South Sawyer avenue, a deputy bailiff, has the Democratic organization support to succeed the late Leo J. Slaski, who died seven months ago. Henry A. Piotrowski, 2210 West 19th street, is his only opponent.

SIXTH DISTRICT

John F. Tyrrell, 105 South Mayfield avenue, former chairman of the Republican state central committee and the current committeeman from this district, will fight it out with Charles R. Hussey of Forest Park. Tyrrell is associated with the Green-for-governor forces and Hussey with Lyons. Other Republican candidates here are John F. Strohm, 110 South Hamlin avenue; William F. Stoddard, Riverside, and Irving D. Alpert, 1535 South Hamlin avenue.

Edward Sullivan, 3819 Maypole avenue, assistant corporation counsel, is unopposed as Democratic candidate to succeed Richard M. Sullivan.

SEVENTH DISTRICT

A split in the Green and Brooks-Lyons camps in this district may indicate a good fight between Charles L. Sampson, incumbent, against Ingolf P. Pedersen, 4823 North Kimball avenue, a candidate for congress in 1938. Sampson is allied with the Green camp and Pedersen with the other faction.

Other Republican candidates here are Claude Foster, 2142 North Western avenue; Harry F. Helder, 2433 North Francisco avenue; Joseph C. Kanak, 1514 North Monitor avenue; Paul F. Peters, 2044 St. Paul avenue; Richard Walb, 5108 West North avenue; Mitchell L. Zuber, 2328 Augusta boulevard, and Thomas F. Cline, 3628 North Tripp avenue.

Ald. George D. Kells [28th], 3146 Franklin boulevard, has the Democratic organization support to succeed the late Joseph F. Higgins. Joseph Hanowiak, 2909 Dickens avenue, ran second to Higgins in 1938.

EIGHTH DISTRICT

For the third time in succession Elliodor M. Libonati, 925 South Halsted street, and Ben F. Chmielewski, 1538 North Throop street, will tussle for the Republican seat. In 1938 Chmielewski failed to unhorse Libonati by three votes. In 1936 Libonati won by a 2 to 1 margin. Charles J. Pehrson, 1533 Milwaukee avenue, and Edward F. Kowalski, 1933 North Wood street, also are running.

Stephen R. Carynski, 1329 West Chicago avenue, the incumbent, has the Democratic organization support. Max Richter, 1031 Milwaukee avenue, and John Przetacznik, 1249 Fry street, also are on the ballot.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, dean of the Republican committee and former chairman, has retired here to run for secretary of state and the organization favorite as his successor is Frank A. McCarthy, Elgin attorney. His opponent is George R. Perrine, Aurora attorney and law partner of Charles O'Connor, Kane county state's attorney.

Francis J. Loughran of Joliet, Democratic incumbent, is unopposed.

Role in Play

Miss Mildred Graham, 429 North Hamlin avenue, portrays the role of Barbara Pearson in the play "What a Life," which will be presented Thursday evening in the Austin town hall, Lake street at Central avenue. Members of the cast are from the park's dramatic group. Miss Vivian Purcell of the Chicago park district drama staff is director.

Oak Park C. of C.

Carlyle Emery, an advertising executive, will speak tomorrow noon at a meeting of the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce at the Carleton hotel. Taking as his subject "High Hats and Brown Derbies," Mr. Emery will give an analysis of the reading and buying habits of people.

POWERS OF FCC LIMITED AS TO INTERFERENCE

Can Control the Radio 'Hams,' However.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—With complaints continuing to pour in about local interference to radio broadcast reception, the Federal Communications commission has reiterated that it has no authority to require elimination of interference if it is of inductive origin.

This means that it is powerless to do anything drastic about noises caused by diathermy or other electrical apparatus; the ignition systems of automobiles, electrical signs, or other contributing agents.

With regard to interference caused by the operation of amateur stations the commission has jurisdiction. Before reporting complaints of such interference, however, it suggests that the performance of many receiving sets encountering cross-talk [or dot and dash] interference may often be improved materially both for selectivity and sensitivity if properly aligned and tubes checked and replaced if found defective.

Some receivers which are not capable of separating the desired from the undesired station, which is 20 or more kilocycles away, may be improved materially by employing a simple "wave trap" obtainable at most radio or electrical goods stores. An expert service man can often locate the source or cause of interference and eliminate it.

Should Note Call.

If, however, a listener is certain that an amateur operator is causing him distress, he should note carefully the call letters of the interfering "ham," and obtain his name and address before making a complaint. If the complainant is uncertain as to whether he has the call letters and name identified correctly he can check them in the radio amateur call book, obtainable at radio stores at a nominal charge.

In the Chicago area alone there are more than 2,000 amateurs. Therefore, it is important that the local communications' commission inspector have accurate identification of the amateur causing the nuisance. It is not sufficient for a complainant to say that the interference is coming from some one in his neighborhood or in his block.

When the suspected offender has been identified, the information in Chicago should be directed to the FCC inspector's office, 225 South La Salle street. The telephone is Wabash 4700. The inspector will then proceed to correct the difficulty thru a personal contact with the offending operator.

Many municipalities and several states have enacted ordinances seeking to control the radio interference problem. These are not altogether successful, it is said.

Power Companies Aid.

A good many power companies today maintain investigating departments which coöperate with individuals in an effort to remedy interference. Complaints to power companies should be ready to furnish detailed information as to the type of interference experienced.

In some instances appeals for aid might properly be directed to the American Standards association, New York City. This organization affords representation to all interested in the reduction of electrically caused noises. The Institute of Radio Engineers, the Institute of Radio Service Men, the Radio Manufacturers association, the National Association of Broadcasters, and the Radio Club of America, among other groups, are coöperating with the Standards association toward the end of eliminating interference.

Interference caused by diathermy and other medical equipment is occupying the attention of FCC engineers, it has announced, because of its deleterious effect on television and other transmissions in the higher frequencies. The commission recently received a resolution from a police radio department association requesting it to declare diathermy a nuisance to police radio.

Pending further legislation clarifying the FCC's jurisdiction in this matter, the commission announced that it is making every effort to alleviate the diathermy interference thru coöperative efforts with manufacturers, the medical profession and the radio industry.

Elson on Coast.

Bob Elson, W-G-N and Mutual sportscaster, is in California watching the major league baseball teams in training. Elson's trip to the coast has become an annual affair. He will be back in Chicago in time for the opening day game.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 25.

Nicotine, such as Black Leaf 40, used at the rate of a teaspoonful to a gallon of water, is very effective for controling sucking insects on indoor and outdoor plants. Aphis spreads faster than any other insect and appear on all kinds of plants. They are the little green bugs found on the under side of the leaves and on the tender tips of a plant. They prefer the soft, juicy parts and are most destructive until controled.

Tuesday, March 26.

Fish oil soapy water used as wash on palms, rubber plants, lilacs, and other shrubs will kill scale insects. This is a simple method; the material can be obtained from supply houses. The red spider is a sucking insect that may be controled by spraying with water under pressure or by dusting with sulphur. Oil sprays are recommended.

Wednesday, March 27.

Transplant all seedlings that are above the soil and large enough to handle. Use a screened soil with little manure; never use dry soil, but have it moist enough to crumble easily. Cover drainage holes with pot shreds or other material, press down the soil with a board, and make straight lines. A sharpened pencil is a good dibber. Sprinkle after planting and cover with newspaper during the day or when in sun until the plants are established.

Thursday, March 28.

Petunias are among the finest of all window box plants, especially the small flowered rosy morn type for they are profuse bloomers and tend to cover the face of the box. They require a sunny location. Buy established, pinched plants from the greenhouse for good results. New hybrid grafted nut trees are available and should prove valuable to those living in suburban districts. Black walnut "stabler" has the thinnest shell, and a rich, mellow flavor. The "Thomas" grows rapidly.

Friday, March 29.

Annual vines that are good in baskets are the black-eyed Susan, maurandia barclaiana, and Kenilworth ivy. Here are a few annulas that may be grown in partial shade: China aster, cornflower, pansy, torenia, sweet alyssum, snapdragon, monkeyflower, and forget-me-not. If the China asters have failed to do well in the past, change locations.

Saturday, March 30.

Do not waste seed by sowing too thick. Seedlings that crowd one another frequently damp-off and die because of the excess of moisture around them and the resultant entrance of fungus disease. Transplant very early to avoid root disturbance. Stir the soil between rows of seedlings. Never permit the soil in the seed box to dry out or the young, tender plants may be injured.

OLD FRONT PORCH ON FLAT BUILDING GOES IN DISCARD

Removal Helps Lighting and Aids Appearance.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

People are thinking seriously about their houses these days—what to do for them, how to improve them. They know they have good money invested in them and they want to safeguard their investments.

Usually in this department we discuss only one family homes. There is, however, a four apartment home at 7314 South Lowe avenue, which is such a practical and excellent example of what a slight piece of plastic surgery can do for the exterior of a building that it is well worth noting. It is a popular piece of surgery, tho usually the operation is performed on houses rather than on apartments. It is the removal of an old front porch and the installation of a new entrance and steps.

The owner, William M. George, has believed in the value of change and improvement for a structure which doesn't grow any younger each year—unless its youth is retained by definite outside assistance.

Improves Lighting.

A few years ago Mr. George made quite a change by converting the two apartment home into a four apartment building. Then last fall he decided that further improvement could be effected by removal of the old, heavy front porch. This would lighten the first floor apartment and simplify the exterior. He also selected a quiet, attractive new entrance and door and built new concrete steps with wrought iron rails. Mr. George's decision was more than justified by results. The operation was slight, but the improvement was worthwhile.

Many other exterior changes are possible for spring and summer accomplishment.

Sometimes attractive landscape planting will improve an exterior. It will tie a house closer to its site and alter its appearance surprisingly.

Often heavy, overhanging eaves can spoil the roof lines, and removal of these eaves works a great deal of difference.

New Sash Practical.

Replacement of awkward and ungainly windows can repay the cost of renewal by the improvement in exterior appearance. If sash is warping or rotting, new sash is practical, as well as ornamental. Then, too, a new bay, added to give more light and space to a room, also can be made the axis of a nice little garden court for summer living.

Expertly handled shutters can likewise contribute a happy exterior note to a house—well proportioned, simple shutters, according to modern tastes. We see shutters at entrances, too, sometimes. And in considering shutters, there are always the many potentialities of color they offer and the added vitality which dark shutters give to white or light walls.

Then, too, spring is the time when the restorer of a home takes to paint. In its dual capacity of decorative surface and protective covering, paint's value cannot be overstressed.

Styling with paint is now a recognized term in house parlance. This means, in brief, using color on a house in a manner that is in tune with the times.

LEGION TO CELEBRATE AMERICANISM NIGHT AT WEBER BROADCAST

The annual celebration of Americanism night by Medill-Tribune post of the American Legion will be held in the main studio of W-G-N, where the program, "Pageant of Melody," directed by Henry Weber, will be broadcast for an audience of 600 guests from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

L. N. Bittinger, department commander of Illinois, will deliver the principal talk on "Americanism." Preceding the broadcast talks will be given by Matthew Murphy, national vice commander of the Legion; William Collins, Cook county commander, and Hayes Kennedy, president of the Legion's boys' state group. The Rev. Thomas Burke of St. Hilary's church will be chaplain.

In the musical portion of the program Wesley Summerfield, tenor, and Miss Helen Bartush, contralto, will be featured with the music of the W-G-N concert orchestra and the octet.

"CHRIST RISEN" IS SONG TODAY

TRIBUNE RADIO PROGRAM TO BE YOUTH GUIDE

Future Citizenship Is Basic Idea.

Philip Maxwell.
[Nelidoff Photo.]

A new half hour radio program of special interest to youth of America entitled "Citizens of Tomorrow," and sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be initiated on W-G-N Wednesday night, April 3, from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. Six hundred students from a Chicago high school will be guests in the audience studio each Wednesday night.

Lake View High will be the first school to attend one of these programs. On the following Wednesday evenings Austin and Parker High schools will be the guests.

Stress on Responsibility.

All the programs will stress the students' responsibility for future citizenship. Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE TRIBUNE, director of its annual Chicagoland Music Festival, who speaks before 50,000 high school students each fall at the presentation of THE TRIBUNE R. O. T. C. medals, will be master of ceremonies. He will take the part of "The Principal."

Other characters will be "Jerry," a cute and lovable co-ed of all high schools, and Charlie Jones, every school's engineer. The school chorus will sing and cheers led by the yell leaders will be heard on the air. The stage will be decorated with the school colors and banners.

Another feature will be a TRIBUNE headline news quiz conducted by "The Principal." Participants will be two teams, three boys and three girls, chosen just before the beginning of the program by the studio announcer. News reports from high school campuses thruout Chicagoland, the items gathered by star correspondents of THE TRIBUNE, will be given.

Help on Program.

Coöperating with Blair Walliser, production man on W-G-N, will be Harold Kent of the Radio Council, and Miss Helen Howe, director of music, both of the Chicago public schools.

Following the broadcast the 600 students will be shown the film, "Trees to Tribunes," and 100 of the audience will be taken on a tour of Tribune Tower. This trip will include visits to the editorial, composing, stereotyping, engraving, press, and circulation rooms. The tour will be so scheduled that this smaller group may leave for home around 9 o'clock.

Schools wishing to be guests of this program should write direct to Mr. Maxwell, care of THE TRIBUNE.

K. OF C. COUNCIL IS TO OBSERVE FOUNDING DAY

San Salvador council of the Knights of Columbus in the Roseland district will observe the founding of the national order by a program of activities this week.

Opening the festivities, members will meet tomorrow evening in the clubhouse, 24 East 114th place, for a belated St. Patrick's show. The history of the order will also be read. Tim Griffin will be chairman.

A founders' night athletic show will be held Tuesday evening in St. Willibrord's hall, 11406 Edbrooke avenue. The feature will be the National league baseball film, "Play Ball, America." Jack Sheehan, park district recreation supervisor, will be commentator.

Chairman of the athletic program is James Malone. Tickets may be obtained from parish chairmen: John Labzentis, All Saints'; Joseph DuBois, Holy Rosary Irish; John Kristin, Holy Rosary Slovak; Peter Chidichimo, St. Anthony; Oreal Crepeau, St. Catherine's; Emile Royer, St. Louis'; Oscar Hines, St. Mary's; Matt Thullen, St. Nicholas'; Stacy Rimkus, St. Peter and St. Paul; Stanley Hodur, St. Salomea, and Charles DuBois, St. Willibrord.

LITHUANIAN UNIT TO HAVE PARTY SUNDAY EVENING

There will be a revival of the old Lithuanian egg rolling game at the annual Easter program of Lithuanian Roman Catholic Alliance, lodge 33, next Sunday in All Saints' hall, 10806 Wabash avenue. Other numbers on the program will be a comedy, ancient folk songs by a ladies' choral society, and dancing.

Special guests will include Leonard Stimutis, president of the alliance; Dr. A. A. Rakauskas, Miss Eva Lukocius, Lithuanian journalist and radio commentator, and Anthony Vanagaitis, Lithuanian radio artist.

The committee in charge will be made up of Edmond B. Kancevicius and George Smulkis, students of Northwestern university; Peter Nedveras, president of the lodge; Kazimer Rubinas, secretary; Mrs. Matilda Rubinas, vice president; John Lastauskas, treasurer, and Joseph Chutra.

Prelude to Pier Flower Show

Tall, waxen lipped lilies will come out of their hothouse confinement today to symbolize Easter. They will nod on candle lit altars and beckon at the windows of many homes. Women gardeners of Illinois will pause in their preparations for the annual Chicago Flower show, which will open Saturday afternoon to continue until April 7 on Navy pier, to decorate their own homes with the Easter flowers. Two of them are Miss Evaline Howell, 10412 Claremont avenue (right), and Miss Eloise Fischer, 9930 Seeley avenue. Eight south and southwest side garden groups affiliated with the Illinois Garden club will have entries in the Navy pier show. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Kites to Soar Over Parks in City Contest

Novelty kite in 1939.

More than 3,000 Chicagoland kite flying fans, ranging in age from youngsters in rompers to their grandparents, will enter the second annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE city-wide kite contest to be held with the coöperation of the park district April 27 in Grant park.

Out of the thousands of entrants eight Chicagoland kite flying champions are to be chosen by expert park district judges. The eight champions will be awarded silver trophies furnished by this newspaper. Other winners are to be given ribbon awards by the park district.

The rules are simple. There is no age limit; anybody who can fly a kite is eligible. The one main restriction is that all kites in the contest must be homemade. No factory made kites will be admitted. You may construct your own kite with expert assistance in the craft rooms of your local park fieldhouse. Materials will be supplied free.

Starts in Neighborhoods.

The contest, like last year's, will be run in the form of a round robin tournament. Preliminary elimination contests will be held at neighborhood parks on April 5, 6, and 8. You have until April 5 to enter the contest.

An entry blank is printed in today's paper. Simply fill in your name, address, and age, then check the contest division or divisions you wish to enter. Take the coupon to your near-

TEMPLARS TO UNITE THIS AFTERNOON IN EASTER OBSERVANCE

Charles Hunt Toothe.

Commanderies of the Knights Templar will coöperate in Easter services at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Medinah temple, Ohio and Wabash avenue, under the direction of the Senior Officers' association. Charles Hunt Toothe of Galesburg, grand commander of the state of Illinois, will attend.

Fourteen groups of the first and second district will parade before the services. The speaker will be the Rev. Edwin V. Griswold of St. Elizabeth Episcopal church, 62d and St. Louis avenue. Two features of the afternoon will be a living cross formed on the stage by the Daughters of Job under the direction of Mrs. Alma T. Bolton and the 9 o'clock prayer by the De Molay boys.

Norman J. Kissick will be marshal and William T. Slyce will be general chairman. In the march will be William N. Boller, illustrious potentate of Medinah temple.

KELLY MUSICAL GROUPS TO GIVE SPRING CONCERT

The fifth spring concert of Kelly High school's music department will be held Thursday and Friday evenings in the school auditorium, 4136 California avenue. Proceeds will be used to purchase new instruments and music, as well as to repair present equipment. The symphony orchestra, the girls' choir, the mixed chorus, concert band and the full band will take part. Directors of the groups are Miss Hazel Dallach and F. R. Borger. Soloists and ensembles on the program include Alex Bogdan, national champion tenor sax soloist, a clarinet quartet, and a drum and cymbal quintet.

Garden Clubs Join in Spring Flower Show

Azaleas, despite the popularity of the robin, are a real sign of spring. Appropriately, there will be a garden of them at the entrance of Navy pier when the annual Chicago flower show opens Saturday to continue until April 7. The show is sponsored by the Garden Club of Illinois and eight south and southwest side garden groups, affiliated with the club, will enter exhibits.

To aid the small homeowner and in keeping with the little colonial homes now being built, the show will be centered around the theme "Gardens of the Present Day."

Formal and Informal.

There will also be appropriate plantings for garden pavilions and "gazebos," outdoor fireplaces, garden gates, garages, tool houses, and several types of fence. There will be formal and informal gardens, terrace gardens, kitchen gardens, several entrance treatments of varying types, porches furnished with flowering and pollage plants and carrying vines, garden rooms and window gardens.

In a room separated from the rest of the show there will be 10 formal dinner tables, 10 luncheon tables and five buffet tables entered by member groups of the club. Three tables will be the work of south and southwest side garden clubs.

A luncheon table and a garden will be entered by the garden department of the Beverly Hills Woman's club headed by Mrs. C. J. Farwell. Assisting Mrs. Farwell with the arrangements are Mrs. C. F. Radden, Mrs. John B. Mortenson, Mrs. Robert J.

Music and Sermons to Note Easter.

"Jesus answered and said unto them, 'Destroy this temple and in three days I will raise it up.'"—John ii, 19, A. V.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Easter is the triumph of Christianity. The divine mystery of Christ's resurrection from the dead after three days in the tomb, has stood for almost 2,000 years as the pinnacle of proof to Christians that the soul, "the temple of God," is immortal.

Protestants in many churches will gather at dawn to pray in commemoration of the opening of the tomb. Choirs will combine to strengthen their musical praises. Cantatas will be sung and sermons will have lofty themes. Children will stage Sunday school programs and young people's societies will meet for movies and religious dramas.

Will Receive Communion.

Catholics will receive communion before lily-decked altars at many masses this morning. Noon time will bring the solemn pageantry of high mass and the swelling Hosannas of Easter music.

On the southwest side, many churches will broadcast their services over local and city stations. Hundreds of residents will be received into the membership of various churches and baptisms will be part of the Easter observance.

The Rev. Luther Schuessler, associate pastor of Our Redeemer church, 6430 Harvard avenue, will broadcast the sermon at 3 o'clock this afternoon for a special Easter service on the Chicago Lutheran hour over station WCFL. His topic will be "The Open Tomb." Music will be provided by the choir of the church under the direction of Dr. Karl Meyer.

The altar and chancel of the German Evangelical Zion church, 8326 Green street, will be profusely decorated with Easter lilies and seasonal flowers for a special worship at 10 o'clock this morning. Musical numbers will include "Easter Processional," by I. V. Flagler; "Meditation," by William Faulkes, and "Postlude in E," by Edmund Duncan. The church choir will sing "In the End of the Sabbath," by Oley Speaks.

Eighteen young parsons, received into the church on Palm Sunday, will receive their first communion at the service attended by their parents and sponsors. The Rev. Albert J. Koch, pastor, will preach on the subject, "Resurrection Hope."

Offer Joint Concert.

The Salvation Army's Chicago staff band and the a cappella choir of the Chicago Christian High school will give a joint concert at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Englewood Baptist church, 413 Englewood avenue, under the sponsorship of the Army's Englewood corps. Col. William H. Barrett, chief secretary, or second in command in the Army's Central States territory, will be guest speaker. He also will conduct the Easter services at the corps this morning and evening.

Capt. William Blomgren, corps commander, who has arranged the concert, has been assisted by the Rev. Howard Vernon of the Englewood Baptist church, the Rev. Karl Meyers, president of the Southtown Ministerial association and pastor of Grace Evangelical church, the Rev. C. Emil Bergquist of Bethel Lutheran church and the Rev. Donald Harrington of the People's Liberal church.

Featured number of the concert will be the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah," by both the band and chorus. The chorus director is James A. Barr and the bandmaster is Raymond Ogg.

Service at Mission.

Easter observance at the Roseland Evangelical Mission Sunday Bible school, 11032 Indiana avenue, will begin at 9:30 o'clock this morning with the story of the resurrection being told in all class sessions. A special Easter worship will be held in the English language at 10:15 o'clock.

A young people's choir of 30 voices will sing "He Arose" and the new pastor, the Rev. Eugene Wernberg from Austin, Tex., will speak on "Why Did Jesus Rise?" Irving Bruhn, a student from the Northern Baptist Theological seminary, and Arthur Olson from the Free Church Bible academy, will also take part on the program.

"Does Christ Live?" will be the topic of a sermon by the Rev. Philip Yarrow, pastor of Pilgrim Mayflower Congregational church, 4'th place and Princeton avenue, at an 11 o'clock sermon this morning. The Sunday school will present a special program at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

An Easter festival will be broadcast from the tower of the People's Evangelical Lutheran church, 110th and State streets, at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The junior and senior choirs, totaling 45 voices, will participate. The Rev. George J. Ehrich, pastor, will preach.

Will Sing Cantata.

The choir of the Garfield Boulevard United Presbyterian church, Garfield boulevard and Throop street, will sing the cantata "Calvary" at 11 o'clock this morning in the church. The new pastor, the Rev. W. Greer McCrory, will deliver the sermon. Additional services will be Bible school

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

Allan Stevenson.

PROF. CECIL B. WILLIAMS, 1645 West 105th street and Prof. Allan H. Stevenson, 1362 East 54th street, have become a team of co-authors. Faculty members of the College of Commerce at De Paul university, they have written a manual of instruction in the theory and technique of the undergraduate research article or term paper. The book was used in manuscript form in De Paul English courses during the first semester and has now been adapted by the Harper Publishing company for nationwide use. It is regarded as a pioneer text of its kind, containing guides and bibliography for the preparation of research papers in any field.

William Gates, 6909 Woodlawn avenue, has become a member of the De Paul chapter of Gamma Eta Gamma, national legal fraternity.

A princess was born on the near south side recently. She is Princess Mariama O. Fayoyin, daughter of Prince Adebayo Olawumi of Oton, Nigeria, in West Africa, whose father is recognized by the king of England as head of Nigeria, a British protectorate. The prince has waived the glory of his royal family in Africa and currently is content to teach the Yoruba language at 3839 Giles avenue. He has three other children: Prince Ayo, 5 years old, and Princesses Romica, 3 years old, and Lodita, 2 years old.

Princess Romica once received a letter from Queen Elizabeth, says her father, and he is proud of the fact that the Royal Scouts of Nigeria, who, incidentally, also live on the south side, came to visit his newly born.

Two Our Towners are looking forward to the pleasure of adding Phi Beta Kappa keys to their watch chains. They are Matthew T. Gladstone, 5343 University avenue, and Jack Indritz, 914 East 61st street, both of the University of Chicago. They will be initiated into Beta of Illinois chapter at the close of the spring quarter.

Roger Slugg of Chicago Heights is one of 61 Grinnell college students who will be in Chicago from Tuesday to Friday this week to try and find out what the average business man wants in prospective employés these days. It is the fifth annual vocation discovery project sponsored by the college. According to Machin Gardner, alumni director of the survey, the students are coming not to hunt jobs but to discover their chances of success in their chosen vocation. They will incorporate the results of their interviews in their course of preparatory training at school. Roger also made the trip last year.

IF you are one of the boys who graduated from the Wentworth school with Leonard Jacobson—he was the small, light complexioned, and aggressive boy in the class—he'd appreciate it if you'd get in touch with him at his home, 7226 South Lafayette avenue. Last June Leonard decided he'd like to assemble the 140 graduates of the class of '29 for a reunion but several months trying to contact them netted only 10 members. Since then the number has risen to 52 and the group will hold its second meeting on April 1 at Leonard's home. Two former classmates, Richard Williams, 6714 South Peoria street, and Glenn Ramshaw, 622 West 71st street, are aiding him in the drive.

9 WOMEN SEEK PRIMARY VOTES FOR ASSEMBLY

Demand Economy in Government.

Nine women from the Chicago area are seeking nominations for the general assembly in the April primary. Their platforms contain not the faintest hint of what once was known as "woman's rights."

Without exception the nine are campaigning for economy in government. Most of them favor parole reform. All favor removal of the sales tax on food and the extension of the merit system in civil service.

Of the nine candidates in and about Chicago, three, all from outlying suburbs, now sit in the legislature. They comprise three-fourths of the legislature's femininity, the fourth being Mrs. Lizzie Barnes of Carmi. All three are Republicans, and the nomination of each seems assured. Nonetheless, all are campaigning.

From "Shoestring" District.

One is Mrs. Bernice Van der Vries of Winnetka, who has represented the winding 7th, or "shoestring," district, which embraces 94 country towns on Chicago's outskirts, since 1934. The second is Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downers Grove, who went to Springfield from the 41st district [Will and Du Page counties] in 1922 as the "woman's hope" and has been, with the exception of one term, a legislative fixture ever since.

The third is Mrs. Maude N. Peffers o Aurora, now serving her first term in the footsteps of her husband, John, who represented the district, the 14th [Kane and Kendall counties], for six terms until his death in 1936.

Mrs. Van der Vries is considered an able legislator and debater of note. She has done effective work on many important committees, and now is chairman of the Illinois commission for intergovernmental coöperation, which seeks to overcome interstate trade barriers. Of the legislature's 34 commissions, she is the only woman chairman.

Record for Women.

According to a recent survey, Mrs. O'Neill has had more legislative experience than any other woman in the country. She doesn't know whether this is true, but says, confidently, "I'll have had 18 years when I get thru the next session."

Little, aggressive, and a bit acid if given cause, she is stressing public education, the merit system, and removal of state institutions from politics. She voted for parole reform, as did Mrs. Van der Vries.

Mrs. Peffers turned out to be a serious legislator and showed an avidity for committee work. "I liked studying the bills in committee and hearing the arguments," she says, "but then I found it all interesting."

Three in Race.

In Chicago proper, the 5th, or Hyde Park, district with its polyglot of intellectuals, immigrants, and Negroes has become a feminine battle ground. Three women [as well as 18 men] are tussling for its three seats in the legislature.

They are Matilda Fenberg [R.], 5401 Cornell avenue, attorney, who won the Republican nomination in 1938; Helene Leach [D.], 5481 Ellis avenue, also an attorney and an active Young Democrat, and Margaret Kathryn Woods [R.], 5408 University avenue, a skin analyst and self-styled amateur playwright.

Miss Fenberg has a background of 18 years' legal practice and two years [1929-'31] as assistant corporation counsel. She was the first woman to matriculate at Yale law school. Miss Leach, so young she will not reveal her age, has been practicing law five years and has been active in Democratic circles since 1936, when she headed the state First Voters' league. She is supporting the Stelle-Barrett-Adamowski ticket. Miss Woods, a newcomer to politics, says she has been worried about general conditions in the 5th district since 1928.

Negro Social Worker.

Irene McCoy Gaines [R.], 3262 Vernon avenue, who is running in the 1st district, is a well known Negro social worker. A graduate of Fisk university, with graduate work at the University of Chicago and Loyola university, she served on Hoover's housing commission and his Republican national planning board. She worked six years with the social service bureau of the Cook county bureau of public welfare and later was a caseworker with the IERC and the CRA.

Mrs. Cora A. Graham [R.] of 4033 Ellis avenue is running in the 3d district, that portion of the near south side into which 48 per cent of Chicago's relief goes. Mrs. Graham, a fire insurance broker, has been active in politics and civic affairs for 25 years.

Right now she wants to get gasoline tax funds to open Pershing road as far as Brookfield and to open 43d street to Western avenue. She thinks she knows the district's needs and could do it great good in Springfield.

Mrs. Rose Lamberty [R.] of 2104 North Keystone avenue seeks the nomination in the 25th district on the northwest side. She has been active in 36th ward politics for 20 years. She and her husband, Theodore, have four children, and this is her first campaign. She is interested in abolition of the sales tax, the open primary, prison, and parole reform. "I sound like Salvation Nell," she laughs, "but I mean it."

Voice of the Southwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Southwest Side, The Tribune.

JOBS FOR YOUTHS.

The people back of the yards are inherently honest and good, law abiding citizens. There is less crime here than in any locality in the city. The influence of the churches is very great. The amount of juvenile delinquency in this district is directly related to the economic conditions of the people. In cases where local employers coöperate with the courts, 85 per cent of the boys make good. All they want is a chance to earn their living and to have some spending money.

One remedy for the situation would be for business in the district to take more interest in neighborhood people and to employ the young people. Another remedy is the development of more recreation centers so that boys and girls will have a decent, clean outlet for their energy. The money in various funds thruout the neighborhood could be used to good advantage to help the youth. We, the Back of the Yards Neighborhood council, and our affiliated churches, labor, fraternal organizations and athletic clubs, are endeavoring to tackle our juvenile delinquency problem from both angles, and we ask for the coöperation of local business men.

BACK OF THE YARDS NEIGHBORHOOD COUNCIL.

PRAISES TRIBUNE AID.

Tilden Technical High school and its P.-T. A. wishes to thank THE TRIBUNE for the publicity about its recent hobby show. The picture was really outstanding—and placed in such a prominent spot. It was just excellent. From all reports the hobby show went over big, not just because I happen to be chairman this year, but every one has coöperated so splendidly. My sincere thanks to THE TRIBUNE. MRS. CARL A. HANSEN.

Kelley, district chairman of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Bruce M. Chamberlin, district membership chairman. Guests will include Thelma Taylor, president of the Morgan Park Business and Professional Women's club, and Mrs. Louise Waldmarson, vocalist.

Mrs. Edwin Koester, branch chairman, will preside over the meeting and Mrs. Edgar Mawhinnie, program chairman, will introduce Mr. Grimes.

SHARP FIGHTS MARK RACE FOR COMMITTEEMAN

That in 16th Ward One of Most Heated.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Robert C. Rohn.

As the April election of ward committeeman gets closer the southwest side continues to watch several of the most heated campaigns in the city.

The most outstanding of the southwest side and in the entire city so far as the Democratic party is concerned is the race between former alderman and present committeeman Terence F. Moran and Alderman John S. Boyle in the 16th ward.

Moran was ward leader and alderman for 21 years. During that time he held positions on every important council committee. For many years he swamped opposition when the aldermanic elections were conducted.

At the last aldermanic election John S. Boyle, who was allied with State's Attorney Courtney, at that time opposing the Kelly-Nash machine, ran for alderman and defeated Moran in a runoff.

Questions City Spending.

In the council Boyle represents the small minority opposition group and has endeavored to build himself up as the council watchdog. He constantly questions ordinances relating to the expenditure of city funds.

Moran is campaigning along standard lines of practice and has hopes of getting out a large vote thru the use of precinct captains.

Boyle is attacking Moran thru organization work.

Has Three Opponents.

Harry Carlson.

On the Republican side in the 16th ward the incumbent, William H. Reid, is facing a three way attack from Len Folland, Maurice E. O'Connell, and Fred F. Linke.

Reid, who is allied with the Brooks-Lyons organization, has been committeeman for 20 years and is campaigning on his record. His organization is working in every precinct of the ward and is conducting a serious house to house campaign.

Folland, who is supporting Dwight Green for governor, boasts that he is one of Reid's strongest political enemies. He entered Republican politics in 1914 and for a while was allied with the Reid organization. He claims workers in 65 of the 76 precincts of the ward, and is opening headquarters at 5531 South Ashland avenue.

O'Connell is controler for the Screeno Amusement company, and has been a resident of the ward for 18 years. He has worked on country reassessment programs. He is holding organization meetings "behind closed doors," according to his statement, because his opponents might endeavor to attract his workers if they were seen in open meetings.

Fred Linke, a Green candidate, has previously campaigned against Reid. In 1932 he received 3,200 votes for committeeman against 3,800 for Reid. He has lived in the ward for 45 years, and is a member of the Thoburn Methodist church and the Rainbow Masonic lodge. He is in the vinegar business.

In 19th Ward.

In the 19th ward another Republican contest is in progress. There Robert C. Rohn, who has been committeeman since 1932, is opposed by Harry A. Carlson. Rohn is with Brooks-Lyons and Carlson with Green.

Rohn has lived in the ward for 35 years. He conducts a wholesale potato business. He served 18 months overseas in the world war, and is a charter member of Beverly Hills post of the American Legion. In 1934 he was a Republican candidate for county commissioner.

Carlson claims that if elected he will "consolidate Republican strength as a representative basis in a ward that is dominantly Republican." He has lived in the ward for 19 years, and is a practicing attorney. He is active in the Chicago, state, and American Bar associations, and is a member of the committee on taxation of the Illinois Bar association.

Aids Fete Night Plans

Miss Yolanda Hickey of Kankakee, president of the senior class of Rosary college, River Forest, will be co-chairman of the annual Fete night celebration April 5 at the college. Fete night is the traditional card party, style show, and dance of the school. [J. D. Toloff Studio.]

APRIL FOOL'S DAY DANCE ON CLUB PROGRAM

The Southtown Social club will hold an April Fool's day dance at 8 o'clock next Sunday evening at the Southtown Hebrew congregation, 7742 South Racine avenue.

Rivian Warshaw, 7839 Lowe avenue, is in charge of arrangements, assisted by a committee made up of Toby Wise, Jerome Brown, Marion Rayman, Melvin Herzog, and Leonard Goldman.

Mrs. H. H. Jaffe of 1012 West 67th street became the sponsor of the club recently.

PREDICT RETURN OF 3 DISTRICTS TO G. O. P. FOLD

Congressional Candidates Increase Strength.

Indications that three Democratic congressional districts on Chicago's south and southwest sides will return to the Republican fold in the November election, resulted last week in the development of strong contests among Republican congressional candidates in this area.

One of the districts where the voters are expected to swing back to their normal Republican support is the 1st, the stronghold of the city's colored vote. There Attorney William E. King, committeeman of the 2d ward, is finding the going difficult against an awakened Republican slate that includes seven other candidates, among them the redoubtable Oscar DePriest.

King's campaign also is meeting opposition from Patrick B. Prescott, attorney and son-in-law of the late Bishop A. J. Carey of the African Methodist Episcopal church. Another candidate who is spending considerable money on his campaign is Carl A. Hansberry, prominent business man, who in his first campaign for public office is running as an independent.

Willard S. Townsend, president of the International Brotherhood of Red Caps, is also making a hot fight in this district to wrest the Democratic nomination from Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell. Townsend, who has shown himself to be a wily campaigner, is seeking the labor vote and promising his support to legislation that will assist Negroes to jobs.

In the 2d district, which is known among politicians as the "Hyde Park district," another Republican dog-fight is in progress. Out of 11 candidates five have shown themselves to be strong contenders. The trading and bargaining for ward organization support here is loud and ceaseless, because all five of the stronger candidates believe they have an excellent opportunity to defeat Raymond S. [Anti-Dies] McKeough in November.

Byrne Gets Support.

Emmet F. Byrne, former assistant state's attorney and assistant corporation counsel, who won high praise from the Chicago Bar association when he was a candidate for Municipal court judge in 1936, appears to be the standout. In that year he polled more than 600,000 votes altho defeated in the Democratic landslide.

His strongest opponents are Patrick H. Moynihan, who was the district's congressman in 1932; Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], who was a candidate in 1932; Edward J. Finan, a leader in south side and Cook county veteran's organizations, who is said to have won considerable support from various wards; and John T. Conlon, 7550 Oglesby avenue, a 7th ward Republican worker.

Congressman McKeough, Democratic incumbent, is expected to receive full machine support in the primary and find the going easy against Edward P. Garrity, 4830 Kimbark avenue, his outstanding opponent. McKeough's chances have been hurt by his vote against continuance of the Martin Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

Dosland Gains Support.

Goodwin L. Dosland, 11831 South Longwood drive, the Republican nominee in the 3d district in 1938, has been given the support during the last week of the elected committeemen of his party. This should virtually assure his nomination over Waldemar J. Roehler, former Republican minority member of the old West Park board, his most formidable pursuer.

Dosland has a record of having run up 100,357 votes in the 1938 November election against Congressman Edward A. Kelly. The latter's plurality at that time was 27,240 votes. Dosland and his supporters say they will run up a higher plurality this year.

Kelly, who is seeking the renomination with machine support, is reported to have little opposition in Frank Pulaski, 3928 West 66th street, and Eugene T. Horn, 5930 South Campbell avenue.

Cast in Play

Mrs. Charles E. Haney, 314 West 72d street, will have one of the leading roles in the three act comedy, "The Door That Didn't Lock," to be produced by the drama department of Hamilton Park Woman's club Tuesday afternoon in Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard.

DEDICATE NEW PALOS VILLAGE HALL SATURDAY

Day of Festivities Is on Schedule.

G. V. Hermanson.

Palos Park, smart suburban community and home of many now famous artists, writers, and political economists, will celebrate the dedication of a new $80,000 village hall with a day's festivities Saturday. The hall replaces an old clubhouse which was built 87 years ago. The history of Palos dates back to 1835 when the first settlers made their homes in the hills. Mrs. Henry Munch, a resident, among her heirlooms has a land grant from the government to her grandfather, George Pettijohn, which was signed in 1839 by President Martin Van Buren. Old Spanish and French coins and weapons and relics of the early military and missionary expeditions have been found in Palos.

It has been the home of the late Lorado Taft, sculptor; Sven Svensen, noted painter; Sherwood Anderson, writer; Thorstein Veblen, political economist; Donald Richberg, and others.

Project Began in 1938.

The project for the new village hall began in July, 1938, and the corner stone was laid in November of that year. Work was completed last month. The building houses council chambers, police magistrate's court, a library, public meeting hall, and auditorium with a seating capacity of 600 which can be converted into a gymnasium, a dining room, a kitchen, two clubrooms, a cloakroom, showers, and washrooms.

A patriotic celebration will begin the festivities at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. A flag and flagpole will be presented to the village by Your Buddy post, an auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and will be accepted by Mayor George V. Hermanson. Capt. William Grace Jr., past department commander of the veterans, and Earl Southard, vice commander, will be guest speakers.

Miss Louise Kriz will read a paper on "I Am an American" and Miss Dorothy Robson will be vocalist. Taking part on the program will be the Palos Junior Girls, the Palos Boy Scout troop, and the Lone Oak troop of the Girl Scouts.

Women Give Library.

The Palos Woman's club will present a permanently equipped library to the village at a ceremony at 4 o'clock. Speakers will be Mrs. Harry W. Crowley, the club president; Mrs. Arthur Lord, Mrs. Mary Moon, and Mrs. Lorado Taft. Refreshments will be served in the banquet rooms of the hall under the sponsorship of the Civic league.

Mrs. Crowley will be assisted in the presentation by the club officers, Mrs. Martin A. Olson, first vice president; Mrs. Donald M. Smith, second vice president; Mrs. A. M. Bressler, recording secretary; Mrs. Joel L. Collins, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Peter Wagner, treasurer, and members of the furnishings' purchasing committee, Mrs. J. W. Mahaffay, Mrs. George B. Ward, and Mrs. Lord, chairman.

Children in Drill.

The Palos Park school, district 118, will take part in a musical, drill, and dancing program at 4:30 o'clock. Ellsworth J. Bechtloff is principal of the school and Mrs. Logan S. Furry is president of the Parent-Teacher association.

Mayor Hermanson will preside at the evening celebration at 7:30 o'clock. An invocation will be given by the Rev. C. A. Rawson, after which Mrs. B. F. Hyink will sing the "Star Spangled Banner," accompanied by Don Smith. Thomas Quin will be master of ceremonies.

Speakers on the program will be Donald Richberg, Frank Wilson, and Charles E. Miner. Congressman Edward A. Kelly will dedicate the building. Selections will be sung by a choral group under the direction of Glenn Harding and Mrs. Lillian Itzel, associate director. The Rev. J. L. Rooney will say benediction at the close of the program. Social dancing will take up the remainder of the evening.

On Invitation List.

Guests expected at the evening program are United States Senators Scott W. Lucas and James M. Slattery, State Representative Arthur Bidwell, County Clerk Michael J. Flynn, County Board President Clayton F. Smith, and Sheriff John Toman. Officials of Worth, Orland, Blue Island, Lemont, Tinley Park, Oak Lawn, Chicago Ridge, Midlothian, Mokena, and Willow Springs will also be present.

Officials of Palos Park besides Mayor Hermanson are Charles Heidel, commissioner in charge of accounts and finance; Logan Furry, commissioner in charge of public health and safety; A. M. Bressler, commissioner in charge of highways; Robert A. Firalyo, commissioner in charge of public safety; Emmet J. Flavin, attorney; Frank G. King, clerk, and Lester Mahaffay, police magistrate.

Looks Like Big Easter for Mary

It's going to be a big Easter for little Mary Alice Finnegan, judging from the bunny which was left at her door and from its basket which could do justice as a perambulator. Altho the bunny is almost as large as its 2 year old owner, no one would dare to take it from her. Like any other red headed Irishman, Mary Alice knows when she has a good thing and she's going to keep it, come what may. Yes, it's a big Easter for her, perhaps too big, say her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Finnegan, 8023 Rhodes avenue. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

STATE CENTRAL CAMPAIGN IS MOSTLY ROUTINE

For Democrats It's Just a Love Feast.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Altho there are several lively tilts developing among candidates for the Republican state central committee in the south and southwest sections of Chicagoland, the sterner battles for other party posts have robbed these tussles of their sting. Among the Democrats machine harmony has virtually made the choosing of the committeemen a cut and dried affair.

State central committeemen for both parties are picked by congressional district and elected, not nominated, every two years in the April primaries. One committeeman for each party will be chosen from the following congressional districts either wholly or partly within the south and southwestern areas: 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 6th, and 11th.

No Conflict Now.

According to word from the firing line the Republican battle over the retention by Hill Blackett, Chicago advertising executive, of his national committee seat, has not involved the state central committee fight. This year there is no conflict between the Kelly-Nash forces in the Chicago city hall and the Horner group at the statehouse.

Thus Democratic organization support of candidates is tantamount to election. In 1938 the Horner-Courtney faction was trying to seize one or two of the 10 committee seats the Kelly-Nash machine considers its own in the 10 Chicago congressional districts. The attempt failed and altho the Kelly-Nash faction could have controled the state convention, harmony prevailed and the Hornerites were allowed to rule.

FIRST DISTRICT

Joseph Clark, 67 West Madison street, personal secretary to Ald. Michael Kenna [1st], is the Democratic organization candidate to fill the shoes of the late John [Bath House] Coughlin. His opponent, Alonzo Mead, 53 East 42d street, has virtually no chance.

Mrs. Cornelia J. Pickett, 4252 South Vincennes avenue, is the probable Republican winner. She was elected in the 1938 primary and again has organization support. James R. Zinn, 3801 Wentworth avenue, and William H. Robinson, 4225 Prairie avenue, are also running.

SECOND DISTRICT

Clement A. Nance, 6845 Euclid avenue, is the Republican organization candidate who has won for the last 10 years. His opponent is William F. Marsh, 10337 South Avenue O, who ran 2 to 1 behind Nance in 1938.

James J. Sullivan, 8132 Ellis avenue, chief clerk for the sanitary district and acting chairman of the Democratic state central committee, is the organization candidate here. He is opposed by Joseph C. Kulig, 11738 Prairie avenue.

THIRD DISTRICT

Lester J. Norris, 11347 Longwood drive, secretary of the Republican county central committee, looks like his party's winner. He may be given a close race by Walter H. Villiers, 8903 South Union avenue, candidate for the 19th ward rump labor organization, and by Harold A. Pilgrim, 6406 Eggleston avenue. Two other candidates are Edward J. Nieubuurt, 7520 South Halsted street, and George G. Youstra, 8518 South Hermitage avenue.

David M. Hickey, 1349 West Garfield avenue, present committeeman, has the machine endorsement for the Democrats. Three opponents are Helen J. Pulaski, 3928 West 66th street; Thomas A. O'Connor, 1021 West 76th street and Riley A. Bender, 5927 South Eggleston avenue.

FOURTH DISTRICT

The fight for Republican state central committeeman here is one of the liveliest in the city. Henry H. Harris, 3327 South Aberdeen street, current committee member, is being hard pressed by both Frank E. Palacz, 3661 South Wood street and Charles M. Fasan, 3346 South Hamilton avenue. This situation is complicated somewhat by tough fighting for ward committeeman jobs. Two other Republican candidates here are John L. Guminski, 3150 South Aberdeen street and Frank Belcik, 3307 South Damen avenue.

Patrick G. McGuire, 4335 Princeton avenue, who has been Democratic committeeman since 1922, is again the organization candidate. Sigmund Pawlik, 3742 South Wood street, is his opponent.

SIXTH DISTRICT

John F. Tyrrell, 105 South Mayfield avenue, former chairman of the Republican state central committee and current committeeman from this district, will fight it out with Charles R. Hussey of Forest Park. Tyrrell is associated with the Green-for-governor forces and Hussey with Lyons. Other Republican candidates here are John F. Strohm, 110 South Hamlin avenue; William F. Stoddard, Riverside, and Irving D. Alpert, 1535 South Hamlin avenue.

Edward Sullivan, 3819 Maypole avenue, assistant corporation counsel, is unopposed as Democratic candidate to succeed Richard M. Sullivan.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, dean of the Republican committee and former chairman, has retired here to run for secretary of state and the organization favorite as his successor is Frank A. McCarthy, Elgin attorney. His opponent is George R. Perrine, Aurora attorney and law partner of Charles O'Connor, Kane county state's attorney.

Francis J. Loughran of Joliet, Democratic incumbent, is unopposed,

Senior Students Engaged

The engagement of Miss Helen Oehler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Oehler of 7619 East End avenue, to James F. Ballard II. was announced recently. Mr. Ballard is the son of Mrs. Helen Ballard of St. Louis, Mo. Miss Oehler and Mr. Ballard are members of the senior class at the University of Illinois. [Paul Stone Studio.]

NIGHT MEETINGS ADD SPEED TO ASSEMBLY RACE

Candidates Kept Busy Speechmaking.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

The merry-go-round of candidates aiming at the brass ring of nomination of the state legislature was speeded up last week by nightly political meetings. A dizzy whirl will be maintained from now until the April 9 primary with contestants dashing to three or four ward and precinct rallies every evening.

Beneficiaries of most meetings will be candidates backed by regular party organizations with funds for halls and entertainment. Independents are striving to keep up the pace by appearing before clubs and civic organizations. Some have scheduled "booster night" dances with the aid of friends.

Both attached and unattached candidates are getting whatever help may be obtained from intensive hand shaking and card distribution, with the independents perhaps holding an edge in this line of endeavor.

Early replies to a questionnaire sent to candidates by The Tribune show that an overwhelming majority of those running favor removal of the 3 per cent sales tax from food, altho the constitutionality of the move is questioned by some. Surprisingly, many candidates in this bracket are Democratic incumbents who refused to support the Lund bill for this purpose in the 1939 session of the legislature.

Nomination April 9 will be equivalent to election in four of the eight southwest area senatorial districts. The four "setup" districts are the 3d, 4th, 7th, and 9th. Final contests in the 11th, 13th, 14th, and 41st districts will go over to the November election.

FIFTH DISTRICT

[Ward 5 and parts of wards 3, 4, and 6.]

A ghostly letter was the latest incident in the rivalry over the votes of adherents of the late Prof. James Weber Linn who died during his first term as state representative. Linn's name still packs political punch because he was one of the most loved teachers on the Midway.

David X. Meyers, operator of downtown garages, said he received the letter a few days before Prof. Linn died last year. "Seriously I think you would make a damn good official," Meyers quoted the letter in behalf of his own candidacy. "You are shrewd. You have a kind heart."

Stillman M. Frankland sought posthumous aid from Linn by pointing out that he managed the professor's campaign for a seat in the legislature in 1938.

Meyers, who making a vigorous campaign with the aid of sound trucks making a systematic tour of the district, declared that Linn was a foe of the Nash-Kelly Democratic organization which is supporting Frankland.

Frankland and Representative Louis G. Berman go to meetings together, make house to house canvasses together, and pass out cards on which pictures of both appear. This is unusual because the customary practice is for each candidate to ask voters to mark the ballot for him alone, which counts for three votes.

THIRTEENTH DISTRICT

[Wards 7, 8, 9, and 10; parts of wards 6, 17, and 19, and Calumet township.]

Bernard Goodman of 7408 South Jeffery avenue is putting on a whirlwind campaign against the two Democratic incumbents, Adam S. Mioduski and John G. Ryan, both of whose voting records have been criticized by the Legislative Voters league. He is now their only opponent.

"Take the taint of bossism off of this great district," Goodman is telling the voters. "Both incumbents are pay rollers. They have been nothing but Charlie McCarthies in Springfield."

Goodman is aiding organizing efforts in the district for the Stelle-Adamowski-Barrett combination which is bucking the regular Democratic state ticket. His cards read: "Vote for a good man—Goodman."

'Assembly Aspirants

Ragnar G. Nelson [R.], 13th District. Wm. Edward Wallace [R.], 13th District.

Here are four of the men who are asking south side voters to send them to Springfield as first term members of the house of representatives. Like most of the other aspirants they are pledging themselves to work for some form of reduction in the sales tax.

As a leading Republic of the "lean years" Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg is devoting his many platform appearances to the party cause in general. A member of the house for 20 years and twice G. O. P. floor leader there, Schnackenberg has made a record which has won consistent praise.

"When Republicanism is urged as a means of transferring people from relief rolls to private industry, there are many doubters," Schnackenberg is declaring. "But look at Pennsylvania and Connecticut. After recently electing Republican governors these states have actually increased private pay rolls and reduced the burdensome dole. That is getting somewhere."

There are two nominations in this district, which appears to attract as high grade candidates as any in the state.

George R. Hillstrom, 10855 South Wabash avenue, like Schnackenberg, is both lawyer and real estate dealer. Secretary of the South End Savings and Loan association, Hillstrom is campaigning with the Dwight H. Green forces in the Republican gubernatorial contest.

Walker Butler, 1513 East 66th place, earned his way thru law school by teaching Latin, Greek, and higher mathematics.

Another Lawyer Listed.

William C. Henry, 8924 Blackstone avenue, also an attorney, was Schnackenberg's running mate in the November, 1938, election. He is identified with the Richard J. Lyons-Wayland Brooks ticket.

Ragnar G. Nelson, 400 East Kensington avenue, still another G. O. P. aspirant, is an active member of Local 734 of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union and declares himself to be particularly interested in workers' problems.

"If elected, I will sponsor monthly forums at which representatives of churches and business and civic bodies will be asked to discuss the needs of the district with me," Nelson said.

Wyllys T. T. Miller, 447 East 79th street, is owner of a real estate firm. He has been an appraiser for the Home Owners Loan corporation and for Cook county in the quadrennial reassessment. Going back further, Miller was a member of a government expedition to Controller Bay, Alaska, for tests on coal claims, and of the American Food commission in Berlin after the war.

William Edward Wallace, 7750 Langley, is an attorney who has the indorsement of J. G. Kennedy, vice president of Local 753 of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union. President of his class at the Loyola school of law, Wallace polled more than 6,000 votes when he ran for state representative in 1936. He has a two word platform: "Economy-Fidelity."

Will Head 9,000 Cadets

NAMED COLONEL OF CHICAGO HIGH CADET BRIGADE

Joseph Hind of Lane Is Winner in Test.

Joseph Hind of Lane Technical High school was chosen cadet colonel of the Chicago high school R. O. T. C. brigade last week after an examination given to more than 50 cadet officers from the city's 27 R. O. T. C. schools. The examination, which lasted two and a half hours, was both written and oral.

The other 10 members of the staff, based on the grades they made in the tests, are Donald McMillan of Morgan Park and Raymond Astor of Lake View, lieutenant colonels; Warren Altman of Harper, Robert Johnson of Lane Tech, Robert Ruskamp of Morgan Park, and Arthur Olson of Tilden Tech, majors, and Carl Frantzve of Tilden Tech, James Beird of Hyde Park, William Elghammer of Hirsch, and William Fairchild of Sullivan, captains.

Makeup of Board.

The board which graded the tests consisted of the four Chicago R. O. T. C. supervisors: Lieut. Col. Renn Lawrence, and Majors Joseph Lambert, William Weston, and Robert Renth. The cadet corps staff will precede the annual R. O. T. C. review on Michigan avenue sponsored this spring by THE TRIBUNE.

The annual platoon competition among the R. O. T. C. units of the city will take place Saturday in the 132d infantry armory, 2653 West Madison street. The contest will begin at 9 a. m. and last until the middle of the afternoon; each platoon will be graded by every military instructor but its own.

Order of Parade.

The order in which the crack platoons will appear, changing at 10 minute intervals, is as follows: Von Steuben, Austin, Hirsch, Roosevelt, Du Sable, Sullivan, Harrison, Calumet, Bowen, Harper, Amundsen, Lane, Tilden, Morgan Park, Steinmetz, Lindblom, and Foreman in the morning.

Hyde Park, Marshall, Fenger, Senn, Lake View, Englewood, Kelly, Schurz, Waller, and Crane will appear in the afternoon.

LIONS SPONSOR SHOW TO RAISE IRON LUNG FUND

"Three Cheers for Everything," a benefit show, will be given by the Englewood Lions club in the assembly hall of Englewood High school Wednesday evening. The proceeds will go toward equipping Englewood hospital and St. Bernard's hospital with baby "iron lungs."

Some of the highlights will be contributed by the Parker High school a cappella choir of 75 voices, the Schultz dance studio tap and ballet dancers, the Toppers club sextet of jitterbug couples, Gertrude and Lorraine Puetz, duo-tap dancers; John T. McMahon, juggler; Merrill and Thomas Blazina, the "world's youngest adagio team"; Glenn Pickering, soft shoe and buck and wing dancer from Parker High school, and Mary Kane, Irish ballad singer.

After the program a demonstration of the operation of an "iron lung" will be conducted on the stage of the auditorium by Robert L. Slater, an authority on mechanical respirators.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 25.

Nicotine, such as Black Leaf 40, used at the rate of a teaspoonful to a gallon of water, is very effective for controling sucking insects on indoor and outdoor plants. Aphis spreads faster than any other insect and appear on all kinds of plants. They are the little green bugs found on the under side of the leaves and on the tender tips of a plant. They prefer the soft, juicy parts and are most destructive until controled. Outdoor plants that are sprayed with nicotine seldom are bothered by dogs.

Tuesday, March 26.

Fish oil soapy water used as wash on palms, rubber plants, lilacs, and other shrubs will kill scale insects. This is a simple method; the material can be obtained from supply houses. The red spider is a sucking insect that may be controled by spraying with water under pressure or by dusting with sulphur. Oil sprays are recommended. The lawn can be given the annual spring application of plant food now. Use a complete commercial food. It is unnecessary to water the material down if applied now.

Wednesday, March 27.

Transplant all seedlings that are above the soil and large enough to handle. Use a screened soil with little manure; never use dry soil, but have it moist enough to crumble easily. Cover drainage holes with pot shreds or other material, press down the soil with a board, and make straight lines. A sharpened pencil is a good dibber. Sprinkle after planting and cover with newspaper during the day or when in sun until the plants are established.

Thursday, March 28.

Petunias are among the finest of all window box plants, especially the small flowered rosy morn type for they are profuse bloomers and tend to cover the face of the box. They require a sunny location. Buy established, pinched plants from the greenhouse for good results. New hybrid grafted nut trees are available and should prove valuable to those living in suburban districts. Black walnut "stabler" has the thinnest shell, and a rich, mellow flavor. The "Thomas" grows rapidly, is easy to grow, and is ornamental. The English walnut variety Wiltz-Mayette requires a lime soil and fruits in four years. These are worthy of a trial. Multi-grafted fruit trees also are offered. Five varieties of apples or peaches are worked on a single tree.

Friday, March 29.

Annual vines that are good in baskets are the black-eyed Susan, maurandia barclaiana, and Kenilworth ivy. Here are a few annulas that may be grown in partial shade: China aster, cornflower, pansy, torenia, sweet alyssum, snapdragon, monkeyflower, and forget-me-not. If the China asters have failed to do well in the past, change locations.

Saturday, March 30.

Do not waste seed by sowing too thick. Seedlings that crowd one another frequently damp-off and die because of the excess of moisture around them and the resultant entrance of fungus disease. Transplant very early to avoid root disturbance. Stir the soil between rows of seedlings. Never permit the soil in the seed box to dry out or the young, tender plants may be injured.

INTEREST LAGS IN WILL COUNTY PRIMARY VOTE

G. O. P. Race for Coroner Leads Contests.

With election only two weeks away, candidates in the Will county primary report little public interest in the campaign, a situation that has political observers guessing. They don't know whether it mean a light vote on April 9, or whether the voters, having already decided the question as to how they will cast their ballots, have turned their minds to other questions.

There are five offices at stake in the primary and on the Republican side there is a contest for each, the hottest for coroner.

Four candidates seek the G. O. P. nomination for coroner, Dr. E. A. Kingston, Lockport; Elmer R. Essington, Floyd E. Olson, and Leo Ivnik, all of Joliet. All but Ivnik are rated as contenders. Dr. Kingston, who was defeated for reëlection four years ago by Dr. Londus Brannon, Democratic incumbent, held the office for four terms. A popular figure in the county, Dr. Kingston is considered a strong contender for the nomination, altho there are some political observers who rate Olson as having a slight edge, with Essington and Kingston running as second and third respectively.

Dr. Brannon, who is seeking reëlection, is without opposition on the Democratic ticket.

See Burke Success.

State's Attorney James E. Burke, Joliet, Republican, who is up for election this year, is opposed by Raymond J. Harvey, Joliet attorney. Harvey's only other excursion into local politics was in the mayoralty election last year when he backed the losing candidate who was put forward by Democratic politicians. Burke's record in office has been such that his nomination is considered a certainty by those conversant with the local situation.

In November Burke likely will face Francis J. Loughran, member of the Democratic state central committee, whom he defeated four years ago. Loughran has two opponents in the primary, F. Donald Delaney and Francis A. Dunn. All three are Joliet attorneys. Observers pick Loughran as the nominee because he has always been a strong primary candidate. He has run for state's attorney several times but was always short of the winning post in the fall.

The only other office for which there will be a contest in the Democratic primary is that of clerk of the Circuit court. John R. Barney, Joliet, present chief deputy in the office, is opposed by George C. Sangmeister, mayor of Frankfort. The Democrats' chief strength lying in Joliet, Barney is looked upon by most politicians as the strongest candidate.

Four in G. O. P. Race.

On the Republican ticket are four candidates for clerk, Paul V. Wunder Jr., Plainfield; Elmer F. Brockham, Elzie W. Bertrand, and Josiah Treharne, all of Joliet. Wunder, a son of a former circuit clerk who died several years ago, is generally looked upon as the favorite, with Brockman as the next contender.

For recorder the Republican voters can choose from among four men, Robert L. Spreitzer, Frank P. Lumley, Roland A. Pierson, and James A. Rosenberg, all of Joliet. Lumley, a former police magistrate, and Rosenberg, a former state highway police sergeant and one time candidate for sheriff, are considered to have an edge over the others.

Thomas V. Brennan, Joliet, retired steel mill executive, is the Democrat candidate for recorder without opposition.

William J. Barrett, Lockport, incumbent county auditor, has no primary opposition. Republican candidates for auditor are Herman C. Grassle, Frederick W. Mastin, Michael L. Bostnick, Charles L. Fisher, and Silas J. Johnson, all of Joliet.

Grassle, a retired merchant, and Fisher, former deputy collector of internal revenue in charge of the Joliet office and at one time a candidate for county treasurer, are the principal contenders for the nomination, observers say.

On the Democratic side only Barrett and Brannon were willing to take a chance for reëlection. George J. Buttell Jr., Steger, now circuit clerk, and Bert Blackburn, recorder, declined to run again.

OLD FRONT PORCH ON FLAT BUILDING GOES IN DISCARD

Removal Helps Lighting and Aids Appearance.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

People are thinking seriously about their houses these days—what to do for them, how to improve them. They know they have good money invested in them and they want to safeguard their investments.

Usually in this department we discuss only one family homes. There is, however, a four apartment home at 7314 South Lowe avenue, which is such a practical and excellent example of what a slight piece of plastic surgery can do for the exterior of a building that it is well worth noting. It is a popular piece of surgery, tho usually the operation is performed on houses rather than on apartments. It is the removal of an old front porch and the installation of a new entrance and steps.

The owner, William M. George, has believed in the value of change and improvement for a structure which doesn't grow any younger each year—unless its youth is retained by definite outside assistance.

Improves Lighting.

A few years ago Mr. George made quite a change by converting the two apartment home into a four apartment building. Then last fall he decided that further improvement could be effected by removal of the old, heavy front porch. This would lighten the first floor apartment and simplify the exterior. He also selected a quiet, attractive new entrance and door and built new concrete steps with wrought iron rails. Mr. George's decision was more than justified by results. The operation was slight, but the improvement was worthwhile.

Many other exterior changes are possible for spring and summer accomplishment.

Sometimes attractive landscape planting will improve an exterior. It will tie a house closer to its site and alter its appearance surprisingly.

Often heavy, overhanging eaves can spoil the roof lines, and removal of these eaves works a great deal of difference.

New Sash Practical.

Replacement of awkward and ungainly windows can repay the cost of renewal by the improvement in exterior appearance. If sash is warping or rotting, new sash is practical, as well as ornamental. Then, too, a new bay, added to give more light and space to a room, also can be made the axis of a nice little garden court for summer living.

Expertly handled shutters can likewise contribute a happy exterior note to a house—well proportioned, simple shutters, according to modern tastes. We see shutters at entrances, too, sometimes. And in considering shutters, there are always the many potentialities of color they offer and the added vitality which dark shutters give to white or light walls.

Then, too, spring is the time when the restorer of a home takes to paint. In its dual capacity of decorative surface and protective covering, paint's value cannot be overstressed.

Paint and Style.

Styling with paint is now a recognized term in house parlance. This means, in brief, using color on a house in a manner that is in tune with the times, and paint manufacturers have gone to considerable lengths in the last few years to determine style trends by surveys of painted homes all over the country.

The recent tendency towards white as a body color still holds up, where this is practical, with the roof treated in a manner to render it not too conspicuous. Sash color can be same as trim and body color, or different, according to individual tastes.

Naturally, in the selection of an exterior color scheme, there are other considerations which should not be overlooked if one is vitally concerned with the final appearance of a house. Color can influence the apparent size of a house and small houses look best when carried out in light colors. Two color body treatments can be brought into play on certain types of homes. The houses in the immediate vicinity always must be considered. This is from a purely selfish viewpoint, since your house may have a fine color treatment, but if the house next door "clashes" with it, your own nice color scheme is impaired.

POWERS OF FCC LIMITED AS TO INTERFERENCE

Can Control the Radio 'Hams,' However.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—With complaints continuing to pour in about local interference to radio broadcast reception, the Federal Communications commission has reiterated that it has no authority to require elimination of interference if it is of inductive origin.

This means that it is powerless to do anything drastic about noises caused by diathermy or other electrical apparatus; the ignition systems of automobiles, electrical signs, or other contributing agents.

With regard to interference caused by the operation of amateur stations the commission has jurisdiction. Before reporting complaints of such interference, however, it suggests that the performance of many receiving sets encountering cross-talk [or dot and dash] interference may often be improved materially both for selectivity and sensitivity if properly aligned and tubes checked and replaced if found defective.

Some receivers which are not capable of separating the desired from the undesired station, which is 20 or more kilocycles away, may be improved materially by employing a simple "wave trap" obtainable at most radio or electrical goods stores. An expert service man can often locate the source or cause of interference and eliminate it.

Should Note Call.

If, however, a listener is certain that an amateur operator is causing him distress, he should note carefully the call letters of the interfering "ham," and obtain his name and address before making a complaint. If the complainant is uncertain as to whether he has the call letters and name identified correctly he can check them in the radio amateur call book, obtainable at radio stores at a nominal charge.

In the Chicago area alone there are more than 2,000 amateurs. Therefore, it is important that the local communications' commission inspector have accurate identification of the amateur causing the nuisance. It is not sufficient for a complainant to say that the interference is coming from some one in his neighborhood or in his block.

When the suspected offender has been identified, the information in Chicago should be directed to the FCC inspector's office, 225 South La Salle street. The telephone is Wabash 4700. The inspector will then proceed to correct the difficulty thru a personal contact with the offending operator.

Many municipalities and several states have enacted ordinances seeking to control the radio interference problem. These are not altogether successful, it is said.

Power Companies Aid.

A good many power companies today maintain investigating departments which coöperate with individuals in an effort to remedy interference. Complaints to power companies should be ready to furnish detailed information as to the type of interference experienced.

In some instances appeals for aid might properly be directed to the American Standards association, New York City. This organization affords representation to all interested in the reduction of electrically caused noises. The Institute of Radio Engineers, the Institute of Radio Service Men, the Radio Manufacturers association, the National Association of Broadcasters, and the Radio Club of America, among other groups, are coöperating with the Standards association toward the end of eliminating interference.

Interference caused by diathermy and other medical equipment is occupying the attention of FCC engineers, it has announced, because of its deleterious effect on television and other transmissions in the higher frequencies. The commission recently received a resolution from a police radio department association requesting it to declare diathermy a nuisance to police radio.

Pending further legislation clarifying the FCC's jurisdiction in this matter, the commission announced that it is making every effort to alleviate the diathermy interference thru coöperative efforts with manufacturers, the medical profession and the radio industry.

Can Be Eliminated.

Radiation of electrical energy is not essential to the proper functioning of diathermy apparatus, the commission engineers stated. Such radiation can be eliminated without impairing the usefulness of the apparatus.

"Since the radio and medical services both involve the use of equipment in connection with the safety of life and property," the FCC stated, "and since the radiation of electrical energy from the electro-medical apparatus can be controled at small cost by screening the room in which the apparatus is used, it is felt that the interested parties should coöperate toward the adoption of standards of good engineering practice which will permit both services to operate without mutual interference."

GERTRUDE NIESEN TO BE GUEST ON RHYTHM SHOW

Whistler Also Will Have a Part in Program.

(Picture in roto section.)

Petite and vivacious Gertrude Niesen, famed delineator of modern song who is currently featured at the Chez Paree, will be the guest star on the show, "Romance in Rhythm," directed by Harold Stokes, at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and Mutual. With Miss Niesen will be heard Fred Lowery, the blind whistler of Horace Heidt's band; Wesley Summerfield, tenor; Lawrence Salerno, baritone, and the W-G-N dance orchestra.

Miss Niesen will do "It's a Blue World" and "Yodelin' Jive." From her early teens, Gertrude has received an intensive voice training. Her versatility at singing everything from the classic to the "torch" numbers reveals the thoro schooling she received in music.

Within a week of her musical debut—at the age of 16—she was hailed as an outstanding singer, and her rise to the top was rapid. Gertrude claims Texas as her home, because her parents and grandparents come from that state, but actually the Atlantic ocean is her birthplace, since she was born on an ocean liner just three hours before the vessel docked in New York harbor.

Fred Lowery, the blind youth who overcame his handicap by making a career of whistling, will do "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" and the William Tell overture. He is known to thousands of radio listeners thru his work with the Horace Heidt programs and also thru appearances with the shows "We, the People," "Hobby Lobby," and Rudy Vallee's program.

Lawrence Salerno will sing "Make Love with a Guitar" and "Marcheta." In the Memory Lane feature, Summerfield will sing "Because" and the orchestra and chorus will do "Isn't It Romantic" and "A Brown Bird Singing." Other numbers will include "Hindustan," "I Got Rhythm," "Do I Love You," "Little Girl," and "No, Mama, No."

"And the Angels Sing," the half hour popular music show directed by Harold Stokes and featuring Edna O'Dell, Kathryn Witwer, and the women's choir, will be heard at 8 p. m. today on W-G-N, with a program dedicated to Easter.

Miss O'Dell will sing "Spring Is Here," from "I Married an Angel," and will join the chorus in "I'm Comin' Virginia." Miss Witwer, operatic soprano, will sing the perennial favorite, "Alice Blue Gown," and "My Prayer."

The Three Graces will do "Ducklings on Parade." Numbers to be played by the orchestra will include "Got a Brand New Hat," "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," from the Ziegfeld Follies of 1919, and "Easter Parade," with choral accompaniment. "The Rosary" will be presented in a violin solo, accompanied by the women's choir.

NEW W-G-N SHOW PRESENTS LIFE IN SMALL TOWN

"The Deacon," a new 15 minute show featuring John Howard, character actor, is now heard on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9 a. m. Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

The program presents life in the mythical American village, "Main Street," thru the word-pictures of the "Deacon," played by Howard, who constructs the stories thru his monologs based on the lives of Onie Googins, the Deacon's housekeeper, and Lem Conover, a small town wag. Len Salvo, W-G-N organist, will provide musical background.

The Deacon is not a religious title, but is simply the nickname given by his friends to a small town philosopher.

Elson on Coast.

Bob Elson, W-G-N and Mutual sportscaster, is in California watching the major league baseball teams in training. Elson's trip to the coast has become an annual affair. He will be back in Chicago in time for the opening day game.

Sylvia Sings

The petite and lovely Sylvia Rhodes, heard on Marathon Melodies over WENR at 9:30 o'clock Friday evenings from Cincinnati.

Knute Rockne to Be Topic of Sports Salute Saturday

Knute Rockne will be saluted on Mutual's coasts to coast The Inside of Sports program next Saturday from 6:45 to 7 p. m. on W-G-N. Many heretofore unrevealed stories about the former Notre Dame football mentor will be told on this broadcast.

TRIBUNE RADIO PROGRAM TO BE YOUTH GUIDE

Future Citizenship Is Basic Idea.

Philip Maxwell.
[Nelidoff Photo.]

A new half hour radio program of special interest to youth of America entitled "Citizens of Tomorrow," and sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be initiated on W-G-N Wednesday night, April 3, from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. Six hundred students from a Chicago high school will be guests in the audience studio each Wednesday night.

Lake View High will be the first school to attend one of these programs. On the following Wednesday evenings Austin and Parker High schools will be the guests.

Stress on Responsibility.

All the programs will stress the students' responsibility for future citizenship. Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE TRIBUNE, director of its annual Chicagoland Music Festival, who speaks before 50,000 high school students each fall at the presentation of THE TRIBUNE R. O. T. C. medals, will be master of ceremonies. He will take the part of "The Principal."

Other characters will be "Jerry," a cute and lovable co-ed of all high schools, and Charlie Jones, every school's engineer. The school chorus will sing and cheers led by the yell leaders will be heard on the air. The stage will be decorated with the school colors and banners.

Another feature will be a TRIBUNE headline news quiz conducted by "The Principal." Participants will be two teams, three boys and three girls, chosen just before the beginning of the program by the studio announcer. News reports from high school campuses thruout Chicagoland, the items gathered by star correspondents of THE TRIBUNE, will be given.

Help on Program.

Coöperating with Blair Walliser, production man on W-G-N, will be Harold Kent of the Radio Council, and Miss Helen Howe, director of music, both of the Chicago public schools.

Following the broadcast the 600 students will be shown the film, "Trees to Tribunes," and 100 of the audience will be taken on a tour of Tribune Tower. This trip will include visits to the editorial, composing, stereotyping, engraving, press, and circulation rooms. The tour will be so scheduled that this smaller group may leave for home around 9 o'clock.

Schools wishing to be guests of this program should write direct to Mr. Maxwell, care of THE TRIBUNE.

In each church the choir will act as a background for the triumphant song in the hearts of Christians of all denominations. Special services will start in some churches at sunrise and continue at intervals into the evening. Today south side churches, both Catholic and Protestant, will join all Christianity in celebrating the anniversary of the first Easter with special services. Robed choirs will sing the praises of the triumphant Savior and pastors will preach appropriate sermons on the immortal significance of the event. Some of the churches will begin the day with sunrise services and continue with other programs thruout the afternoon and evening.

The Kenwood church, 4600 Greenwood avenue, will hold its special Easter service at 11 o'clock this morning with Dr. Alfred Lee Wilson, pastor, preaching a sermon entitled "Bringing Immortality to Light." The regular church quartet will be assisted by the young people's choir of 50 voices in supplying a musical background for the service. Gavin Williamson is organist and music director.

The choir, under the direction of George L. DeMent, 8027 Michigan avenue, will offer "Lo! The Tomb!" [Broome] and "The Holy Women" [Gaul]. William A. Blair will accompany the choir on the organ at both services.

Special triumphant Easter music by the vested choir of the Bryn Mawr Community church, 7000 Jeffery avenue, will be augmented by trumpets at the two services this morning at 9 and 11 o'clock. The Rev. Theodore K. Vogler, pastor, will talk on "The Life Everlasting" at both services.

Pageant This Evening.

The public is invited to the pageant to be presented by the senior and junior choirs, assisted by the men's glee club, this evening. This service takes place at 7 p. m.

Smiley, will highlight an early service for the youth groups of the Woodlawn Park Methodist church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue, at 7 o'clock this morning. The Rev. Weldun E. Bradburn, minister of the church, will speak at 11 o'clock on "A Life Triumphant." The choral society will offer an anthem, "In the End of the Sabbath" and a soloist, Jewel Martin Lovejoy, will sing "The Redeemer Liveth." Organ numbers will be "Easter Morning on Mount Rubidoux" [Gaul] and "Toccata" from the 5th symphony of Widor.

"The King of Kings," motion picture based on the life of Christ, will be shown at 7:40 o'clock this evening. Miss Irene Bellwood Pierson will present an organ program before the showing.

The Rev. Edwin H. Pflug, pastor, will use "I Know That My Redeemer Lives" [John 19-23-27] as his theme of his sermon for the sunrise service at 6 o'clock this morning in the St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran church, 7619 Dorchester avenue. The combined mixed and junior choirs will sing "Christ the Lord is Risen" and the girls' choir will sing "King of Kings."

First Communion Rites.

In the regular 10:45 o'clock service the topic of the sermon will be "An Easter Celebration in the Light of Christ's Resurrection." The catechumens of 1940 will participate in their first communion rites at this service. The children of the Sunday school will present an Easter program at 7:30 o'clock this evening at which the Rev. Mr. Pflug will give a talk.

A sunrise service at 7:30 o'clock and a sermon entitled "I Believe in Life" by the Rev. William Clyde Howard, pastor, are on the program at the Second Presbyterian church, 20th street and Michigan avenue, this morning. Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

Allan Stevenson.

PROF. CECIL B. WILLIAMS, 1645 West 105th street and Prof. Allan H. Stevenson, 1362 East 54th street, have become a team of co-authors. Faculty members of the College of Commerce at De Paul university, they have written a manual of instruction in the theory and technique of the undergraduate research article or term paper. The book was used in manuscript form in De Paul English courses during the first semester and has now been adapted by the Harper Publishing company for nationwide use. It is regarded as a pioneer text of its kind, containing guides and bibliography for the preparation of research papers in any field.

William Gates, 6909 Woodlawn avenue, has become a member of the De Paul chapter of Gamma Eta Gamma, national legal fraternity.

A princess was born on the near south side recently. She is Princess Mariama O. Fayoyin, daughter of Prince Adebayo Olawumi of Oton, Nigeria, in West Africa, whose father is recognized by the king of England as head of Nigeria, a British protectorate. The prince has waived the glory of his royal family in Africa and currently is content to teach the Yoruba language at 3839 Giles avenue. He has three other children: Prince Ayo, 5 years old, and Princesses Romica, 3 years old, and Lodita, 2 years old.

Princess Romica once received a letter from Queen Elizabeth, says her father, and he is proud of the fact that the Royal Scouts of Nigeria, who, incidentally, also live on the south side, came to visit his newly born.

Two Our Towners are looking forward to the pleasure of adding Phi Beta Kappa keys to their watch chains. They are Matthew T. Gladstone, 5343 University avenue, and Jack Indritz, 914 East 61st street, both of the University of Chicago. They will be initiated into Beta of Illinois chapter at the close of the spring quarter.

Roger Slugg of Chicago Heights is one of 61 Grinnell college students who will be in Chicago from Tuesday to Friday this week to try and find out what the average business man wants in prospective employés these days. It is the fifth annual vocation discovery project sponsored by the college. According to Machin Gardner, alumni director of the survey, the students are coming not to hunt jobs but to discover their chances of success in their chosen vocation. They will incorporate the results of their interviews in their course of preparatory training at school. Roger also made the trip last year.

IF you are one of the boys who graduated from the Wentworth school with Leonard Jacobson—he was the small, light complexioned, and aggressive boy in the class—he'd appreciate it if you'd get in touch with him at his home, 7226 South Lafayette avenue. Last June Leonard decided he'd like to assemble the 140 graduates of the class of '29 for a reunion but several months trying to contact them netted only 10 members. Since then the number has risen to 52 and the group will hold its second meeting on April 1 at Leonard's home. Two former classmates, Richard Williams, 6714 South Peoria street, and Glenn Ramshaw, 622 West 71st street, are aiding him in the drive.

The Rev. George Windsor, chaplain at Sacred Heart academy, Springfield has been appointed pastor of the Church of the Ascension, Mount Olive, Ill., by the Most Rev. James A. Griffin, D. KITES TO SOAR ON APRIL BREEZE OVER CITY PARKS

Any One Eligible to Enter Contests.

Novelty kite in 1939.

More than 3,000 Chicagoland kite flying fans, ranging in age from youngsters in rompers to their grandparents, will enter the second annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE city-wide kite contest to be held with the coöperation of the park district April 27 in Grant park.

Out of the thousands of entrants eight Chicagoland kite flying champions are to be chosen by expert park district judges. The eight champions will be awarded silver trophies furnished by this newspaper. Other winners are to be given ribbon awards by the park district.

The rules are simple. There is no age limit; anybody who can fly a kite is eligible. The one main restriction is that all kites in the contest must be homemade. No factory made kites will be admitted. You may construct your own kite with expert assistance in the craft rooms of your local park fieldhouse. Materials will be supplied free.

Starts in Neighborhoods.

The contest, like last year's, will be run in the form of a round robin tournament. Preliminary elimination contests will be held at neighborhood parks on April 5, 6, and 8. You have until April 5 to enter the contest.

An entry blank is printed in today's paper. Simply fill in your name, address, and age, then check the contest division or divisions you wish to enter. Take the coupon to your nearest fieldhouse. No entry blanks will be accepted if mailed to THE TRIBUNE. [A list of fieldhouses in your section accompanies this story.]

The local eliminations will qualify 20 kite flyers from each park for the semifinals to be held April 20. These contests will be held at six parks in representative sections of the city. From these semifinals 372 contestants will be selected for competition in the finals on April 27.

One New Contest.

The eight divisions in the contest are:

Artistic—Kites to be judged for color, beauty, and original design, as well as flying performance.

Novelty—Kites to be judged for unusual construction, mechanical motion, or unusual materials used.

Handwinding contest—Each contestant to fly his kite unaided and from his hand to the end of 75 yards of string. At a given signal contestant will wind in his string and the first to finish will be declared winner.

Mechanical winding—Kites to be flown to the end of the 75 yards of string and wound in by reel.

Solo box kite—Any type of box or combination plane box kite may be flown in this event. No kite carrying a tale will be eligible.

Messenger—Message to be attached to kite string by helper or contestant no more than 25 feet from flyer's hand.

Pulling contest — This event has been substituted for the smallest kite contest of last year. Kites will be flown a designated distance into the air and the pulling power will be tested by means of a mechanical device.

Largest kite—The largest kite to be entered last year measured more than 14 by 4 feet.

The tournament will be supervised by F. E. Kardes, craft technician for the park district.

Voice of the South Side

WHAT "LOST CHAUFFEUR."

About two and a half years ago there appeared in your columns a story by one of your readers about a young colored man that stopped her on the street and told her a story about coming from Vicksburg, Miss., to get a job as a chauffeur for a family who lived on Drexel boulevard. But since he came to Chicago the people had moved to Gary, Ind. His problem was that he needed carfare to Gary, also that he had not eaten all day and was very hungry. Your reader gave him some money. Upon arriving home and telling the story to her husband and son she learned they had given money to the same man.

I also gave this man a quarter to go to Gary over three years ago, and have met him four or five times since.

Last night I was working on East 55th street when the "lost chauffeur" approached me again with the same story. I asked him how he got by with it without being picked up. He just laughed and said he guessed he was "just lucky." I just want to warn your readers again about this professional jipper who roams all over—at least on the south side.

He is a colored man, about five feet four inches tall, light brown skin, wears a cap, a leather jacket underneath his overcoat, and speak with a feminine voice. He is about 35 years old.

JAMES CLARK.

WANTS BEAUTIFUL CITY.

Any one who has any esthetic sense at all can't help but be grateful to the park district and the many organizations coöperating with it in its efforts to make the city look neat. Let's show our appreciation by following the suggestions of the "Help Beautify Chicago" and the "Save Your Lawn" committees. Our city need not be known as a scattering of smoke, noise, dirt, and barren, tired looking lots and lawns. Not if we get busy! A NATURE LOVER.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO RECEIVE CLUB CHARTER AT 'Y'

Guests will include Thelma Taylor, president of the Morgan Park Business and Professional Women's club, and Mrs. Louise Waldmarson, vocalist.

J. Fitzgerald; band mothers, Mrs. John Rieman, and refreshments, Mrs. Irving Newman.

NIGHT RALLIES SPEED UP RACE FOR LEGISLATURE

Most Candidates Support Food Tax Repeal.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

The merry-go-round of candidates aiming at the brass ring of nomination to the state legislature was speeded up last week by nightly political meetings. A dizzy whirl will be maintained from now until the April 9 primary with contestants dashing to three or four ward and precinct rallies every evening.

Beneficiaries of most meetings will be candidates backed by regular party organizations with funds for halls and entertainment. Independents are striving to keep up the pace by appearing before clubs and civic organizations. Some have scheduled "booster night" dances with the aid of friends.

Both attached and unattached candidates are getting whatever help may be obtained from intensive hand shaking and card distribution, with the independents perhaps holding an edge in this line of endeavor.

Most Against Food Tax.

Early replies to a questionnaire sent to candidates by THE TRIBUNE show that an overwhelming majority of those running favor removal of the 3 per cent sales tax from food, altho the constitutionality of the move is questioned by some. Surprisingly, many candidates in this bracket are Democratic incumbents who refused to support the Lund bill for this purpose in the 1939 session of the legislature.

Nomination April 9 will be equivalent to election in the 1st and 3d districts in the south section. The only contests in November will be in the 5th and 13th districts, where each party is nominating two candidates

In the 13th district Bernard Goodman of 7408 South Jeffery avenue is putting on a whirlwind campaign against the two Democratic incumbents, Adam S. Mioduski and John G. Ryan, both of whose voting records have been criticized by the Legislative Voters' league. He is now their only opponent.

"Take the taint of bossism off this district," Goodman is telling the voters. "Both incumbents are pay rollers. They have been nothing but Charlie McCarthies in Springfield."

Aiding Stelle Ticket.

Goodman is aiding organizing efforts in the district for the Stelle-Adamowski-Barrett combination which is bucking the regular Democratic state ticket. His cards read: "Vote for a good man—Goodman." He said he is combining remnants of the Horner and Courtney rebels of past years who still want to "fight the machine."

Representatives Ryan and Mioduski are following the strenuous schedule of meetings arranged by the Democratic organization.

As a leading Republican of the "lean years" Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg is devoting his many platform appearances to the party cause in general. A member of the house for 20 years and twice G. O. P. floor leader there, Schnackenberg has made a record which has won consistent praise.

Cites Results of G. O. P.

"When Republicanism is urged as a means of transferring people from relief rolls to private industry, there are many doubters," Schnackenberg is declaring. "But look at Pennsylvania and Connecticut. After recently electing Republican governors these states have actually increased private pay rolls and reduced the burdensome dole. That is getting somewhere."

There are two nominations in this district, which appears to attract as high grade candidates as any in the state.

George R. Hillstrom, 10855 South Wabash avenue, like Schnackenberg, is both lawyer and real estate dealer. Secretary of the South End Savings and Loan association, Hillstrom is campaigning with the Dwight H. Green forces in the Republican gubernatorial contest.

Walker Butler, 1513 East 66th place, earned his way thru law school by teaching Latin, Greek, and higher mathematics. His knowledge of the latter subject should enable him to scale down astronomical state expenditure figures, his friends say. Not only was Butler an assistant state's attorney who handled many spectacular prosecutions in Cook county, but downstate he obtained the first convictions in the miners' warfare.

William C. Henry, 8924 Blackstone avenue, also an attorney, was Schnackenberg's running mate in the November, 1938, election. He is identified with the Richard J. Lyons-Wayland Brooks ticket.

Active in Union Work.

Ragnar G. Nelson, 400 East Kensington avenue, still another G O. P. aspirant, is an active member of local 734 of the milk wagon drivers' union and declares himself to be particularly interested in workers' problems. He was one of the organizers of the 9th ward Young Republicans in 1931, and appears to have wide support in this ward. He was elected senatorial committeeman in 1936 and 1938.

Wyllys T. T. Miller, 447 East 79th street, is owner of a real estate firm. He has been an appraiser for the Home Owners' Loan corporation and for Cook county in the quadrennial reassessment.

William Edward Wallace, 7750 Langley avenue, is an attorney who has the indorsement of J. G. Kennedy, vice president of local 753 of the milk wagon drivers' union. President of his class at the Loyola school of law, Wallace polled more than 6,000 votes when he ran for state representative in 1936. He has a two word platform: "Economy—Fidelity."

Frank S. Cacciatore [R.], 3d District.

Here are four of the men who are asking south side voters to send them to Springfield as first term members of the house of representatives. Like most of the other aspirants they are pledging themselves to work for some form of reduction in the sales tax.

EYES CENTERED ON 2 TESTS FOR COMMITTEEMAN

5th and 7th Incumbents Targets of Foes.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Among the contests for Republican committeeman posts in south side wards those in the 5th and 7th are attracting particular attention in political circles. The committeeman elections held with the primary election, April 9, are barely two weeks away.

In the 5th ward, David F. Matchett Jr., 6133 Ellis avenue, is continuing to push an active campaign against the strongly intrenched John Leonard East, 5300 Hyde Park boulevard. East has been committeeman for 10 years.

The Matchett forces, which have received strong support from a committee which has also indorsed David Eichner for reëlection as Democratic committeeman, have opened two headquarters. They are at 1223 East 55th street and 5736 Prairie avenue. Matchett says he has "almost all" of the 120 precincts in the ward manned. He is 29 years old and an attorney.

Campaigns for G. O. P.

East contends that the basis of his campaign is "not to campaign for East for ward committeeman," but to campaign to "elect Republicans."

"I don't take the 7th ward committeeman campaign seriously," he said last week. "In fact, at many meetings I forget to mention I am a candidate. I want to see the ticket of Wayland Brooks for United States senator and Richard Lyons for governor go over. The ward is secondary, in my mind, to cause of Republicanism."

East has headquarters at 5501 Prairie avenue and 1149 East 55th street.

The 7th ward contest is similar to that of the 5th in that the incumbent, Charles L. Gerds, 2523 East 73d place, has been committeeman for 10 years and a strong attack waged against him by a man who has not been committeeman.

Samuel J. Andalman, 7624 Phillips avenue, is Gerds' opponent. Andalman has carried on a vigorous campaign, one of the high points of which was sending telegrams to all persons whose names appeared on Gerds' petition, asking them if they had signed.

Both Andalman and Gerds had objections filed with the election board contesting the validity of the other candidates' petitions. Both objections were ruled invalid.

Raps Board Action.

Of the board ruling, Andalman said last week: "I think it is unfortunate there are no rules requiring the board to act in the open instead of behind closed doors. We proved in our objections that 800 signatures on my opponent's petition were forgeries."

Gerds is not taking his opponent as lightly as is East in the 5th ward.

"Our entire organization is operating efficiently," Gerds said. "My opponent has used every method of attack known to old time political circles. I am not attacking on a personal basis but am campaigning on my record as committeeman. The method of my opponent has done more to gain votes for me than to lose them.

"To bother people in their homes at night asking them if it is true they signed a petition on which their signatures appear, does more to antagonize them than it can possibly benefit a candidate."

Last week it was stated in these columns that Alex J. Prominski, candidate for 11th ward Republican committeeman, is supporting Dwight Green for governor. Mr. Prominski states that he is supporting Richard Lyons for governor, as is his opponent, William Finucane, the present committeeman.

Ward Opponents

David F. Matchett Jr.

John Leonard East, incumbent.

Charles L. Gerds, incumbent.

Samuel J. Andalman.

Republican ward committee contests, to be decided in the April 9 primary election, are matching these four in two south side wards. Matchett is seeking to wrest the 5th ward post from East, while Andalman is 7th ward Committeeman Gerds' opponent.

9 WOMEN SEEK PRIMARY VOTES FOR ASSEMBLY

All Demanding Economy in Government.

Nine women from the Chicago area are seeking nominations for the general assembly in the April primary. Their platforms contain not the faintest hint of what once was known as "woman's rights."

Without exception the nine are campaigning for economy in government. Most of them favor parole reform. All favor removal of the sales tax on food and the extension of the merit system in civil service.

Of the nine candidates in and about Chicago, three, all from outlying suburbs, now sit in the legislature. They comprise three-fourths of the legislature's femininity, the fourth being Mrs. Lizzie Barnes of Carmi. All three are Republicans, and the nomination of each seems assured. Nonetheless, all are campaigning.

From "Shoestring" District.

One is Mrs. Bernice Van der Vries of Winnetka, who has represented the winding 7th, or "shoestring," district, which embraces 94 country towns on Chicago's outskirts, since 1934. The second is Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downers Grove, who went to Springfield from the 41st district [Will and Du Page counties] in 1922 as the "woman's hope" and has been, with the exception of one term, a legislative fixture ever since.

The third is Mrs. Maude N. Peffers of Aurora, now serving her first term in the footsteps of her husband, John, who represented the district, the 14th [Kane and Kendall counties], for six terms until his death in 1936.

Mrs. Van der Vries is considered an able legislator and debater of note. She has done effective work on many important committees, and now is chairman of the Illinois commission for intergovernmental coöperation, which seeks to overcome interstate trade barriers. Of the legislature's 34 commissions, she is the only woman chairman.

Record for Women.

According to a recent survey, Mrs. O'Neill has had more legislative experience than any other woman in the country. She doesn't know whether this is true, but says, confidently, "I'll have had 18 years when I get thru the next session."

Little, aggressive, and a bit acid if given cause, she is stressing public education, the merit system, and removal of state institutions from politics. She voted for parole reform, as did Mrs. Van der Vries.

Mrs. Peffers turned out to be a serious legislator and developed an avidity for committee work. "I liked studying the bills in committee and hearing the arguments," she says, "but then I found it all interesting."

Three in Race.

In Chicago proper, the 5th, or Hyde Park, district with its polyglot of intellectuals, immigrants, and Negroes has become a feminine battle ground. Three women [as well as 18 men] are tussling for its three seats in the legislature.

They are Matilda Fenberg [R.], 5401 Cornell avenue, attorney, who won the Republican nomination in 1938; Helene Leach [D.], 5481 Ellis avenue, also an attorney and an active Young Democrat, and Margaret Kathryn Woods [R.], 5408 University avenue, a skin analyst and self-styled amateur playwright.

Miss Fenberg has a background of 18 years' legal practice and two years [1929-'31] as assistant corporation counsel. She was the first woman to matriculate at Yale law school. Miss Leach, so young she will not reveal her age, has been practicing law five years and has been active in Democratic circles since 1936, when she headed the state First Voters' league. She is supporting the Stelle-Barrett-Adamowski ticket. Miss Woods, a newcomer to politics, says she has been worried about general conditions in the 5th district since 1928.

Negro Social Worker.

Irene McCoy Gaines [R.], 3262 Vernon avenue, who is running in the 1st district, is a well known Negro social worker. A graduate of Fisk university, with graduate work at the University of Chicago and Loyola university, she served on Hoover's housing commission and his Republican national planning board. She worked six years with the social service bureau of the Cook county bureau of public welfare and later was a case-worker with the IERC and the CRA.

Mrs. Cora A. Graham [R.] of 4033 Ellis avenue is running in the 3d district, that portion of the near south side into which 48 per cent of Chicago's relief goes. Mrs. Graham, a fire insurance broker, has been active in politics and civic affairs for 25 years.

Right now she wants to get gasoline tax funds to open Pershing road as far as Brookfield and to open 43d street to Western avenue. She thinks she knows the district's needs and could do it great good in Springfield.

Mrs. Rose Lamberty [R.] of 2104 North Keystone avenue seeks the nomination in the 25th district on the northwest side. She has been active in 36th ward politics for 20 years. She and her husband, Theodore, have four children, and this is her first campaign. She is interested in abolition of the sales tax, the open primary, prison, and parole reform. "I sound like Salvation Nell," she laughs, "but I mean it."

Bessemer Park Party.

Parents night at Bessemer park will offer a variety of entertainment next Friday evening in the fieldhouse assembly hall, 89th street and Manistee avenue.

Freshman Dance Chairman

Miss Georgia Mary Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Kelly, 7805 Crandon avenue, is chairman of the freshman dance at St. Mary's college, South Bend, on April 5. Miss Kelly was graduated from St. Xavier academy last June. [Carlos Photo.]

FASHION SHOW, LUNCH ARE ON SCHEDULE OF WILLING WORKERS

The club has worked for 36 years to help prevent and do away with tuberculosis. It spends thousands of dollars each year in distributing milk and eggs to needy tuberculosis patients and supplying shoes, stockings and underwear to their children.

CLUB GARDENERS ENTER EXHIBITS IN SHOW AT PIER

Eight from South Area Aid Annual Event.

Azaleas, despite the popularity of the robin, are a real sign of spring. Appropriately, there will be a garden of them at the entrance of Navy pier when the annual Chicago flower show opens Saturday to continue until April 7. The show is sponsored by the Garden Club of Illinois and eight south and southwest side garden groups, affiliated with the club, will enter exhibits.

To aid the small homeowner and in keeping with the little colonial homes now being built, the show will be centered around the theme "Gardens of the Present Day."

Formal and Informal.

There will also be appropriate plantings for garden pavilions and "gazebos," outdoor fireplaces, garden gates, garages, tool houses, and several types of fence. There will be formal and informal gardens, terrace gardens, kitchen gardens, several entrance treatments of varying types, porches furnished with flowering and poliage plants and carrying vines, garden rooms and window gardens.

Visitors will be permitted to view the show at 2 o'clock Saturday until 10:30 o'clock at night. Thruout the remainder of the week the doors will be open at 10:30 o'clock in the morning.

In keeping with the azalea entrance, planted by the park district, there will be an exhibit of early spring in the forest preserves.

Show Table Settings.

Mrs. G. McStay, art director of the show, has arranged a large gallery of "arrangements" which promises to surpass those of other shows. In a room separated from the rest of the show there will be 10 formal dinner tables, 10 luncheon tables and five buffet tables entered by member groups of the club. Three tables will be the work of south and southwest side garden clubs.

A luncheon table and a garden will be entered by the garden department of the Beverly Hills Woman's club headed by Mrs. C. J. Farwell. Assisting Mrs. Farwell with the arrangements are Mrs. C. F. Radden, Mrs. John B. Mortenson, Mrs. Robert J. Lawrie, Mrs. William G. Soldan, Mrs. I. L. Grimes, Mrs. J. M. Hall, Mrs. C. B. Van Antwerp, Mrs. Frank O. McDermott, and J. W. Hopkinson.

The Garden Club of Morgan Park will display a buffet table and cold frames. The committee in charge is made up of Mrs. Frank Gray, president; Mrs. Louis Fischer, Mrs. J. S. Akenhead, Mrs. F. E. Haines, Mrs. H. H. Kitzleman, Mrs. S. M. Murdoch, and Mrs. A. W. Macklin Jr.

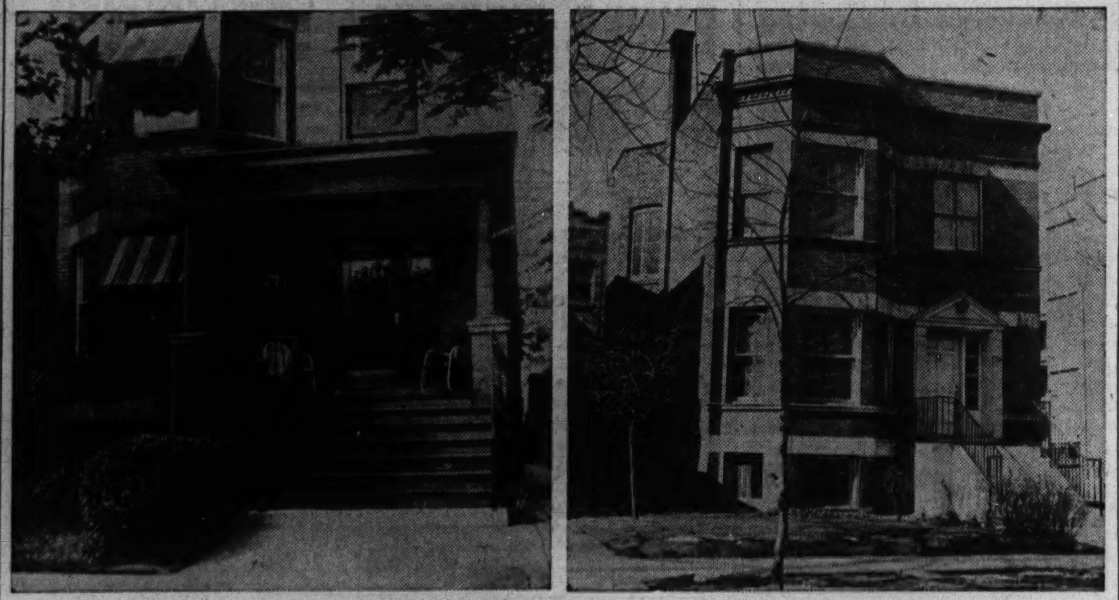
Simple Change for Apartment



Plastic surgery can do as much for apartment fronts as for house fronts, even tho the operation is slight. The "After" picture, in contrast with the "Before," tells an enlightening story of how the removal of an old porch and the installation of new entrance and steps accomplished a complete change of facade. Owner: William M. George, 7314 South Lowe avenue.

OLD FRONT PORCH ON FLAT BUILDING GOES IN DISCARD

Removal Aids Lighting and Appearance.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

People are thinking seriously about their houses these days—what to do for them, how to improve them. They know they have good money invested in them and they want to safeguard their investments.

Usually in this department we discuss only one family homes. There is, however, a four apartment home at 7314 South Lowe avenue, which is such a practical and excellent example of what a slight piece of plastic surgery can do for the exterior of a building that it is well worth noting. It is a popular piece of surgery, tho usually the operation is performed on houses rather than on apartments. It is the removal of an old front porch and the installation of a new entrance and steps.

The owner, William M. George, has believed in the value of change and improvement for a structure which doesn't grow any younger each year—unless its youth is retained by definite outside assistance.

Improves Lighting.

A few years ago Mr. George made quite a change by converting the two apartment home into a four apartment building. Then last fall he decided that further improvement could be effected by removal of the old, heavy front porch. This would lighten the first floor apartment and simplify the exterior. He also selected a quiet, attractive new entrance and door and built new concrete steps with wrought iron rails. Mr. George's decision was more than justified by results. The operation was slight, but the improvement was worthwhile.

Many other exterior changes are possible for spring and summer accomplishment.

Sometimes attractive landscape planting will improve an exterior. It will tie a house closer to its site and alter its appearance surprisingly.

Often heavy, overhanging eaves can spoil the roof lines, and removal of these eaves works a great deal of difference.

New Sash Practical.

Replacement of awkward and ungainly windows can repay the cost of renewal by the improvement in exterior appearance. If sash is warping or rotting, new sash is practical, as well as ornamental. Then, too, a new bay, added to give more light and space to a room, also can be made the axis of a nice little garden court for summer living.

Expertly handled shutters can likewise contribute a happy exterior note to a house—well proportioned, simple shutters, according to modern tastes. We see shutters at entrances, too, sometimes. And in considering shutters, there are always the many potentialities of color they offer and the added vitality which dark shutters give to white or light walls.

Then, too, spring is the time when the restorer of a home takes to paint. In its dual capacity of decorative surface and protective covering, paint's value cannot be overstressed.

Paint and Style.

Styling with paint is now a recognized term in house parlance. This means, in brief, using color on a house in a manner that is in tune with the times, and paint manufacturers have gone to considerable lengths in the last few years to determine style trends by surveys of painted homes all over the country.

The recent tendency towards white as a body color still holds up, where this is practical, with the roof treated in a manner to render it not too conspicuous. Sash color can be same as trim and body color, or different, according to individual tastes.

Naturally, in the selection of an exterior color scheme, there are other considerations which should not be overlooked if one is vitally concerned with the final appearance of a house. Color can influence the apparent size of a house and small houses look best when carried out in light colors. Two color body treatments can be brought into play on certain types of homes. The houses in the immediate vicinity always must be considered. This is from a purely selfish viewpoint, since your house may have a fine color treatment, but if the house next door "clashes" with it, your own nice color scheme is impaired.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 25.

Nicotine, such as Black Leaf 40, used at the rate of a teaspoonful to a gallon of water, is very effective for controling sucking insects on indoor and outdoor plants. Aphis spreads faster than any other insect and appear on all kinds of plants. They are the little green bugs found on the under side of the leaves and on the tender tips of a plant. They prefer the soft, juicy parts and are most destructive until controled. Outdoor plants that are sprayed with nicotine seldom are bothered by dogs.

Tuesday, March 26.

Fish oil soapy water used as wash on palms, rubber plants, lilacs, and other shrubs will kill scale insects. This is a simple method; the material can be obtained from supply houses. The red spider is a sucking insect that may be controled by spraying with water under pressure or by dusting with sulphur. Oil sprays are recommended. The lawn can be given the annual spring application of plant food now. Use a complete commercial food. It is unnecessary to water the material down if applied now. If an old lawn is repaired, work over the parts, top-dress with rich soil, and seed rather heavily with a high grade seed mixture. Never buy cheap grass seed. Roll the lawn as soon as the ground can be walked on.

Wednesday, March 27.

Transplant all seedlings that are above the soil and large enough to handle. Use a screened soil with little manure; never use dry soil, but have it moist enough to crumble easily. Cover drainage holes with pot shreds or other material, press down the soil with a board, and make straight lines. A sharpened pencil is a good dibber. Sprinkle after planting and cover with newspaper during the day or when in sun until the plants are established. It is seldom that one sees ornamental grasses in gardens and yet some kinds are very useful in bouquets and in the garden. Cloud grass is a fine misty grass which gives a bit of airiness; fountain grass has long plumes of greenish white, or purple. It is fine for bordering beds of cannas or as a specimen or accent; quaking grass has flat, quaking spikelets for the winter bouquet; Job's tears has pearl gray pendulous seeds. Others are of interest.

Thursday, March 28.

Petunias are among the finest of all window box plants, especially the small flowered rosy morn type for they are profuse bloomers and tend to cover the face of the box. They require a sunny location. Buy established, pinched plants from the greenhouse for good results. New hybrid grafted nut trees are available and should prove valuable to those living in suburban districts. Black walnut "stabler" has the thinnest shell, and a rich, mellow flavor. The "Thomas" grows rapidly, is easy to grow, and is ornamental. The English walnut variety Wiltz-Mayette requires a lime soil and fruits in four years. These are worthy of a trial. Multi-grafted fruit trees also are offered. Five varieties of apples or peaches are worked on a single tree.

Friday, March 29.

Annual vines that are good in baskets are the black-eyed Susan, maurandia barclaiana, and Kenilworth ivy. Here are a few annulas that may be grown in partial shade: China aster, cornflower, pansy, torenia, sweet alyssum, snapdragon, monkeyflower, and forget-me-not. If the China asters have failed to do well in the past, change locations. Plant sweet peas as soon as the ground can be worked. The common blue violet is excellent for growing as a ground cover beneath the shrubs if light can be admitted. The following perennials should not be divided very often: Bleedingheart, Virginia bluebell, oriental poppy, gasplant, monkshood, butterflyweed, sea holly, wild indigo, globeflower, and Japanese anemone.

Saturday, March 30.

Do not waste seed by sowing too thick. Seedlings that crowd one another frequently damp-off and die because of the excess of moisture around them and the resultant entrance of fungus disease. Transplant very early to avoid root disturbance. Stir the soil between rows of seedlings. Never permit the soil in the seed box to dry out or the young, tender plants may be injured. Do not keep the seed box in too dark a place, especially after the plants have appeared. If the slightest spot of disease is noticed, sprinkle with recommended materials that are used to combat disease. Repot house plants that need it. Do not use too large pots. Use clean pots whenever plants are shifted. Large plants of geraniums make a fine display in the proper place, such as alongside a walk.

PREDICT RETURN OF 3 DISTRICTS TO G. O. P. FOLD

Congressional Candidates Increase Strength.

Indications that three Democratic congressional districts on Chicago's south and southwest sides will return to the Republican fold in the November election, resulted last week in the development of strong contests among Republican congressional candidates in this area.

One of the districts where the voters are expected to swing back to their normal Republican support is the 1st, the stronghold of the city's colored vote. There Attorney William E. King, committeeman of the 2d ward, is finding the going difficult against an awakened Republican slate that includes seven other candidates, among them the redoubtable Oscar DePriest.

King's campaign also is meeting opposition from Patrick B. Prescott, attorney and son-in-law of the late Bishop A. J. Carey of the African Methodist Episcopal church. Another candidate who is spending considerable money on his campaign is Carl A. Hansberry.

Willard S. Townsend, president of the International Brotherhood of Red Caps, is also making a hot fight in this district to wrest the Democratic nomination from Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell.

In the 2d district, which is known among politicians as the "Hyde Park district," another Republican dog-fight is in progress. Out of 11 candidates five have shown themselves to be strong contenders. The trading and bargaining for ward organization support here is loud and ceaseless, because all five of the stronger candidates believe they have an excellent opportunity to defeat Raymond S. [Anti-Dies] McKeough in November.

Byrne Gets Support.

Emmet F. Byrne, former assistant state's attorney and assistant corporation counsel, who won high praise from the Chicago Bar association when he was a candidate for Municipal court judge in 1936, appears to be the standout. In that year he polled more than 600,000 votes altho defeated in the Democratic landslide.

His strongest opponents are Patrick H. Moynihan, who was the district's congressman in 1932; Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], who was a candidate in 1932; Edward J. Finan, a leader in south side and Cook county veteran's organizations, who is said to have won considerable support from various wards; and John T. Conlon, 7550 Oglesby avenue.

Congressman McKeough, Democratic incumbent, is expected to receive full machine support in the primary and find the going easy against Edward P. Garrity, 4830 Kimbark avenue, his outstanding opponent. McKeough's chances have been hurt by his vote against continuance of the Martin Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

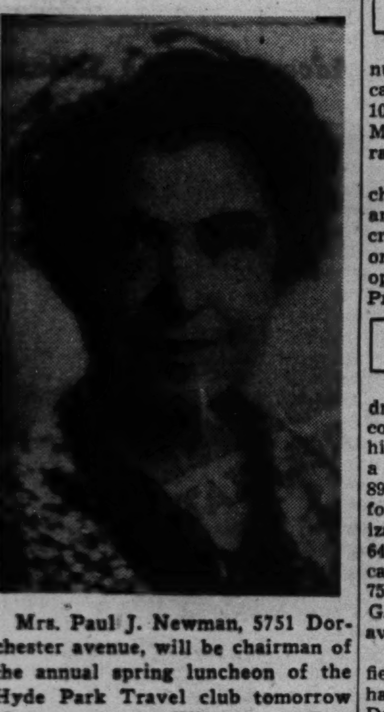
Dosland Gains Support.

Goodwin L. Dosland, 11831 South Longwood drive, the Republican nominee in the 3d district in 1938, has been given the support during the last week of the elected committeemen of his party. This should virtually assure his nomination over Waldemar J. Roehler, former Republican minority member of the old West Park board, his most formidable pursuer.

Dosland has a record of having run up 100,357 votes in the 1938 November election against Congressman Edward A. Kelly. The latter's plurality at that time was 27,240 votes. Dosland and his supporters say they will run up a higher plurality this year.

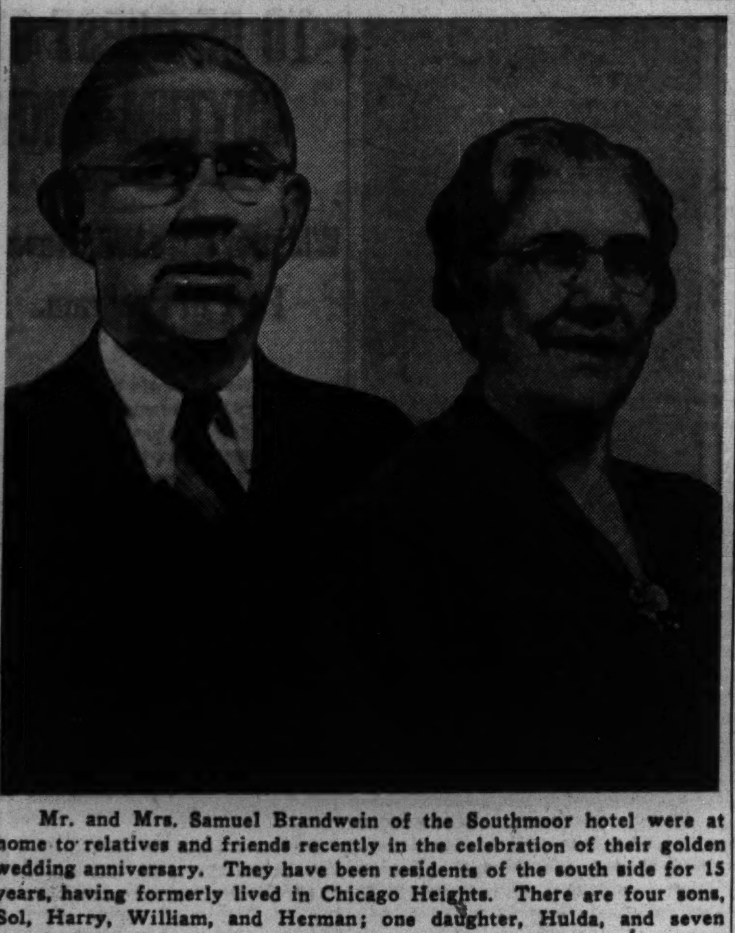
Kelly, who is seeking the renomination with machine support, is reported to have little opposition in Frank Pulaski, 3928 West 66th street, and Eugene T. Horn, 5930 South Campbell avenue.

Luncheon Chairman



Mrs. Paul J. Newman, 5751 Dorchester avenue, will be chairman of the annual spring luncheon of the Hyde Park Travel club tomorrow afternoon in the Windermere East hotel, 56th street and Hyde Park boulevard.

Wed Half Century



Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brandwein of the Southmoor hotel were at home to relatives and friends recently in the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary. They have been residents of the south side for 15 years, having formerly lived in Chicago Heights. There are four sons, Sol, Harry, William, and Herman; one daughter, Hulda, and seven grandchildren.

STATE CENTRAL CAMPAIGN IS MOSTLY ROUTINE

For Democrats It's Just a Love Feast.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Altho there are several lively tilts developing among candidates for the Republican state central committee in the south and southwest sections of Chicagoland, the sterner battles for other party posts have robbed these tussles of their sting. Among the Democrats machine harmony has virtually made the choosing of the committeemen a cut and dried affair.

State central committeemen for both parties are picked by congressional district and elected, not nominated, every two years in the April primaries. One committeeman for each party will be chosen from the following congressional districts either wholly or partly within the south and southwestern areas: 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 6th, and 11th.

No Conflict Now.

According to word from the firing line the Republican battle over the retention by Hill Blackett, Chicago advertising executive, of his national committee seat, has not involved the state central committee fight. This year there is no conflict between the Kelly-Nash forces in the Chicago city hall and the Horner group at the statehouse.

Thus Democratic organization support of candidates is tantamount to election. In 1938 the Horner-Courtney faction was trying to seize one or two of the 10 committee seats the Kelly-Nash machine considers its own in the 10 Chicago congressional districts. The attempt failed and altho the Kelly-Nash faction could have controled the state convention, harmony prevailed and the Hornerites were allowed to rule.

FIRST DISTRICT

Joseph Clark, 67 West Madison street, personal secretary to Ald. Michael Kenna [1st], is the Democratic organization candidate to fill the shoes of the late John [Bath House] Coughlin. His opponent, Alonzo Mead, 53 East 42d street, has virtually no chance.

Mrs. Cornelia J. Pickett, 4252 South Vincennes avenue, is the probable Republican winner. She was elected in the 1938 primary and again has organization support. James R. Zinn, 3801 Wentworth avenue, and William H. Robinson, 4225 Prairie avenue, are also running.

SECOND DISTRICT

Clement A. Nance, 6845 Euclid avenue, is the Republican organization candidate who has won for the last 10 years. His opponent is William F. Marsh, 10337 South Avenue O, who ran 2 to 1 behind Nance in 1938.

James J. Sullivan, 8132 Ellis avenue, chief clerk for the sanitary district and acting chairman of the Democratic state central committee, is the organization candidate here. He is opposed by Joseph C. Kulig, 11738 Prairie avenue.

THIRD DISTRICT

Lester J. Norris, 11347 Longwood drive, secretary of the Republican county central committee, looks like his party's winner. He may be given a close race by Walter H. Villiers, 8903 South Union avenue, candidate for the 19th ward rump labor organization, and by Harold A. Pilgrim, 6406 Eggleston avenue. Two other candidates are Edward J. Nieubuurt, 7520 South Halsted street, and George G. Youstra, 8518 South Hermitage avenue.

David M. Hickey, 1349 West Garfield avenue, present committeeman, has the machine endorsement for the Democrats. Three opponents are Helen J. Pulaski, 3928 West 66th street; Thomas A. O'Connor, 1021 West 76th street and Riley A. Bender, 5927 South Eggleston avenue.

FOURTH DISTRICT

The fight for Republican state central committeeman here is one of the liveliest in the city. Henry H. Harris, 3327 South Aberdeen street, current committee member, is being hard pressed by both Frank E. Palacz, 3661 South Wood street and Charles M. Fasan, 3346 South Hamilton avenue. This situation is complicated somewhat by tough fighting for ward committeeman jobs. Two other Republican candidates here are John L. Guminski, 3150 South Aberdeen street and Frank Belcik, 3307 South Damen avenue.

Patrick G. McGuire, 4335 Princeton avenue, who has been Democratic committeeman since 1922, is again the organization candidate. Sigmund Pawlik, 3742 South Wood street, is his opponent.

SIXTH DISTRICT

John F. Tyrrell, 105 South Mayfield avenue, former chairman of the Republican state central committee and current committeeman from this district, will fight it out with Charles R. Hussey of Forest Park. Tyrrell is associated with the Green-for-governor forces and Hussey with Lyons. Other Republican candidates here are John F. Strohm, 110 South Hamlin avenue; William F. Stoddard, Riverside, and Irving D. Alpert, 1535 South Hamlin avenue.

Edward Sullivan, 3819 Maypole avenue, assistant corporation counsel, is unopposed as Democratic candidate to succeed Richard M. Sullivan.

In College Play

Miss Frieda Goodyear, 6913 Calumet avenue, will enact one of the leading roles in Steele and Mitchell's drama, "Post Road," to be presented by the De Paul University Little theater group tomorrow evening thru Wednesday in the college little theater, 64 East Lake street.

Mothers of Leo Freshmen to Have Social Tomorrow

Mothers of freshmen in Leo High school will hold a social tomorrow afternoon in the school auditorium, 79th and Peoria streets. Mrs. Raymond Scholfied, 8049 Paulina street, will be chairman of the party.

NAMED COLONEL OF CHICAGO HIGH CADET BRIGADE

Joseph Hind of Lane Is Winner in Test.

Joseph Hind of Lane Technical High school was chosen cadet colonel of the Chicago high school R. O. T. C. brigade last week after an examination given to more than 50 cadet officers from the city's 27 R. O. T. C. schools. The examination, which lasted two and a half hours, was both written and oral.

The other 10 members of the staff, based on the grades they made in the tests, are Donald McMillan of Morgan Park and Raymond Astor of Lake View, lieutenant colonels; Warren Altman of Harper, Robert Johnson of Lane Tech, Robert Ruskamp of Morgan Park, and Arthur Olson of Tilden Tech, majors, and Carl Frantzve of Tilden Tech, James Beird of Hyde Park, William Elghammer of Hirsch, and William Fairchild of Sullivan, captains.

Makeup of Board.

The board which graded the tests consisted of the four Chicago R. O. T. C. supervisors: Lieut. Col. Renn Lawrence, and Majors Joseph Lambert, William Weston, and Robert Renth. The cadet corps staff will precede the annual R. O. T. C. review on Michigan avenue sponsored this spring by THE TRIBUNE.

The annual platoon competition among the R. O. T. C. units of the city will take place Saturday in the 132d infantry armory, 2653 West Madison street. The contest will begin at 9 a. m. and last until the middle of the afternoon; each platoon will be graded by every military instructor but its own.

Order of Parade.

The order in which the crack platoons will appear, changing at 10 minute intervals, is as follows: Von Steuben, Austin, Hirsch, Roosevelt, Du Sable, Sullivan, Harrison, Calumet, Bowen, Harper, Amundsen, Lane, Tilden, Morgan Park, Steinmetz, Lindblom, and Foreman in the morning.

Hyde Park, Marshall, Fenger, Senn, Lake View, Englewood, Kelly, Schurz, Waller, and Crane will appear in the afternoon.

MOTHERS' CLUB WILL CELEBRATE SILVER JUBILEE

Twenty-five years ago Dr. Franc Morrill, with the idea for an undenominational club where young mothers could meet and discuss their problems, invited 10 mothers to her home. Today the organization is the Stewart Ridge Mothers' club and numbers 100 members.

The silver anniversary of the club will be celebrated Thursday afternoon with a luncheon in the West Pullman Methodist church, 120th street and Normal avenue. Arrangements are in charge of the ways and means committee, of which Mrs. V. W. Haag is chairman. Members are Mrs. E. A. Boughan, Mrs. G. H. Bushee, Mrs. J. A. Fisher, Mrs. A. G. Jacobson, Mrs. R. G. Jahn, Mrs. J. W. Lamble, Mrs. A. O. Lerch, Mrs. H. B. Peterson, Mrs. Carl Whitcomb, and Mrs. John Wyma.

The monthly meeting of the club will be held Wednesday evening in West Pullman park fieldhouse, 123d street and Stewart avenue. Special guests will be the members of the West Pullman Woman's club.

Will Head 9,000 Cadets

Chicago's R. O. T. C. cadet corps staff, selected to head the 9,000 odd cadets in the city's 27 R. O. T. C. schools, evolved from a two and a half hour examination recently given by the local R. O. T. C. supervisors. The ranking of the staff is as follows (left to right, front row): Col. Joseph Hind of Lane Tech, Lieut. Col. Raymond Astor of Lake View, Lieut. Col. Donald McMillan of Morgan Park, Capt. William Fairchild of Sullivan, and Maj. Robert Ruskamp of Morgan Park; (rear) Maj. Arthur Olson of Tilden, Capt. Carl Frantzve of Tilden, Capt. Robert Elghammer of Hirsch, Capt. James Beird of Hyde Park, and Maj. Warren Altman of Harper. Maj. Robert Johnson of Lane Tech, not shown in the picture, also made the staff. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

She started the plan in her home last year for the purpose of coaching local recreation chairmen in the various types of games, dances, and family and community play.

A. in the school auditorium, 8306 St. Lawrence avenue. All members and friends of the Dixon school are invited to attend, according to Mrs. S. F. Bradel, 711 East 81st street.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

POWERS OF FCC LIMITED AS TO INTERFERENCE

Can Control the Radio 'Hams,' However.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—With complaints continuing to pour in about local interference to radio broadcast reception, the Federal Communications commission has reiterated that it has no authority to require elimination of interference if it is of inductive origin.

This means that it is powerless to do anything drastic about noises caused by diathermy or other electrical apparatus; the ignition systems of automobiles, electrical signs, or other contributing agents.

With regard to interference caused by the operation of amateur stations the commission has jurisdiction. Before reporting complaints of such interference, however, it suggests that the performance of many receiving sets encountering cross-talk [or dot and dash] interference may often be improved materially both for selectivity and sensitivity if properly aligned and tubes checked and replaced if found defective.

Some receivers which are not capable of separating the desired from the undesired station, which is 20 or more kilocycles away, may be improved materially by employing a simple "wave trap" obtainable at most radio or electrical goods stores. An expert service man can often locate the source or cause of interference and eliminate it.

Should Note Call.

If, however, a listener is certain that an amateur operator is causing him distress, he should note carefully the call letters of the interfering "ham," and obtain his name and address before making a complaint. If the complainant is uncertain as to whether he has the call letters and name identified correctly he can check them in the radio amateur call book, obtainable at radio stores at a nominal charge.

In the Chicago area alone there are more than 2,000 amateurs. Therefore, it is important that the local communications' commission inspector have accurate identification of the amateur causing the nuisance. It is not sufficient for a complainant to say that the interference is coming from some one in his neighborhood or in his block.

When the suspected offender has been identified, the information in Chicago should be directed to the FCC inspector's office, 225 South La Salle street. The telephone is Wabash 4700. The inspector will then proceed to correct the difficulty thru a personal contact with the offending operator.

Many municipalities and several states have enacted ordinances seeking to control the radio interference problem. These are not altogether successful, it is said.

Power Companies Aid.

A good many power companies today maintain investigating departments which coöperate with individuals in an effort to remedy interference. Complaints to power companies should be ready to furnish detailed information as to the type of interference experienced.

In some instances appeals for aid might properly be directed to the American Standards association, New York City. This organization affords representation to all interested in the reduction of electrically caused noises. The Institute of Radio Engineers, the Institute of Radio Service Men, the Radio Manufacturers association, the National Association of Broadcasters, and the Radio Club of America, among other groups, are coöperating with the Standards association toward the end of eliminating interference.

Interference caused by diathermy and other medical equipment is occupying the attention of FCC engineers, it has announced, because of its deleterious effect on television and other transmissions in the higher frequencies. The commission recently received a resolution from a police radio department association requesting it to declare diathermy a nuisance to police radio.

Pending further legislation clarifying the FCC's jurisdiction in this matter, the commission announced that it is making every effort to alleviate the diathermy interference thru coöperative efforts with manufacturers, the medical profession and the radio industry.

Can Be Eliminated.

Radiation of electrical energy is not essential to the proper functioning of diathermy apparatus, the commission engineers stated. Such radiation can be eliminated without impairing the usefulness of the apparatus.

"Since the radio and medical services both involve the use of equipment in connection with the safety of life and property," the FCC stated, "and since the radiation of electrical energy from the electro-medical apparatus can be controled at small cost by screening the room in which the apparatus is used, it is felt that the interested parties should coöperate toward the adoption of standards of good engineering practice which will permit both services to operate without mutual interference."

Petite and vivacious Gertrude Niesen, famed delineator of modern song who is currently featured at the Chez Paree, will be the guest star on the show, "Romance in Rhythm," directed by Harold Stokes, at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and Mutual. With Miss Niesen will be heard Fred Lowery, the blind whistler of Horace Heidt's band; Wesley Summerfield, tenor; Lawrence Salerno, baritone, and the W-G-N dance orchestra.

Miss Niesen will do "It's a Blue World" and "Yodelin' Jive." From her early teens, Gertrude has received an intensive voice training. Her versatility at singing everything from the classic to the "torch" numbers reveals the thoro schooling she received in music.

Within a week of her musical debut—at the age of 16—she was hailed as an outstanding singer, and her rise to the top was rapid. Gertrude claims Texas as her home, because her parents and grandparents come from that state, but actually the Atlantic ocean is her birthplace, since she was born on an ocean liner just three hours before the vessel docked in New York harbor.

Fred Lowery, the blind youth who overcame his handicap by making a career of whistling, will do "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" and the William Tell overture. He is known to thousands of radio listeners thru his work with the Horace Heidt programs and also thru appearances with the shows "We, the People," "Hobby Lobby," and Rudy Vallee's program.

Lawrence Salerno will sing "Make Love with a Guitar" and "Marcheta." In the Memory Lane feature, Summerfield will sing "Because" and the orchestra and chorus will do "Isn't It Romantic" and "A Brown Bird Singing." Other numbers will include "Hindustan," "I Got Rhythm," "Do I Love You," "Little Girl," and "No, Mama, No."

"And the Angels Sing," the half hour popular music show directed by Harold Stokes and featuring Edna O'Dell, Kathryn Witwer, and the women's choir, will be heard at 8 p. m. today on W-G-N, with a program dedicated to Easter.

Miss O'Dell will sing "Spring Is Here," from "I Married an Angel," and will join the chorus in "I'm Comin' Virginia." Miss Witwer, operatic soprano, will sing the perennial favorite, "Alice Blue Gown," and "My Prayer."

The Three Graces will do "Ducklings on Parade." Numbers to be played by the orchestra will include "Got a Brand New Hat," "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," from the Ziegfeld Follies of 1919, and "Easter Parade," with choral accompaniment. "The Rosary" will be presented in a violin solo, accompanied by the women's choir.

NEW W-G-N SHOW PRESENTS LIFE IN SMALL TOWN

"The Deacon," a new 15 minute show featuring John Howard, character actor, is now heard on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9 a. m. Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

The program presents life in the mythical American village, "Main Street," thru the word-pictures of the "Deacon," played by Howard, who constructs the stories thru his monologs based on the lives of Onie Googins, the Deacon's housekeeper, and Lem Conover, a small town wag. Len Salvo, W-G-N organist, will provide musical background.

The Deacon is not a religious title, but is simply the nickname given by his friends to a small town philosopher.

Elson on Coast.

Bob Elson, W-G-N and Mutual sportscaster, is in California watching the major league baseball teams in training. Elson's trip to the coast has become an annual affair. He will be back in Chicago in time for the opening day game.

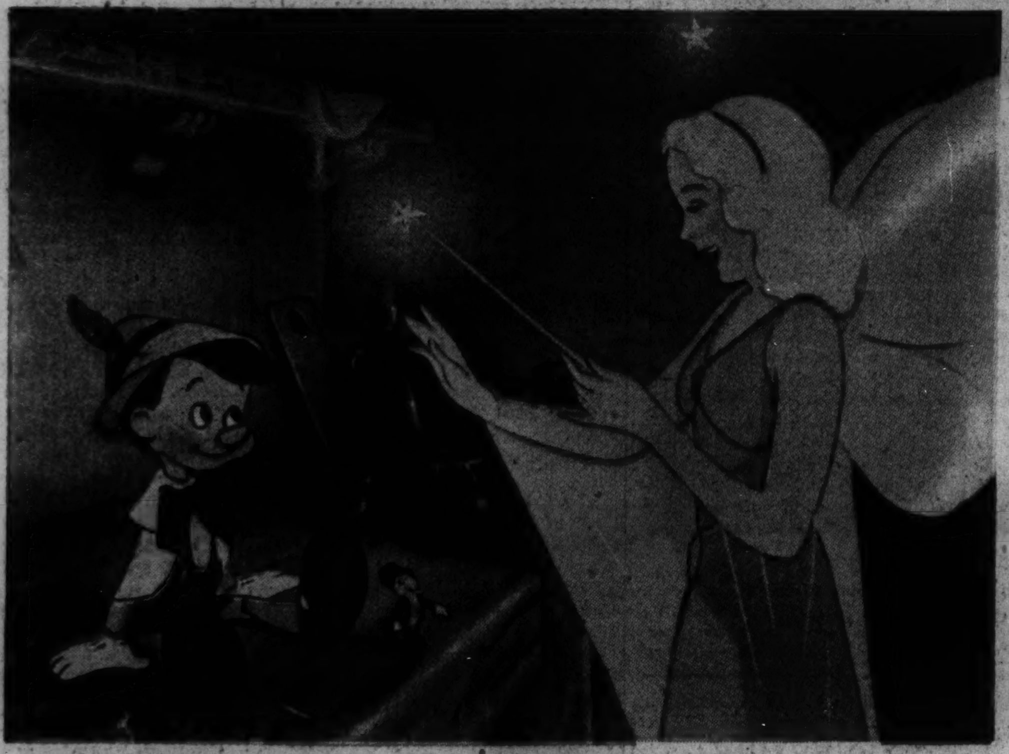
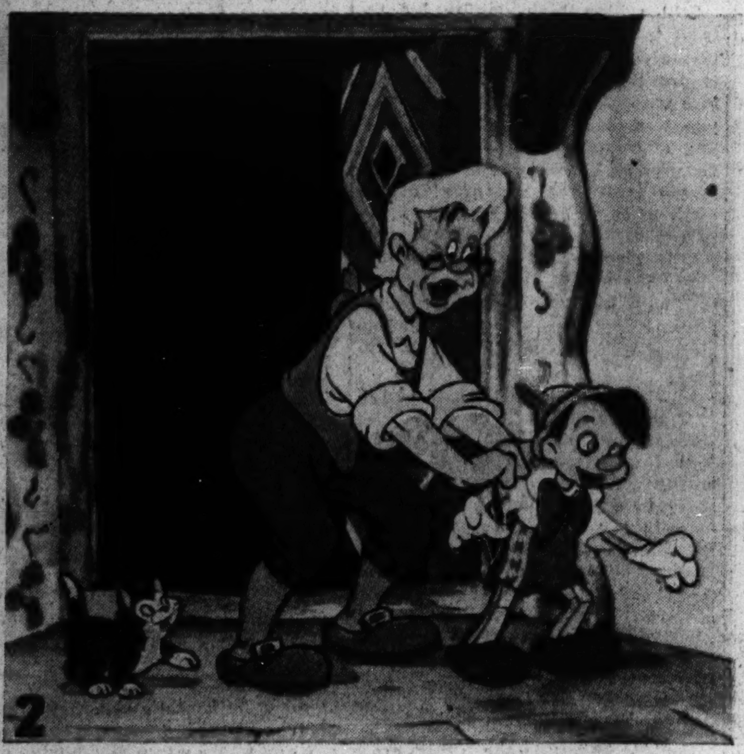
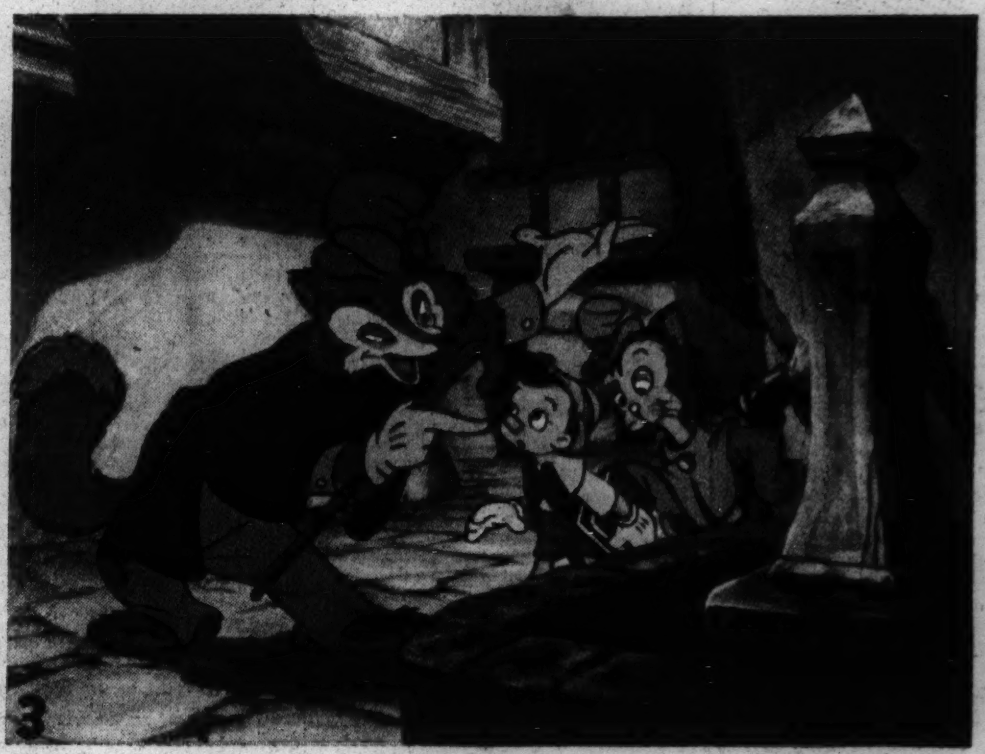
The Story of Pinocchio, Walt Disney's Latest Triumph



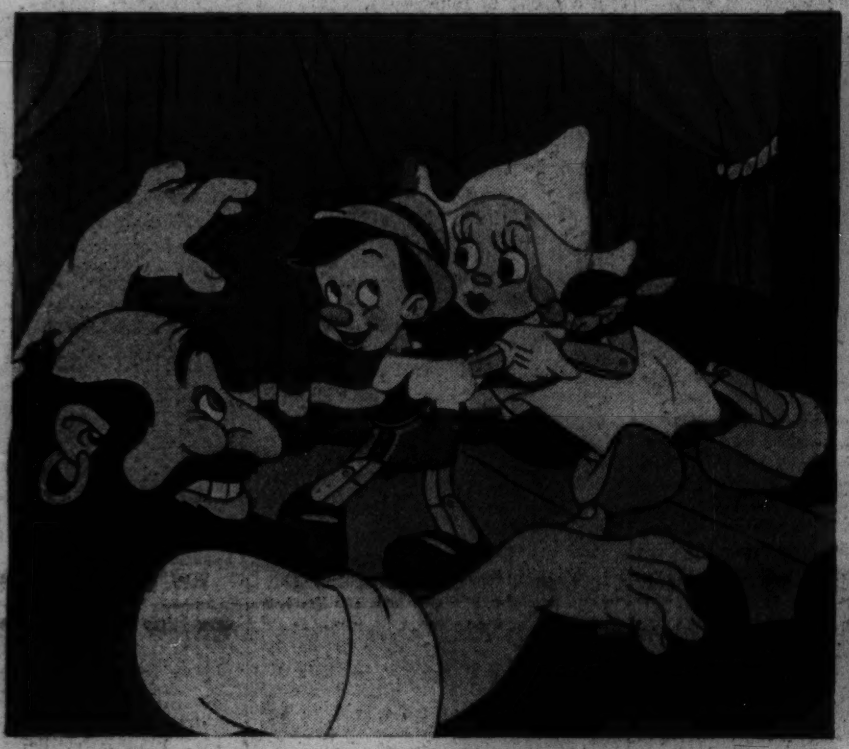
"I want to be a real boy!" cried little wooden Pinocchio to the Blue Fairy who had given him life. "Prove yourself brave, truthful and unselfish," replied the Blue Fairy. "Learn to choose between right and wrong."



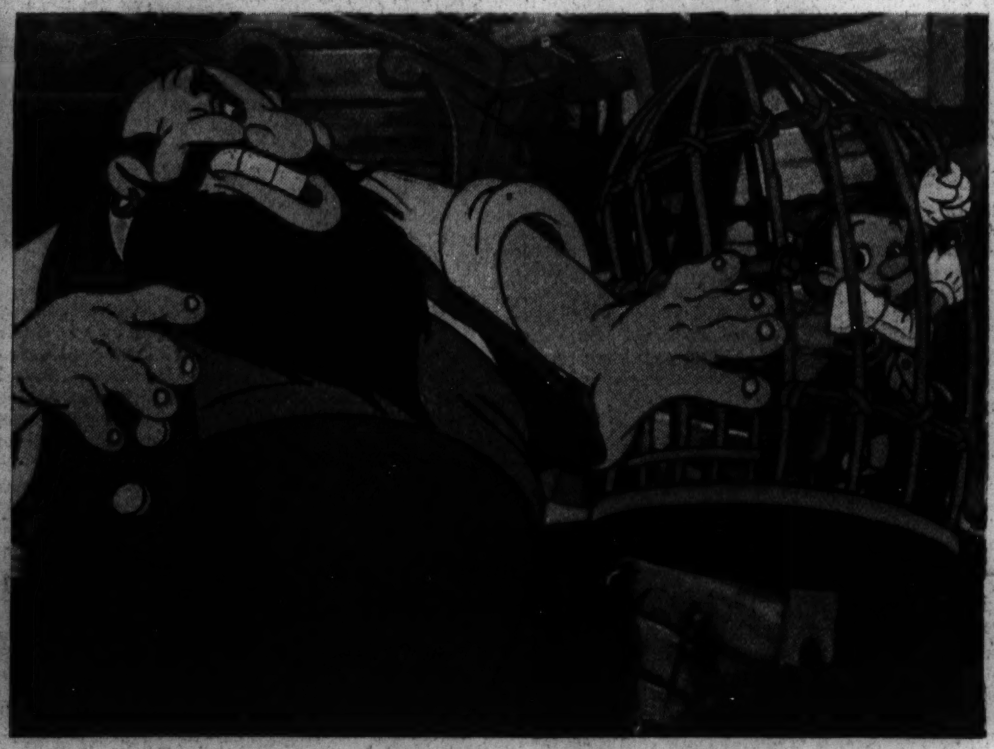
Wood Carver Geppetto was a happy man when he found that his little pine boy had come alive. Right away he and the kitten, Figaro, started Pinocchio off to school.



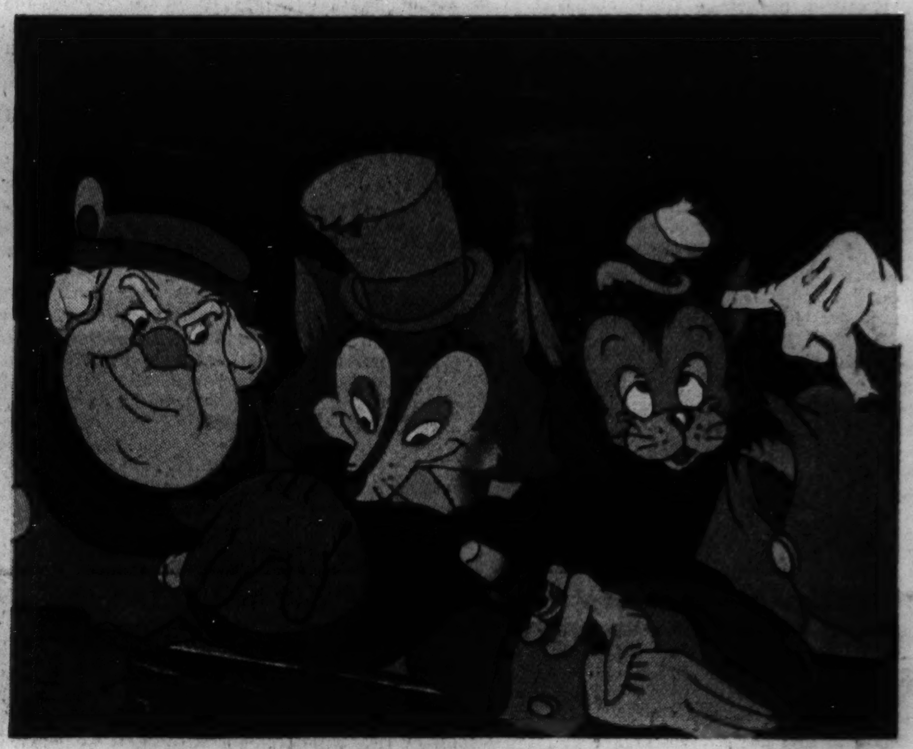
Along came Pinocchio's first temptations in the bodies of Fox, J. Worthington ("Honest John") Foulfellow and his pal, the Cat, Gideon. They told him he should become an actor—and the old Fox sold him to Stromboli, the puppet master.



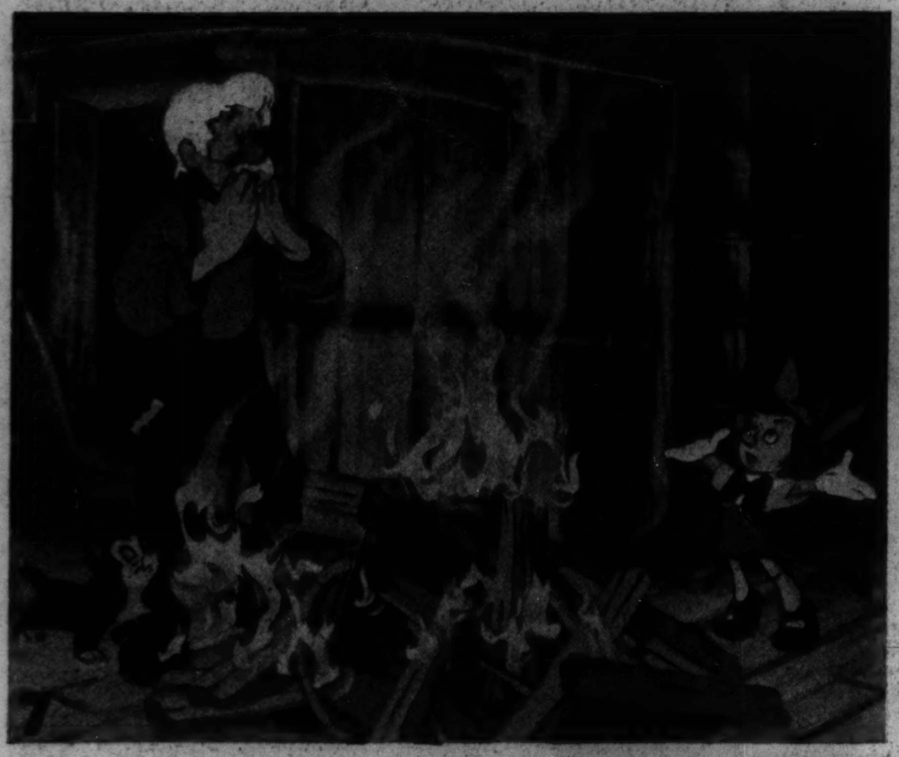
He really had the goods and did a gay little dance with the little Dutch Girl Puppet in Stromboli's Marionette Show that delighted the customers, and, of course—Stromboli.



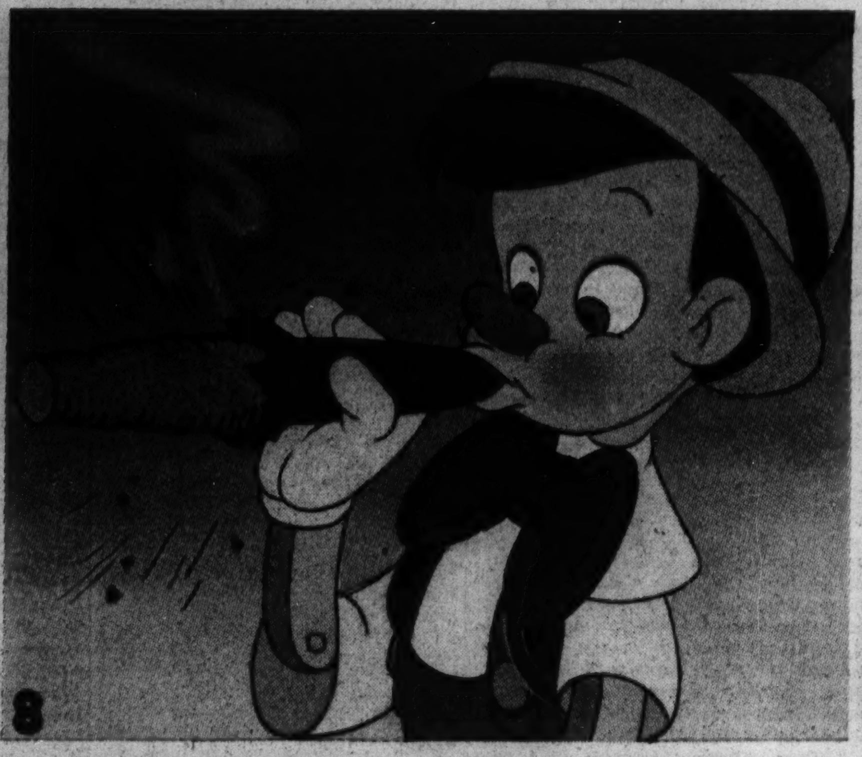
He, to prevent Pinocchio from being stolen, cruelly imprisoned him in a bird cage. Pinocchio wanted to tell his Papa Geppetto about how he was a sort of Fred Astaire, but Stromboli had no intention of releasing his "little wooden gold mine."



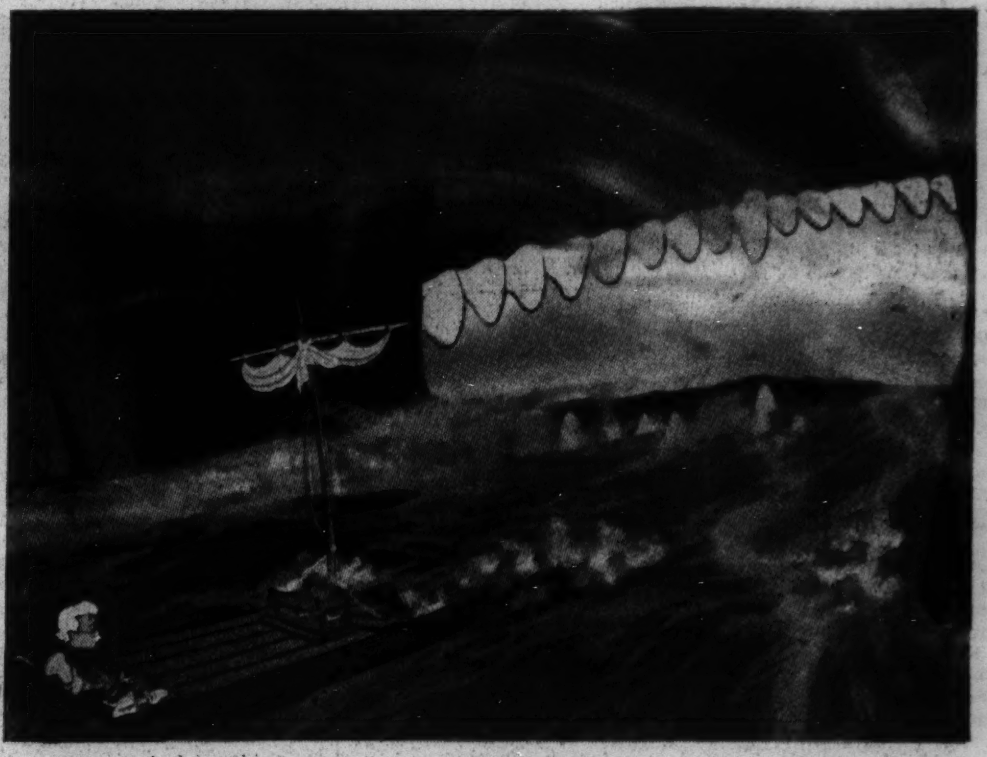
And now along came the Cat, the Fox and the Coachman full of other bad ideas, such as taking stupid little boys to Pleasure Island where they could be as naughty as they wanted to.



Pinocchio, who at last escaped from Stromboli, fell into their clutches and landed in Pleasure Island.



Here he learned to smoke big, black cigars which are decidedly bad for boys, wooden or otherwise.



BUT Geppetto hadn't forgotten his pine child. One day he went off on a raft and collected Pinocchio, who became a real boy at last. It's at the Palace.

'Key Largo' Will Open on April 1 with Paul Muni as Star

Engagement Is Limited to Three Weeks

By Cecil Smith.

Paul Muni, one of the best actors to be found in this hemisphere, arrives in Chicago after another week to head the cast of Maxwell Anderson's "Key Largo." The play opens at the Selwyn theater on Monday evening, April 1. The engagement is positively limited to three weeks.

Seven years have passed since Mr. Muni last appeared on the Chicago stage. On April 10, 1933, he began a single week's engagement in Elmer Rice's "Counsellor at Law," and gave a brilliant performance in a rôle that had previously been well acted here by Otto Kruger. Since that time he has been constantly active in motion pictures. His distinguished list of successes in this field includes "Scarface," which was never allowed to be shown in Chicago, tho it was the best and most powerful of all the gangster pictures; "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," the biographical pictures of Pasteur and Zola, and other contributions of only slightly less merit.

• • •

For some time Mr. Muni had felt the urge to return to the legitimate stage. He could afford to be choosy, however; in fact, he had to wait until he could find a play that would not diminish his reputation. Such a play finally appeared when Maxwell Anderson completed the script of "Key Largo." The Playwrights' company asked Mr. Muni to undertake the part of King McCloud, and the star agreed to remain away from Hollywood from October, 1939, to June, 1940. The world première of "Key Largo" took place in Indianapolis on Oct. 30, 1939. Since then it has been in New York most of the time.

"Key Largo" is a tragedy, written largely in the poetic form which lifted Mr. Anderson's "Winterset" and "The Masque of Kings" out of the ordinary theatrical sphere. King McCloud, the central figure, is an American who volunteers for service with the Spanish Loyalist army, later deserts it to return to Key Largo in Florida, and undergoes a spiritual struggle to find inner justification for his uncourageous act in deserting his American comrades on the Spanish battle front.

The rôle of Alegre, the girl with whom King shares his struggle, is played by Helen Beverly. Other important members of the cast are Frederic Tozere, Ralph Theadore, Francis Compton, and Joseph Pevney. Guthrie McClintic directed the production. Jo Mielziner designed the superb settings.

• • •

Cornelia Otis Skinner begins her one week stand of solo performances at the Selwyn theater tomorrow night. There will be no Friday night performance. All the evening and the Wednesday matinée performances will be Margaret Ayer Barnes' "Edna His Wife." "The Loves of Charles II." will be given at the Thursday matinée only, and "The Empress Eugénie" at the Saturday matinée only.

Since she has no fellow players with whom to while away spare hours on tour, Miss Skinner has devised excellent substitute activities. Sometimes she writes magazine sketches, or works on a new play for her future use. At other times she dips into one or another of the 20 or more books she always carries with her in a special traveling case.

• • •

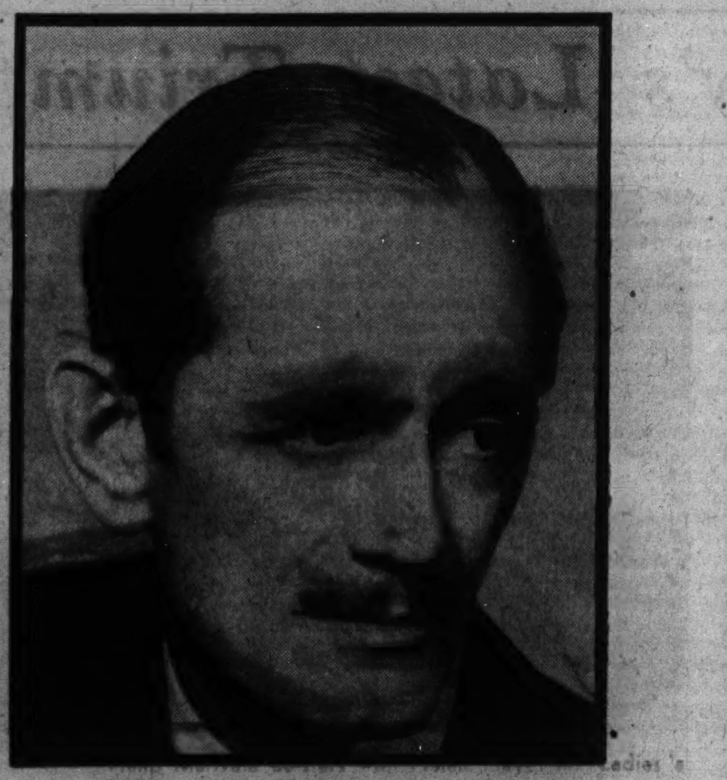
When "The Philadelphia Story" reaches the Erlanger theater on April 15 it will have exactly the cast—from Katharine Hepburn thru the list—which opened in New York over a year ago, with the single exception of Diantha Pattison, who replaces Vera Allen. Other leading performers are Van Heflin, Joseph Cotten, and Shirley Booth.

Just so you will know what to expect when Carmen Miranda, the "Brazilian bombshell," arrives in "The Streets of Paris" at the Grand Opera house April 14: She is five feet two. She speak inadequate, cute, broken English, which she is daily striving to improve. Her hair is reddish brown. She is a first rate swimmer. Her eyes are green. She loves to cook and does it well. She is single. She is not looking forward to marriage any time soon, she says.

• • •

In order not to deflect attention from Mr. Muni's opening on April 1, Katharine Cornell has deferred the date of her return in "No Time for Comedy" to Tuesday, April 2, at the Grand Opera house. Despite this postponement, the final performance of the S. N. Behrman comedy will be given Saturday, April 13, since "The Streets of Paris" takes over the Grand Opera house on April 14.

FINAL WEEK AT ERLANGER



Philip Merivale co-stars with Helen Hayes in "Ladies and Gentlemen," the Hecht-MacArthur comedy drama, which ends its engagement at the Erlanger theater on Saturday night.

[Vandamm Photo.]

Margalo Gillmore, who competes with Miss Cornell for Francis Lederer's affections in "No Time for Comedy," has enjoyed a distinctive career in the American theater. She played in "The Second Man," Mr. Behrman's first Broadway play, back in 1927, along with Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, and Earle Larimore. She has appeared in no less than 10 Theater Guild productions; among these were "Ned McCobb's Daughter," "The Silver Cord," "Marco Millions," "Volpone," "Mary of Scotland," and "Valley Forge." Her non-guild successes included "Hedda Gabler," "Outward Bound" [the original company, not the recent revival], "He Who Gets Slapped" and "Berkeley Square."

Lafayette Mulligan, who keeps this column supplied with tid-bits about "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and those who play in it at the Harris theater, is the subject of two letters received this week. The first of these, at the request of the writer, I keep anonymous:

"I, too, strangely suspect that Lafayette Mulligan must be connected with, or very close to, 'The Man Who Came to Dinner,' because it was I who, in retrospection, propounded the query, 'I wonder if I look as strange to other people as they do to me after so many years,' as I spoke of Miss Ryan, Messrs. Hawley and Mestayer, and the others whom I knew so well in their youth, and the man who was standing near, with his tin ear turned in my direction, had all the appearance of a press agent because of his 'lean and hungry look.' His description of me as 'beefy' and with the appearance of 'a prosperous beer salesman' only confirms my suspicion of Mulligan's identity. No matter how much I may resent the description I guess it fits. The looking glass looks back at me in assent.

"Well, anyway, my thick shock of white hair is better looking than the scrawny red and white locks of the man whom I suspect of being the mysterious Lafayette Mulligan.

"A REFORMED SHOWMAN."

Even before I had time to telephone Mrs. Lafayette Mulligan, to ask if she objected to having her husband described in print as the possessor of "scrawny red and white locks," some more Mulligan correspondence arrived, this time from H. Dudley Hawley, one of the players mentioned in the original Mulligan document. He writes:

"There appeared in your column a letter from one Lafayette Mulligan saying he remembered me as having played 'The Bandit' in vaudeville for many years; that I was a swell actor then; and after seeing my performance in 'The Man Who Came to Dinner' was still of the opinion that I was a swell actor. That gives both Frederick Hawley and myself an even break, for it was Frederick Hawley and not the writer of this letter who played 'The Bandit.'"

Then follows a summary of H. Dudley Hawley's previous appearance in Chicago: With Richard Mansfield in "Cyrano de Bergerac"; with Mabel Hite in "A Certain Party"; with John Mason and Jane Cowl in "Common Clay"; in "The Night Cap"; with Hazel Dawn in "Up in Mabel's Room"; in "Ladies of the Evening"; in "The Little Spitfire," and in the current comedy with Clifton Webb.

"Thanks a lot, Mr. Mulligan," he concludes, "for that SWELL ACTOR. That puts you in the class of Discretionists. And thank you, Mr. Columnist, for publishing it.

"H. DUDLEY HAWLEY."

"Juno and the Paycock," revived with Sara Allgood and Barry Fitzgerald of the Abbey players in leading rôles, starts a tour in Boston either April 8 or April 15. Seven cities will follow, with Chicago the seventh in the list. Try as I may, I can't figure that that itinerary means anything earlier than a June opening in Chicago.

The company which will appear with Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet" when the Shakespeare tragedy comes to the Auditorium theater April 17 is already hard at work rehearsing in Hollywood. Including three stage managers and three crew department heads, the traveling company adds up to a membership of 55. A special train will carry production and players from San Francisco to Chicago, leaving California on April 13. The settings, properties, and costumes will require four baggage cars. Incidentally, the fact should be carefully noted that "Romeo and Juliet" will remain at the Auditorium only 16 days, with no possibility of extension.

Kedroff Dead.

Word has been received of the death a few weeks ago in Paris of Nicholas Kedroff of the Kedroff quartet. The ensemble was active in and about Chicago for several years.

Ozzie Nelson Proves Diners Like to Dance

Still sailing high despite his refusal to ride to glory with the hottest of the swing bands, Ozzie Nelson is proving that good, solid musical fare with plenty of impulsive swing, peppered with good humor in the way of original novelties, is a popular product. Moreover, he's doing it at the Blackhawk restaurant in the wake of some of the loudest of the jivers.

Ozzie's girl vocalist, Roseanne Stevens, has won a following for herself with her hepcat style, without attempting to imitate Ozzie's absent singing wife, the lovely Harriet Hilliard.

Currently the most popular of the Nelson novelties is "The Man Who Comes Around." Last year's "All You Do Is Wave a Stick Blues," widely copied, altho unpublished, gets many an encore request, and a new favorite is "I'm Looking for a Guy Who Plays Alto and Baritone and Doubles on a Clarinet and Wears a Size 37 Suit." Nonsensical as that title sounds, it's based on a very real headache—the case of the versatile musician, who quits just after the new uniforms are delivered, necessitating a frantic hunt for another genius.

Comedy honors in the Nelson crew are shared by Ozzie, Jim Curry, the singer with a really new laugh technique, and Sandy Wolfe, the strong, silent man of the guitar whose actions speak louder than words.

Jimmy Byrnes and Stone and Barton are featured in the floor show.

Winnie Hoveler has introduced two new routines into the show at Harry's New Yorker—a fast and dazzling Harlem Strut, with the six girls dressed in brilliant red and black costumes, and a picturesque Viennese number. Starring again in the new show is Joanne Jordan, the New Yorker's discovery of the year. Miss Jordan's resonant and appealing voice does sensational things with such varied numbers as "Night and Day," "Oh Johnny," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," and "'Tain't Necessarily So."

Ralph [Cookie] Cook continues his meditations in a madhouse. Filling out the show are Corbett and Loraine, dance team; Francine, exotic dancer; and Dorothy Dawn, soubrette.

Mr. Lapidus comes back to Chez Paree Friday night. Lou Holtz, whose dialect stories have made Lapidus as famous as that other man who really wasn't there, will head the new spring revue, which also will feature Georges and Jaina, dance team, Beverly Roberts, singer, Mimi Kellerman, tap dancer, the Oxford Boys, and Fred Evans' Dancing Adorables in new production numbers.

• • •

Leonard Keller is packing them in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel with a modernized version of his old "Tone Poet" technique. Retaining as a framework his very capable and effective use of serious music, Keller has resurfaced his style in brilliant musical chromium. The effect is invigorating. The Keller mastery of the violin is plentifully displayed during all numbers, but especially when he appears solo in the floor show. His favorite numbers are Noel Coward's "Zigeuner," "Peanut Vendor," "Ay Ay Ay," and "L'Amour Toujours." Loraine Barre, Rex Griffiths, and Tommy Marino of the band offers a variety of vocals; The Jane Hadley dancers appear to advantage in an "April Showers" phantasie and a Viennese number; The Asburns offer dance routines of smooth grace, and Wilfred DuBois displays his adept ways of juggling.

The Stevens hotel didn't get its announcement out in time to be listed with other openings a week ago—but Griff Williams, the "toast of the coast," who soon became the favorite of the Continental room, was scheduled to make a command comeback last night. He will probably stay out the summer.

IN THE NELSON TRADITION

Ozzie Nelson and Roseanne Stevens, his little hepcat vocalist, carry on the Nelson tradition of humorous novelty duets in their current popular run at the Blackhawk restaurant.

Boswelling the Bistros:

The Palmer House is having Leopard trouble, just as the Hotel Sherman did last year. When the old College Inn was remodeled it was at first to be called the "Leopard room," and the decorations carried out that spotted motif. But "Leopard" sounded like "Leper" over the air—hardly an inviting title . . . so the spots changed animals, and the Panther room was born. Now the Palmer House has Merriel Abbott's sensational "Tiger Cage" revue as the climax of its floor show, altho the girls wear leopard skin costumes. It was originally a leopard act, but conflict with a patented name made the change necessary. . . . Incidentally the Sherman's swing cavalcade is swinging like a pendulum, from one band to another. Latest lineup is reported to be Ben Pollack in April 12, Bud Freeman's Summa Cum Laude band, with Stuff Smith alternating, May 12; Jan Savitt, June 7 to July 4, and Glenn Miller July 5. Tomorrow is another day, however, and already swing alley has nominated Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Cab Calloway, and every other band but the Philadelphia Philharmonic to follow Larry Clinton. . . . Al Trace gets a fourth holdover at Ivanhoe. . . . Art Kassel comes back to the Bismarck April 2. . . . Dick Jurgens goes to St. Louis and the west coast when he leaves the Aragon next month. . . . Lou Breese invites Chez Paree diners to devise a phonetic description of his danceable musical style. Contributions so far range from "linga-linga-linga-linga" to "ja-ba-ja-ba." Silly, but fun. . . . June and Kay Nelson bring their popular act into the Buttery of the Hotel Ambassador west on Wednesday. . . . Fabian Andre comes back to the Pump room for a month starting Saturday night. . . . Guy Lombardo plays a one night duet with Dick Jurgens at the Aragon next Sunday. . . . Jimmy McPartland provides the Saturday matinée and Monday night dance music in the Panther room now. . . . Dick Todd has just given posterity a wax impression of his notable vocalizing of "I'll Be Seeing You" and "Angel in Disguise." . . . The Professional Music Men, Inc., stage their annual charity Tin Pan Alley ball at the Morrison tomorrow night.

Singverein

On Wednesday, April 17, the Chicago Singverein will give its 30th anniversary concert in Orchestra hall, presenting Robert Schumann's choral work, "Paradise and the Peri." This infrequently heard piece has a text drawn by the composer from Thomas Moore's "Lalla Rookh." It was last performed in Chicago by the Singverein in 1926. At the coming performance the soloists will be Margaret Heywood Wood, soprano; Freda Draper, contralto; Eugene Dressler, tenor, and Howard Berhalter, bass. Erhardt Bergstrasser is the conductor.

Vaudeville

Horace Heidt and his organization of 30 entertainers, known as the Musical Knights, hold forth on the stage of the Chicago theater this week in an hour long revue. Some of the outstanding knights are Larry Cotton, tenor; Frankie Carle, pianist and composer of popular songs; Henry Russell, balladeer; Bobby Hackett, cornetist; Red Ferrington, comedian; Bob Knight, guitarist; the Le Ahn sisters, rhythm quartet; the Drane sisters, violin trio, and Fred Lowery, famous blind whistler. The screen attraction is a holdover, "The Road to Singapore," with Bing Crosby and Bob Hope.

Orrin Tucker and his orchestra, with Bonnie Baker, follow the Heidt show into the Chicago on Friday.

Buddy Rogers and his orchestra are back in town, this time appearing at the State-Lake theater. The movie star who turned band leader offers a show featuring Terry Howard, baby voiced radio comedienne, with Jack Talley; the Four Notes, harmonists; Margie Whitney, character singer; Lorraine O'Day, swingstress; Scotty Burbank, musical clown; Joe Sodja, guitarist; Martin and Allen, circus stars; Birch and Courtney, ballroom artists; Johnny Morris, drummer, and Jaye Martin, tenor. "Invisible Stripes," with George Raft and Humphrey Bogart, is the current film.

A dancer from the stages of London, Cairo, Paris, and New York is the star attraction at the Rialto theater. She is Mayita, "famed for her exotic presentations of interpretive terpsichore." Two Chicago favorites, Marion Miller and Collette, are also entertaining there this week, while comedy is supplied by Henry and Benny Moore and Kenny Brenna. "Music in My Heart," with Tony Martin, is the motion picture.

New Farce.

Gerald Savory, author of the successful English farce, "George and Margaret," will have a new one produced by Bill Mollison and Hugh Wakefield in London soon. It will star Yvonne Arnaud, and its title is as yet unknown. The playwright is currently appearing in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" at the Harris theater.

Piano Award.

Alice Martz won the recent annual piano concert sponsored by Rho chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia fraternity. Frederick Stock, Hans Lange, and Rudolph Reuter were the judges.

The program will include an address on "Music in Our Daily Life," by Ralph Cissne, director of the American Concert orchestra, and a group of piano solos, played by Joan Rohrheimer.

Wednesday night in Kimball hall Ilse Maren, pianist, will give her American debut recital. Miss Maren is a native of Hamburg, Germany. After studying extensively with George Bertram and Joseph Schwartz, noted German pedagogs, she made her debut in Berlin at the age of 19. Since then she has appeared on the concert stages and with the orchestras of cities thruout Germany and southern Europe. A few years ago she moved to Chicago where she now resides. Her program will feature the Mozart Fantasie in C Minor, the Schumann Symphonic Etudes, and pieces by Bach, Scarlatti, Brahms, Debussy, Griffes, Prokofieff, and Chopin.

An exceptionally fine program has been arranged for the National Youth orchestra's concert in the Illinois Music Concert hall, 632 North Dearborn street, on Tuesday night. The ensemble is composed of musicians between the ages of 17 and 25, and is directed by the Chicago composer and pianist, Irwin Fischer. Major items on the program are two rarities, Schubert's Symphony No. 5 in B flat and Mozart's Concert in G major for flute [Köchel, No. 313]. Joseph Zverow will be the flute soloist. Marion Fischer, soprano, will be heard with the orchestra in two songs, Wagner's "Träume" and Mr. Fischer's setting of "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes."

The fourth program of the American Concert orchestra's young artists' series will be held in the concert hall on Friday. Ralph Cissne will conduct and Adele Modjeska, violinist, and Bernard Comsky, pianist, will be the soloists.

Under the sponsorship of the Polish Arts club a program will be presented in the Roosevelt High school auditorium, 4020 Indianapolis boulevard, East Chicago, Ind., by Thaddeus Kozuch, pianist; John Banaszak, tenor, and Dorothy Kay, soprano, next Sunday afternoon.

The solemn high mass this morning at St. Vincent's church will include a special music program under the direction of Arthur C. Becker, organist, and Frank V. O'Connor, director of the Altar Boy choir.

Grace Moore and Jeanette MacDonald Sing Here This Week

Latter Gives First Chicago Recital Friday

By Edward Barry.

This week Chicago is playing host to two young women who have much in common. Both are sopranos, both are American born, both made their start toward fame by playing musical comedy rôles, both saw their names become household words when the movies, with their tremendous facilities for distribution, made their faces and voices familiar to tens of millions of persons.

The two young women are Grace Moore and Jeanette MacDonald. The former appears in Orchestra hall today as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Frederick Stock conducting. The latter gives her first Chicago recital in the same hall next Friday.

Saying that the two have much in common is by no means the same as saying that their careers have been identical. Miss Moore's experience includes study in Europe and many operatic appearances. Indeed, she was a figure at New York's Metropolitan long before the movies made her famous. Miss MacDonald did all of her studying in this country, and she has yet to knock on the doors of opera.

• • •

Miss Moore was born in Tennessee around the beginning of the century. She went east, met some influential people, and soon had parts in shows like "Up in the Clouds," "The Music Box Revue," and "Hitchy Koo." Her debut at the Metropolitan took place in 1928. The movies in which she has appeared include "One Night of Love," "Love Me Forever," "The King Steps Out," and "I'll Take Romance."

Miss Moore has taken part in several Chicago City Opera company performances during the last few years. During the 1939 season she gave three enactments of what is probably her finest rôle—that of Louise in the Charpentier opera of the same name. By the way, she coached this rôle with the composer himself and made a movie of it for a French company. The picture is running in Chicago now—at the World Playhouse.

• • •

Miss MacDonald was born in Philadelphia and made her first public appearance at the age of 3, when she sang nursery rhymes at a charity affair. She got her start in show business in the chorus of a Ned Weyburn show at the Capitol theater, New York. Later she appeared in "Fantastic Fricassee," a Greenwich Village theater production. When Henry Savage saw her and put her under contract she rapidly became known to musical comedy lovers, starring in "The Magic Ring," "Tip Toes," "Yes, Yes, Yvette," "Sunny Days," and other such shows.

Among her first movies was "The Vagabond King," a 1930 production. Since then she has appeared on the screen a bewildering number of times—in "Monte Carlo," "The Merry Widow," "Naughty Marietta," "Sweethearts," and nearly a dozen more.

The present concert tour is Miss MacDonald's second. The first did not include Chicago.

• • •

Miss Moore's program today promises two operatic arias—"One Fine Day" from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" and "The Jewel Song" from Gounod's "Faust"—and two small songs—a Bax Christmas carol and Duparc's "Phidyle." Doubtless the singer will have some encores ready, for the informal atmosphere of these Sunday afternoon concerts is sympathetic to big demonstrations. Two weeks ago, when Giovanni Martinelli appeared, there were shouts and cheers reminiscent of the summer concerts in Grant park. The printed program became merely a blueprint, with the soloist adding an extra number whenever public enthusiasm demanded it.

The orchestra portions of today's program have a popular character. There is the overture to Auber's "La Muette de Portici," Dohnanyi's exquisite little orchestral suite, the first Roumanian rhapsody of Enesco, and excerpts from Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust."

The third and last of these Sunday afternoon concerts is scheduled for April 7. On that day Dorothy Maynor, the colored soprano who has stirred up so much excitement in the east during the last year, will make her first Chicago appearance.

• • •

A glance at the program which Miss MacDonald will sing next Friday night is enough to convince any one that she has entered the concert field in earnest. She is making no attempt to draw upon the lighter répertoire with which her professional life has made her thoroly familiar, but is attacking a tremendous program of Mozart, Schumann, Wolf, Debussy, and the like. There are two operatic excerpts—"The Jewel Song" from "Faust" and "The Waltz Song" from "Romeo and Juliet"—and a group of lyric songs in English. A group of folk songs from a variety of lands is also included. Giuseppe Bamboschek, Miss MacDonald's accompanist, will play two solos—Liszt's "Sistine Chapel" and the same composer's transcription of a Rossini serenade.

Miss MacDonald will make a suburban appearance soon after her downtown concert. She is booked into the York Community High school auditorium on April 3.

RECITAL DEBUT HERE FRIDAY

The singing star of so many successful musical films, Jeanette MacDonald, will make her Chicago debut as a recitalist in Orchestra hall on Friday night.

Notes on Music and Musicians

Wednesday night in Orchestral hall the Swedish Choral club will give its annual spring concert. As usual they have unearthed an exciting program of choral music, three items which have rarely, if ever, been heard in Chicago: Haydn's "Missa in tempore belli," Johan Helmich Roman's "Jubilate" [to be sung in Swedish], and Vaughan Williams' "Benedicite." Harry Carlson will conduct, and the soloists will be Thelma von Eisenhauer, soprano; Esther Goodwin, contralto; Ralph Niehaus, tenor, and David Austin, bass. Accompaniments will be played by members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and Stanley Martin, organist.

Thelma von Eisenhauer.

◆

Ralph Vaughan Williams, whose "Benedicite" will be sung by the Swedish Choral club on Wednesday, will have his Symphony No. 4 in F minor played for the first time in Chicago on the Illinois Symphony orchestra's Monday night concert in the Studebaker theater. The symphony was first perfomed in London on April 10, 1935, by the British Broadcasting company Symphony orchestra under the direction of Sir Adrian Boult. A second Chicago novelty on Monday's program will be "The Dance of the Masked Devil" from the native African ballet, "Poro," by Galen Holcomb, Oklahoma pianist, teacher, and composer. Helen Margolyne, soprano of the Chicago City Opera company, will sing two arias with the orchestra—"Non so piu cosa son" from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," and "Sombre forêt" from Rossini's "William Tell"—and a song, Strauss' "Serenade." Two more orchestral numbers will complete the program, the Overture to von Reznicek's "Donna Diana" and "Liadoff's Eight Russian Folk Songs.

◆

The annual concert for the benefit of Jewish refugees given by the metropolitan group of the Chicago chapter of the Junior Hadassah will take place today in the Woman's club theater. Peter Sher and Joe King, duo pianists; Frances Glickman, soprano, and Ben Landsman, baritone, will participate in the program.

◆

When Laurence Olivier's production of "Romeo and Juliet" is seen late in April at the Auditorium theater, Alexander Steinert will conduct the accompanying orchestral and choral groups in incidental music from his own pen. His last appearance here was as conductor of George Gershwin's opera, "Porgy and Bess." At one time a fellow at the American academy in Rome, he has lately been working in the Hollywood film studios as conductor and composer.

◆

Appropriate Easter music will be sung at the three services in Orchestra hall today. At the Central church gathering in the morning Kathryn Witwer, popular Chicago soprano, will be the special soloist, appearing with the choir and with a violin ensemble from the Ramon Girvin studios. William Hughes will direct the choir in several anthems, and Archer Lambuth, organist, will play several solos.

David Nyvall will conduct the Chicago Teachers' college choir in Easter anthems at the 7 o'clock service. At the following meeting Edgar Nelson will direct the Sunday Evening club choir in pieces by Clokey, Bach, and Thompson, and Virginia Auyer and Mary Ann Kauman will sing Gaines' "An Easter Alleluia."

◆

The choir of the Fourth Presbyterian church will participate in three services today under the direction of Barrett Spach. At the 11 o'clock service Maurine Parzybok will be the contralto soloist, and the anthems will be Leisring's "Ye Sons and Daughters," Franck's "Praise the Lord," and Smolensky's Easter Verses. Paul Nettinga, tenor, will be soloist for the 4 o'clock service, when the anthems will be Byrd's "This Is the Day" and Geoffrey Shaw's "The Day Draws On." Mr. Spach will give a brief postlude recital at the conclusion of this service, playing Bairstow's Toccata Prelude and Seth Bingham's "Twilight at Fiesole" and "Florentine Chimes." In the evening at 8 o'clock the choir will sing Philip James' "Hall, Dear Conqueror," and Thompson's "Spring Bursts Forth Today." Winfred Stracke, bass, will sing a solo.

At St. James' church, where Leo Sowerby is the organist and choir director, David McK. Williams' Communion Service in E-flat will be used for the 8 o'clock service. Stanford's "Jesus Christ Is Risen Today" will also be sung. At 11 o'clock Rheinberger's Communion Service in A major will be used, and the anthems will include Mr. Sowerby's "The Risen Lord," the "Hallelujah" chorus from Handel's "Messiah," and Seth Bingham's "Te Deum" in B-flat.

IN CAST AT HARRIS

"The Man Who Came to Dinner" is still here and apparently a long way from outstaying its welcome at the Harris theater. Jean Carmen is one of the comelier members of the cast.

Harris' Third Symphony in Lange Concert

By Cecil Smith.

Not all natives of Oklahoma are predestined to become "Okies," like the Joad family in "The Grapes of Wrath." One Oklahoman who has moved upward in the cultural scheme and eastward geographically, instead of downward and westward, is Roy Harris, whose third symphony Hans Lange will conduct in Orchestra hall Thursday evening and Friday afternoon at the regular subscription concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

The third symphony is new here. But then any music by Roy Harris would be new here except the American overture, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," which Frederick Stock has conducted, and the first string quartet, which was once played at one of Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge's chamber music concerts.

If Mr. Harris were nobody, or not much of anybody, this inattention to his compositions would not be particularly significant. But whether or not you like the third symphony when it is played this week, at least the composer's name is one to be learned and his career is one to be followed.

• • •

Roy Harris was born in 1898. By the time he was 28 his musical talent had already begun to make quite an impression. In 1926 he went to Paris to study with Nadia Boulanger, the great French composition teacher whose discipline has helped to shape the work of a number of young Americans. While he was in Paris—in 1927—he received a Guggenheim fellowship, which enabled him to continue his study for two more years.

A serious accident put an end to his European study. He fractured his spine and was compelled to spend a half year in a hospital. As he recovered his urge to compose music returned. Since he could not get a piano, he finally learned what every composer must if he is not to be a slave to the piano—the craft of writing music without any musical instrument at hand to try it out on. During this period, in which his technique grew to maturity, he wrote his first string quartet.

The trouble with a composer who cannot free himself from the piano when composing is that he will think too much in chords and blocks of harmony and too little in the long, free lines of counterpoint which provide both flowing continuity and interesting texture. Whatever you think of its sound, Mr. Harris' counterpoint is easy and fluent, and his musical structures possess both continuity and the feeling of moving in a single planned direction.

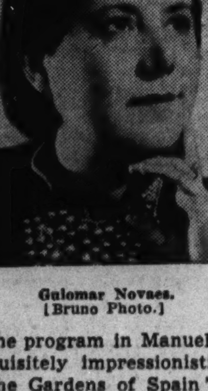
Mr. Lange prefaces the Harris symphony on the Thursday-Friday program with one of the Handel concerti grossi for string orchestra, the sixth concerto in G minor. This particular concerto has never been played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

The complete Thursday-Friday program is as follows:

Concerto Grosso No. 6, for string orchestra .... Handel
Symphony No. 3 .... Harris
[First time in Chicago.]
Symphony No. 6, B minor ["Pathetic"] .... Tschaikowsky

Guiomar Novaes, the Brazilian pianist who is one of the most unassuming and one of the best exponents of her instrument, makes her only appearance of the season with Mr. Lange and the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the Tuesday matinée concert in Orchestra hall. She will play twice on the program in Manuel de Falla's exquisitely impressionistic "Nights in the Gardens of Spain" [a work the Thursday-Friday subscribers also ought to have a chance to hear again] and in the familiar César Franck "Symphonic Variations."



Guiomar Novaes.

As a companion piece of impressionist music Mr. Lange will present Debussy's sketches of the sea entitled "La Mer." This performance brings to three the total of conductors who have played "La Mer" in Chicago this season. Serge Koussevitzky included it on the Boston Symphony orchestra's Auditorium theater program. Dr. Stock directed it later when Mr. Lange unexpectedly hurried off to Indianapolis to substitute at the last moment for bedridden Fabien Sevitzky. At last Mr. Lange has an opportunity to conduct a piece he had expected to offer much earlier.

• • •

The Tuesday program contains the following items:

Overture to "The Creatures of Prometheus" .... Beethoven
Symphony No. 100, G major ["Military"] .... Haydn
"Nights in the Gardens of Spain," for piano and orchestra .... De Falla
Guiomar Novaes.
Symphonic variations, for piano and orchestra .... Franck
Guiomar Novaes.
"La Mer" .... Debussy

Next Sunday afternoon Mr. Lange directs the Civic orchestra at Orchestra hall. Marilyn Meyer, young Milwaukee pianist, will play Saint-Saëns second concerto. The program also includes Felix Mottl's transcription of three ballet pieces, by Rameau; Vincent d'Indy's "Jour d'Eté à la Montagne," and Chabrier's "España" rhapsody.

Student Opera.

Students of Harvard, Radcliffe, and Wellesley recently participated in a production of Handel's pastoral opera, "Acis and Galatea," in Boston.

Recordings

Artur Rodzinski and the Cleveland orchestra have made a dignified new recording of Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Schéhérazade." In striving for perfect cleanness and balance as distinguished from the overcolored treatment which the spirit of "Schéhérazade" provokes, Mr. Rodzinski leads his men with a restraint which sometimes reduces the excitement of the music. The instruments do not have the opulent Asiatic timbre which they usually have in this work, and the rhythms, altho marked and accurate, do not have their accustomed urgency.

Many interesting Columbia recordings on single discs have just appeared. There is the surprise of a Tannhäuser Overture which is not the expected Overture to Act I., but the Overture to Act II. instead, recorded by Felix Weingartner and the Orchestre de la Societe des Concerts du Conservatoire. It is played with a beautiful solemnity and an especially lovely handling of the heavenly grace theme. Another overture, Beethoven's "Coriolanus," is presented by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra under the crisp, dynamic direction of Dimitri Mitropoulos.

Egon Petri offers some seldom heard compositions of Busoni—"All' Italia!" and "Albumblatt" No. 3. The popular double piano team of Bartlett and Robertson play two novel transcriptions, "The Arrival of the Queen of Sheba" from Handel's "Solomon" and "Sheep may safely graze" from Bach's "Birthday Cantata." Josephine Antoine sings "The Jewel Song" from "Faust" and "Je suis Titania" from "Mignon" in a voice of pleasant texture, but with little dramatic coloring. All of the above are recorded on 12 inch disks.

Drama Notes

"Three After Three," the Simone Simon-Mitzi Green-Mary Brian musical which did not make a strong impression here, has been permitted officially to bite the dust, at least for the time being. When it closed in Detroit a week ago last night it closed for good and all, unless it can be thoroly overhauled and revised to make it a better box office bet for New York than it was for Chicago. If I live to be a hundred I shall never understand why the Shuberts and Ruth Selwyn squandered all that good talent in a show so poorly composed and so shoddily dressed.

College Forms New Course in Premedicine

[Just to go to college is simple enough, but it is not so simple to go to the right college. "Higher Education," by Dr. John Evans of the Tribune staff, will guide you in the selection of that institution most suited to your son or daughter. On sale at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street, or the Tribune Tower, North Michigan avenue. Price, 10 cents; by mail, 13 cents.]

By the Rev. John Evans.

"The chief purpose of an undergraduate education is believed to be cultural," is the dictum usually pronounced by medical colleges to those premedical students seeking their advice. This means that medical colleges regard as wasted time the overstressing of those physical and biological subjects taken in the undergraduate college which subsequently must be studied in the professional school.

Educators have long considered that the pure science of medical training has too often caused the premedical student to forget that the four years of college life are essential in the education of a future doctor. They point out that a doctor is not produced by the medical school alone; that the undergraduate and professional schools should be considered as a whole, extending over at least eight years, which insures that the practitioner will understand his patient no less than be able successfully to treat him.

In line with this, therefore, a premedical curriculum, designed to meet the specified and unspecified requirements of medical colleges, has been organized at Kenyon college, Gambier, O., by Dr. Charles Thornton and Dr. Frederick Santee. The feature of the new curriculum is that the student will not major in any one subject, but will major in the whole curriculum, thus being able to reach into many fields and not forced to concentrate in one. A linguistic background is assured by three years' study of two out of four languages, Greek, Latin, French, or German, and the cultural background by the electives in history, philosophy, psychology, political science, economics, and English. The accompanying premedical courses will be those usually recognized in chemistry and biology, embryology, and comparative anatomy.

This is the first premedical curriculum to be brought to our attention as generally conforming with the recommendations made by the Association of American Medical colleges, 5 South Wabash avenue, thru its executive secretary, Dr. Fred C. Zapffe.

More than a score of changes designed to modernize and liberalize the curriculum of the college of letters and science of the University of Wisconsin were approved by the general faculty. The proposed changes were set forth in a report of the committee appointed from the general faculty of the state university. The report recommends an improvement in teaching procedures, educational opportunities for students, and greater concentration of work in course of study. It is claimed that these suggested improvements will not only raise scholastic standards, but will also effect economies in teaching costs.

Good Morning!

We're getting life-in-th'-raw these days—strong doses via the screen. And liking it, apparently, because movie producers are NOT in business primarily for their health or as crusaders.

"Of Mice and Men," adapted from the play, comes from the pen of John ["Grapes of Wrath"] Steinbeck, and, as in his newer opus, takes you to the California ranch country and bitterly throws open a casement, that you may contemplate the unenviable existences of "bindle stiffs"—harvesters, who work back breaking hours for heart breaking pay. . . . Men whose intelligence is but a little higher than the animals'. . . . Victims of circumstance. . . . Physically strong, mentally weak. Chaps who never had a chance. [Calvinist, this guy Steinbeck?]

The principal characters are two laborers—cousins. One is fairly bright. The other—a giant half wit with the heart and mind of a child. A powerful, affectionate fellow who, all uncomprehending of his strength or how to control it, kills with caresses the things he loves.

"Ge-orge," as Lennie calls his adored cousin-guardian, watches his charge like a lynx, but despite him Lennie is always getting into trouble. . . . When at last the latter inadvertently kills a girl, George does the thing he feels MUST be done. For he could never bear to see big, wistful, loving, confused Lennie caged in an asylum. . . .

This picture has no light moments. It's a study in grays and black. Several episodes wrench at the heart. I'm thinking of the scene where old Candy is called upon to part with his aged dog—his one friend and possession, and of those where Lennie and Candy beg from George the sort of stories about peace and plenty that bring surcease to the dull throb of unanalyzed, unrealized yearnings.

It is to the credit of all the players that they make the star crossed characters they portray seem utterly real. . . . Especially fine is Burgess Meredith as George. A genius, he! Lon Chaney Jr. as Lennie does a job that would have made his late and famous father proud. . . . Keenly etched bits are contributed by Charles Bickford as a ranch boss and Roman Bohnen as old Candy.

Splendid backgrounding, good dialog, purged almost clean of the manure scent which Steinbeck seems to feel a vital need for expression, and A1 direction are assets.

You may not like "Of Mice and Men" but you WON'T forget it.

See you tomorrow.

Theatergoers See Walter Huston in Negative Stage Role

Actor Repeats Chatterton's N.Y. Experience

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—Just the other day we were having our say about the actor or actress who, after a sacrificial period devoted to Hollywood and the accumulation of what it takes to pay income taxes, comes back to Broadway in the hope of reëstablishing prestige as a stage personality. The subject of that sketch was Ruth Chatterton, who, after 15 years, made her reëntry in an unsympathetic rôle on Broadway and was greatly discouraged.

Now comes Walter Huston to repeat the experience. One of the American theater's outstanding character actors, he elected to play the passenger in a drama called "A Passenger to Bali," written by Ellis St. Joseph and produced by Montgomery Ford.

The play has a novel idea inadequately developed, but the character of the passenger is definitely negative so far as audience appeal goes. He is a cheater of sorts, a restless trouble maker who has so infuriated the authorities of every sizable South sea port that he has been literally banished from that part of the earth.

He sneaks his way aboard an English tramp steamer commanded by a Capt. English, introduces himself as the Rev. Mr. Walkes, missionary, and solicits passage to Bali. Being a persuasive talker and impressive in appearance, the Rev. Mr. Walkes soon gets around Capt. English and is permitted to stay aboard as a passenger, altho the freighter is not really equipped to take him.

• • •

The ship is no sooner at sea than the mysterious passenger begins stirring up trouble, principally with the crew. By the time Bali is reached a kind of mutiny threatens.

The Bali officials come aboard, recognize the Rev. Mr. Walkes as an old and troublesome character, and refuse him permission to land. Again the ship puts to sea, and again mutiny is in the air. Most of the Kanaka crew are prepared to follow the gin drinking divine and spend their time paying him homage. Capt. English decides to sail back to Shanghai and drop his passenger where he picked him up. But Shanghai doesn't want him back; won't have him, in fact.

Finally the ship is stricken during a typhoon. Capt. English and his crew abandon the ship and leave the Rev. Mr. Walkes to go down with the wreck. There is an extremely realistic storm at sea. All the sounds of howling gales, wrenching timbers, and ripping canvas are reproduced with rather thrilling effect. Lincoln J. Carter would have loved it, but these effects are so familiar in a bigger way on the screen that they go for little in a theater these days.

There is a suspicion that Mr. St. Joseph had some notion that his audiences might read an interesting symbolism into "A Passenger to Bali." Some say this passenger was intended to represent the evil forces that have wormed their way into command of certain countries and, for the time, fascinated the captains and the crews representing the citizenry. If so, the author has pointed the symbolism carelessly and given his audiences no helpful or reasonable clews.

Mr. Huston's performance is, as usual, excellent. His son, John, has done the directing, which is as effective as the material warrants. Colin Keith-Johnson, William Harrigan, Victor Beecroft, Edgar Stehli, and Cecil Humphrey are prominent in the cast.

Maxine Elliott is gone and her obituaries have been written. Most of them have been lightly tinged with fiction because it has been necessary always to do a good deal of guessing where Maxine has been concerned. Of all America's famous stage personalities, next to Maude Adams, she most successfully encouraged the suggestion of mystery surrounding her private life, and carried it on with the greatest dignity.

Whether the gossips guessed wrong or right, Miss Elliott never lost caste. She preserved the records of her private life perfectly, made such friends as she wanted to make, and gracefully avoided those she did not care for. She built a theater in New York that cost a good deal more than half a million, and she built a neat little nest on the Riviera that cost $350,000. Nobody was ever sure of where she got the money to do either of these things, tho her own earnings were generous.

The names of royal and of industrial millionaire patrons were associated with hers, yet nobody ever was able to say to what extent these friendships extended. She entertained the socially great of the world without anything resembling a common scandal. She saw her younger sister married to one of England's greatest actors and finest gentlemen, the titled Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson, and lived to glory in the social success of all three nieces and the stage success of at least one of them.

In her stage career Maxine Elliott weathered the attacks of innumerable smart play reviewers who delighted in saying that while she had great beauty she had previous little talent. This, to a degree, was true. But she played many parts well, and gave a great deal of pleasure to many thousands of playgoers. She was herself—Maxine. My memory of her will live as long as I live as that of a beautiful picture and a gracious theater hostess.

Our Rockefeller cathedral, the Radio City Music hall, has taken over, as it does annually, a good part of the city's Easter celebration. Father may escape church, but he cannot escape some suggestion of public devotion so long as Leon Leonidoff and the Music hall producers carry on. They see to it that father gets 15 minutes of as beautiful a cathedral display as is staged anywhere, along with a bit of vaudeville, an "Information Please" release, and a picturization of "Young Tom Edison."

The Easter celebration takes precedence over the rest of the entertainment. The Music hall cathedral spreads up the side walls of the huge auditorium, with a hundred acolytes bearing candles and the mixed chorus releasing Rubinstein's "Rêve Angélique" with such feeling that father probably decides he really should be more regular at church.

The Music hall has also taken advantage of the Irving Berlin "Easter Parade" song that he wrote on the spur of an anxious rehearsal emergency for the revue called "As Thousands Cheer" two or three years back. This is set in the eighteen-nineties, which gives a chance for picturesque costuming. It is backed with another cathedral façade, representing St. Patrick's on a brilliantly sun lighted Easter morning, 5th avenue alive with stylish dressers and active press photographers.

• • •

Evidently young Mickey Rooney has taken "Young Tom Edison" more seriously than he has any of his other screen appearances. Most of the flippancy and bounce has gone out of him and he does a pretty good job of putting the youthful Edison in character.

The picture makers have strung a series of Edison family stories together to provide the story foundation for "Young Tom Edison"—the one about his chemical experiments in the closet of the school that brought out the Port Huron fire department; the one about his saving the life of the station master's child, thus making a friend who taught him telegraphy; the one about his selling his dime's worth of candy to train passengers and getting the idea of being a train butcher, and the one about his tooting out a danger signal in Morse code with an engine whistle that saved an approaching train from plunging into a river after a bridge was washed away.

These are in the tradition of the boy-makes-good American success story, and sometimes a little naive. But they are given a poignant twist with such an episode as that of young Tom's losing his hearing when, as he was about to miss the train, the conductor pulled him aboard the baggage car by the neck and something "snapped inside his head." The terrible tragedy of deafness that followed the great inventor all thru his life is made painfully realistic in that bit.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

Opening major suit bids of four, opening minor suit bids of five, and, to some extent, opening bids of three, are preëmptive or shutout bids.

The purpose of such a bid is to make it difficult for the opponents to bid. If I open the bidding with "four spades," my opponents cannot enter the bidding without going as high as four no trump or five of a suit. They may have nearly all of the honor tricks in the deck, but with only one or two bids at their disposal they will have no time to exchange information. Except by blind stabbing they cannot reach a slam contract. With so few rounds of bidding available to them, they can seldom find their best trump suit and may find themselves playing the hand at a contract of five diamonds with an unsatisfactory trump suit, when five or six could be made with hearts as trump.

The distinguishing feature of the opening shutout bid is its weakness of honor tricks. Naturally, with a hand strong in honor tricks it is unnecessary to make a high opening bid [for, with so many honor tricks against them, the opponents probably cannot make a game]; and it is further undesirable to make a high shutout bid, because it robs the bidder himself and his partner of bidding time and prevents their reaching a slam contract even if they can make one.

Another distinguishing feature of the opening preëmptive bid is its long, powerful trump suit. With such a suit [something like Q J 10 9 7 6 5 4] the hand is obviously of little value unless that suit becomes trumps; so one might as well bid to the limit in that suit at once.

The reader should at this time absorb these basic principles governing sacrifice bidding:

The purpose of a shutout bid is to prevent the opponents from reaching a game contract which, if bid in the right suit, they can probably make. It is losing strategy, however, to keep them out of a game if by doubling they can collect in undertrick penalties more than the game would be worth to them.

A game is worth to them, on the average, 500 points. Therefore, do not make a shutout bid if there is danger of going down more than 500 points.

This brings us to the Rule of Two and Three, which is: Have at least within two tricks of your contract if vulnerable; within three tricks of your contract if not vulnerable.

Then you can never be set more than 500 points [two tricks vulnerable or three tricks not vulnerable]. Your loss, if doubled and defeated by that amount, is only as much as you would have lost anyway if your opponents had been permitted to bid and make their game.

The opening bid of three in a suit is to some extent a shutout bid, but as such is not very effective because it is not a high enough bid. Therefore, an opening three bid is more of a strength showing bid, the specific strength shown being a ready made suit. However, the opening three bid is not unlikely to keep the opponents out of a game they could have made.

The first consideration in the three bid is to show the power of the trump suit, both in length and in high cards. The number of honor tricks in the hand is a secondary consideration.

Any other preëmptive bid, however, should in general not be made on a hand containing more than two-plus honor tricks.

An opening bid of four in a major or minor suit shows:

About eight winners if not vulnerable;

Eight sure winners if vulnerable.

In either case, a trump suit which will win six or more of those tricks.

An opening four bid in a major or minor suit is the same. Holding:

♠KJ1097653 ♥7 ♦KJ106 ♣—
[Bid four spades, vulnerable or not]

♠— ♥7 ♦KJ1097653 ♣KJ106
[Bid four diamonds, vulnerable or not]

♠QJ1086542 ♥7 ♦KQ5 ♣9
[Bid four spades, not vulnerable; but pass if vulnerable]

♠5 ♥65 ♦KQ10986542 ♣10
[Bid four diamonds, vulnerable or not]

An opening bid of five in a minor suit is, like the four bid, a pure shutout bid. Following the Rule of Two and Three, it requires nine sure winners if vulnerable, and about nine winners if not vulnerable. However, when not vulnerable but holding eight sure winners and very freakish distribution, five in a minor suit may be bid, especially against strong opposition. The contract cannot be defeated more than 500 points and will undoubtedly stop an opposing game.

The last example shown above on which the recommended bid was four diamonds, could be bid "five diamonds" with equal propriety. Also:

♠6 ♥5 ♦KJ ♣AJ98765 3 2
[Bid five clubs, vulnerable or not]

An opening five bid in a major suit is not a shutout bid but a slam try.

Partner must be very cautious about raising an opening four bid past game. He may raise a minor suit four bid to game with three honors—or ruffing winners, but should not raise any four bid to six unless he has six winners when not vulnerable or five winners when vulnerable, including three aces. He need have only two aces if he has the king or queen of the trump suit and a guarded king or a singleton in the fourth suit.

In third position, as a rare exception, a player may sometimes make a four bid with as many as four-plus honor tricks in his hand. This is purely a trap bid and is intended to lure the opponents to overcall, whereupon they can be doubled for penalties. The great value of this trap bid is as a constant threat—the opponents will never know whether the third hand preëmptive bid is a strong or a weak hand. Sometimes such a trap bid may be used when fourth hand.

The reader has probably noticed that in the case of nonvulnerable bids a minimum number of "winners" is specified, whereas when vulnerable they must be sure winners. The only difference between winners and sure winners is in guarding against an abnormally bad division of the trump suit.

When not vulnerable, the expected trump suit should be valued optimistically on the basis of one long card winner for every card over three, which assumes a favorable break of the outstanding trumps.

When vulnerable, the intended trump suit is valued as any side suit, guarding against the danger that partner may not have any trump support and also against the danger that what trumps the opponents have will be divided unevenly.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

This is a double dummy problem. Hearts are trump and South leads. North-South are to win all the tricks against any defense.

SOLUTION: South starts with the seven of trumps. West's best discard is a club. North lets go a spade, and East a diamond. South leads a small club. North wins and leads spade jack. If East covers, South wins and leads a diamond, North returning a club. South leads a third club, and West is forced to give up a diamond or a spade.

Opera Chorus Rehearsing for Final Selection

Over at the Civic Opera house these days chorus master Leo Kopp is busy rehearsing the newly formed Chicago City Opera company chorus. It is composed of the young men and women who survived the long series of auditions held in February and March and who hope to be retained when final selection is made on April 1. The lucky ones know that success in staying in the chorus means a spring and summer and early fall of steady, vacationless work, but they know, too, that they will have the privilege of taking part in nearly every performance requiring chorus during the October to December opera season.

• • •

The average age of the chorus members is about 25. Henry Weber, musical director of the Chicago City Opera company, has commented on the beauty and freshness of their voices and on the high order of intelligence represented. He is encouraged by the fact that the chorus has already learned the music of "Carmen," "Lohengrin," and "Aida." No work has been done as yet on stage routines. That will come after final selection is made.

Rehearsing takes up 12 hours a week and many chorus members follow other professions and trades as well. Among the men are a drama teacher, an actor now playing a small part in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," a professional photographers' model, a mechanical engineer, a boiler maker's helper, and a life guard and swimming instructor. Represented in the chorus are such firms as International Harvester, National Bond and Investment, Mandel Brothers, Carnegie-Illinois, Maling Brothers, and John R. Thompson.

• • •

The professions of the girls are almost as varied. There are a corporation secretary, a receptionist, an accompanist, a dance instructor, and a newspaper writer. One young woman, by the way, used to be an animal painter. Another was a member of the old Civic opera ballet. Among the firms represented are Marshall Field's and the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

Florentine Opera

Despite the European situation, the city of Florence, Italy, is going ahead with its plans for the annual spring music festival. It will be the sixth of the famous "Maggio Musicale" series, consisting of special operas, lectures, and exhibitions, and will last from April 28 to June 8. The operatic specialties will be the original version of Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff," the two "Turandots" [one by Puccini, the other by Busoni], Dallapiccola's "Volo di Notte" ["Night Flight"], Mozart's "The Magic Flute," Donizetti's "The Elixir of Love," Handel's "Acis and Galatea," Purcell's "Dido and Æneas," and Verdi's "La Traviata." Among the concerts will be one of "Medici Music," and there will be three performances in the Boboli gardens of Manzoni's tragedy, "Adelchi."

Ballet Contest

The success of the so-called all-American ballet "Ghost Town," in the répertoire of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, has supplied the impetus for a ballet contest. It is believed to be the first national competition of its kind. Sponsor of the contest is the Ballet guild, coöperating with the Ballet foundation and Universal Art, Inc., owner of the Ballet Russe.

There will be three cash awards—$500 for a score, $300 for costume and scenic designs, and $200 for a libretto. The libretto competition will be held first; April 30 is the closing date for entries. On May 15 the winning libretto will be announced and competition for music and décor will open. The subject of the ballet is to be American, drawn from any period of American history, folklore or legend, except that pertaining to the American Indian. Cast is limited to 45 dancers and the length of the ballet is not to exceed 25 minutes. Judges, chosen from among members of the council of the guild will be Philip Barry, John Erskine, William Rose Benet, and Leonide Massine. Further information can be had from the guild, 36 West 44th street, New York.

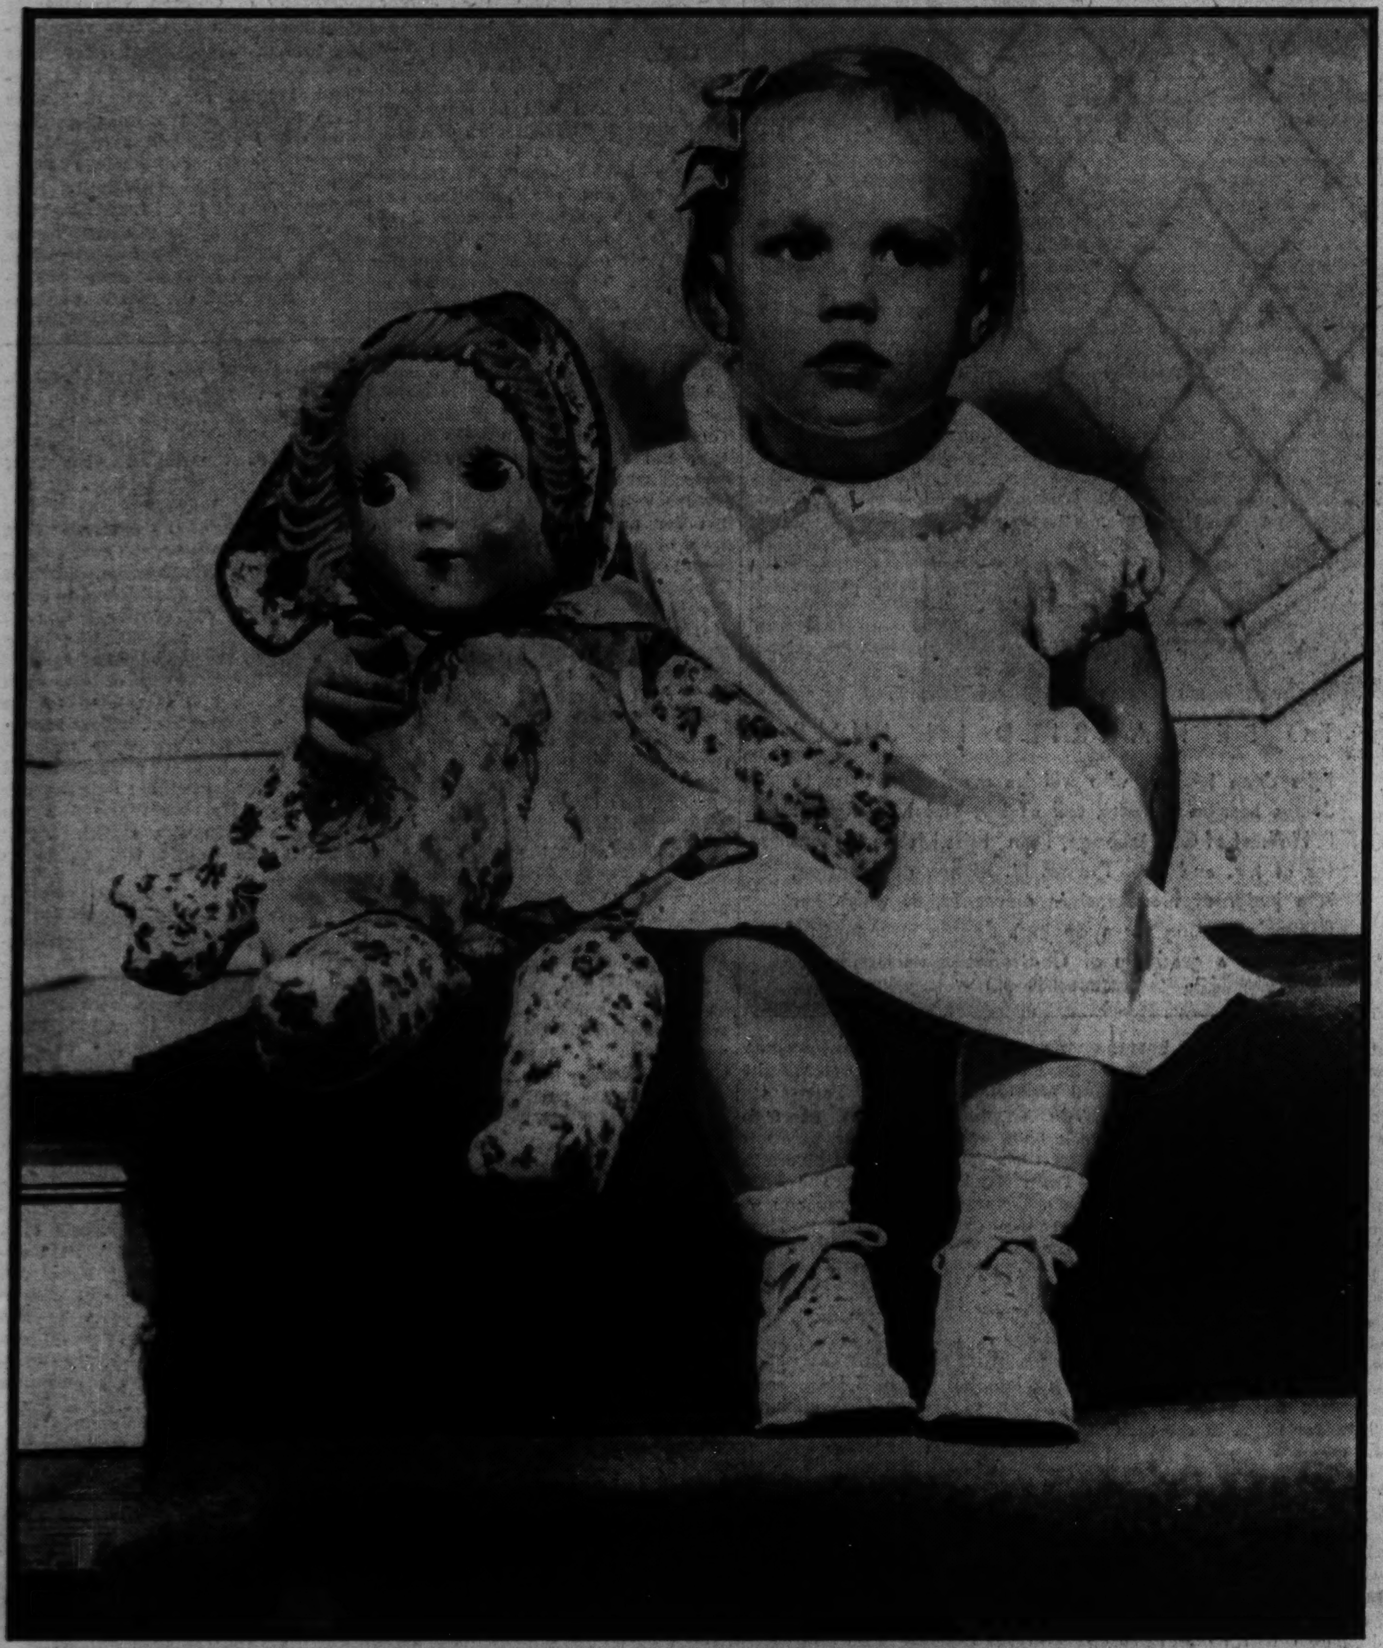
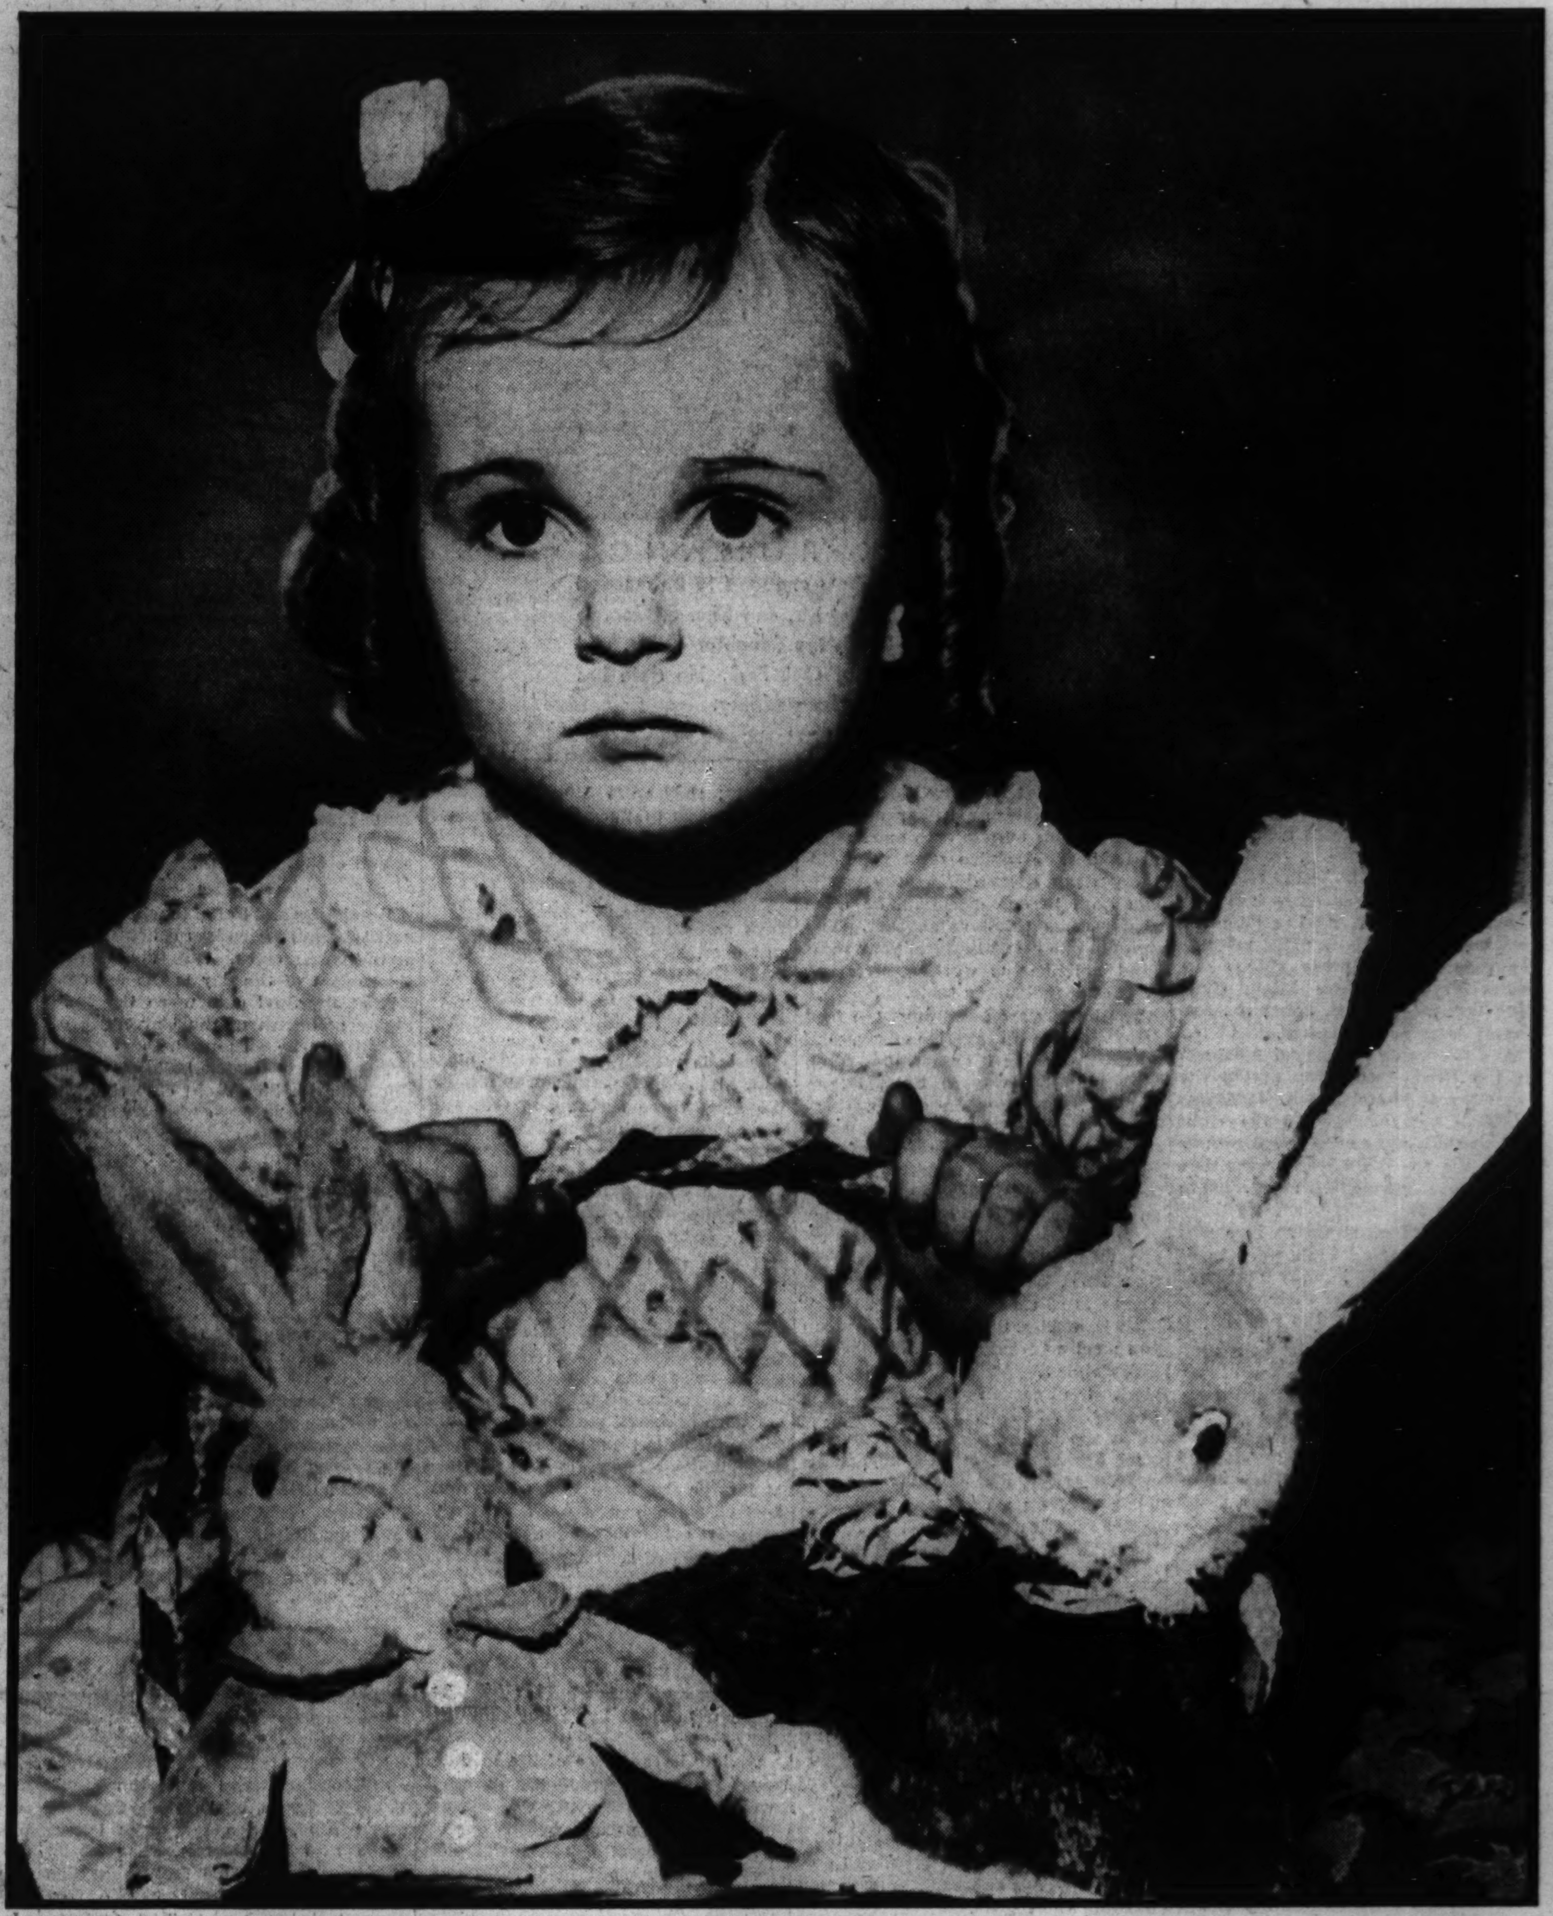
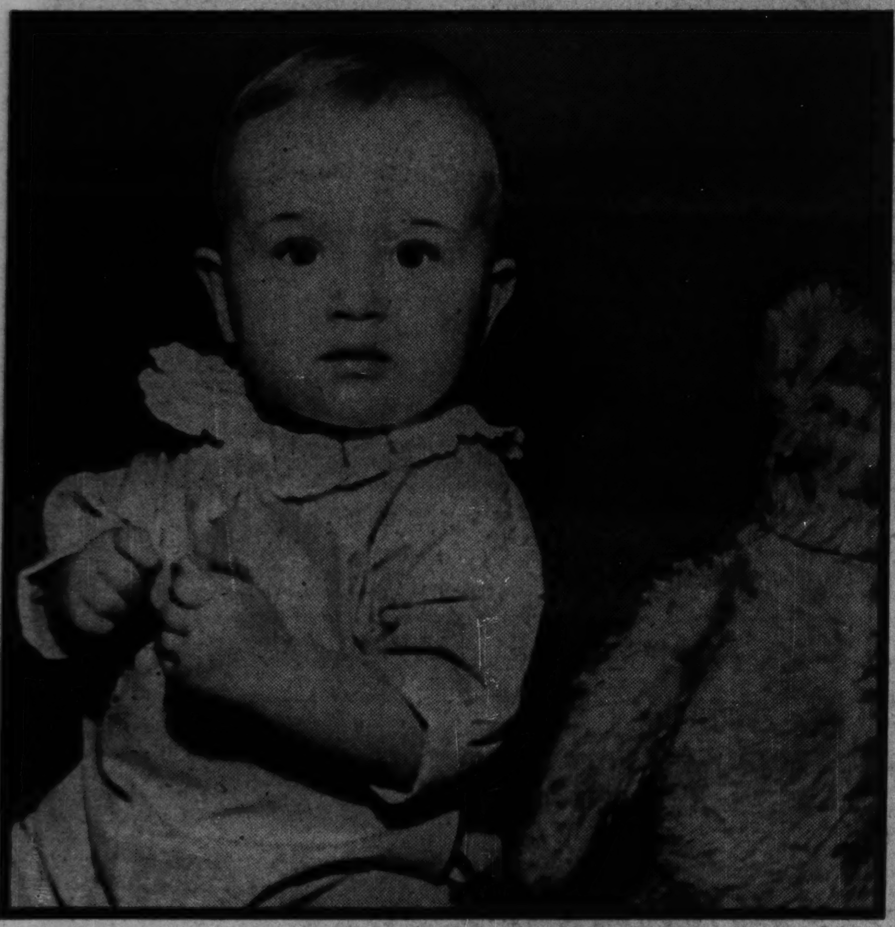
Below: Barbara Bull is true to her rag doll in spite of newer Easter bunnies and chickens. She is the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Bull of Glencoe. Mrs. Bull and Mrs. White and Mrs. Garn, whose children also are pictured on this page, are members of the Glencoe Center of the Infant Welfare society.



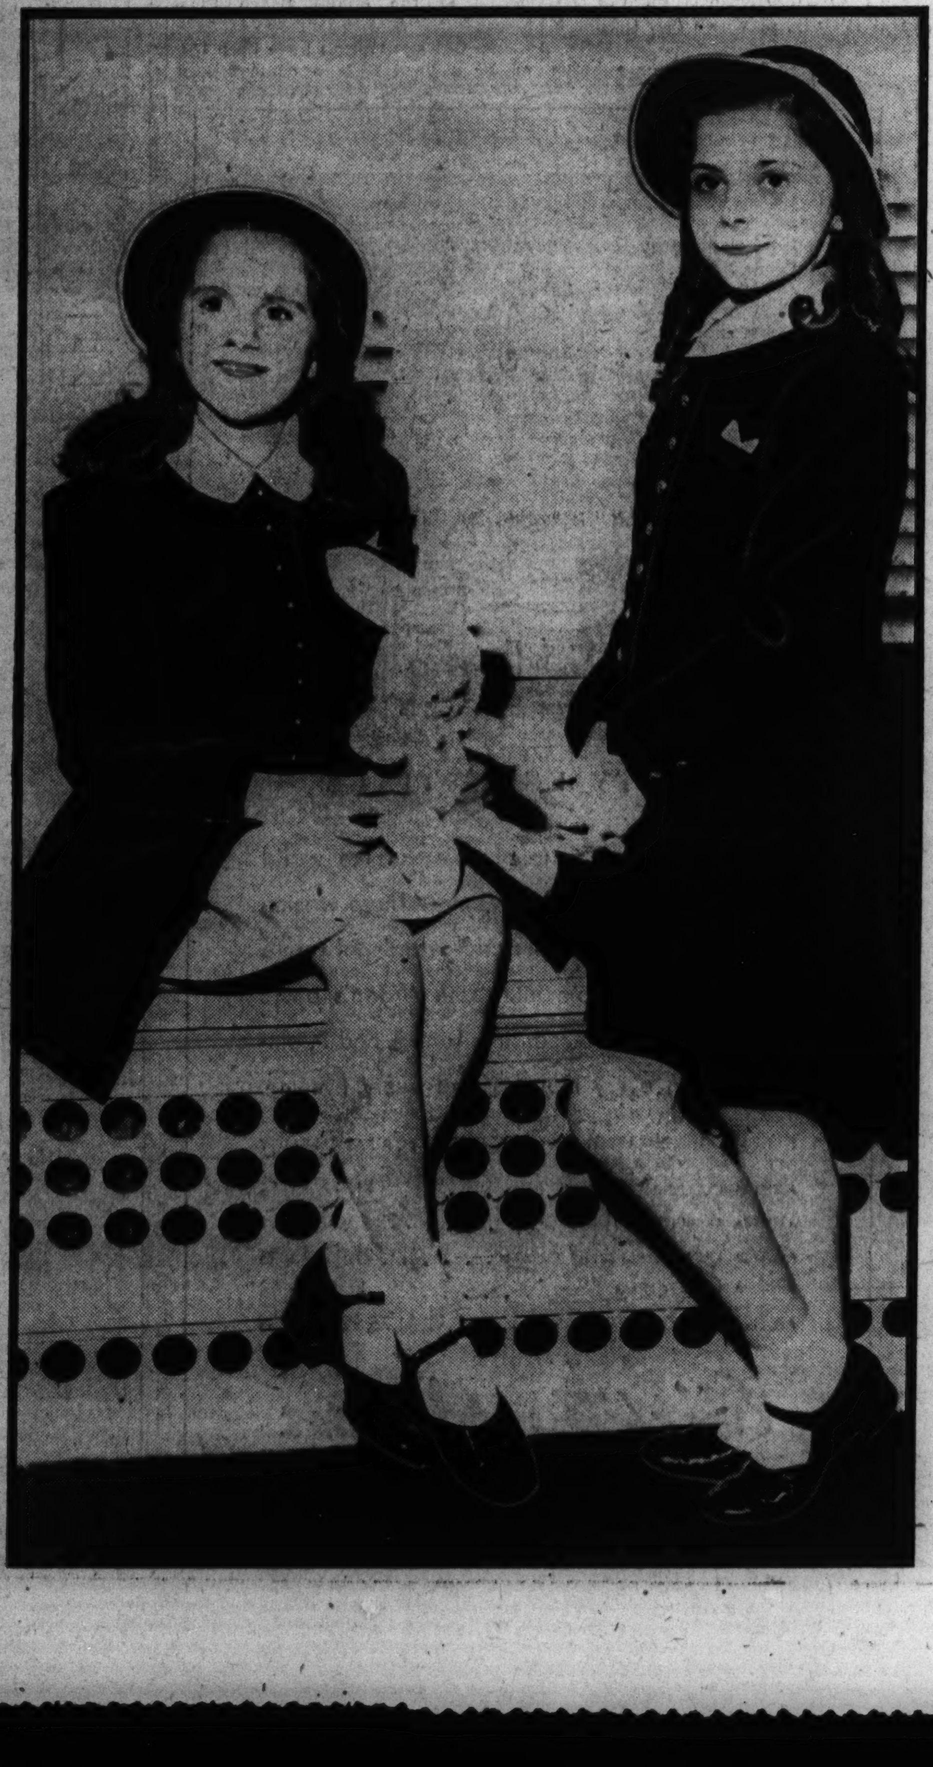


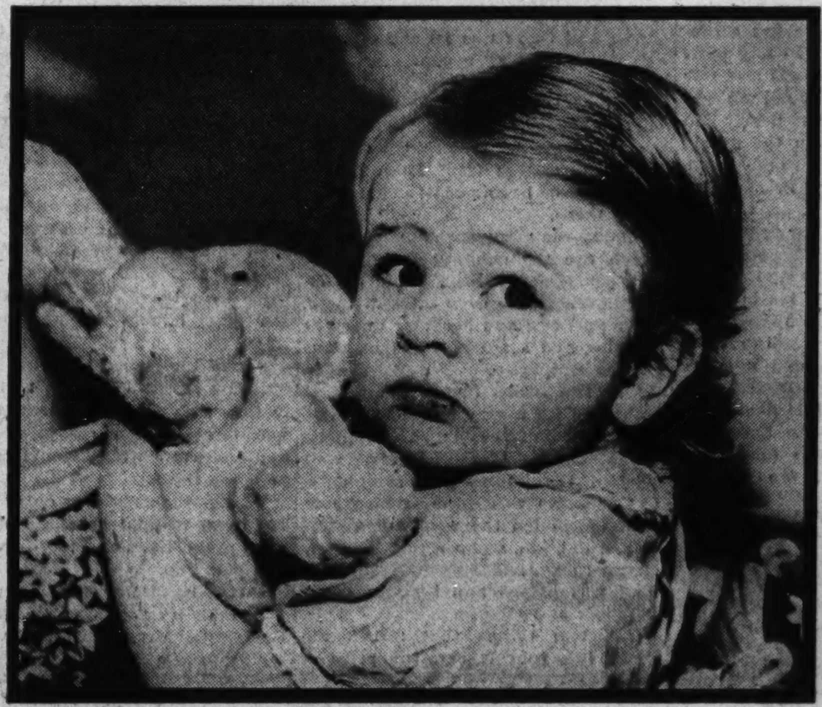
Above: Roberta, the Robert W. McGarrys' daughter, finds stuffed rabbits more comfortable, if less exciting, than live ones. The McGarrys live in Oak Park.



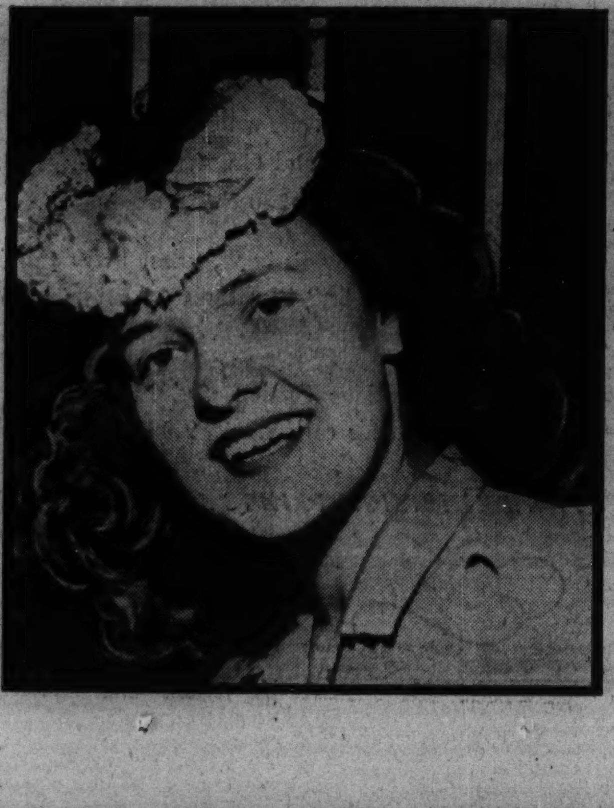
Above: A trusty teddy bear is as good a plaything on Easter morn as a bunny, thinks one year old Jimmy, the Robert F. Whites' young son.

Below: Helen (left) and Catherine are not sisters in spite of the fact that their Easter hats and coats are exactly alike. Helen is the junior George F. Douaires' daughter and Catherine's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Gerlach.

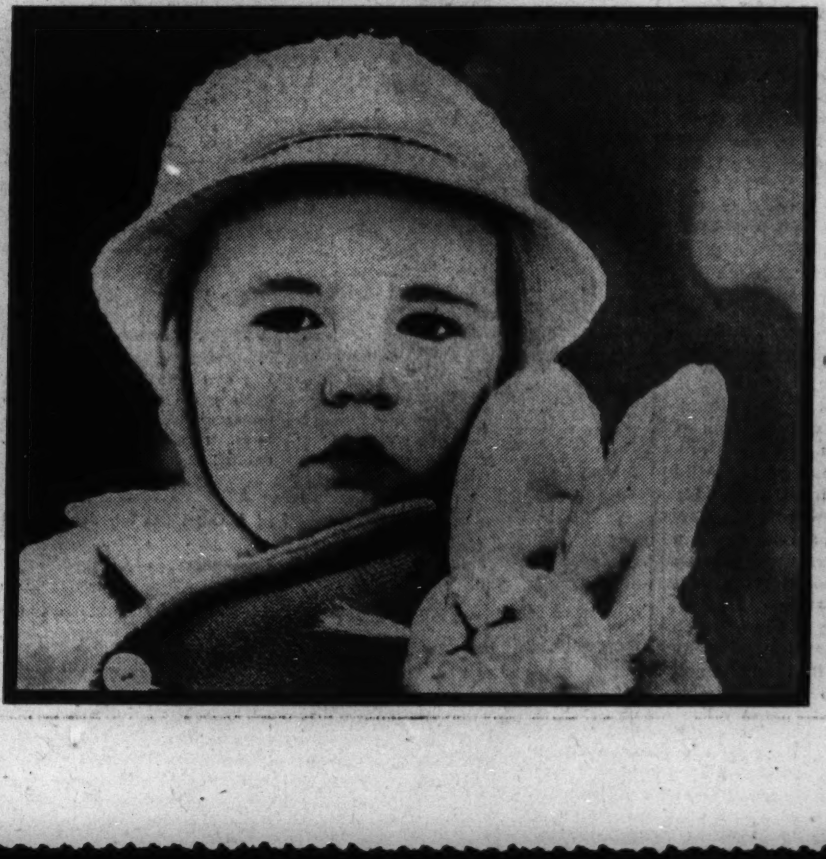




Left: Linda Virginia is not exactly sure that she likes the Easter bunny that is her new toy. She is the year and a half old daughter of the R. Edward Garns.



Right: A nosegay of flowers is Miss Patricia Masterson's new Easter bonnet. She is a member of the Sunbeam league, which is giving its annual benefit card party and tea on Tuesday at the Stevens hotel.



Left: New Easter clothes mean nothing in the life of a young gentleman like Johnny Shields. He is the two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Shields III.

Lauds Glorious Drive Down the Coast to Miami

By Cousin Eve.

MIAMI, FLA.

Miami lies 72 miles to the south of Palm Beach. We flew there in short order in a car with an airplane engine. This was a trip to see the sights. Others had been to the races. There are three tracks at Miami, two for horses and one for dogs, and Palm Beachites think nothing of the trip.

It is a magnificent stretch of miles. First along the ocean by villas and gardens of great wealth, overflowing with palms and pomegranates, orange and lemon trees, roses and the scarlet of bougainvillea. Building of great houses flourishes in that direction, and we passed the sea frontage owned by Sterling Morton, next door to the Wolcott Blairs, not yet developed. At Lake Worth we barged across to a smooth speedway, passing bright little towns, orchards, and always the tropical growths, palms and more palms. Egypt itself couldn't be palmier.

• • •

It was a morning of enchantment, a day off with nothing to do; no luncheons, dinners, teas. Nothing to do whatever, nobody to meet, no manners t omake. Our itinerary was simple—one longed to see the world's largest drug store, the 49 new hotels at Miami Beach, and the beautiful shopping in Lincoln road. There was also the adventur of the whispering teakettle in a favorite tearoom to round off a perfect day. The drug emporium was above expectations, having four stories, cultured pearls of great price as we entered, and many chic accessories for the toilette. Miami shopping was magnificent, being the season of sales and sacrifices.

And we finally paused for luncheon at the Roney-Plaza way across the causeway at Miami Beach. Here was a whole new world. To the right and the left, up, down, and across as far as the eye could reach, were new hotels, overflowing with patrons in the bright sun.

We lunched on pompano in a sort of patio. Hanging high were birds of the Everglades gaudily feathered and singing lustily in their cages.

Later we reviewed the new hotels towering along the beach in serried rows. A Palm Beach friend had built twenty-three gayly painted hosteiries, counting on the European war to fill them. The population was largely in negligée and the effect of so many wayside inns was remarkable.

At the sight of Lincoln road, wide and for a mile or so lined with handsome novelty shops, we digressed, and were thrilled by this glamorous thorofare. Miami shops have chic annexes at the Beach, brightly painted, and in the modern manner.

• • •

Our rendezvous with the famous whispering teakettle was at 5. We arrived at the "Five o'Clock Tearoom" and found a modern café with a crowd as gay and mouvemente as any on the French Cote d'Azur. In a corner was the high priestess of this intriguing item of kitchenware, a regal blonde. She was seated at a tea table on which sat the celebrated conversation piece.

The séance had many a thrill, for when the talking teakettle was lifted to one's ear, an agreeable tenor voice spoke thru the spout after the manner of the oracle of old. Where did the voice come from? Nobody seems to know. Maybe the blonde is a ventriloquist, or perhaps she has a confederate in the offing. In any case, she is one of the thousands and one fortune tellers to be found on the south Florida coast in nearly all amusement places. Even the sedate and beautiful Everglades club has a dignified palmist seated in a corner by day, and at night, too.

At the Patio, where we sometimes went dancing, was a handsome dark gentleman with a bathtowel wound round his head. It was his business to draw near and look into the future for patrons of the place. The Patio has an open court around a dance floor and the sultry music seems to be made by Cubans while dancing is done in the dark under the stars. Quite romantic—and one dines well there, too. In short, the favorite night club.

• • •

The trip up from Miami was superb. There lay the airport whence airships clip to Cuba and back. In an hour or so our matter of fact realities are blotted out by another civilization. It is old, dreamy Spain plus fiery Cubans, different manners and customs, and the spicy sights and scents of a floral isle. Our neighbors, Mrs. William Waller Jr., Mrs. Edward Brewer, and Mrs. Howard O'Brien had flown over for four days and were enchanted.

Florida is wonderful in gray twilight. The red sun dropped suddenly, leaving us to speed in a violet dusk, in avenues of palms—vaguely, with nothing tangible but speed, and the fabulous stars that blazed forth one by one. Bright planets seemed to cradle a slim young moon. We made Palm Beach in one hour, which is fast travel, and arrived on time for a dinner.

The pace at Palm Beach is the swiftest I know. That pace is accelerated by people from all over our land. And this year Londoners have appeared in numbers, men of great wealth, who are said to be buying up Florida real estate in large chunks.

The gayest café at Palm Beach, the Alibi, across from the Everglades, is run by an Englishman, Alistair MacIntosh. To get mere standing room at the Alibi at 5 o'clock is an achievement. And we lunched in the Alibi patio one Sunday most agreeably with the John Haywards of New York. The table was spread under a small tree, the sun beat angrily upon us, and we luxuriated in its ardent rays, after the cold snap preceding. The large entertaining at Palm Beach clubs is mostly grabeteria style. Many people are gathered in this manner, and they all seem to be used to its hardships. But it is anything but social to be browsing hither and yon at the various buffets with one's mind on food. You seldom meet your dinner partner again during the mêlée. You dash in one direction, he tears off for some tidbit in another. You stand in one bread line and your right hand neighbor is working overtime at the hors d'œurves table.

The buffets are handsome, the food delicious and in great variety, and whether you like it or not, it is being done in a big way at Palm Beach. Dancing, too, goes on during these al fresco repasts, and this also helps to break up the sequence of events, and any line of conversation. Grabeteria, however, makes one appreciate an invitation to a sitdown dinner as never before. Palm Beach has social circles from Boston, Chicago, New York, Washington, Philadelphia. They are somewhat interlocking. That is, at Mrs. Statesbury's luncheon you meet a varied society, but largely Philadelphia. At Mrs. Joseph Cudahy's the garden enthusiasts are present. At Mrs. Harold Vanderbilt's, the bridge players, and mostly New Yorkers. It is an immense society, wealthy, pleasure loving, somewhat mixed with cosmopolites, and sprinkled with people well known in the arts.

• • •

An artist whose show had great success in the Everglades gallery was Channing Hare of New York who is occupying Bernard Boutet de Monvel's house this season. It is an amazing little house twining itself around seven divine little patios, all different. In these entrancing retreats, de Monvel painted many lovely women, among them Lucy Linn.

There has been a wide choice of diversion this winter in southern Florida. Swimming, fishing, and golf fill up the days and backgammon and dancing the nights.

The most exciting golf event was a tournament at the Seminole club which drew a large gallery. Each golfing member was teamed off with a professional, and the purse raised came to $53,000. There was an auction beforehand where the best players were auctioned off like Nubian slaves, and there was no end of hubbub when the play began.

Chicago came off victorious in the person of Oscar Johnson, who won That is, at Mrs. Stotesbury's luncheon the tournament. Oscar Johnson, to be sure, registers from Palm Beach nowadays; he has a yacht, a charming house there.

Among the many surprises at Palm Beach are the cunning little alleys and passageways lined with pretty shops. There are even cafés in these inner purlieus, and bachelor quarters upstairs, and a sense of charm, with studied simplicity.

All Palm Beach turned out a fortnight ago for a symphony concert at the Paramount theater. The conductor was Dr. Hans Kindler, who brought the Minneapolis symphony. The program was rather remarkable as it assembled the works of a German, a Russian, and a Finn—Wagner, Moussorgsky, and Sibelius. "Finlandia" was played and brought down thunders of applause.

The two things that struck me about this concert was the price of tickets; they were $10 apiece. And another was that many of the dinner parties arrived just at the last half of the concert, and were ready to hop off to Bradley's promptly at 11 o'clock. A young and attractive New York matron put this symphony concert over, Mrs. Grover Loening. She made speeches for it, sold tickets, and was the heroine of the occasion, as every seat was sold.

Paris is usually my meeting place with Mr. and Mrs. Chester Williams. We meet there spring and fall, and there they were in Palm Beach! And moreover they are in residence at Palm Beach, owning a most delightful villa by name Bermuda House. Mrs. Williams is a notably pretty brunette, called "Kitten" by her friends, and with all the charm of a kitten, too. We lunched one day at Bermuda House, comfortably English, flowery, rambling, and full of little patios in every direction. It reminded me of China more than Bermuda, for the little courts are all paved and decked out with barbered shrubs. There are spots of bright spring flowers and small tables set out. One of the joys of life in the tropics is eating outdoors. To me a sandwich in the open is more delectable than any number of courses off gold plate in a banquet hall.

The Chester Williamses were victims lately of a terrific fire at a Long Island house party. The house was a large one and was destroyed in the night. The owners and guests escaped with their lives, but that was all.

Variety is the spice of life in Palm Beach. One never lunches or dines twice in the same place and all the houses have their own special charm. A habitat interesting to me was Mrs. George McKinlock's in Vita Serena. The time we had finding Casa Alejandro! No chauffeur ever knows Palm Beach, and we drove up and down trails, north and south, until finally we located the gray Spanish house near the ocean, with its own large garden. It is a poetical sort of house, a bit sad maybe, but probably it was the hour. These Palm Beach houses built years ago are fashioned to keep out the hot sun and glare.

Many of the larger houses at this famous resort have not only palms inside, but potted trees which in hot weather give off a divine freshness.

Mr. and Mrs. Bai Lihme had practically not changed at all in the 10 years since they left Chicago. It was good to see them again. They were staying at the Brazilian Court and came to a tea Mrs. George Rasmussen was having in her beautiful Renaissance house. This small palace is of the period of Henri II., was built by Addison Mizner, and is one of the show places. It faces the sea, has terraces and glassed-in patios, and any French king would have felt at home there.

Very few guests ever enter the living room without speaking of its superb proportions and the detail of its oak paneling.

In the handsome dining room that day, with its Dutch paintings set in the walls, Mrs. Paul Healy poured tea for awhile. Then Mrs. John Chapman and Mrs. Edward H. Brewer. Mrs. Chapman's daughters, Eleanor and Mrs. Fenno with her husband, Brooks Fenno, were there also. Miss Joanna Fortune, Peter Fortune, Mr. and Mrs. George Henry High, Mrs. George McKinlock, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Tevander, Mrs. Guy Thomas, Lady William Garthwaite, Miss Ann Mitchell, James Brett Stokes, and Henry Howard Jr., both of Newport, were among the 80 guests.

EASTER PROGRAM

BY CLARISSA GREENE.

MIAMI, FLA.

Today beside the sea at Miami Beach will gather the largest crowd of the season to participate in the year's most impressive religious ceremony.

In the dark hours of the early morning thousands will gather on the sands near the water's edge. A high choir loft has been erected and screened with palms. A half mile of amplifiers along the shore will carry the services to a vast audience expected to attend.

As the first shaft of light strikes toward the zenith the thrilling clear notes of a bugle will sound the dawn. As the glorious pageant of the skies begins to glow with the morning light, hymns of praise will be sung by worshipers of many faiths and many tongues from many lands.

A solo or two, hymns led by a massed choir, a short Easter message and a benediction will make up the simple service.

At Hollywood Beach, 20 miles north of Miami Beach, Rossini's beautiful Crucifixion hymn, "Stabat Mater," will be sung at the same hour in a similar setting. Miami soloists and choral groups will be lead by the Miami orchestral band.

• • •

Breakfasts and buffet luncheons will gather many friends in homes and at the larger clubs. Outstanding musical event of the day is the tea concert at the Surf club when the symphony orchestra of the University of Miami will be presented.

The annual Easter holiday tea of the Biscayne Bay Yacht club this afternoon will be an especially happy event due to the presence of the college contingent here for the spring vacation.

Today, thru Tuesday, at the Surf club, special tennis events have been planned for the college crowd. The club will be a mass of Ascension lilies, used last night for the Easter ball, which was the final Saturday night gala dinner-dance of the season. Departures of members is more than made up by arrivals and a special spring dinner-dance will be given next Saturday night honoring the school group.

The last of the club's Thursday night Scandinavian suppers was held Thursday night with special entertainment added. Climaxing the Montauk Yacht club's intercollegiate sailing race off the Flamingo dock Thursday, a dance was held for the youthful sailing enthusiasts at the Nautilus hotel.

Luncheon was served at the Flamingo between races in which 24 schools participated.

• • •

Back to their beautiful yacht estate on Terminal Island came the W. K. Vanderbilts, on board their 264 foot yacht Alva, for a few days before going to the Bahamas. The Philip Wrigleys on the 156 foot yacht Sea Pine, chartered from her owner, Everett P. Larsh of Dayton, dropped anchor Tuesday, the first time in five years. The Chicago Cubs' owner has left the Pacific long enough to visit Miami. The Michael Lerners will leave Tuesday on the Panagra Clipper for Peru to study habits of big game fish for the American Museum of Natural History, of which Mr. Lerner is a director.

The Walter Merrills gave a beach luncheon at their Golden Beach home Friday, honoring the Charles Lafayette Jones and the Dudley Hardes.

The Herbert W. Youngs will entertain with a cocktail dance Tuesday at the Surf club honoring the Rayburn G. Clays at one of the largest soirées of the season.

Many musical events will observe Stephen Foster week beginning tomorrow. Funds will go toward the memorial and world's largest carillon on the banks of the Suwanee river. Celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of his American debut, Moriz Rosenthal, pianist, will be presented with the University of Miami Symphony orchestra Saturday night in the fifth subscription concert.

• • •

Delegates from 88 branches of the American Association of University Women in seven states and the District of Columbia will gather in Miami Friday and Saturday. A palm luncheon, seashell luncheon, and a Seminole luncheon will be features. Even three little Seminole maids will sing for them amid decorations, favors, and music of their tribe. Mrs. John E. Burks has had an active part in preparations. Other Chicagoland members include Mrs. Lonsdale B. Green, Miss Janet Powers, daughter of the W. F. Powers of Oak Park, and Mrs. Joseph E. McClain, a former University of Chicago girl.

Mrs. Green also is serving on the Vassar alumnæ endowment committee. Tuesday the group will take over "The Milky Way" being presented at the Miami Beach Playhouse.

Two Chicago women have been listed by a local fashion commentator among the ten best dressed women of Miami Beach—Mrs. Warren Wright and Mrs. Edward Kelly.

The Gustavus Babsons of Oak Park have as their Easter vacation guest their son Jimmie, a University of Pennsylvania student. The Babsons entertained with a luncheon at the Indian Creek club last Sunday. At the same club William Atwill and Torrance Dillon, son-in-law of the Fred Snites of Chicago, took the weekly sweepstakes tournament. Mrs. Atwill and Mrs. David J. Molloy were among winners in the women's handicap tournament, in which Mrs. James M. Cox Jr. of Dayton took medalist honors.

TO BE MARRIED IN JUNE

Miss Jean Mehan, who will be married in June to James Marion Holbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Holbert of Chattanooga, Tenn. Miss Mehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Mehan of Evanston, is a junior at Northwestern university, at which her fiance is working for a doctor's degree in chemistry. He is a graduate of Chattanooga university.

Pup and Gown Will Vie Today at Santa Anita

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

Part of today's Easter parade will start early toward Santa Anita, where the Junior League of Pasadena is holding its two day Santa Anita Kennel club dog show. A drag hunt [minus the fox] will be staged by the Rolling Hills Hunt club of Palos Verdes. Because it is Easter, the leaguers have planned a fashion revue too and are modeling the costumes themselves. Proceeds, of course, go to the league's charities, and is their most pretentious benefit each year. This year the show is patterned after the Morris and Essex show in the east.

A smaller sector of the "parade" forms bright and early at 9 o'clock for breakfast beside the azure swimming pool at the Hotel Huntington. There, too, fashions will come to the fore, but they will belong to the damsels who wear them. An amusing feature will be a hat trimming contest for men only, and those who have been invited to act as judges include Mrs. Eugene Andrews of Chicago; Mrs. Alanson Brooks of Grosse Pointe, Mich.; F. W. Cowan of Toronto, Ont., and Dr. Magnus T. Hopper of New York City. Among the guests are to be Dr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Bevan of Chicago, the Charles D. McWilliamses of Dwight, the John Victors and the Orin Cliftons of Wilmette, Mrs. Frederick Hoyt, Mrs. Iris Masters Rogers of Chicago, and Oscar C. Hagen of Chicago.

Mrs. Hoyt, by the way, gave a cocktail party for 25 friends Tuesday evening on the Upper Deck of the Ship Room before the novel "Days of '49" dance.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. D. Herbert Hostetter have with them for Easter Mrs. Hostetter's sister and brother-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Pierce of Chicago, who will remain thru April.

James E. MacMurray, former Chicagoan, and Mrs. MacMurray also have Chicago house guests—his daughter, Mrs. E. Malcolm Anderson, with her daughter, Jane, and two sons, Tex and Jim. Miss Betty Clark and Lawrence Brink came west with them.

Alumnæ of Ferry hall were invited by Mrs. John J. Caulfield to a buffet luncheon honoring Miss Eloise Tremaine, from the girls' preparatory school, who has now gone on to Santa Barbara to visit Miss Gwethalyn Jones. Among the guests were Mrs. Carroll Ridgway, Miss Margaret Hill, Mrs. Royal Jackson, Mrs. C. F. Longley, and Mrs. Arthur MacDonald, daughter of the late Clayton Mark, for many years a member of the school's board of trustees.

• • •

The wedding of the week was that of Miss Rowena Sturges Cook, daughter of Mrs. Wilbur Eugene Cook and the late Mr. Cook of Chicago, to John Irving Laird, son of the Irving E. Lairds of Waukegan, Ill. The bride is a great-great-granddaughter of Solomon Sturges, one of Chicago's first settlers, and is related to the late Kate Buckingham, widely known philanthropist. They were married in the Church of Our Saviour and the bride was attended only by her sister, Mrs. Norman White Simpson [Cornelia Livingston Cook]. After April 1 the Lairds will reside in Altadena.

Surprise-at-the-breakfast-table news the other day was the elopement in which Mrs. Charlotte Dabney-Halloran of Los Angeles and Ralph Harold Woodley, son of Mrs. Carrie B. Woodley of Chicago, were the principals. They flew to Las Vegas, Nev., for the nuptials and are now in Honolulu. At the end of their honeymoon they will go to Chicago to live.

Chicago Dietetic Club Will Have Annual Dinner

The Chicago Dietetic association will hold its annual formal dinner at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Congress Casino. Dr. George G. Cameron of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, who recently returned from a world tour after taking part in archeological excavations at Persepolis, will speak on "Archeological Food for Thought." Miss Leila Colwell of the Evanston hospital will be installed as president; Miss Madge Myers of Billings Memorial hospital, as vice president; Miss Jeanette Owens of St. Luke's hospital as treasurer, and Miss Cleo Mastain of Cook County hospital as secretary. Speakers who have addressed the association thruout the year will be special guests.

Miss Charlotte Rochow Marries Leonard Noyle Jr.

The marriage of Miss Charlotte Rochow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rochow of 4142 West Potomac avenue, to Leonard Noyle Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Noyle of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., took place yesterday afternoon at the rectory of the Lutheran church in Oak Park. The ceremony was followed by a reception and dinner at the Hotel Knickerbocker.

THE EXHIBITION PRINTS ARE NOT FOR SALE

Vassar Grads Are to Exhibit Achievements

By Betty Browning.

Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, Vassar '78, will speak at a luncheon to be sponsored jointly by the Chicago and North Shore Vassar clubs tomorrow at the Chicago Athletic association in celebration of the college's 75th anniversary. And she also will be exhibit A.

Mrs. Andrew MacLeish.

Mrs. MacLeish lightly applied the term to herself the other day as she disclosed that she is the oldest living Vassar alumna in this part of the country, "or at least the oldest who gets about."

But other Vassar alumnae have echoed the little jest quite seriously. An exhibition demonstrating talents and accomplishments of Vassar graduates is to be a feature of the luncheon. It will be difficult to include in a display of artistic and inventive skill achievements such as heading Rockford college during its transition from seminary to a modern woman's college, and having a son like Archibald MacLeish, the poet. But these and other achievements of Mrs. MacLeish long have been sources of satisfaction to loyal alumnae.

• • •

If Mrs. MacLeish reminisces about Vassar's early days tomorrow, as she did the other day, some amusing revelations are in store for recent graduates. Even President Henry Noble MacCracken, who is coming west to be the special guest and principal speaker at the luncheon, may be surprised to learn that his predecessor, President Raymond, gave Shakespeare "evenings" that were red letter events of the college year. President Raymond also taught the senior class "mental and moral philosophy."

Other red letter occasions were the infrequent college dances. "Waltzing wasn't allowed. It was considered far too daring," Mrs. MacLeish recalled in the full, vigorous voice that is only one evidence of her youthfulness. "As for the young men who came to the parties, they had to present credentials to prove their right to be there."

• • •

Daily exercise was required, as befitted a progressive woman's college. Clad in ankle-length, gray flannel skirts and long-sleeved "Garibaldi" waists with red sashes, the young women wielded dumbbells—or wands to enhance gracefulness — to the strains of "The Pilgrim's Chorus."

Mrs. MacLeish's class led the revolt against croquet as the one and only outdoor sport.

"Some of us had played baseball with our brothers, so we decided to introduce it to the college," Mrs. MacLeish recounted gayly. "Soon we had five nines organized. We played in our gym costumes, with blue sashes instead of red. Our nine won the championship. I was pitcher and captain, too." The athlete of the 1870s, who, by the way, is scarcely 5 feet 2, still preserves the erect carriage and firm tread of her youth.

• • •

It was after returning to Vassar as a member of the faculty that Mrs. MacLeish received her appointment as "principal" of Rockford seminary. That brought her west. For four years, from 1884 to 1888, she headed the institution, which was in process of becoming a college during her administration. She still is one of its trustees.

Then marriage to a Chicagoan and her family of five claimed her attention. She was among the early believers in progressive education, and some of her articles on child training, written more than three decades ago, will be exhibited tomorrow.

For years Mrs. MacLeish was either president or vice president of the National Baptist Woman's Foreign Missionary society—she was the eldest daughter of a minister—and she headed the Chicago Woman's club for two years. At present she is particularly interested in the Christian refugee problem and in the Round Table of Christians and Jews.

• • •

The Chicago Vassar club has numbered her among its members since the 1880s. "Did you know that there's a question which is the oldest of the alumnæ clubs, this or the Boston group?" Mrs. MacLeish remarked. "The Chicago club was founded in 1880 or 1881, no one is sure which year, and it took in every Vassar girl from Chicago west to the coast." For years a picnic at Craigie Lea, Mrs. MacLeish's Glencoe home overlooking the lake, has been an almost annual event on the club's calendar.

Active and energetic as ever, Mrs. MacLeish is doing her usual large share in raising the $2,000,000 that is the most important part of Vassar's anniversary celebration. Altho she disclaims the title, other alumnæ say she is chairman of the special gifts division. Chicago's quota is $55,000. Half the fund is to go to scholarships, half to faculty salaries. One-fourth of Vassar's student body received scholarships last year, it is emphasized.

• • •

Besides addressing the Vassar luncheon tomorrow President MacCracken will speak at a spring rally of the woman's college board of Chicago at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Thorne hall on Northwestern university's downtown campus. Twenty-three women's colleges are members of the board, which is headed by Miss Rachel Roberts. Dr. MacCracken this year is celebrating his 25th anniversary as president of Vassar.

The Wilson College club of Chicago will hold a luncheon and an election of officers at the Lake Shore Athletic club preceding the rally.

Junior Achievement, the plan whereby 40,000 boys and girls already have learned about the American system of free enterprise at first hand by running businesses of their own, will be introduced to Chicagoans at two meetings this week. A committee of representative Chicago women is giving a luncheon for women Wednesday at the Lake Shore Athletic club, and a luncheon for men will be sponsored by a men's committee Thursday at the Palmer House.

Mrs. George C. Hager.

At both luncheons details of Junior Achievement will be explained. As described by George C. Hager, who heads the men's committee, groups of 15 boys or girls, aged 16 to 21, form their own corporation, decide what product to manufacture, sell stock and, with the working capital thus obtained, rent a shop and buy the necessary tools. Then they make the product and market it. If it doesn't sell, they make changes in the product or manufacture another.

• • •

In the east, where the movement has been expanding gradually for the last two decades, boys and girls with experience in Junior Achievement have had more than average success in the business world, Mr. Hager reported. Since ending his term as president of Rotary International last summer, Mr. Hager has become interested in the movement, and is directing its expansion.

"Fostering Ideals of Peace and Good Will in Our Schools" will be the subject of a symposium to be presented under the auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at a regional meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Harriet Hammond McCormick Memorial Y. W. C. A., 1001 North Dearborn street. Miss Sophia Camenisch, editor of the Chicago Schools Journal; Kermit Eby, an editor of the American Teacher; Leonard P. Aries, attorney, and Miss Julia I. Felsenthal, secretary of the league's schools cooperation committee, will speak.

Posies Make Up for Lost Time in Sunny South

By Marion Hobson.

SARASOTA, FLA.

Gardens are growing double-quick in Florida these days to make flowers in time for the spring's crop of flower shows, not one of which was called off on account of the peculiar variations of weather that descended on 1940's "Sunny South."

Mrs. Karl A. Bickel, chairman of Sarasota's flower show, which opens March 29, told me that hardly one of her garden club members had a flower worth the name after that devastating black frost—but immediate replanting, careful attention, and a bit of prayer has since re-created Sarasota's beautiful pre-frost gardens, in less than two months. Her prediction of a "flower show with flowers" will be fulfilled, barring a complete reversal of Old Man Time and his way with a calendar and the weather.

Sharing Mrs. Bickel's delight at the prospect of a better show perhaps than would have come had we continued to take our flowers as one of Florida's cheapest commodities, are several Chicagoans who had earlier felt similar heartbreak when the weather started smashing hopes for the event. One of them is Mrs. Ralph C. Caples, who is vice general chairman; Mrs. Joseph V. Lawrence, who has the responsibility of arranging a tea garden; Mrs. John M. Tuttle, who is tables chairman, and Mrs. John Somerville, who, as treasurer, will be busiest during the show.

Elephants have inch and a half long black eyelashes that almost completely hide beady brown eyes. I never realized this until last Sunday when I fed one of them an entire 5 cent bag of peanuts while he was thrashing his weight around at Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus winter quarters here.

These ponderous pachydermous winter residents of Sarasota were looking unusually well Sunday afternoon. They had just been spring "skin cleaned" with the delicate little blow torch affair with which the keepers take off the hair twice a year. I noticed, too, that each one's toenails had received the six weeks' pedicure.

Currently Sarasotans are feeling extremely appreciative of the Ringlings' elephants' recent contributions to the city's social life.

Take the last week: Four dozen elephants walked four miles to take part in the pageant parade. The parade was an hour and a half late, but instead of getting nervous and upsetting the beautiful young girls who were recruited from the Ringling school of art and the younger group of Sarasotans to ride atop them, these well behaved adjuncts of the circus waited like gentlefolk till the marching started. And this despite the fact that there hasn't been a genuine circus street parade anywhere but in Sarasota for the last 10 years.

• • •

And they were in fine form for the annual preview of the circus' summer show, which took place recently on the spacious grounds between the Catholic church and the Rev. C. L. Elslander's home. This is known as St. Martha's winter circus, and three-fourths of the usual audience of around six thousand were non-Catholics. All the performers, most of whom are St. Martha's parishioners, give their time, and so do the big bosses.

This time may be the last time the circus is presented, at least against the background of the steepled-cross topped little white church building. For there's money being raised for a new church to replace the present 30 year old structure.

Whether or not Mrs. Charles Ringling, one of the show's owners, who has a home in Evanston, will be following her usual custom of traveling north with the circus in April, no one knows. Up until the last two seasons Mrs. Ringling did just that. More recently she went to Europe and once she returned to her Sarasota home some time before the big show returned.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lowther III. of New York, who were married in December to the accompaniment of much to-do about their reënactment of the Romeo and Juliet Shakespearean sequence, stopped over in Sarasota recently en route home from their wedding trip to Palm Beach and Miami. They chose a guest home as their stopping place, parking their cream colored bantam car, topheavy with four cream colored suitcases, next to their bedroom window so they wouldn't have to unpack. Mrs. Lowther's little dog was also present. They continued home via Silver Springs, the Bok Tower, and Orlando.

The John P. Olesons and family of Kenilworth are all together for their usual stay at their rambling home "Marbra Fran" on the banks of Philippi creek. The unusual name is the combination of syllables from their three daughters' names, Marjorie, Barbara, and Frances. The Olesons have been coming to Sarasota for years and derive particular pleasure from the beautiful gardens and delightful grounds surrounding the house, which are the result of the family's interest in horticulture.

Along Indian Beach road there live several Chicago families—in fact, every other mail box bears a familiar name. One of these beautiful homes is the winter residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Jordan. Like the Olesons, the Jordans take great pride in their spacious gardens and grounds. They particularly like the junglelike section which keeps them deep in the feel of the tropics.

Sarasota has a certain elusive charm compounded of several mysterious elements impossible to identify and that, Mrs. Otis Skinner, formerly of Chicago, tells friends, is why she and her son are living here the year 'round at their home in Whitfield estates. Their establishing residence here was not premeditated — it was seeing the city by chance one winter and suddenly deciding to make it their home.

Mrs. George Conover, who lives at the Ambassador East in Chicago, paid the city a brief visit last week while en route home from Miami Beach via North Carolina and White Sulphur Springs.

The Chicago couples from the South Shore section got together with friends here the other day—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. S. Ward Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harbison. They dined at the Plaza with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Lawrence and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Moore Saxe, former Chicagoans who now live in Sarasota.

BUSY WITH BENEFIT PLANS

Mrs. Philip Shapiro and other members of the Mothers' Service club are busy with plans for a Jamboree next Saturday night at the Standard club. The proceeds from the benefit will go to the Chicago Maternity Center. There will be dinner, dancing and entertainment.

Critic Attends Vicinity Show and Is Irritated

By Eleanor Jewett.

The 44th annual exhibition by Artists of Chicago and Vicinity is current in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. There are some 20 good paintings in the show. The Art institute teachers and students monopolize the exhibit this year to an amazing extent and most of the choice "hanging" spaces are theirs.

In the distribution of prizes the Art institute students have gathered in many of the awards. It seems to us that it would make for a far fairer exhibit were the Art institute school not allowed to submit work for this Chicago artists' exhibition. The students have their annual show each June and the teachers might easily be given one during the fall or winter. This would make a splendid opportunity for prospective students to see what kind of painting was done by the men under whom they would study and it would give the parents a chance to see in detail what their son or daughter might hope to become under the teaching offered.

But it does seem more than a little greedy to have the school represented generously in galleries that are only rarely open to the average Chicago artist. After all, few except parents care what the young boys and girls are doing and few, care particularly about what the instructors are doing. This year two new instructors have been added to Boris Anisfeld and Francis Chapin, those veteran exhibitors. Edgar Ewing and Glen Krause, recent graduates and men who were awarded traveling scholarships and who now are instructors in the school, are well represented. Mr. Krause, in addition, was given the William H. Bartels prize of $300. His picture is "Composition," a restless, modern hash of unrelated objects. Both men are modernists.

Two Art institute students, Bernard Simpson and Harold Kramer, were also awarded prizes. These two are students now, not graduates.

The prizes were awarded by the jury of selection: Louis Betts, Alexander Brook, and Morris Kantor; Louis Betts, conservative, in the minority. But let that go, and let go, too, the point which might well be brought up by the Art institute that the awarding of the prizes was in no way influenced by the institute; we do not say it was. The only point we want to make is that if no student were allowed to submit work to the Chicago Artists and Vicinity exhibition while he is a student no student could win a prize and we could hope to have an exhibition which might be discussed from a mature angle. In any discussion of the current exhibit one treads all over the toes of institute and WPA alike. Both are copiously represented, both have prize winning artists, and both are responsible for the many pathetically wretched effusions on the wall.

For a choice selection of modern pictures try to digest "The Admonisher" by Roland Hellman, "Virginia's Room" by Eve Garrison, "Work No. 94" by David Bekker, "Judith" by John Masteller, "Still Life" by Sarah Kahn, "Abstraction" by Eleanor de Laittre, "Children by the Sea" by Eleanor Coen, "Dance on the Rooftop" by Arthur Osver, Lester O. Schwartz's "The Final Performance," and the faithful copy of Picasso, the "Weeping Woman" by Isobel Masmotte.

There are many more pictures of the same character and type in the exhibit. It would be foolish to try to list all the modernist works, many of them not modern so much as wretchedly bad painting. There is, however, a silver lining to the darkest cloud and in this case there are approximately 20 pictures and 6 pieces of sculpture which save the day.

Among the 20 good paintings are "The Harbor" by Zsissly, "Holliday Corn" by Nicola Ziroli, "Self-Portrait" by Howard O. Thomas, "The Goat" by Marshall D. Smith, "White Hat" by Flora Schofield, "The Rubaiyat" by John T. Nolf, the very lovely and subtle "Rainy Day" by Clay Kelly, "A Portrait" by Alice Mason, "Empty Bowls" by Lou Matthews, "Mahrea" by Benjamin S. Kanne, "Winter" by Frank J. Gavencky, "Mother Earth" by Oskar Gross, "Caught in the Act" by Richard A. Chase [a self-portrait outdoors, very clever and very well done], "Back Porches" by Charles W. Dahlgreen, "Evanston Scene" by Walter Burt Adams, "November Hills" by Karl C. Brandner, "Gossips" by Claude Buck [extremely clever], "The Yellow Curtain" by Carl Austen, and "Portrait Study" by Christian Abrahamsen.

The Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan Art Institute medal and $500 were awarded to "West Side in Winter" by Lawrence Adams. This is not an objectionable work, but it is trite and certainly not to the average eye of prize caliber. By no stretch of the imagination can it be considered an important work of art. Prize giving grows more of a mystery every year—there are at least a dozen canvases in this show which would seem more suitable for the Logan award. Art is a puzzle.

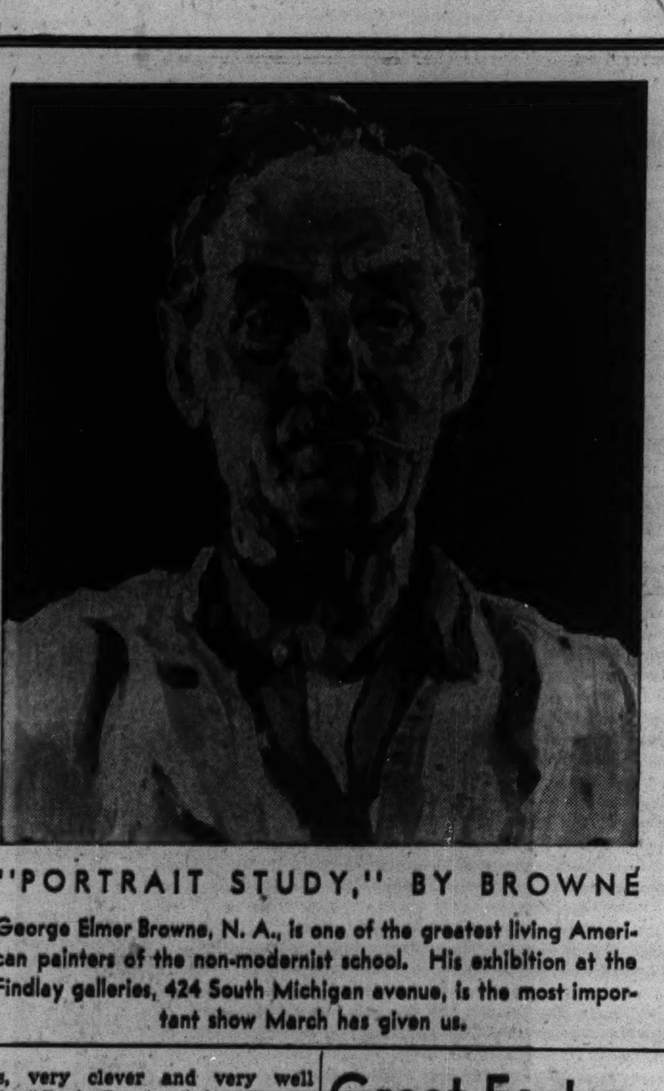
The Municipal Art league prize for portraiture went to the brilliant "Portrait Study" by Christian Abrahamsen, one of the outstanding pictures in the show. The William and Bertha Clusmann prize was given to a serious and solid still life, "Brown Hat" by Raymond Breinin. The excitable Spaniard, Julio de Diego, was rewarded with the Mr. and Mrs. Jule F. Brower prize of $300 for the care he put into the curious composition with the surrealist title, "The Perplexity of What to Do."

The sculpture division is extremely small this year. The charming "Fountain" by Sylvia Shaw Judson, a little boy in winter wraps feeding a pigeon, is one of the most pleasing items in the entire exhibition. "Ellen Jane" by Joseph A. Kersey and "Joseph Rigali Jr." by Marcello Rebechini are most attractive. The head of the little boy is particularly sensitive and lovely. Both stand out by reason of their purity of line and quality of modeling and make one wonder what teacher turned out these two able sculptors. Polasek, perhaps, is in the background. "Opie Read" by Maeble Perry Edwards is another fine piece of portraiture in sculpture, and "Sarah Mann" by Ruth Lubin is another interesting head.

The annual spring water color exhibition by artist members of the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts opened yesterday at the Stevens hotel. It is a stunning show, one of the finest the society has had.

The magnificent showing of landscapes and portraits by George Elmer Browne at the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue, closes this week. It is one of the finest exhibits to have been brought to Chicago this winter. Next Saturday sees the opening in these same galleries of an exhibition of art by members of the art department of the University of Illinois. It promises to be an outstanding affair.

A delightful exhibit of paintings by Jean Spencer at the Marshall Field galleries has met with great popular success. It is well worth seeing.



"PORTRAIT STUDY," BY BROWNE

George Elmer Browne, N. A., is one of the greatest living American painters of the non-modernist school. His exhibition at the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue, is the most important show March has given us.

Greet Easter with a Song in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

The Easter season is wafted in on wings of song in Palm Beach. The Romany chorus will be heard today at a sunrise service on the Breakers' grounds. Last night a large throng attended the Neapolitan fête at the Four Arts. Robert Weede, late of the Chicago Opera company, was guest star. Absence of a formal Easter parade here is largely due to the dearth of sidewalks. Walking is done mainly on the golf links. Easter hats, too, have not the importance here that they have elsewhere. Mrs. LeRay Berdeau can contrive the cleverest sort of chapeau, Easter or otherwise, by the deft manipulation of a scarf. Brenda Diana Frazier seldom wears a hat, and young Mrs. John Jacob Astor also lets her reddish curls toss in the breeze.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson of Chicago and their three attractive daughters, Mary, Ann, and Ellen, are guests of Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock at beautiful Casa Alejandro. They were honor guests at a luncheon on Friday given by Mrs. Henry R. Rea of Pittsburgh at her ocean front villa, Lagomar. Mrs. John Sargent Pillsbury of Minneapolis gave a luncheon for them on Saturday at La Chosa on Benyan road, and Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., gave a dinner in their honor Saturday night.

Today Mrs. McKinlock is honoring them with a luncheon at the Gulfstream Country club and will give dinners for them next week on Tuesday and Thursday.

Easter vacationists from schools and colleges give Palm Beach the effect of having its face lifted. Collegians are seen everywhere, on tennis courts, golf links, smart clubs, and night spots. Members of the Yale Glee club were hailed with a glad cry. Some 500 members of the younger set attended a dance at the Palm Beach Biltmore following the club concert Tuesday night.

Miss Mary Jelke is here from the Greenwood school in Ruxton, Md., and Charles and Minot Jelke from the Bell school in Lake Forest. They were accompanied by William McIlvaine. Van Bethel of Long Island is the guest of John F. Jelke III. Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr. are giving a large cocktail party next week.

George Noyes McLennan of Harvard is spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan. He has as his guest James Sweeney of Baltimore. Ralph Deland of Scarsdale, N. Y., is the guest of another son, William. Mr. McLennan Sr. and Donald McLennan, an older son, are arriving for Easter.

Miss Leonore Cudahy of Chicago, who attends the Ethel Walker school in Connecticut, is at the Brazilian Court with her father, Edward I. Cudahy. Miss Eleanor Norris has joined Mr. and Mrs. James A. Norris at the Breakers.

• • •

Dr. Barclay Atcheson was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Berdeau while in Palm Beach. His hosts gave a formal dinner for him at Villa Today and also a luncheon at the Bath and Tennis club.

Mrs. Grant Warren Spear gave a dinner at the Beach club, and Mrs. Vilas Norton entertained at the Everglades club. Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair have been entertaining in honor of their guests, who include Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Bingham of New York and David K. E. Bruce of New York and Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Miller gave a dinner at Whitehall for 20 in honor of William Fortune of Indianapolis and Boca Raton. Mr. Fortune was one of the final judges of the historical accuracy of Mrs. Miller's recent prize winning play on Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Vernon Janotta and Miss Mary Frances Janotta of Chicago were here for Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff's tea last Monday.

Arizona Castle Hot Springs Is Tropical Oasis

By Lolita Linn.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

Many uncomplimentary remarks have been made about the Apaches, but no one has ever inferred that these hard haters in western Indian warfare did not know a good thing when they saw it, or that they did not fight desperately for what they considered worth keeping.

Castle Hot Springs in the foothills of the Bradshaw mountains, 67 miles northwest of Phoenix, was one of the last and most bitterly contested treasures to be wrested from the Apaches. And in a land where every drop of water is counted twice, it is easy to understand with what veneration and awe the Indians must have looked upon this garden where hot mineral water gushed from solid granite.

The paleface, from the day he first set eyes upon it, has been equally appreciative of Castle Hot Springs. Aside from a first glimpse of the Grand canyon, there is no experience in Arizona more rewarding than a journey thru desert foothills to this tropical oasis. With its lush greens and rich blues, it looks like nothing so much as a surprise painting by an artist suddenly wearied of his barren effect in pale desert tones. But, whereas the desolation of the Grand canyon inspires loneliness, even a newcomer to Castle Hot Springs feels welcomed and refreshed. And only one who is homesick for the sounds and coolness of water would appreciate what it means in Arizona to be surrounded by the warmth of the desert and still be able to walk by rushing streams in the shade of tropical foliage.

• • •

The more than 300 palms which form the great avenue to Castle Hot Springs hotel have seeded themselves from the two which were brought to the springs 50 years ago. But the desert plants have shown themselves equally at home in this hospitable retreat. The Saguaros, which overlook the Rock canyon from whose sides gush a never ending stream of hot water—four hundred thousand gallons every day—have spread their accordion plaits to their very fullest to absorb the moisture. Harry Williams of Chicago, "Uncle Harry" to the visitors at Castle Hot Springs, during the last 25 years, told us that the lonely saguaros are supposed to be the souls of dead Apaches grieving for their lost paradise. Mr. Williams has spent this winter at Castle Hot Springs, as he has many in the past, with his niece, Miss Rowena Day of Clarksville, Tenn., and the Charles B. Goodspeeds of Chicago.

Walter Rounsevel, owner of Castle Hot Springs, says that it is possible to ride for a month and never retrace a trail. The trails have fascinating names which set the imagination wandering—Woodchoppers' trail, Hell Gate, Governor's trail, with its descent into Burro basin, Skyline trail, and the short, but steep ride up "Chocolate Drop." The Columbia trail led us to Squaw mesa, where we picnicked on the film site of Cecil B. De Mille's "Squaw Man." Mr. Williams, who watched the filming of the picture, told us that work had to be suspended to prevent the recording on the sound track of the anguished bleating of a goat which had evidently ambushed itself in the cactus. Lupe Velez, leading lady of the picture, spent hours riding in the desert in a vain effort to locate the unhappy animal.

• • •

"Indian Mound," one of the longer trails, is a way of endless fascination of these natural springs. Robert Uhlein of Milwaukee, who comes every year to Castle Hot Springs, roams over trails known and unknown, gathering museum specimens.

In Arizona, the most prized possession of any resort is its swimming pool, but Castle Hot Springs has four, their heat controlled by nature's own thermostat, buried no one knows how far down in the depths of the earth. There is the very hot natural pool, preferred by those who have eaten not wisely, but too well; the warm pool beside it, where a timid soul may bathe without fear of stepping beyond his depth; the reservoir pool where the streams gather on their tumultuous descent to the hotel, and the glorious new pool, one almost said lake, which is the meeting place of the resort. Beside it, one can watch the riders set off in the morning or the golfers at the third hole aim straight up toward Salvation peak.

In the cosmopolitan group which makes it a point to find this oasis every year are the Sterling Mortons and the David Annans of Chicago; the Philip McFaddens, the K. Van Rensselears, the John R. Bradleys, the Edwin J. Beineckes, John R. Morron, and Franklyn Hutton, all of New York City; the Craig Biddles of Philadelphia and Newport; the C. W. Howards of Greenwich, Connecticut; the Nathaniel Holmeses of Waterford, Conn., and their daughter, Eleanor; Countess Maude de Montjou of Paris; Mrs. William V. C. Ruxton of Bridgeport, England, and her daughter, Mrs. Cass Ledyard of New York City.

Holy week is marked in Arizona by Yaqui Indian ceremonials. The Yaquis, who settled in villages outside Tucson and Phoenix after they were driven out of Mexico, are not wards of the government, but citizens of the only nation, with a flag of its own, permitted to exist within the United States. The dances, which culminate on Easter Sunday in a reënactment of the resurrection and the fiesta de la Gloria, are a strange blending of the ancient pagan rites welcoming the advent of spring and the Yaquis' interpretation of the ceremonies of Christian Holy week. Inasmuch as the Yaquis have always given short shrift to unwary tourists, who brought their cameras to the dances, it is surprising that this year they have finally been persuaded to reenact some of their less sacred dances before a newsreel camera on the grounds of the Arizona inn in Tucson.

Some of the news this week has been of farewells to Arizona and departures for Easter in Chicago. Among those who have ended their desert vacations are the Charles B. Swifts, the J. Horton Falls, the Richard O'Haras, the Dana Corbans, the Kenneth F. Burgesses; the Carl Howes of Oak Park, who have been spending some time with their daughter, Miss Connie Howe, at the Wigwam; and Mrs. Bert J. Denman of Wilmette, who is leaving Camelback inn to be at home when her sons, Draper and Leonard, arrive from Princeton university for the Easter holidays.

But there is also news of Chicagoans who have come to Arizona for Easter, which coincides this year with the first blooming of the desert. The Frank McCullochs and Miss Sue Somerville of Evanston, have come to the Kenyon ranch, newest of the dude ranches around Tucson. The Ralph Applegates of Chicago are at the Linda Vista ranch at Oracle. Mrs. Leonard Peterson of Winnetka and the E. P. Lathrops of Rockford, Ill., are at the Arizona inn, Tucson.

• • •

Marjorie Elizabeth Whelan, daughter of the late W. J. Whelan of Chicago and Mrs. W. J. Whelan of New Jersey, was married last Sunday in Tucson to Theodore Raymond Patton. Mr. Patton, formerly of Centralia, Wash., is the brother-in-law of Lynn Gilham, owner of the Flying V ranch outside of Tucson, at which Miss Whelan has spent the winter. The couple left for a California honeymoon, after which they will return to Tucson to make their home on the ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Phillips, accompanied by W. B. Cormany, all of Winnetka, who are motoring to the coast, stopped at the San Marcos hotel this week to visit their Chicago friends. The Horace M. Caprons of Winnetka have come to spend Easter at the Chandler resort.

Easter arrivals at the Biltmore are the Oscar Heinemanns of Chicago, the Donald S. Boyntons of Highland Park, Miss Jan Benjamin of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. John Noyes Jr. of Lake Forest, the A. T. Vehmeyers of Chicago, and the William O. Hunts of Chicago.

• • •

The Junior Robert Scotts of Chicago will arrive at Camelback inn next week. Easter guests are the S. D. McGuires, the Paul Mullaneys, and Mr. Paul Hassel, all of Chicago; Mrs. Robert E. Tuttle of Glencoe, and the O. D. Millers of Hinsdale, whose daughter, Martha, accompanied them to Phoenix and then went on to California to visit relatives. A. L. Gardiner Jr. of Evanston has rejoined his family at the inn for Easter. Mrs. Gardiner's mother, Mrs. R. W. Sears, returned to Evanston this week.

Some of the first blooms of the desert are reported out around the Wigwam at Litchfield park. Spring vacationers at the Wigwam include the Paul I. Aldrichs of Winnetka, Mrs. W. A. Burnet of Chicago and her daughter, Ruth, and the C. K. Eckharts of Winnetka. The Anthony Michels of Winnetka have joined Mrs. Michel's parents, the O. W. Prescotts of Cleveland, at the ranch. The H. A. Scandretts of Evanston and their son Henry Jr., have returned to the Wigwam for their annual visit. Henry Jr., better known as "Cactus Hank," has spent a part of every one of his seven years at the Wigwam, and his idol and favorite tutor is the head wrangler, "Yellowstone Chip."

Kenneth Morton, who is attending the Kent school in Connecticut, flew to Arizona to spend the Easter holidays with his mother, Mrs. Wirt Morton, at the Arcadia lodge.

Mrs. Phil R. Hinkley of Cleveland entertained at a tea in her Arcadia home for her sisters, Mrs. A. J. Bourne and Mrs. R. B. Erskine of Chicago.

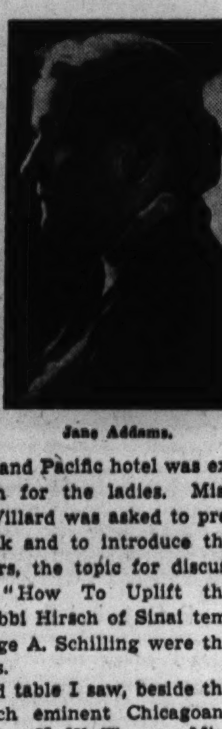
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York

Chicago, Feb. 5, 1892.

Dear Julia: Strange doings in Chicago! The men seem to be obsessed with the idea of honoring the ladies. The latest group to prostrate itself before WOMAN is the Sunset club, an organization which ordinarily allows only the sterner sex to attend its meetings. Last evening a dinner at the Grand Pacific hotel was expressly given for the ladies. Miss Frances E. Willard was asked to preside, to speak and to introduce the other speakers, the topic for discussion being "How To Uplift the Masses." Rabbi Hirsch of Sinai temple and George A. Schilling were the men speakers.



Jane Addams.

At the head table I saw, beside the speakers, such eminent Chicagoans as Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Thomas, Miss Starr [associate of Miss Jane Addams at Hull house], Judge Murray F. Tuley, F. W. Root, A. A. McCormick, and many others I know.

I liked Rabbi Hirsch's specific for elevating the masses: "To lift up the masses, it is necessary to un-mass them." Miss Willard spoke well, as she always does. Mrs. J. M. Flower was excellent and so was the beautiful Lady Henry Somerset of England, but Jane Addams was the most applauded woman when she rose to speak, for her work on Halsted street is now becoming well known and she is highly regarded for her sacrificial service to the poor of that neighborhood.

* *

I don't think she likes to have her attempt at ameliorating the condition of the poor put down as "sacrifice." She said, in defining a social settlement:

"It is an attempt to know 'the masses' as one neighbor knows another. The presidents of such settlements live among the masses as nearly as possible without a sense of difference. Most of the people in our district are very poor . . . the majority without leisure or energy for anything but gaining a bare existence. They move often from one wretched lodging to another. Altho living often in crowded tenement houses, they are without corresponding social contacts. Too often their one place of amusement is the saloon; their host a bartender. A local demagog forms their public opinions. Men of ability and refinement stay away from them. A 'settlement' is a protest against such a state of things.

"The movement is based upon the philosophical thought of such men as Thomas H. Green; upon the social theories of men like Charles Kingsley and Dennison Maurice; upon the burning lectures of Arnold Toynbee. Idealization of our civic and social duties," concluded Miss Addams, "is perhaps what we need most of all in our American cities. We have in Chicago distinct advantages. There are fewer poor people here than in London. There are fewer people who expect to remain poor."

I have underlined that last sentence because it is characteristic of the difference between our country and those of the old world. "Fewer people expect to remain poor." That is the glory of America, land of hope. But unless we support Miss Addams in her fine work, many will never realize that expectation.

Will was stirred, as I was, by the speech of Miss Addams, and I was proud to see the size of the check he put in her hand when the dinner was over.

I was sorry to read of the death of Charles H. Spurgeon this week—as great a loss to the Protestant church as that of Cardinal Manning to the Roman Catholics. Like Cardinal Manning, he devoted his energies to uplifting the poor. Tho he has received almost a fortune from his adherents, he died a poor man, and save for the kindness of his congregation, would have left his family penniless. I remember that he once declined an offer of $50,000 from a lecture bureau to come to America, saying he preferred to stay in London and "save 50 souls." Some one has called him "the Gladstone of the church."

And now I must close.

Love as ever,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Has any reader a recollection of the Sunset club? Altho apparently a flourishing organization in 1892, it is not mentioned in the Blue Book of 1893 where other Chicago clubs are listed.

Four Score and Ten.

Mrs. Richard Killick, 1337 Albion avenue, celebrated her 93d birthday on March 5. Mrs. Killick, born in Leitchfield, Ky., has recently written for the Leitchfield Gazette memories of her early days in Kentucky. In this article she quotes words of a song she once found in the "When Chicago Was Young" column, which roused her own memory. The song was called "Midnight" and Mrs. Killick had heard it in 1863 from the lips of a Union officer, Capt. Lloyd, of a Pennsylvania cavalry troop, quartered just outside Leitchfield. "It was the first and only time I ever heard it sung," writes Mrs. Killick. "It began with 12 heavy strokes on the piano. The captain had a fine tenor voice and sang it well. At the last lines he showed suppressed emotion. Among strangers in a faraway little town, he tarried a few months and then moved on to war and oblivion.

Attic Treasures.

Mrs. Frank L. Wutzke, 5302 Glenwood avenue, sends us an embroidered plush handkerchief case, typical of the eighties. This piece of "fancywork," the old-fashioned name for such needlework, came from an Iowa home.

"Skating in Lincoln Park in the Nineties."

This is the title of a scene which the Chicago Figure Skating club will present in its annual ice carnival at the Chicago arena, March 28, 29, 30, and 31. It was given last year and is to be repeated by popular demand. Long skirts and puffed sleeves will be features of this scene, contrasting strangely with present day skating attire. It is pleasant to us to see these costumes revived.

Etiquet Editor Advises Bridal Budget System

Ask for our pamphlet, "Office Etiquet." Simply enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request, directed to Helen Bartlett, etiquet editor, Chicago Tribune.

By Helen Bartlett.

Brides! Come, listen! Gather 'round! Particularly the brides who have a limited amount of money to invest in their weddings. As you have guessed, this is to be a dissertation on the wedding expenses, how they should be shared between the bride and bridegroom and, most important of all, how they should be budgeted.

We have found, in our contacts with brides, that too often the girls spend so much of their allowance on the wedding dress, veil, and wedding expenses that after planning a big, showy demonstration they have nothing left for the things that have lasting value, such as clothes and trousseau linens. That is highly impractical and shows a lack of system and organization.

• • •

We have a friend who says she resents the advice of others as to how she should spend her money. She agrees she may starve, but she contends she wishes to starve in her own way. There may be those among you brides who would rather starve for food than for luxuries. We have no quarrel with you; it is with the girls who haven't thought it thru carefully enough to know whether they are making sacrifices and what they are, so we have prepared a mimeographed sheet of budget plans, just for the expenses of the wedding, not for household or living expenses. They are for both brides and bridegrooms, with three suggested budgets for each—at the $300, $600, and $1,000 levels.

It is our contention that the allowances within this figure of $1,000 should be carefully planned, and that if you want to be practical and have to cut down the expenses, the best thing to shave is the amount allowed for the ceremony and reception, and things that doubtless make a beautiful show, but that have no lasting value.

• • •

Nor are we sympathetic with the daughter of wealthy parents who has an unlimited amount to spend for her wedding, puts on a tremendous show, and the next day moves to live in a little furnished one room apartment which is all that her young and ambitious, but not too successful husband, can afford. We think she would be much wiser and kinder to the boy if she had a less pretentious wedding, because it must be galling and embarrassing to him to have it shown up in such an eloquent way that he cannot take care of his girl "in the manner to which she has been accustomed."

But back to that budget pamphlet. Any bride or bridegroom who wants a mimeographed copy need only send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Ladies of Isabella Will Have Benefit

The Ladies of Isabella, who are counted among the best friends of orphans, elderly people, and the handicapped in dozens of Chicago institutions, will hold their annual benefit party Saturday evening at the Stevens hotel. Dancing, cards, and "just visiting" will be in order, all with a purpose: to raise $5,000 toward the completion of a cottage for crippled children now under construction at St. Mary of Providence institute, 4242 North Austin avenue.

Helping otherwise friendless persons in institutions, shopping for them, satisfying their individual wants, and particularly their need for affectionate, personal interest in themselves and their problems, is the hobby of most of the Ladies of Isabella.

• • •

That was the explanation advanced by Mrs. Emma Huising Wall, supreme grand lady, for her fellow members' remarkable expenditure of time and energy in the work of the organization.

Mrs. Emma Huising Wall.

"Our members are not moneyed people, and many of them are business women," Mrs. Wall said, "yet they manage to give much of themselves to our activities. No effort seems to be too great for them to make."

Mrs. Wall's description of the others tallied strikingly with what they said of her. A tall, commanding woman, with a disarming dimpled smile that has earned her the nickname of Dolly, Mrs. Wall has headed the Ladies of Isabella for many years. That has meant supervising the activities of an organization of 31 councils and 3,500 members. In addition, she has been chairman of most of its benefits. She also runs her own tearoom in the loop, which serves as headquarters for her far-flung organization.

• • •

When the Ladies of Isabella give their famous series of more than 40 Christmas cheer parties each year at Chicago institutions, they merely are intensifying their year around program of regularly visiting and ministering to the needs of persons in institutions. All this is done on a personal basis, the members singling out the persons they help for individual attention. Funds to finance their activities are supplied thru benefits sponsored by the individual councils and thru contributions of individual members. The annual spring party represents the largest joint effort of the councils to finance their program.

Proceeds of this party will be used to furnish the recreation and living room of the crippled children's cottage which was begun last year by the ladies and now is nearing completion. Assisting Mrs. Wall with arrangements for the party are Miss Marcella R. Schmitz, Miss Marion B. Collins, Mrs. Delia Hyland, Miss Elizabeth Regan, Miss Elizabeth Kaufmann, Mrs. Marguerite Bergen, and Miss Anne M. Pontius, all heads of important committees, and Miss Mary M. Mutterer, publicity chairman.

• • •

The Woman's Advertising Club of Chicago will hold its annual bridge party Saturday afternoon at the Drake hotel. Proceeds of the party will be contributed to the Off-the-Street club, in which the organization long has been interested. Ten airplane rides and a silver fox scarf will be among the prizes. Miss Kay Hogan is general chairman; Mrs. Kate Certa, chairman of prizes, and Miss Estelle Ryan, in charge of reservations.

• • •

Twenty dessert luncheons, held simultaneously in Chicago and its suburbs at 1:30 o'clock next Friday, will close the annual membership campaign of the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section. Mrs. Meyer C. Edelman, membership chairman, has headed the drive.

Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris.

A round table discussion of "Council in the American Scene" will be broadcast to the luncheons at 3:30 o'clock over station WJJD, with Miss Pearl M. Hart, Mrs. Benjamin I. Greenebaum, and Mrs. Sarah B. Schaar participating. A speaker also will address each luncheon in person. Miss Hart, an attorney, heads the council's legislation and civics department; Mrs. Greenebaum sponsors the council's Americanization groups in all parts of the city, and Mrs. Schaar is supervisor of the legal aid department of the Jewish social service bureau of Chicago.

The Chicago section, like the national organization, has a six point program of education, peace, religion, service for the foreign born, social legislation, and social welfare. It maintains a summer camp for underprivileged mothers and children at Wauconda. It also provides refugee service, preparation for naturalization, and adult education thru a staff of 17 professional case workers and secretaries, and a large number of volunteers. Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris heads the section, which numbers 2,800 members.

• • •

The Chicago Business and Professional Women's auxiliary of B'nai B'rith will celebrate its second anniversary and the close of its earning fund drive with a dinner-dance Wednesday evening at the Chez Paree. Miss Sylvia Shanin has headed the drive. Miss Frances Mendelsohn is president.

The Stage Friends club will give a gay nineties costume party Saturday evening at the Skyline Athletic club. Proceeds will go to charity.

The annual spring jamboree of the Mothers' Service club of the Chicago Maternity center will be held Saturday evening at the Standard club. This is the seventh annual benefit of the organization, which is headed by Mrs. Henry Buxbaum.

• • •

The Chicago Society of Ohio Women will sponsor a ways and means card party and tea Wednesday afternoon at the Carson Pirie Scott & Co. tearoom. Mrs. Walter L. Loegler is chairman.

The annual ways and means luncheon and card party of the Independent German American Woman's club will be held Wednesday at Myrtle Masonic hall, 4240 Irving Park boulevard. Mrs. John Beierwaltes is chairman.

• • •

The Chicago I Will club will give a party for the children of the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Children Tuesday at the home, 10704 South Prospect avenue. A noon luncheon, cards, and games are planned. Mrs. Arthur Pitann, Mrs. W. E. Powles, Mrs. Luther C. Snyder, and Mrs. F. M. Wilson will be hostesses.

A card party to benefit the Mrs. Frank J. Lewis milk fund for the tuberculous poor will be held Friday evening, April 5, at the Drake hotel. Proceeds will be used to help continue the fund, thru which more than 40,000 quarts of milk annually are distributed to destitute tubercular patients. Mrs. John L. Kellogg, Mrs. Frank M. Padden, Mrs. Robert Carlson, and Miss M. Louise Jones are among the women in charge of arrangements for the party.

Written questions from the floor will be answered, and Mrs. Louis Binstock, wife of the rabbi of Temple Sholom, will summarize the program.

Business Club Is to Discuss Labor Problem

Resolutions urging that office workers and other women in business and the professions be exempted from legislative regulation of working hours will be considered by the 1st district of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at its annual meeting at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at the Congress hotel. The district includes eight clubs in and about Chicago.

Miss Celia M. Howard, who headed a committee empowered to draw up the resolutions following the recent midwest conference of business and professional women in Chicago, will report to the district on the resolutions. Miss Howard is second vice president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

• • •

The resolutions emphasize that regulation of working hours shall be limited to "industrial women," and shall "specifically exclude women in business and the professions, as well as clerical and office workers."

Legislation restricting the employment of married women workers also is opposed in the resolutions. Among the reasons given for this stand are that such legislation would cause many single women to postpone or forego marriage; that it would work hardships in families where the wife's earnings support dependents; and that it would tend to limit women to lowest income jobs because employers would not care to train workers so likely to be dismissed.

• • •

The election of officers will take place at the meeting. Miss Grace Tugwell has been nominated to succeed Mrs. Clara M. Kelley as district chairman. Miss Tugwell has been associated with the Chicago and North Western railway for more than 20 years, was president of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago for one year, and headed the Federated Council of Professional and Business Women of Chicago and the Railway Business Women's Association of Chicago, each for two years.

Mrs. Kelley, who is completing her second term as district chairman, organized the recent midwest conference, the first of the kind ever held, which was sponsored jointly by some 30 business and professional women's organizations in and about Chicago.

Mrs. Gertrude Alden Neely, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Chicago, is in charge of arrangements and reservations for the meeting Sunday. Tea and a musical program by Miss Clara McConchie, pianist, are planned.

• • •

The annual joint luncheon of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Alliance of Business and Professional Women will be held at 12:15 o'clock Wednesday in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House. Artistic New Ensemble from the West Coast

"Clever Tricks in Decoration," a new booklet by Claire Winslow, explains methods of making a large, high ceilinged room seem smaller and a small, difficul-to-decorate one appear larger and more attractive. Price, 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

Are you thinking of selecting new furniture for some of the rooms of your summer home—that cabin in the woods or that cottage at the shore? Or are you considering purchasing some pieces for your son's room? Then, by all means, see the interesting furniture that is ideal for the purpose, being exceptionally sturdy, completely informal and comfortable, and fairly crying out for a rustic setting.

This line comes from southern California. Its design was copied from old pieces made by the Indians for the Franciscan padres, who were the first white settlers along the west coast, centuries ago. It has a flavor and feeling all its own. It's not a bit like our conventional furniture altho the wood used is northern hard maple.

• • •

Yucca is the name given to the artistic finish, which is amber in tone. Upholsteries on the chairs and couches are mellow blends of several colors: Brown, yellow, and orange in textured, homespun effects.

You can see this collection of California furniture in room settings especially designed for it. All the draperies, floor coverings, lamps, and other accessories are available for use in your own home, so there is no difficulty in assembling appropriate backgrounds.

In the bedroom you can achieve a most interesting effect by using a window cornice of antique white leather trimmed in nail heads. This ties in with the saddle effect of the leather which upholsters the beds. The bed heads are given large leather pockets, useful for holding magazines, books or cigarets. A room such as this is sure to appeal to any boy and to most men.

• • •

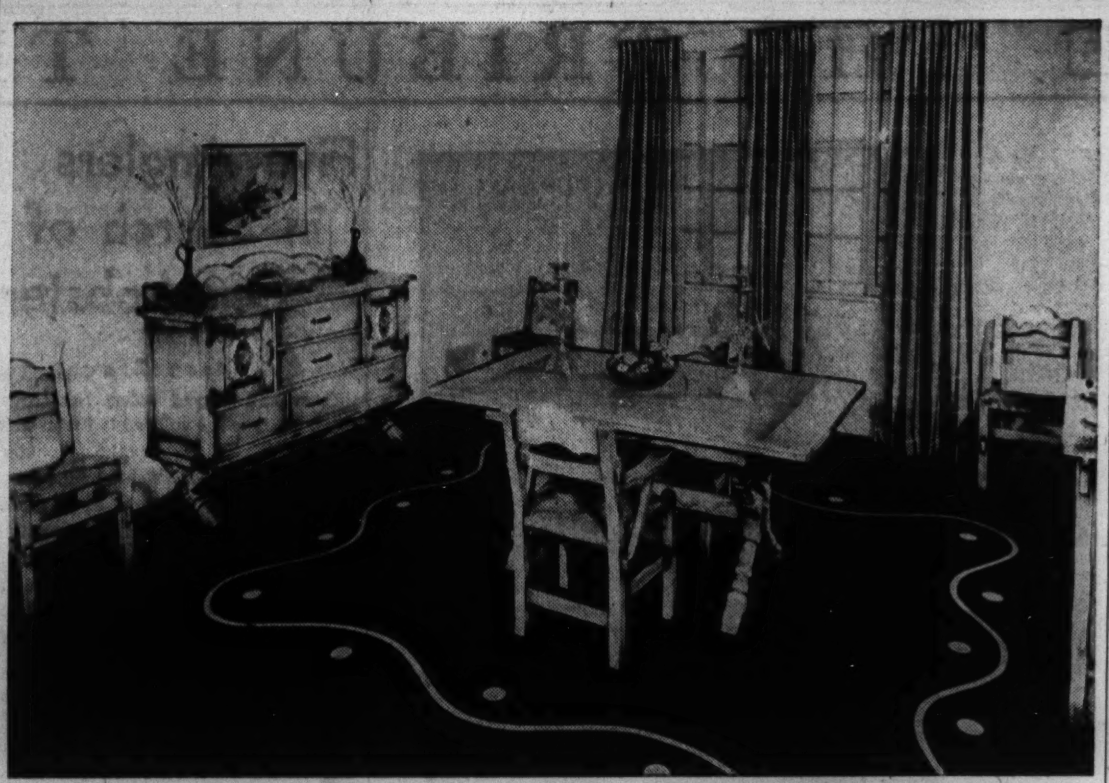
In the dining room, a photograph of which is shown today, you see this furniture in a setting which emphasizes its simplicity and artistic qualities. Walls have been painted a turquoise tint to match one of the colors in the draperies and the blue of the hand-painted decorations on the furniture.

On the floor is custom-made linoleum in plum-brown accented with a decorative line in the turquoise, which encloses the center of the room. The small circles, dotted in and out, are coral, repeating another tone in the textured cotton draperies.

On the table are a wooden bowl of fruit and tall candlesticks of Mexican tinware. Mexican glass, pottery, and textiles are perfect for use with this furniture.

Note the legs of the table and sideboard are of the crossed X type, rather than the straight uprights so often seen on more conventional pieces. The top of the table consists of wide planks of maple, with extension ends.

Besides the two rooms described there are another bedroom and a living room in the exhibition. All are open to the public.



A color scheme of turquoise and coral sets off this interesting furniture made in California and given an amber-toned finish, called yucca. It is ideal for a summer cabin or cottages.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

TOURS—CRUISES

A New Riviera Now Rising on Mexican Coast

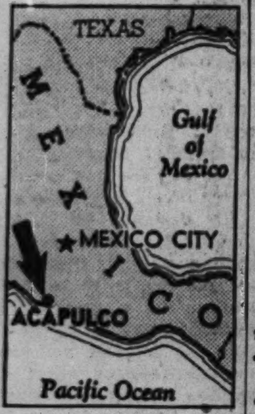
By Frederic Babcook.

ACAPULCO, MEXICO.

There is no railroad between Mexico City and Acapulco. The bus ride straight southward over the mountains takes twelve hours. Not all the road is paved, and the bus is apt to be crowded. So the 275 mile trip isn't the height of comfort and convenience. But most travelers agree it's worth it.

Whether you go by bus or your own car, you can break the monotony by going first to Taxco, spending the night there, and continuing the journey the following day. It requires only seven hours to get here from Taxco. If this method doesn't appeal to you, you still have the airplane. The flight from the capital takes only about an hour and twenty minutes. There are nine buses, and one airplane, daily.

• • •



Acapulco is hot the year round. It and its surroundings are like a bit of the South Sea islands set down in the new world. The mountains close in on three sides, and the town is planted around a spectacular, land-locked harbor. You can get your sun tan on the beach, or you can escape the sun by exploring the nearby jungles. Or you can go fishing.

Those who know say the sailfishing hereabouts is as good as anywhere else in the world. The fish are monsters. One caught this season was 11 feet, 6 inches long. They are brought in daily, at any time of the year, from the waters around the islands that guard the harbor. The best place to find them is from three to ten miles out of town. There are two favored varieties: one a chocolate brown with a silver undertone, and the other a silver with an ultramarine blue undertone.

• • •

There is little commercial fishing here. So the amateur sportsmen have things pretty much their own way. A launch seldom returns without a number of giant trophies. Catches of as many as twelve big sailfish have been made from one launch in one day.

Other species are the swordfish, marlin, tuna, barracuda, bonita, yellowtail, snook, and mackerel. And then there's the rooster fish, so called because of its "comb," a back fin of unusual size. The rooster will take a spoon and leap into the air just like a yellowtail.

Acapulco has three good hotels. The newest was finished less than a year ago, and it cost $250,000. It is ultramodern in design, with air conditioning and glass brick finishings, and, tho this modernism may seem out of place in such a setting, the air conditioning comes in handy when the days grow sultry.

• • •

The bathing beaches are of smooth, fine sand, and the water is clear. Boat trips carry visitors thru a fresh water lagoon and permit them to see the pink and white flamingoes, the ibis, the pelicans, and the parrots. There is hunting for jaguars, deer, and turkeys in the unspoiled hinterland. The coconut groves near sea level are a relief from the pine forests in the uplands.

Cuernavaca always has been Mexico's leading resort, but now Acapulco is threatening to take its place. Highlanders like to come here for the change in climate. Motorists from the United States have been pouring in all winter. The plan is to make it the Riviera of the tropical Pacific coast.

Acapulco is not much of a commercial port. It has few wharves, and fewer industries. So the idea is to take advantage of its superb site and make it one of the best equipped resorts in the Americas.

• • •

The Mexican government is figuring on building a sweeping marine drive along the curving 12 miles of the bay. It will do it without detracting from the beauty of the bathing beaches. The material and the machinery have been assembled. The improvement will cost many millions.

Already the resort is attracting the wealthy. A number of costly villas rise above the peaceful harbor. And private yachts are drifting in.

GIANT OF THE PACIFIC

This sailfish, measuring 11 feet from bill to tail, was caught just outside Acapulco harbor in Mexico.

They Use Skis for Easter Parade in Quebec Province

QUEBEC, March 23.—An Easter Sunday parade on skis is the prospect facing parishioners in the province of Quebec.

The road connecting this city to St. Anne de Beaupre has been open all winter, despite the severity of storms, and many of the faithful will journey to the shrine on Easter Sunday.

The main highway between Quebec and Montreal, a well traveled road under ordinary circumstances, is not yet fully open. The earliest spring opening of this artery took place March 27, 1931.

In districts where the snow is deep and the roads have not yet been cleared, hundreds of parishioners will go to Easter services on skis and, following the ceremonies, will join in the Easter parade astride the same implements. Elsewhere, of course, pilgrimages will be made to the nearest church by throngs afoot, in native dog drawn carts, farm wagons, and automobiles.

Travelogues

The final travelogue of the season at the Fair store will be given at 11 a. m. Friday. W. A. Stickler is to present his film, "Beauties of the Great North Woods," depicting animal, floral, and piscatorial life in Minnesota.

Until May 19 Sam Campbell, "philosopher of the forest," will give an illustrated travel lecture at 2:30 p. m. each Sunday in the main dining room of the North Western station. His talk covers the scenic wonderlands of the west.

Five Anglers in Search of One Lobster

By Anson Brown.

ST. JOHN, VIRGIN ISLANDS.

Coco had stayed sober for three days. He was the colored lad who was to take us lobster fishing by torchlight at night, and the commissioner had told him that if he so much as looked at a whisky label he couldn't have the job. Coco needed that job, too, for it meant $2 and that would buy him a gallon of rum. Then for one bacchanal week he could sit under a palm tree and get roaring.

The commissioner had figured it would take three days to sober Coco completely. It worked, but it almost killed Coco. He verbalized his misery with groans, and had the jitters something fierce, but he was the best lobster fisherman on the island and knew of all the special spots; so we put up with his complaints.

• • •

We started out about 8 in the evening in a leaky boat. No moon. The night was pitch tar and the stars were splattered across the heavens as tho some one had thrown them there from a great fist. The water was only a few inches from the gunwales, and no wonder—counting the Negro who was helping Coco row, there were five of us.

We creaked our way along the shoreline of St. John for an hour, searching out the special bay that only Coco knew of. I played the flashlight on the shore, occasionally disclosing heavy clumps of bushes and trees. The sea swelled around the boat. Luminous jellyfish churned to the surface, their gelatinous bodies surrounded by a circle of light, a fiery necklace floating on a black sea. And when the oars were dipped in and out of the water the liquid light dripped back in weird, firefly procession.

We rowed past bays and coves until the boat was beached at Chocolate Hole. We tugged and pulled until we had the skiff well up on dry land. Then we lit a fire. Coco had previously prepared two 5-foot bundles of fagots for torches. The wood was similar to pitch pine; one bundle would burn well over an hour.

• • •

We lit one torch from the fire, rolled up our trousers, and started to wade, knee deep, among the coral rocks. The object was to hold the torch high above the water, and if and when a lobster was spied Coco would take a forked stick and hold it while one of us reached down and brought the horny creature to the surface and stuffed it into a gunnysack. In a few minutes we had our first lobster. But, tho we searched for another half-hour, we found no more.

Coco decided on another bay—on the other side of the small peninsula—which could be reached on foot. In the midst of all that darkness the brambles looked twice as thick. Hardly any path we found, but we plunged into it—a ghostly procession of five, carrying lighted torches, and stumbling over roots and stones. The firelight flickered thru the branches. There were peculiar noises from sleeping birds in the scraggly limbs above us. Something, I thought, like Trader Horn must have experienced in his night safaris thru the jungles.

• • •

Suddenly Coco stopped dead with the torch and then jumped into the side bushes. He planted his foot down on a 2 pound land crab, seized the powerful pincher claws with his fingers, dumped it into the sack with the lobster.

We trekked onward, Coco wailing in his sobriety, saying if he had money like all the white folks have he would stay ossified all the time. I told him he would be embalmed before he was dead. He said it was all right with him—"mos' ob my people can't 'ford no church funeral anyway."

At Rendezvous bay we had little success. No more lobsters. So we spent the rest of the time chasing and capturing land crabs, altho Coco insisted on wading and looking for lobsters. It was a strange sight to see him far out on the reef, with his torch sputtering above him and specks of fire sizzling into the water as the blob of light crawled along over the ocean floor.

• • •

Meantime, I attacked my first land crab. As I plunked a foot down on it its viselike claw whipped up and clamped down on my big toe, cutting clear thru the tennis shoe. I yelled. I jumped on it with my free foot until there was nothing left except hash and the pincer embedded in my toe.

I pried it loose with my fingers. After that I was more cautious.

In all we caught a dozen of the scavengers. The Virgin Island Negroes consider them a great delicacy, in spite of the fact the crabs live off garbage and refuse. It's the first place I've found where they actually eat the beasts. The Tahitians abhor them, comparing them to rats.

We didn't get back to the inn until around midnight. Coco rowed like mad the whole way. As we touched the quay he sprang out, tied the boat, and slipped away into the darkness.

• • •

The following morning, as I was eating lobster and scrambled eggs for breakfast, I looked out from the porch toward the glorious Cruz bay beach, golden and warm in the early sun. But something intercepted my gaze. I saw a snoring, sprawling man under a sentry palm, with two empty bottles at his side. No doubt he was dreaming of white men's money, seas crawling with large lobsters, and warm rivers flowing with pure rum. Coco was in his element again.

Government Plans 7,500 New Homes for Puerto Ricans

NEW YORK.—With a view to giving thousands of low income families in Puerto Rico more satisfactory living quarters, more than $12,000,000 will be spent there by the federal government. This was announced by Warren J. Vinton, chief economist of the United States Housing authority, following his arrival here on the Coamo.

Mr. Vinton said 90 per cent of the money, already allocated by the government, had been lent by the housing authority. The balance is being provided from local sources in Puerto Rico.

The new dwellings will be built of concrete and each will be equipped with a living room, kitchen, two bedrooms, and a bathroom. The average cost will be from $1,500 to $1,800 apiece. A total of 7,500 houses, accommodating 35,000 persons, is contemplated.

More women every year are learning to sew for themselves and their families. It not only is recreation and a satisfaction to the soul in having the clothes you really want, but home dressmaking is marvelously kind to the budget. If you've never done much sewing, the thing to do is to begin with simple models. In line with this advice we're presenting five delightfully easy to make costumes today.

No. 2918 is especially kind to mature figures, the type of silhouette so hard to shop for. There's a slenderizing V neckline, paneled front, unhampered waistline, and flowing sleeves. Buttons on the unusual shoulder yoke are the only trimming. This dress makes up well in either silks or cottons.

No. 2124 is a home frock with tailored lines. Contrasting collar, cuffs, and pocket flap are the trimming. Buttons are used all the way down the front. As the sketch illustrates, this tailored house dress makes up well in small checked fabrics as well as plain shades.

No. 2104 is the traditional, wrap around type of house frock, trimmed only with rickrack braid and buttons. The sleeves are kimono style, making this dress one of the simplest possible models to cut and sew.

No. 2518 is a spectator sports model good for business and school wear, too. It may be made in silks, cottons and very lightweight woolens, trimmed only with a contrasting collar and buttons. Ingenious paneling does a great deal for this model.

No. 3317 has a two-piece effect and also is trimmed only with buttons and a contrasting collar. The short sleeves are puffed, the skirt flared, and there's continuous paneling from shoulder to hem. Silks and cottons, plain and printed, are the suggested mediums.

Style No. 2918 is designed for size 16 and for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2124 is designed for size 16 and for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material for dress, with 1 yard of 35 inch contrasting for collar, cuffs, and pocket flap.

Style No. 2104 is designed for size 1 and for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with 3¼ yards of braid.

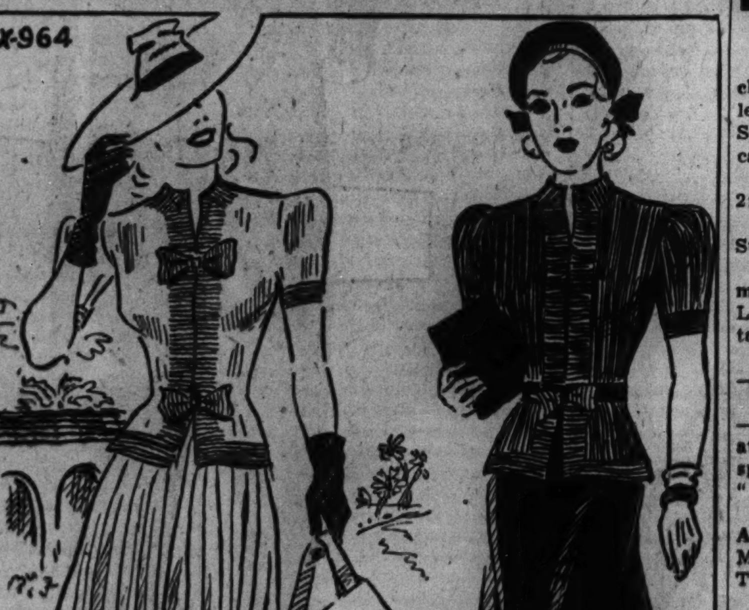
Jacket Trimmed with Bows



By Jean Macdonald.

Choosing a soft, hand knitted blouse for the highly styled suits of the season is a major problem of the fashion-conscious woman. Various yarns are in favor, and may run from soft angora, fine cashmere, and delicate crêpe to nubby cottons. The pattern preference at the moment is for simplicity. The stockinette stitch is used thruout the body, with bands of moss stitch around the bottom. A moss stitch vestee trims the front, and a tiny standup collar, as well as the bows, is knitted in moss stitch. A suede belt matching the suit may be substituted for the knitted one.

For instructions in knitting the jacket with bows and trimming in moss stitch, No. X-964, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

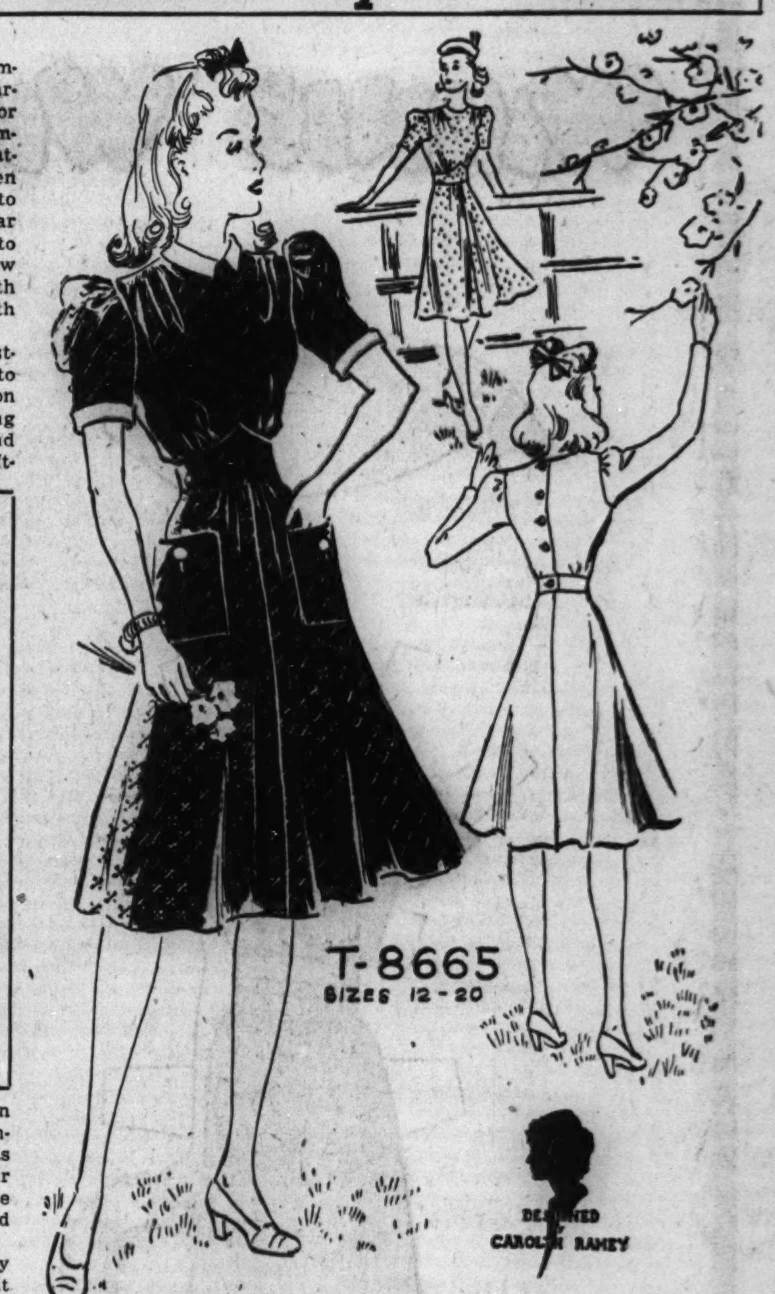
Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.



The ingenuous charm of this simple spring dress recommends it particularly to girls like Sandra, for whom I designed it. She's the slim-as-a-reed type, feminine to the greatest degree, and sweet as the men prefer! Of course you don't have to be a carbon copy of Sandra to wear this new dress idea, but I want to warn you that you can't be the raw boned, gaunt type and get away with it. It isn't in the same category with mannish cut tweeds!

I've put a little, narrow, contrasting collar at the high throatline, to match the equally slender cuffs on the widely puffed sleeves. Shirring at the shoulders, and above and below the snug waistband, lends softness to this otherwise severely plain little frock. On the moderately gathered skirt are Gargantuan pockets with buttons. Something in your wardrobe this season MUST have large pockets, and I thought you'd prefer them on a plain dress.

Sandra made this frock of navy blue washable taffeta and trimmed it with piqué in a soft peach shade. You can make the dress of any silk or cotton and trim it "as you like it."

Style No. T-8665 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of contrasting.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Most of us are so accustomed to the average conveniences, such as gas and electricity, that we take them for granted. Only when we realize that a great number of families is unable to afford such facilities can we understand how great is their struggle to maintain decent standards of living under such circumstances.

There are many readers who are unaware of the fact that items such as kerosene stoves and lamps, sad irons, garbage burners, and battery radios are greatly needed in the homes of many of our city's poor.

• • •

Mr. S. has been the sole support of his mother, who is ill and over 70 years old. He has been without work for some time and spends much of his time searching for a job. They cannot afford gas service and the kerosene stove which they now have is old and leaks a great deal, and now is dangerous to use. Mr. S. lacks funds for a new stove and, while away from home in search of employment, he is in constant fear of the danger of fire from the one now in use, which would imperil his mother. Has some reader a kerosene stove to donate? Mr. S. would be glad to call for it. The address is on the northwest side of the city.

* * *

Because his small salary cannot cover rent and living expenses for his family of seven in the city, Mr. C. is moving to the country where rents are lower and he can raise vegetables to supplement the small amount he can afford for food. They will have no electricity in their new home, and will be unable to have a radio. There are five small children, all of whom like music, and who will be removed from the entertainments and amusements to which they were accustomed. Mrs. C. wonders if some reader has a player piano which she might have to provide pleasure for the whole family. A friend will be glad to call for it. This address is on the northwest side.

Mrs. M. writes: "My husband has been physically disabled for almost 14 years, and since he has been so long unable to work, everything we possess has deteriorated. We have been dependant upon a social agency for a considerable period and our budget never has allowed for any but bare necessities. We are especially in need of rugs, chairs, and a dresser. At present I do not know exactly how, but I will strive to make some sort of an arrangement for transportation." This address is on the south side.

drawled Brazos, exaggerating his cool habit of speech, "the fact is there's a couple of hombres in town thet I forgot aboot shootin'."

Blank surprise and silence ensued upon Brazos' reply. As Brazos had intended, they could not tell whether he was in jest or earnest.

"So long. See yu-all in the mawnin'," he concluded, and left the room. Hank Bilyen followed him out on the porch and one of the twins caught up with them.

"Brazos—wait," she faltered.

"Cowboy, I'll have yore hawse heah in a jiffy," said Hank and thumped off the porch.

Brazos had taken a step down, but turned to look at the girl, whose face was on a level with his.

"You are angry?" she asked.

"Not atall. An' which one of these heah Neece girls air yu?"

"Brazos! I'm June. Don't look at me like that. We were only in fun and they coaxed, nagged me into it."

"Into what?" queried Brazos bluntly. June's distress told him there was something in the wind of which he had had no inkling.

"You've guessed it, haven't you?"

"Ump-umm. I'm a pore guesser. An' I'm a pore social cuss, too. I reckon I don't belong heah."

"O, Brazos, you are angry," cried June, and she looked back to beckon Janis, who stood with white face and wide eyes in the light of the door. But Janis did not come. "See! Jan leaves it all on my shoulders. And look at Dad and Jack! Laughing like hyenas. Brazos, I don't blame you. But forgive me, darling."

This was so astounding and delicious that Brazos could not resist prolonging it.

"Wal, June, I'm not a forgiving cuss, either—when I see I'm bein' made fun of."

"Now they're making fun of me, too," protested June. "They put up a job on us, Brazos."

"Ahuh. Suppose yu tell me aboot it."

"But don't be such a stranger to me," she wailed. "Brazos, would you be terribly angry if I confessed something I said aboot you and me?"

"No. If it was true I'd like yu the better."

"You remember tonight before supper when you and I were alone in the stall?"

"Wal, I'm not liable to forget."

"We must have been there a long time. It was almost dark. They teased me unmercifully. Even Dad. I got mad. Jan didn't help it any, believe me. So I said: 'I guess no one has a better right to be alone with Brazos Keene. And if this is all you called me for, I'm going back.' Well, Jack Sain grabbed me. They dragged me out of the barn. O, they were full of mischief. And then they sprang the joke on me.

"That same old trick that has got me into a peck of trouble lots of times! Send Janis back. Let her pretend to be me. She would string you along until we got in to supper. I didn't want to. But Jan did! And always I'd do anything under the sun for her. So I weakened and she went.

Brazos Tells June How He Was Fooled

"Henry was the only one who was sore. He was sore. He waited. And Jan kept you there in the barn so long that all of us but Henry ran off. When Jan came in alone with Henry, who was black as a thundercloud, and you didn't come—then they guessed the joke hadn't been so good. Jan was mysterious. She kept mum.

"She didn't care a whoop how mad Henry was. But she couldn't fool me. Jan doesn't have that white look and those black eyes for nothing. Something had happened while she was pretending to be me. And I've been frantic ever since."

"Wal, I shore took Jan for yu, all right," declared Brazos with a grim satisfaction.

"O, Brazos—you—you—didn't——"

"Let yore imagination run high, wide, an' handsome, June, an' maybe yu'll get somewhere."

"Brazos! I'll bet you were too smart for them. You knew Jan!" exclaimed June hopefully. "You played up to them. Poor Jan! No wonder she was so strange—so tense. Served her right! O, Brazos, I'm horribly jealous, but if you guessed the trick I can stand it. Only Jan worries me. Do you forgive me, Brazos?"

"Shore, sweetheart, I'd forgive yu anythin'. But I'm not so shore aboot Jan an' Jack an' yore Dad."

"Now you're my old Brazos again," murmured June. "I'll be a match for them next time. Brazos, let's play a terrible joke on them."

"How aboot elopin'?"

"O! Brazos, you're not serious?" cried June, aghast yet intrigued at the idea.

"Shore am. We could elope off in the mawnin', go to Dodge City long enough to slip that bridle on yu, then come back to the dance."

"Glorious! But——"

"Then it wouldn't make so much difference whether or not I took yu for Jan," drawled Brazos dryly.

"Wouldn't it tho?" flashed June. "Brazos Keene, I agree with Jan. Nobody can be quite sure of you."

"If yu were my wife, wouldn't yu feel tolerable safe?"

"Don't tempt me, Brazos. If we eloped it'd hurt Dad. And there's no need of hurry. I'd like it! But I mustn't. Another thing, Jan would never forgive me."

"For marryin' me!" ejaculated Brazos.

"No. For not telling her. We'll wait, Brazos, if you can be true to me."

"I shore can if you'll only wear somethin 'or do somethin' so I can't mistake yu for Jan again."

"Yes, Brazos, I'll think up something that no one else can tell."

"June do you reckon they-all took yu to mean we are engaged?"

"No, they didn't. Dad never mentioned it. And Jan laughed in my face. Then she tried to pump me. O, she worried me, Brazos."

"Wal, if yu had my state of mind about thet girl yu'd be loco. Have yu got any nerve, darlin'?"

"Nerve? Yes. For what?"

"Jan has backed into the room. Gosh, her eyes look like burnt holes in a blanket. They're all peekin' oot at us. Makes me kinda sore. How about kissin' me good night. Thet'll fix them."

"O, I haven't that much nerve," faltered June. "I might——"

"Jan would have in yore place," interrupted Brazos.

"If I had your nerve I know what I'd do," retorted June.

"Aw, heah comes Hank with my hawse."

"Pooh! Who cares for Hank. Brazos Keene, you may grab me—hug me, kiss me good night, then run."

"June!"

He Considers the Fix He Has Gotten Into

Dared thus and spurred by June's provocative smile Brazos brazenly availed himself of the sweet privilege. It made his head whirl so that he nearly fell down the steps.

"Say, cowboy, what 'n hell's got into yu?" queried Hank in mild concern, as Brazos swung into his saddle.

"Gawd only knows, Hank," drawled Brazos with his cool laugh. "I might be ridin' away from Don Carlos' rancho. So long, Texas."

Brazos had a fleeting glimpse of the disheveled June standing slim and lovely in the light with her hands over her face.

Riding furiously away down the dark road, Brazos' sheer joy crowded out his other emotions. June, the little minx, had challenged that sweet madness. Janis had seen it, her father, Sain, and all of them. They would tease June into a confession of their plighted troth. Brazos thought himself not only the happiest of men but the most fortunate.

Brazos left his horse at the accustomed corral and walked up the side street into the main thorofare. That element of Las Animas which did not sleep at night, and the cowboys and cattlemen upon whom they preyed, were out in force. Saloons, dance halls, and gambling dens hummed with their peculiar, low, ominous roar. Las Animas was growing. The hour was midnight and Brazos met many men, some accompanied by women.

He peeped into the dives. He stood back in dark doorways and watched. His conclusion was that Las Animas would never compare with Dodge, or Abilene, or Lincoln in the viciousness of those cattle towns in their heyday, but it was a hard town, and a center for rustling activities that no one man could clean up.

Brazos at last went to his room at Mexican Joe's, and after lighting the lamp he broodingly unbuckled his gun belt and sat down on the bed.

"Better men than I am have been in the same kind of fix," he mused darkly. "I'm supposed to marry and settle down to quiet home life. An' forget the men I've killed an' thet there's some left I ought to kill. Thet's the idee. Thet for Brazos Keene! Wal, I'll even do thet for June if they only let me. Pore kid! It's tough on her. She really never ought to have fallen in love with me."

Brazos slept late, a luxury he seldom indulged in. And after he awakened he lay in bed, realizing that in broad daylight he was wonderfully happy. And that exalted mood lasted until, booted, spurred, and gun-belted, he walked out up the street of Las Animas.

He had not taken a dozen steps from Mexican Joe's when a cowboy, a lean, hard faced youth, sauntered out of a doorway.

"Howdy, Keene," he said, as if in casual greeting. "I been walkin' the street for an hour watchin' for you."

"Howdy, cowboy," returned Brazos slowly.

"Gimme a match. Make this look natural," returned the other.

"Ahuh. Heah yu air. Talk fast, stranger."

The cowboy took the match and lighted his cigaret leisurely, but he spoke rapidly.

"Last night at Hall's I heared two men talkin'—'Brazos Keene in town—Knight swears we're to git him at any cost—Bodkin's rarin'.'"

The cowboy raised his young, hard visage, puffed a cloud of smoke, and turned away.

"Thanks, pard," said Brazos, and went on as before. "Dog-gone! Thet's hot. I reckon thet cowboy risked his life an' knew it—they're gonna try to shoot me in the back. Bodkin again."

Brazos went in the first store and out the back way, where he proceeded along the alley to a side street from which he reached the corral where he had left his horse. The Mexican boy, Pedro, had fed and watered Bay. Brazos lost no time riding out of town. The conclusion he reached was that Bodkin had taken up with this Knight and they were going to proceed on the lines Surface had developed—and that such operations were retarded because of the unwelcome existence of one Brazos Keene.

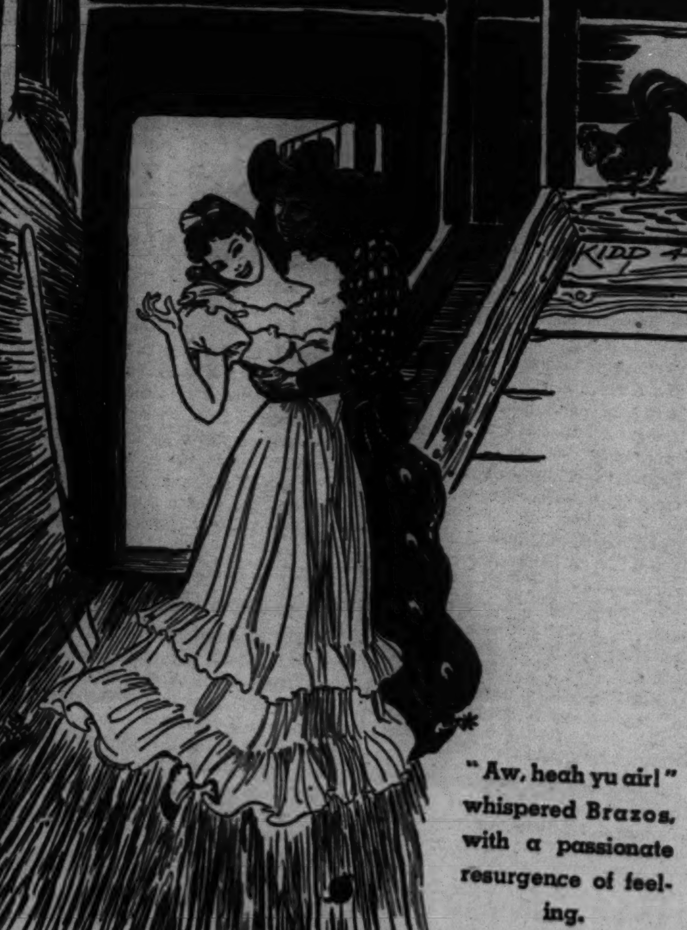
The approach of winter might have necessitated renewed activity on the part of cattle rustlers. Cattle had gone up in price to $43 on the hoof with increasing demand. Neece had seen this coming and he had bought wholesale, getting some small herds for as low as $30 a head.

When Brazos arrived at Twin Sombreros he rode in with little thought of the distracting sisters and the gala supper and dance to be held that evening. As luck would have it June or Janis called gayly to him from the house, but Brazos only waved without stopping. He found a merry bustling crowd of cowboys working to enhance the autumn effect desired by the girls.



"Aw, heah yu air!" whispered Brazos, with a passionate resurgence of feeling.

"Heah, one of yu rollickin' gazabos," he called. "Tell Neece an' Bilyen I want them pronto."

The rancher was the first to reach Brazos and he wore the warm smile he had acquired for this cowboy.

"Mornin', son. You look pretty serious. Scared of bracin' Dad after last night, eh?"

Brazos had to grin. No fear of this father's censure or criticism! Neece was on his side.

"Scared as hell, Dad, now yu make me think of last night. But thet wasn't on my mind atall."

Hank Bilyen joined them at this juncture. "Mawnin', Brazos," said the Texan, his gray gaze studying Brazos' face.

"Come heah," returned Brazos, and drew the two aside.

"Aw, yu're gonna bust up the party," complained Hank, a sense of calamity evidently striking him.

"Ump-um. Not atall. I've got a tip, tho. Cattle gone to $43. It'll be 45 in less'n a week, an' goin' up."

"You don't say!" ejaculated the rancher eagerly. "Hank, my hunch was correct."

"Wal, I was holdin' at 40 for this fall. But 45!"

"How many haid can yu drive in an' ship pronto, inside the week?" queried Brazos thoughtfully.

"Close to twenty thousand if the railroad can handle them," replied Neece promptly.

"I saw hundreds of empty stock cars as I rode oot. Neece, yu can beat the other cattlemen to it, an' save, I reckon, half thet twenty thousand—if yu rush the ootfit."

"Save! What yu mean, cowboy?" asked Bilyen, darkly suspicious of his young friend.

Brazos Advises Friend to Sell His Cattle

"Wal, there's a lull in rustlin' just now, but it won't last long onless this ootfit Surface left behind gets ripped up the back. Neece, it'd be a good bet to sell all the railroad can handle."

"I'll grab it pronto, Brazos, thanks to you."

"How aboot Henderson an' Sisk? Can they grab it pronto, too?"

"No. Henderson's stock is scattered all over the range. Sisk's is on his ranch 40 miles out. Rough country. It'd take a month to round up a big bunch."

"Too late for the top price—an' too late to beat the rustlers."

"Hank, I tried to get Sisk and Henderson to see this very thing—that is, the price of beef goin' up. I didn't figure on rustlers. Brazos, how can they get away with any large numbers of cattle?"

"Wal, it does seem ootlandish, with law an' order in Las Animas," rejoined Brazos with a grim laugh. "Boss, 10 hard ridin' rustlers can move a heap of stock. None of thet stock would come heah. The'd shove it along the line an' have it shipped the day it got to the railroad long before the owners found oot. Some of it would be throwed in with the shipment of cattlemen we reckon air crooked. And it's easy enough. Too damned easy."

"I'll go write telegrams to my buyers an' order all the stock cars available. Hank, you can ride in with these at once," said Neece decisively and hurried away.

Brazos then gave Hank the information he had received from the strange cowboy in town.

The Texan swore mightily and to no purpose, which verbiage Brazos received in silence.

"I knowed somethin' was in the wind, else yu'd never advise Neece to sell stock so pronto. Dog-gone lucky for Neece! We can ship thet number of cattle before the price drops or a hoof of it can be rustled. But what'n the hell air yu gonna do?"

"Me? Aw, I better lay low."

"Bodkin! Brazos, do yu reckon thet hombre know. yu cain't kill him?"

"He's just aboot smart enough to figure it," admitted Brazos.

"Whoever heahed of such a muss!" growled Hank. "If this was only Texas!"

"But it's not Texas. It's Colorado, where they got law an' order," declared Brazos bitterly. "But they'll hang themselves sooner or later. Las Animas won't stand it forever."

"No, I reckon not. All the same they're daid slow."

"Slow? Say, Texas, they're not alive. The trouble is each cattleman heah suspects his neighbor. Yu know, Hank, thet kind of deal is hard to handle. It just might last until this range has seen its best days."

"Nope, it won't, 'cause the haids of this combine, Bodkin an' Knight, Miller, mebbee, whoever they air, don't stack up enough gray matter."

"Hank, I just oughta ride away," said Brazos tragically.

"Shore. Thet old dodge of yore's would fit in heah," rejoined Bilyen, with sarcasm that made Brazos flinch.

"Only I cain't."

"An' why cain't yu?"

"It's not humanly possible for me to leave this girl."

"Brazos, I'd be damned if I would either."

"If only June would run off with me! We could come back after these hombres peter out."

"June? Say, cowboy, we reckoned it was Janis."

"We? Who'n hell air we?" jerked out Brazos with a start.

"Why, me an' Neece—an' some of the boys. Leastways Jack."

"Jack Sain? The two faced son-of-a-gun! He's crazy aboot June himself. That's why he——"

"Jack is honest," interposed Bilyen. "An' Neece reckons yu're sweetest on Janis."

"Neece? Aw, my Gawd!" ejaculated Brazos, throwing up his hands.

"Cowboy, ain't yu kinda mixed up yoreself aboot which one of the twins yu're daid set on?"

"Mixed up? I'm standin' on my haid right this heah minute. Hank, I love June, honest an' true—but—aw! it's orful. I cain't tell her from Jan."

Brazos Is Left to Take His Medicine

The Texan laughed so hard that Brazos wanted to punch him. "Yu reckon it's June, but yu cain't tell her from Jan! One's the same as the other. Thet settles yore hash, Brazos Keene."

"Hank, I could get mad at yu—yu—ole muddle haid," declared Brazos, red in the face. "Now what'n hell do yu mean by thet last crack? Yu saw me kiss June last night."

"Shore, Brazos, but thet only proved yu're in love with them both."

"Yu're a damn liar."

"An' yu're plumb lucky," returned Bilyen curtly. "There's safety in numbers. Yu been playin' fast an' loose with two fine girls. Don't forget yu're from Texas."

"Wal, I'll be dod-blasted," muttered Brazos as his friend strode away, plainly offended. "What the devil did he mean lucky—an' safety in numbers?"

Brazos sat there trying to puzzle it out, but the more he thought the deeper in he got until he grew hopelessly bewildered. Presently Bilyen reappeared leading his horse.

"Dog-gone it, Brazos, I cain't be mad at yu," he complained.

"Wal, I can be at yu, old timer, an' don't yu overlook thet."

"Have yu got anythin' in town yu want fetched oot?" queried Hank, ignoring Brazos' rudeness.

"Yes. Go to Mexican Joe's an' pack my ootfit. An' don't yu muss thet new gray suit thet I got to wear to the dance."

"So yu're gonna be there?" said Hank, pretending surprise. "Heah come June an' Jan. Gosh, look at them! Two sweeter, purtier, nicer, finer, gooder girls never before graced this range. Brazos, I'd be only too glad to be in yore boots."

"Yes, yu would, yu brute! Where air they? I'm gonna slope."

"They see yu. Take yore medicine, Brazos."

IT ALL CAME TRUE

A NOVEL BY LOUIS BROMFIELD

(Copyright: 1939: By Louis Bromfield. Reprinted by permission of the author.)

"Okay," said Sarah Jane, "but don't get any ideas about me being mixed up in it."
(Posed by Ann Sheridan and Humphrey Bogart.)

What Has Gone Before

Incurably romantic Bridget Lefferty and quick-tempered Maggie Ryan, widows, run a strange boarding house left to them by their late mistress, Miss Minnie Randolph. Their star boarders, like the house and its proprietors, are relics of the past—Miss Flint, "highbrow" seamstress; Mr. Van Diver, old Miss Minnie's former suitor; Mr. Boldini, down-and-out magician, and Mr. Salmon, who writes poetry. Into the quiet routine of this establishment are injected the personalities of Sarah Jane, Maggie's militantly virtuous and curvaceous daughter, home again after losing another job as a showgirl, and Tommy, Mrs. Lefferty's son, who returns after a five years' absence, accompanied by a mysterious "Mr. Grasselli." Maggie and Mrs. Lefferty receive word from old Mr. Prendergast, attorney, that their income from Miss Minnie's estate has ceased because of bad market conditions. Sarah Jane knows of Tommy's past association with cheap racketeers and gangsters and vows to learn about Grasselli. She finally recognizes him as Monk Maguire, big-time racketeer and gangster, a former employer of hers. In love with Tommy, she warns Grasselli that the young man must not get into trouble. Further, she induces him to make his appearance at meals and join the rummy game. Mr. Boldini is to give a performance for the new boarder. Mr. Salmon says he will read his poetry. Sarah Jane, who has discovered Tommy's musical talents, announces that she and Tommy will do an act. Sarah Jane learns the true state of the boarding house finances and the lack of income. When she catches Grasselli stacking the cards in the rummy game she berates him and extracts a promise that he will turn over $2,000 to help her mother and Mrs. Lefferty. Sarah Jane tries new makeup to make herself more alluring to Tommy, and he laughs at her, saying she has given him an inspiration for a song. The night for the home talent show arrives, and Mr. Salmon and Mr. Boldini do their acts. The latter's appearance is turned into a hilarious farce when Fanto, Mr. Boldini's trick poodle, arouses his master's jealousy by stealing the act. Boldini retires to his room, hurt and "disgraced." Sarah Jane's singing of Tommy's songs is the sensation of the evening. As an encore she dresses as a glamor girl, and Mr. Grasselli discovers that she is a fine comedienne. Now read about Mr. Grasselli's inspiration.

INSTALMENT IV.

SARAH JANE knocked on Tommy's door and he thrust out his head. He looked suddenly white and tired and collapsed again and Sarah Jane, to cheer him up, said, "Well, we got over big with Monk."

But Tommy was carrying the weight of five years of disappointment and disillusionment. He looked at her and said, "So what?" and that made Sarah Jane angry.

"What's the matter with you? Haven't you got any guts?"

"I don't believe the moon is made of green cheese."

"Trying to help you is like trying to lift the Empire State with one hand."

Then Tommy lost his temper. "Nobody asked you to help me," he said, and closed the door, leaving her standing alone in the hall, all her excitement and pleasure gone.

In his own room, Mr. Grasselli got into a bathrobe and as he opened the door to go for his bath he discovered Miss Flint waiting in the hallway outside. He said, "Oh, hello!" with exaggerated casualness for he was not at all sure what she wanted or what she might do. At sight of him Miss Flint giggled and said, "I've got a surprise for you."

"What d'you mean, a surprise?"

She shook her finger at him. "I know who you really are."

Mr. Grasselli didn't like this. He looked at her for a moment and then said, "Well, who am I?" and Miss Flint opened her beaded bag [one of those she had never been able to sell at the Women's exchange] and pulled out a clipping from a newspaper.

"Look," she said, "I found it in the kitchen."

It was a picture of the missing Monk Maguire but how she had ever divined that Monk Maguire and Mr. Grasselli were one and the same man, Mr. Grasselli was unable to discover. It was one of the usual pictures, perhaps a little more generous than most, for it showed about a quarter of his face.

"I knew by the eyes," she said in a voice filled with romantic overtones. Then she put her finger to her lips and the long earrings jangled. "But I won't tell," she said. "Nobody could drag it from me. I can keep a secret." And she left him suddenly and went on upstairs, still bridling and giggling, to the tiny room which had once been poor Miss Minnie's linen closet.

Knows Miss Flint Can't Keep Secret

Inside the bathroom Mr. Grasselli swore loudly and eloquently while he waited for the water to fill the tub. Now, he knew, he would have to clear out, for his instinct, if not his experience, told him that Miss Flint, despite all her breathless promises, could never keep a secret like that.

When he had finished his bath, he got into bed, turned on the radio. He listened to one torch singer after another until he had heard four, and then he decided that he was right. Sarah Jane was better than any of them, and Tommy's music was a lot better than most of the stuff that was coming out of the air from over half the United States into his room at Mrs. Lefferty's. And suddenly Mr. Grasselli's great idea came to him.

Once the inspiration had lost its novelty he was surprised that he hadn't thought of it before. It made him decide to stay on at Mrs. Lefferty's despite even the peril of Miss Flint. It was a lucky idea, for the next morning when "Mr. Hirsh" appeared he brought the news that the trial had been adjourned for six weeks since the defendant couldn't be located and that meant that Mr. Grasselli would have to remain in hiding.

The next day neither Mr. Boldini nor Mr. Grasselli left their rooms. This was a disappointment to Sarah Jane, for she had meant to take Grasselli aside and press the question of Tommy's songs.

And then in the afternoon, just as she and Tommy had begun to work in the drawing room, Mrs. Lefferty appeared with the news that Mr. Grasselli would like to talk business with her in his bedroom.

At the announcement Tommy stopped playing the piano and said, "Why his bedroom?"

"Well, I guess he ain't feelin' so well," said Mrs. Lefferty.

"He's got a nerve," said Tommy.

"Leave it to me," said Sarah Jane. "I can take care of myself."

"Make him come down here."

Sarah Jane faced him across the piano. "Listen!" she said, "I've been passing up breaks for years and this one I'm not gonna pass up. Take it or leave it."

"All right," said Tommy, "leave me out of the whole thing."

"Nuts!" said Sarah Jane and left the room.

She found Mr. Grasselli in his red dressing gown propped up in bed surrounded by bicarbonate of soda, the daily paper, Variety, and a lot of legal papers which "Mr. Hirsh" had just left. As Sarah Jane entered, he turned off the radio and said, "Shut the door."

"No," said Sarah Jane.

"Why not?"

"On account of the old girls wouldn't like it."

She sat down and Mr. Grasselli said, "Well, I'm gonna become a permanent, I guess, unless Nutsy Flint chases me out."

"Why? What's she done?"

"Well, in the first place, she goes around heaving and panting, and in the second place she's found out who I am."

"How?"

"By the pictures in the paper."

"Never mind, I'll fix her."

"How?"

"I'll tell her that if she breathes a word they'll take her for a ride."

"Okay. I've got an idea."

"Yeah?"

"My givin' money to the old girls ain't gonna save the place. It's got to be put on a payin' basis."

"Yeah," said Sarah Jane. "How?"

"Well. What about a night club?"

"Are you crazy? Can you imagine Ma and Mrs. Lefferty runnin' a night club?"

"They wouldn't run it."

"Who would?"

"I would. I gotta stay shut up here at least another six weeks, and I gotta have something to amuse me."

"What are you gonna do?"

"I plan to keep a lot of the furniture and the curtains and things like that so as not to lose the atmosphere." Mr. Grasselli began to feel the enthusiasm of an artist and make gestures like a window draper. "And then I've thought of a good name, too." He looked at Sarah Jane with pride.

"What?"

"The Golden Nineties! It ain't exactly original. It was Mr. Salmon's poems that give me the idea. I think the time's just ripe for something like that to go in a big way."

"The place ain't big enough."

"Yeah, that's just it. I plan to keep it small and exclusive, see? And expensive. And have specialties to eat . . . make it an eating place where you get good food, not just one of these dumps where you pay a lot of dough for bad liquor and garbage. I wanta make it small and classy, see? With just a couple acts to amuse the clients."

"What, for instance?"

"Well, you and Tommy doin' four or five songs." He looked at her again in that interested way which she didn't like. "What d'you think of the idea?"

"It sounds kinda nuts to me."

"Who are the tenants next door?"

"There's a box factory on one side and a couple of budding architects on the other."

"Well, I guess they won't complain, then. They won't be in nights. Yeah, I'd like to put you and Tommy on and Mr. Boldini and his act."

"Mr. Boldini?"

"Sure. Just the way he was. I never seen anything funnier. We could make the dog the star of the act and let Mr. Boldini play straight, see? Make them speeches just the way he does with that long face of his and then have the dog spoil his tricks every time."

"You mean, make the Great Boldini into a stooge?"

"That's it."

"You're crazy. You'd never get him to do that."

"Not even if there was money in it?"

"I doubt it."

"Your mother and Mrs. Lefferty would have to give me the basement and the first two floors. I can make a fortune for 'em quick. I don't want no profits. This is just to amuse me, see?"

"Yeah," said Sarah Jane. She saw clearly enough but she was trying to keep from showing her excitement. For the first time she was getting a break and she was getting one for Tommy, if only it didn't turn out the way it always did, the way those glances of Mr. Grasselli's made her suspect it might.

Maggie Would Have Charge of Kitchen

"We'd just have specialties . . . for dinner and for after the theayter . . . Your old woman could superintend the kitchen . . . you know, Irish stew and corned beef and cabbage, the way she makes 'em. I never tasted 'em as good anywhere."

"When d'you want to begin?"

"Tomorrow morning. I already talked about it to 'Mr. Hirsh.' He thinks it's a great idea. He can get men in here to work in 24 hours. It's up to you, see?"

She went downstairs and told Tommy all about it.

He listened while she told him everything and when she had finished he said, "Well, what's the answer?"

"What d'you mean? What's the answer?"

"Well, what's he gettin' out of it?"

"Nothing . . . I guess, but amusement."

Tommy looked at her sharply, masterfully, as if he were already married to her and beat her every time she looked at another man. It was a look that Sarah Jane loved.

"Why did he want to talk to you alone in his bedroom?"

"Listen, everything between me and him is on the level. He's scared of me."

"It had better be," said Tommy.

When she left Tommy she went down to the kitchen and went thru the whole pile of newspapers that Maggie kept in the corner to start the fires with each morning. Near the bottom she found what she wanted. Then she poured herself a cup of tea and sat down at the kitchen table. In about five minutes, as she expected, Miss Flint appeared for her afternoon cup of tea, and from the way she entered, tossing her head a little, Sarah Jane knew that she was thinking about Mr. Grasselli.

"Oh, hello!" said Miss Flint, very flip and modern.

"Hello," said Sarah Jane, "I thought I'd join you in a cup of tea."

"That's nice," said Miss Flint, pouring herself a cup of Maggie's witch's broth.

"I just had an idea," said Sarah Jane. "I wanted to talk to you about it."

"Yes?" said Miss Flint, blowing on her tea.

"I want a couple dresses . . . old fashioned ones . . . you know, the kind they used to wear in the nineties. It's for a number I'm building up. You'd know how to make them, wouldn't you? I mean dresses with a lot of ruffles and flounces and lace and stuff, you know? Only I want 'em funny. You know, everything a little bit exaggerated."

NEXT SUNDAY—SARAH JANE'S HOPES ARE REALIZED AT LAST

"I don't know whether I could do that," said Miss Flint.

"Oh, yes you could, if you tried. I'll help you. I'm good at that kind of thing." Sarah Jane turned a page of her paper casually and took another sip of black tea. "Isn't it awful," she said. "What goes on in New York?"

"Why?" said Miss Flint. "What's going on?"

"Why, it's in the papers every day. Just listen to this," and Sarah Jane began to read:

> Workers on a North river dredge early yesterday morning made a gruesome discovery when the shovel of the dredge dumped onto the deck a barrel containing the body of a man who had been tortured, strangled, and his body placed in a barrel which was filled with liquid cement. Late this afternoon the body was identified as that of Buzzy Leibowitz, alias Buzz the Whizz, alias Little Hermy, a member of the notorious Valparaiso gang.

Sarah Jane looked up from her paper. "Isn't that terrible?" she asked.

"Horrible," said Miss Flint in a weak voice.

"But listen to this!" said Sarah Jane.

> An autopsy showed that the victim had been tortured before being killed. The head and feet were tied together and the body covered with small wounds. About the neck there still remained the wire with which the victim had been garroted.
>
> It is believed by the police that the victim was murdered for squealing.

"Squealing," said Sarah Jane, "means betraying somebody." With one eye she regarded Miss Flint and saw that she had gone quite white.

Invents Part of a Good Story

"Listen," said Sarah Jane. And this time, altho she regarded the newspaper again, she allowed her fancy to insert a line of her own creation:

> It is believed [she read] that Little Hermy talked too much and let slip a clue by which the police were able to arrest two other members of the gang. The body was identified by certain scars and dental work. The gold teeth, for which Little Hermy was famous, had been wrenched from his jaws, probably while he was still alive.

Miss Flint's hand went quickly to her jaw, and little beads of perspiration came out on her forehead.

"Look," said Sarah Jane. "Here's the picture of the barrel." She handed the paper across the table but Miss Flint recoiled from it.

"No . . . no . . . I couldn't look at it," she said, and then rising unsteadily, she added, "I think I'll go upstairs and lie down. I don't feel very well."

When she had gone Sarah Jane put the tea cups in the sink and thrust the paper into the stove. She thought, "Well, I guess that fixed her," and went upstairs to waken Maggie and see if Mrs. Lefferty had come in yet from the Hepburn picture.

When she told the plan to her mother, Maggie looked at her with a fishy eye untainted by Sarah Jane's enthusiasm, and said, "No good will come of it, and how can I go into the night club business at my age?"

Mrs. Lefferty received the news with a more open mind, warmed, as always, by the romantic character of her imagination.

Seated about the kitchen table they talked until Maggie, glancing at the clock, said, "Sure, and while we go on gassin', it's gettin' later and later and there won't be any supper for the boarders we have got."

But Sarah Jane kept worrying her, even after Maggie had begun making the dinner, and at last she got them both to admit that they wouldn't mind taking a try at a night club except for what poor Miss Minnie would think. Somehow they couldn't see people drinking and cavorting in poor Miss Minnie's parlor.

But Sarah Jane had her answer ready. "I guess poor Miss Minnie would feel a lot worse if she saw her furniture being sold off at auction to anybody who came along."

Maggie turned indignantly from the kettle filled with boiling potatoes, "Sure, and who's sellin' poor Miss Minnie's furniture to anybody who comes along?"

"What's gonna happen?" asked Sarah Jane, "the next time you have to pay interest and taxes and things? What Mr. Grasselli said is true. Boardinghouses are out of date. There's no money in them any more. You already owe him two thousand dollars. You can't go on borrowing from him forever."

"We'll see," said Maggie, but Sarah Jane knew she had won and she knew that she had Mrs. Lefferty on her side.

She left them and went upstairs to Tommy, whom she found working on the new songs. He already had a melody for one of them, a melody that was haunted by intimations of Mr. Salmon's Golden Nineties but was at the same time catchy and a good dance tune. It wasn't, she knew, any use going to work on Mr. Boldini until he felt better. When she and Tommy had gone over the new songs a couple of times, she left him and went upstairs to report to Mr. Grasselli. She was proud of her progress.

Mr. Grasselli thought they could go ahead anyway. He wrote out a telegram. "Take that out and send it to 'Mr. Hirsh,'" he said. "That'll get things started."

"It looks good, don't it?" said Sarah Jane.

"You're a great little kid." He gave her a pinch and was rewarded by a good slap.

"Lay off that," she said. "This is on the level or I'm out of it."

"Okay," said Mr. Grasselli. "Did you fix Miss Flint?"

"I fixed her all right," said Sarah Jane.

Shortly the work of alteration started. There were busy, noisy days in the old house.

The moment the workmen disappeared Mr. Grasselli would descend and inspect what they had done and have a lot of new ideas. A remarkable change came over him. Now that he had a project under way, his spirits rose. He no longer sulked in his room, and no longer became ill at times with boredom. He even ceased to stack the cards in the rummy game whether Sarah Jane was absent or not.

As for Maggie, she took up an embattled position in the kitchen and, surrounded by workmen and dust and débris, refused to be moved.

Only old Mr. Van Diver and Miss Flint seemed to be disturbed, for even Mr. Boldini, once he had been brought round, grew excited, and Mr. Salmon seemed to take on a new youth, because he became aware presently that he was being brought up to date in spite of himself and that perhaps out of all the confusion his genius might be reborn and he might go into a "fourth period" of creation. But Miss Flint seemed odd and depressed. Except at rare moments, she no longer tossed her head until the earrings jangled, and when she went out to the Women's exchange now she always wore a veil, a relic of the nineties so thick that Sarah Jane wondered how she could see where she was going. She scarcely spoke at all when Mr. Grasselli was about, and whenever he was not looking at her she stared at him fascinated with a look of mingled terror and admiration in her eyes.

The "bring round" of Mr. Boldini was accomplished by Sarah Jane. She did it craftily, waiting for two days until Mr. Boldini appeared a little less yellow and depressed.

"I'v got news for you, Mr. Boldini," she said.

Raising his large yellow eyes, he regarded her dismally, as if the mere sight of any one so young and so enthusiastic depressed him.

"What?" he asked with indifference.

"I've got a job for you."

"A job?"

"Yes," said Sarah Jane, "Mr. Grasselli thought you were wonderful."

"Mr. Grasselli," said Mr. Boldini in a hollow voice, "laughed. He laughed the hardest of all."

"That was it . . . he appreciated it. That's the way he showed he liked it."

"What does he want me to do?"

"He wants you to put on the act just as it was, with a few small changes."

She saw from the way he looked at her that he was beginning to be suspicious. "What changes?" he asked.

"Well, you see, it's like this." She coughed and said: "It's difficult to explain . . . but you see, he liked the finish. He wants to make it all like that."

"You mean the part where everybody laughed?" He glanced suddenly at Fanto's basket, and Fanto cowered with shame.

"Well, not exactly, only he wants to make it into a laugh act. See? He thinks it would be one of the greatest acts ever."

For a moment Mr. Boldini stared at her as if he could not believe his ears; then all the dewlaps and ridges and furrows in his bloodhound face contracted until he became the picture of outraged Roman dignity.

"Me, the Great Boldini, who has been president of the International Society of Magicians!" He began to thump himself on the chest so hard that Sarah Jane became alarmed. "Me!" he continued, "who has given command performances before the emperors of Germany and Austria!"

Sarah Jane waited for a moment and then said, "Listen, Mr. Boldini, it isn't like that. All Mr. Grasselli wants you to do is to do your magician's act up to date and teach Fanto to be a clown."

Mr. Boldini gave Fanto another savage look and again Fanto cowered with shame. "That's easy enough. That's all he is—a clown! There isn't a drop of artists' blood in him."

"Clowns can be artists, Mr. Boldini, just the same as you and me."

"Well," said Mr. Boldini, turning from the window. "What does he want me to do?"

But Sarah Jane didn't tell him at once. "There'll be a lot of money in it."

"How much?" asked Mr. Boldini.

"Well, maybe as much as $75 a week."

"I get $35 a performance already without Fanto—and $50 with him."

"Yes, but you only work about once every two or three weeks."

"During the school holidays I work sometimes as much as four times a week."

"All right. Maybe Mr. Grasselli would pay you a $100 a week." Mr. Grasselli had said he'd pay up to $125 if Mr. Boldini was as good as he was the night Fanto ruined his act, but Sarah Jane didn't tell him this.

TURN TO THE GRAPHIC SECTION for this same story in pictures from the new film, "It All Came True."

Hear it on W-G-N at 8:45 p. m. next Friday.

"I'll tell you something," said Sarah Jane confidentially. "If you leave it to me I think I could get him up to $125 a week, and if we're successful Mr. Grasselli might put us into a revue he's got an interest in."

This time Mr. Boldini didn't answer but turned away again to the window, not indignantly now, but thoughtfully, lost perhaps in considering that if he took the job he might be able to pay Mrs. Lefferty what he owed her, that he might become famous again, that he might have money enough to live again in the Astor hotel.

"All right," he said, "I'll think it over."

That afternoon Mr. Grasselli himself honored Mr. Boldini by a call in his room and there, after Mr. Boldini had gone thru another fine performance of indignation and wounded dignity and breast beating, they got down to brass tacks and discussed the act. The trouble, Mr. Grasselli knew from the beginning, would be in forcing Mr. Boldini to play "straight," to suppress his jealousy of Fanto and abandon all attempts to horn in on Fanto's success.

Gets the Desired Effect Accidentally

With a patience he had never known before Mr. Grasselli labored with Mr. Boldini until he came to the verge of giving up the whole thing as a bad job, and then by accident he found out how he could get the effect he wanted.

"Listen," he said, with exaggerated patience, "get this in your mind, Mr. Boldini. I know it's the hardest thing in the world to get a ham to play a ham. See? You're a broken-down ham magician and every time you do a trick your dog spoils it and that makes you mad. Get me?"

But while he was talking an expression came over Mr. Boldini's face that very nearly frightened Mr. Grasselli.

"So I'm a ham, am I?" he cried. "A broken-down ham magician . . . me! The Great Boldini! You tell me that?"

Mr. Grasselli held up his hand. "Now, listen, Mr. Boldini, I didn't say you were a ham. I was just telling you you must think of yourself as a ham. That's what acting is, isn't it? That's what great art is. Now listen, be sensible and go ahead with the act."

Fuming, Mr. Boldini went ahead with the act, and miraculously in his fury and wounded vanity he gave exactly the effect that Mr. Grasselli wanted. Crushing out his cigar, Mr. Grasselli lay back in bed and laughed, very nearly as hard as he had laughed on that first night. "That's it!" he said. "That's exactly it!"

Mr. Grasselli had discovered his secret. You had to make Mr. Boldini mad to get the effect you wanted.

In the meanwhile Tommy and Sarah Jane were making progress with their songs and Miss Flint was making progress with Sarah Jane's dresses.

Tommy had written two "nineties" songs and Sarah Jane was learning them. One was called "The Poorhouse with You" and the other "She Was the Bartender's Sister." Now they had five good songs. Sarah Jane worked at them, giving them everything she had, taking a tip now and then from Mr. Grasselli when she thought it was a good one and rejecting others when she thought they were bad, for she was aware of a sudden new confidence, different from anything she had ever known before.

But Tommy didn't seem properly excited about their debut. As the time drew nearer, as the alterations were finished, one by one, and the tables and chairs and linen and silver began to arrive, he seemed to grow more and more depressed and nervous. When Sarah Jane questioned him directly he always looked away from her and she was sure again that there was something which had happened while he had been away from her for five years.

But the dresses went ahead well. There wasn't any need of having Miss Flint exaggerate their lines and cut and ornament. What Miss Flint regarded as making them "straight" was funnier than anything Sarah Jane could think up in the way of exaggeration.

And then suddenly the alterations were all finished and the chairs and tables installed and Maggie's two assistants arrived and in the afternoon there was a final rehearsal of cooks and waiters, captained by Victor Leontopopulos, a headwaiter who had served Mr. Grasselli at the openings and closings of countless night clubs and speakeasies.

Then the worst happened about eight o'clock in the evening when Tommy didn't come down to dinner. He sent word by his mother that he didn't feel very well and wanted to lie down for a while in the dark. When Mrs. Lefferty told her the news, Sarah Jane was aware that all along she had known this was going to happen. Her instinct had told her, if she had only listened to it, that Tommy was still a broken reed that under pressure might collapse completely.

When she had eaten a quick but substantial dinner [for Sarah Jane was so healthy that she could not work on an empty stomach and nothing upset her appetite] she hurried up to Tommy's room and knocked.

In response to his "Come in" she entered and found him lying in the dark on his bed. By the light from the hall, she found her way to the foot of the bed and stood there looking down at him. He didn't even stir and made no effort to speak until she said, "Well?"

Then he said, "It's no use. I can't do it. You've got to find another piano player."

Suddenly she was angry and scornful. Fury blazed up inside her, but in the next second, remembering what she had learned, she counted ten before speaking and then said: "You must be crazy. I can't get a piano player at this hour. And anyway he couldn't do those songs the way we do them. Not even Paderewski could do it."

"I can't," said Tommy. "That's all there is to it."

"What's the matter with you?"

"I don't know . . . nerves, I guess . . . jitters. What you call neurasthenia. I'm scared."

Quietly she came round the end of the bed and sat on the edge of it by his side. "Listen," she said, "You can't do that. You can't let us all down . . . not now, when everything is ready."

"I can't," said Tommy in a low voice. "I guess I'm going nuts. I've been trying to think of the music and I can't even remember it. I guess I'm going nuts. If I went on to play I wouldn't know what I was playing."

Then she was aware by the dim light from the hall that there were tears on his cheek. He said almost in a whisper, "I don't want to act like this. I can't help it. It isn't my fault, Sally."

Her heart suddenly leaped. He had called her Sally long ago when they played together in the back garden at poor Miss Minnie's house on Murray hill; but he had never called her that since he came home.

"Don't you see?" he said, "I'm nuts or something."

She had to think quickly and skilfully; she knew that she could not risk making a mistake. After a little silence in which she abandoned thought and allowed her instinct to tell her what to do, she asked, "Is it on account of something that happened while you were away?"

He didn't answer her, and after another silence she said, "Was it something you did?" and in a whisper, he said, "Yes."

Then suddenly she reached over and took his hand. It was the first time they had touched each other since he came back, and the feel of his hand brought a lump in her throat, a lump caused as much by happiness as by pity. In the dark she felt his hand take hers and press it tightly, almost hysterically, as if he depended on her. Then she said, "Tell me. What is it?" But he didn't speak.

"Tell me," she said. "It'll do you good. You know, don't you, that I'm all for you . . . that I'd do anything for you? You know that, don't you, Tommy?"

"Yes."

"Well, tell me then . . . what was it . . . ?"

After a long silence, he said, "I was in jail."

That didn't surprise her, because it was what she expected. "What for?" she asked.

"Bootlegging . . . in Detroit."

Sarah Jane Fights Tommy's Gloom

She laughed. She couldn't, in her relief, help herself. "That doesn't matter," she said. "Bootlegging wasn't any crime. Everybody did it . . . everybody was guilty . . . people who drank were just as guilty. Nobody cares about that."

"I beat it," he said. "I got out of jail by a trick and beat it."

"Well," said Sarah Jane, "that was very smart of you. So what? All that's finished. Nobody's gonna bother you about that. All that's squashed."

"It wasn't only that," said Tommy.

"What else? Go on! It'll do you good to talk."

"It's no good telling you some of the things. I'm ashamed to. I'm ashamed because I was ashamed of you and Ma and Maggie. I thought I was too good for you all until I found out I wasn't good enough."

"I know," said Sarah Jane. "I knew all that."

"How did you know?"

"I'm not so dumb."

"I guess that's what's the matter with me. I'm sick inside."

So now, she knew, there was only one thing to do, and again she knew she mustn't do the wrong thing. It had to be just right. She didn't know anything about neurosis and she didn't know anything about psychoanalysis, but she did knew a lot about people, and about men. So for a second time she abandoned thought and trusted her instinct.

"Tommy," she said.

Out of the darkness his voice answered her, tired and frightened. "Yes?"

"Tommy, would you marry me?"

There was a silence and then he asked, "Do you really mean that? You're not kidding me?"

"I never meant anything so much in my life. I've always been in love with you, I guess. Anyway since I was about 16 years old. Now, there it is! How do you feel about it?"

He pulled her hand up to his lips and kissed it. "There," he said. "That's how I feel. I guess I always felt the same way about you, only I was a fool. I didn't know it till just lately . . . I wanted to ask you, only I didn't dare."

"Why?" asked Sally. "I tried to make you see it."

"I couldn't, because I was so ashamed of myself, and I didn't have anything to offer . . . nothing at all but failure. I didn't even have any guts. And you could marry all kinds of guys with money and Rolls-Royces, and diamonds."

"Oh!" said Sarah Jane. "Those squirts! You needn't have worried about them."

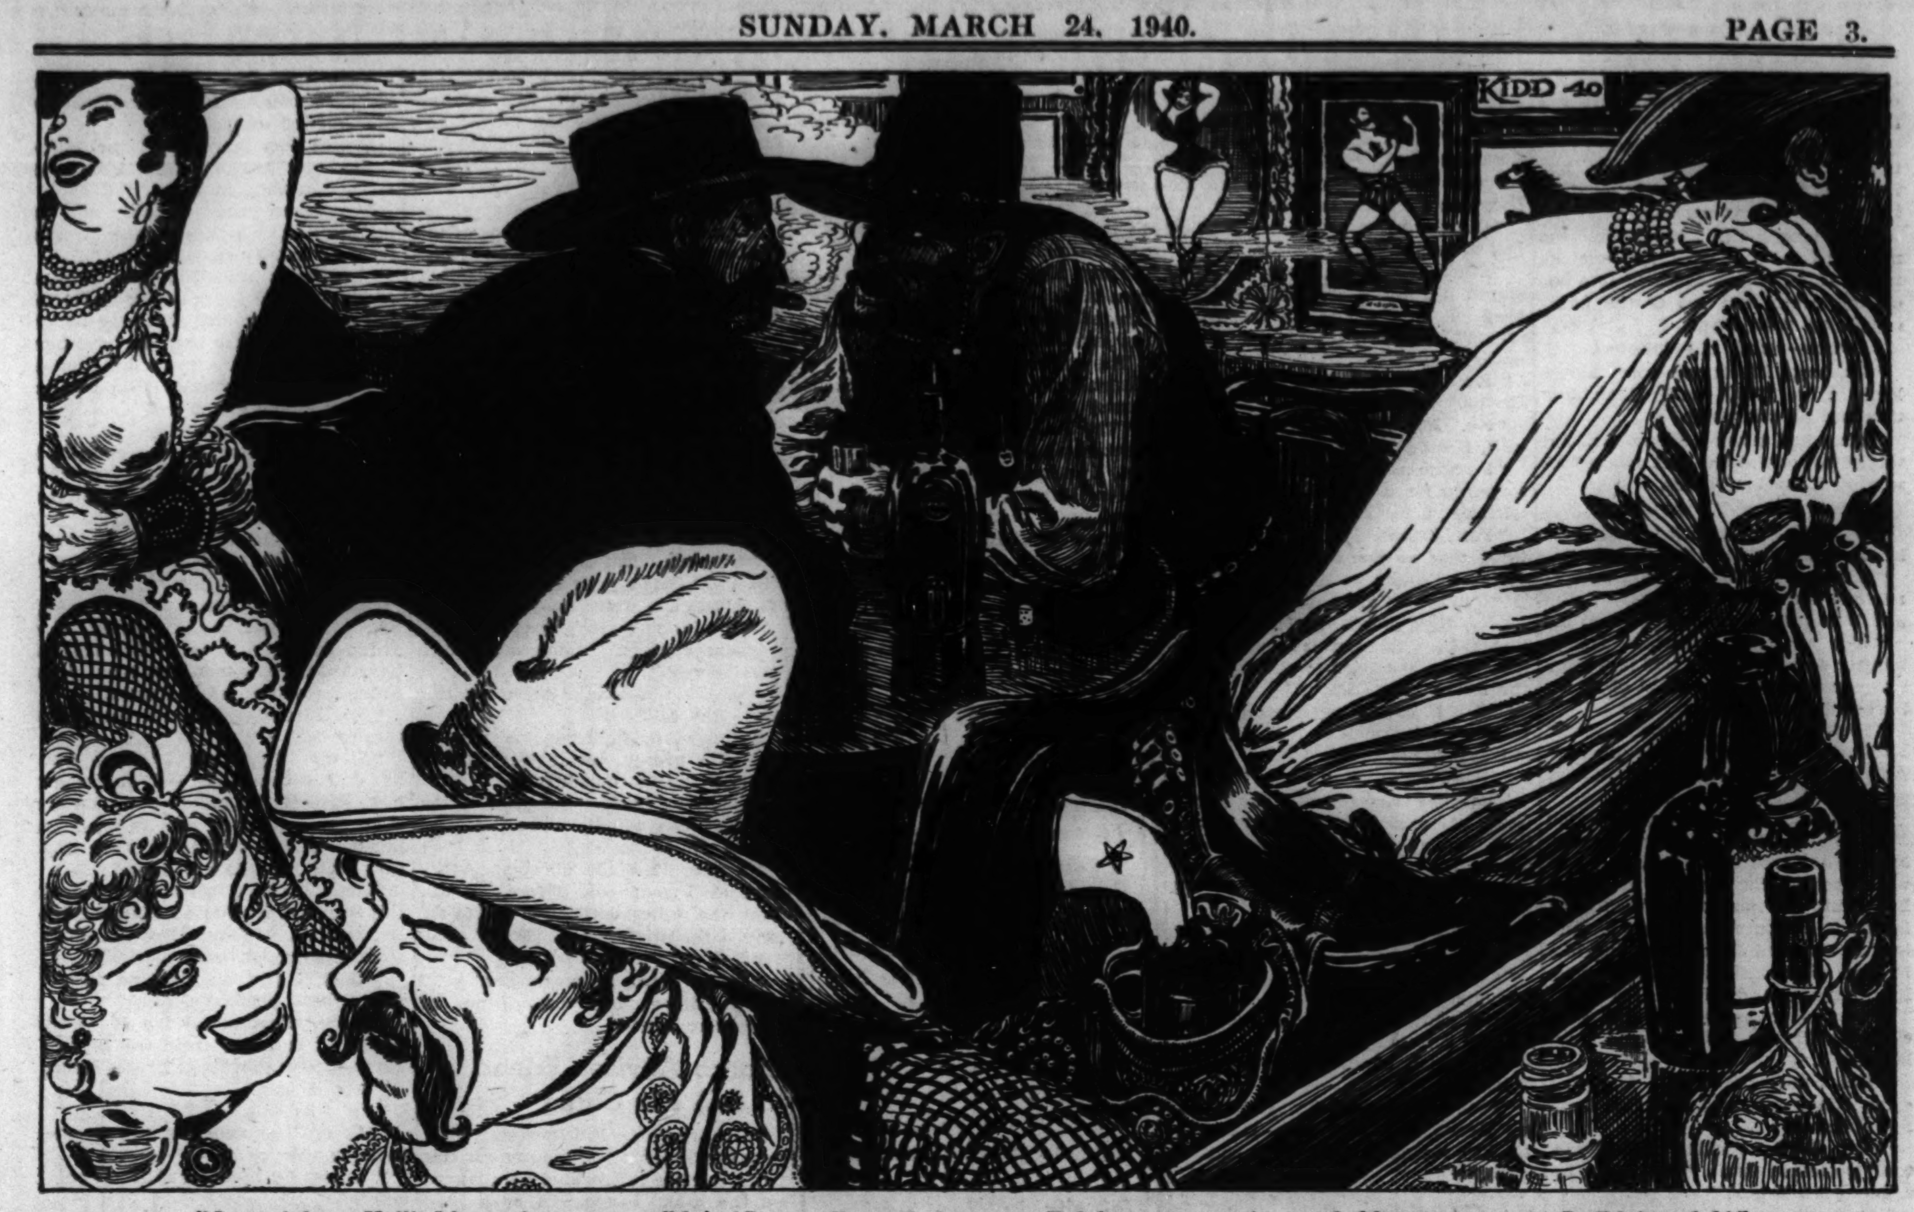
In the darkness he pulled himself up and sat cross-legged on the bed. "Gee!" he said. "Gee! I'm still sort of afraid of you, Sally."

She leaned across toward him. "And now I can look after you," she said, "and keep you out of trouble. You oughtn't ever to get mixed up with people like Monk. You don't know how to manage 'em. See, from now on, you can just work at your music and not worry about anything at all."

Then suddenly he put his arms about her. He didn't speak at all but only kept saying, "Sally! My God, Sally!"

Then they both knew that it had been waiting for them all along, all the time, for years, and now when it came to them it was better than anything they had dreamed of because they knew each other. They had known each other always. There wasn't any strangeness. There wasn't anything they had to find out about each other.

[Concluded Next Sunday.]



"Last night at Hall's I heared two men talkin'—'Brazos Keene is in town—Knight swears we're to git him at any cost—Bodkin's rarin'.'"

TWIN SOMBREROS

What Has Gone Before Exiled because of his hopeless love for Holly Ripple, Brazos Keene, wandering desperado, bunks in a lonely cabin. When he awakes in the morning he finds a dead man in the loft. A posse under Deputy Sheriff Bodkin arrests him for the murder of the dead man, Allen Neece, whose father has just lost his ranch, Twin Sombreros, to Raine Surface. Surface orders Brazos lynched, but with the help of Inskip, one of the posse, Brazos outwits them and surrenders to Sheriff Kiskadden. A letter from Holly clears him and throws suspicion on Surface. Brazos decides to stay and investigate the deal Surface has given Neece and his twin daughters, June and Janis. He falls in love with June. On a hunch he makes a date with Surface's daughter Lura and feigns love for her and from her learns that one of the three riders who killed Allen was a girl in man's clothing who was used to lure him to his death. Brazos goes into hiding to frighten Bodkin and learns of a plot to get a cowgirl, Bess Syvertsen, to lure him into a trap where her supposed father, Bard Syvertsen, and Orcutt can murder him. Daringly Brazos seeks out Bess, who, because of his chivalrous treatment of her, found herself madly in love with him. Bess defies Surface and refuses to carry out his murder plot. Brazos walks in on Bess and Surface in a serious argument and knocks Surface down. Bess tells Brazos who she is and he confronts Syvertsen and Orcutt, shooting it out with them and killing both. Bess, thinking Brazos has made a fool of her, aims her gun at him, but he shoots first, wounding her arm. She signs a confession. Brazos exposes Surface, makes him return the gold stolen from Neece, and restores Twin Sombreros to the Neece family, then runs him out of town. Brazos helps Bess get out of town and then himself leaves, remaining away a month. In the interim Bodkin is elected sheriff.

INSTALMENT XI.

"BRAZOS, you can't kill him," declared Neece seriously. "Bodkin has been elected sheriff by the citizens of this county. This time he wasn't appointed. He's our first elected officer. If you kill him you'll be an outlaw."

"All the same, he's crooked, Neece. An' half the town knows it if the other half is blind. An' it makes a rotten situation for me, if I go ridin' for yu."

"If! For land's sake, Keene, don't say you might not. June told me thet she'd guarantee your ridin' for me. An' Jan said she could get you if June couldn't."

"Neece, I'm thankin' yu for yore trust an' likin'. An' I'm shore proud thet June—an' Janis, too—wants me heah. I'll come, boss, an' ride my damnedest for yu."

"Good!" replied the rancher. "I reckon it's a delicate situation for you, Brazos. But I'll declare myself before you ask me. I'd like yu to take Allen's place. Don't worry about decidin' between the twins. They'll settle your hash pronto, an' it doesn't make any difference to me. Now thet's off my mind. Let's go in an' drink to it."

"Wal, I'm kinda in need of a bracer myself," replied Brazos. After a while there was a sort of general conference about the dance, in which he and Neece were consulted.

Then came dinner, which was a festal board for Brazos. Everybody except Henry Sisk, who sulked over some real or imagined grievance, appeared wonderfully happy. Brazos was lost in the brightness of two pairs of eyes.

After dinner they dragged Brazos, Neece, Henry, and Bilyen out to the barn, and collected Sain and the cowboys on the way. Already heaps of evergreen, boughs of pine with the cones intact, and branches of different colored autumn leaves lay upon the floor.

"Not half nor a quarter enough," declared Janis. "Henry, take the wagon and the boys out for more."

Henry demurred and made a weak suggestion to the effect that Brazos go.

"Brazos can stay here and show us how to balance on a ladder," replied Janis demurely.

All that wonderful afternoon Brazos climbed and balanced and nailed, pounded his thumb, made mistakes, fell off the ladder, and proved according to Hank that he might be Brazos Keene, but he was the locoedest decorator who ever came over the range.

The work progressed rapidly, especially as Neece and Bilyen lent a hand to close the open ends of the barns with brilliant foliage. Then the two kindly men took it upon themselves to attempt more without consulting Janis, which omission brought dire disaster upon their heads, and the patient cowboys from their other tasks. It also left Brazos alone with June in one of the foliage screened stalls.

"June, this shore has been a thrillin' day," said Brazos.

"Indeed it has. But you haven't been a thrilling good cowboy, not for me," she observed. "Here—hold this—not my hands!"

"June—I've been as good as—as I know how to be," protested Brazos, aghast.

"Perhaps that's not very good."

"What have I done?"

"Led pore Jan on—for one thing."

"Led pore Jan on!" burst out Brazos, suddenly on fire.

"Brazos, I—I haven't told Jan or anybody we—we're engaged. . . . I'm afraid Jan likes you."

"Good Lord! 'Course she likes me. Why not? I've been nice to her—an' I shore——"

"Do you think it's nice to make sheep's eyes at her—to smile that devastating smile of yours—to hold her hands?"

"Child! I don't love Jan atall," cried Brazos, as one who rushed to his doom. "Leastways only as a sister—as yore sister."

"O, dear Brazos, I'm happy again," faltered June. "Yet I—I'm almost sorry you don't love her, too. If only she just likes you! Jan is strange these days."

"Aw, she's in love with Sisk."

"She likes Henry better than any of her other beaus, and she might have——"

"June, don't waste so much time," expostulated Brazos. "Heah we've been alone only a minute the first time an' yu waste it."

"Brazos! We can't spoon right under the noses of Dad, Jan, Jack——"

"Shore we can. An' why Jack? June, I'm scared yu like thet cowboy."

"I do. Very much since Allen is gone. He was Allen's best friend. But Jack is not you."

"Darlin', yu gotta do two things or I'll go clean loco."

"And what are they?"

"Wal, be more of a sweetheart an' wear somethin' or give me some kind of a hunch yu're June."

"Brazos, I've been the faithfulest sweetheart you ever had. If you only knew!"

"June, I mean a lovin' sweetheart. I'm the kind of a hombre thet's got to have kisses—millions of kisses."

June Yields Laughingly to Brazos' Kiss

She uttered a little laugh, easy to misinterpret. "I rather guessed that. You're so sure of the number I wonder if you're as sure of where they're all to come from."

But she yielded easily to his tender clasp and shyly held up her lips. Her kiss was cool—sweet—quick, gathering something as it ended.

"There! one on account. Wait! They're calling me. I'll be back soon."

"June!" came the clamoring cry from outside the leafy bower.

She slipped away from Brazos with a touch, a look that convinced him she wanted to stay there in his arms.

Brazos stood there after June left with a sense of blank disappointment, a letting down of his expectant mood, listening to the voices and footsteps receding. He hoped she would return if only for a moment. Then his heart leaped at a quick light patter of feet that slowed, halted significantly outside the booth.

A slender form in white stood framed in the darkening doorway of foliage.

"Aw, heah yu air!" whispered Brazos with a passionate resurgence of feeling.

"O, I can't see you. They sent me back."

Perhaps it was his sudden looming right over her that checked her gay voice. He saw her face, pale against the background of leaves, her eyes unnaturally large and dark.

"You near found a daid man," said Brazos, snatching her off her feet.

"Brazos!" All her slender form appeared to leap with a divinely startled convulsion. But it did not strike Brazos that it was resistance. His surprise attack gained something from his disappointment. He gathered her up tight in his arms and as he kissed her eyes shut she cried out: "O! please don't. Mercy! Ah!" And with that Brazos' thirsty lips closed hers and he spent his ardor in long, lingering kisses.

"There! Thet shore was comin' to yu, lady," panted Brazos as her head drooped back, her eyes closed under mystic lids.

They opened. "Cowboy devil!" she whispered, both tone and look impossible to read.

Nevertheless Brazos translated them in his own behalf.

"No more," she cried frantically and, surprising Brazos with sudden strength, she freed herself and fled.

Brazos followed, still in a transport. But as he got out of the gloom of the barn into the open where it was light he sustained a return of rationality.

One of the boys had waited and in a moment more Brazos recognized Henry Sisk.

"What'd you go back for?" he asked in a low voice.

"What'd you drag June away for?" panted the girl as she reached him.

"I took her for you!" returned Sisk in anguish.

"Ha! Ha!"

Janis' sweet laugh not only silenced Sisk but also made a stone image of Brazos. The couple hurried on to catch up with the others down the lane. Brazos stood there in the summer twilight as suddenly stiff and cold as if he had been turned to stone, his consciousness capable of only one thought: "My Gawd, if it wasn't Jan!"

Brazos had faced bad men, rustlers, wild beasts, outlaw mustangs, fire, and flood with far less fear than it took to walk into the Neece dining room. But he had to go. To flee would have been a fatal blunder. Like a man going to his execution Brazos faced that merry table.

"Brazos, what made you so late? I called and called," said one of the twins, her dark eyes full of laughter. That had to be June.

The rest of that evening Brazos sought the safety of numbers. But just the same, he was conscious of June's observance of him, as if she knew what a fool he was, and of Janis' smiling radiance, as if she had a secret not to keep long from the world. One other shared it, of that Brazos was sure, and he was Henry Sisk. Jack Sain betrayed a curiosity beyond jealousy, but something that would eventually probe to the bottom of the mystery. And as the evening wore on Brazos began to grow suspicious of the others.

"Wal, folks," he said at an opportune moment, "I'm gonna say good night an' ride back to town."

"What's the sense in thet?" spoke up Neece quickly. "This is your home. An' Hank can fetch your pack tomorrow."

"Please don't go, Brazos," added June, suddenly anxious.

"Brazos Keene, you've got a job," piled on Janis, with a merry subtlety impossible to interpret. "This Neece outfit is getting obstreperous. You can't run it gallivanting to town."

"Wal, I reckon I cain't run it if I stay," replied Brazos.

"I was only fooling," said Janis hurriedly.

"Why must you go?" pouted June.

"Wal, since yu call my hand,"

Modes to Meet Fate in Easter Parade Today

By Bettina Bedwell.

It isn't the Easter parade as much as the after-parade effect. What women are wearing this morning, when they've put on their brave new clothes and stepped out in spring, no matter what the weather says on the subject, is the best kind of forecast of what's coming up in fashion.

I've been to all the rehearsals of the style parade, and I know the lines of the spring clothes, prepared by designers, backward and forward. This Easter parade is the première, as they say in the theater; the preview, as they say in the movies. It's the audience reaction that makes or breaks the tentative fashions. By snooping in clothes closets, in a manner of speaking, I've seen the ensembles that are laid out for action this Easter Sunday, and hits in the parade seem to be:

• • •

The streamlined coat with skirt fullness and collar reduction, and worn with separate furs. It's neatly fastened up the front, and in muted colors—navy blue, cadet blue, soft gray, sand, officer blue, or black. Clean cut, playing up slim and shapely body lines, the success coat has, here and there, braid embroidery in contrast color, and looks breathtakingly new and exciting. It calls attention to your spring hat in the most flattering way.

So does the Easter suit and the jacket ensemble. There are millions of these parading today over this land of ours. From my advance information I think those who slated the long torso jacket for a star rôle this morning are going to wake up with a headache. Women everywhere say that suits with this long jacket look "old."

That's enough said. Suits with a soft and casual look, and with longer, but not long, jackets seem to be the winning items. Or suits with Eton and bolero jackets. Worn with frosty white blouses, having a riot of filmy jabot or delicate handwork, they look simply swell. The hats with them may be big halos of straw, tiny skullcaps with flowers atop, dramatic, draped, floral turbans, small sailors sprouting white or spring colored flowers. These suits in muted colors, such as beige or gray, in dark blue or black, or toned down color combinations are the heart of spring. Gay accents—emerald, red, rose, blue—go along with the generally quiet color scheme and give them drama.

• • •

Jacket ensembles in divinely softened pastels have brief fitted jackets, and these wear soft trimmings such as lace dyed to match, or white lingerie that has a purpose, such as collar and cuffs. Crisp suits made of heavy silks, weather permitting, worn with the new spring furs, little wraplets, more likely than scarfs; brief fur capes shaped like fischus, with rabbit ear ends or tails fastening them on the bosom, or with stole ends are very new.

Coat dresses made of wool and trimmed with crisp taffeta or satin or wide braid that will remind old timers of 25 years ago, will be very swanky minority marchers in this parade. Navy coat dresses trimmed with black, sand beige frocks trimmed with black or navy, will show up in this section.

Silks worn in this Easter parade are the rustling breeds, such as faille, taffeta, surah, and tie silk. Printed, silent silk crêpes, coming in small, neat, and very fresh designs, step out in chic, worn with coats in one color wool.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[Tribune Studio Photo.]

Tired of the shrill, dramatic shades of makeup? If you are, you'll be greatly enamored of a new one, a soft, rosy, pinkish red that's restful, refreshing and flattering. It's designed to help you look pretty, and what more should you ask?

The fun of trying something new and different always is exciting to women, who seem instinctively resentful of the stodgy old habit of maintaining the status quo.

But we've noticed that, where makeup is concerned, the pendulum always swings back to normalcy. The dramatic, highly stylized makeups bob up from time to time, and they're much of a muchness for a bit, but it's always a relief to swing back to the normalcy of the makeup that helps one look pretty. Maybe not so dashing that you stop traffic, but just pretty and natural and your own nicely touched up self.

• • •

Just recently, after a spell of trying to keep up with a whole flock of mad red makeups, we found a new one that was positively restful, and surprisingly flattering. We'd sort of forgotten how flattering a soft, rosy makeup could be.

This one, in a tone called "skylark," isn't one of those garish, highly dramatic makeups. The lipstick is a pretty shade, in warm, soft tones of pinky-red, and there are cheek rouges to match. Blondes can wear it, medium brunettes can wear it, and the older woman whose hair is dusted with silver can wear it amazingly well. It's soft, you see.

• • •

Not uninteresting, however. Like a rose that you never tire of looking at, this lipstick shade has lovely, interesting nuances when you inspect it closely. It's warm enough to make the teeth look whiter, and bright enough to give the face a youthful lift.

The conservatives will adore it. And we must confess that at the moment we're so tired of drama in makeups that we're right over in the conservative camp!

Do Not Be a Spartan with an Ill Child

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If you have a sick little boy or girl to take care of, it's going to be pretty hard on the child if you're more or less obsessed by the idea that you must not spoil him.

Parents are talked at and scolded so much into a fear of spoiling their children when they're sick that very frequently, with the best intentions in the world, they withhold from an ill or convalescent youngster attention and tender ministrations that he really needs. It takes more than medicine to make one well.

A great many people, doctors and nurses among them, labor under the impression that if Billy calls and calls when his throat is terribly sore or his head is splitting, and his mother goes to him, when he gets well he is going to demand all these little responses. What they don't realize is that the kind of attention a child needs when he is sick and inactive and bored, he usually has no interest in when he is once again in a state of buoyant health. Then all his outside interests flock back, his thoughts turn away from himself, and his mental attitude becomes healthy again to parallel his physical state.

• • •

The exception to this might exist in the case of a very prolonged illness, one of many months, when a mother's pity and solicitude are drawn upon by seeing her child in pain, or perhaps physically handicapped by an accident or an operation. But the story of how to treat a permanently or chronically handicapped child so that he will function normally as a person, in relation to himself and to other people, is a different one and will be talked about at another time in this column. So let us go back:

The fact of the matter is that when a child is sick physically his personality is sick, too. Or if that doesn't exactly fit the situation, we might say that his personality is different. The mental and emotional state of the child who is weak, who is having a long bout of fever, or who is subject to periodic pain or acute discomfort, certainly is different from his mental and emotional state when he is well and active. An important part of the nursing and general care of a sick child of any age is a realization of this fact. It is important in his recovery. If you don't understand this and don't make allowances, you are likely to treat him in a way which is upsetting to him. Such an inner disturbance retards his recovery.

• • •

A friend of mine had an experience which illustrates this very well. Her little girl should have been convalescing rapidly from a very serious illness. The peak of it was passed but she showed no progress. The doctor was baffled, until by accident he discovered that the nurse [who was an excellent one from a technical standpoint] was enforcing her routine of nursing with as strict a discipline as if the child were well. That is, there was no light touch. No tact was used and no allowances made. No leniency was shown if the little girl happened to be in the midst of drawing a picture, reading a book, or dressing her doll when the moment had come for broth or medicine, bathing or nap. A new nurse was engaged and presto! a small girl romped to recovery.

And to give you an illustration of what I meant by saying that a change takes place in a child's personality when he is sick: A young boy in his middle teens was very ill. Ordinarily he was busy, very active, and of a nature which seldom reverted in thought or speech to the past. But for weeks during this illness he questioned and remembered and dwelt upon dozens of small happenings, of cozy sessions, of early sadnesses, and of happy times that occurred in his childhood. And then, one day to divert him, his mother began to tell him of her little girlhood he listened avidly and quizzed her wistfully. "Things used to be nicer then," he said. His homesickness for his childhood and his dependence and his low spirits tore her heart. She began to fear that this was going to be his permanent state. And then the return came. He recovered completely. His spirits rose again, his thoughts turned outward, and his chief concern was once more with the present and all its happy, busy hours.

• • •

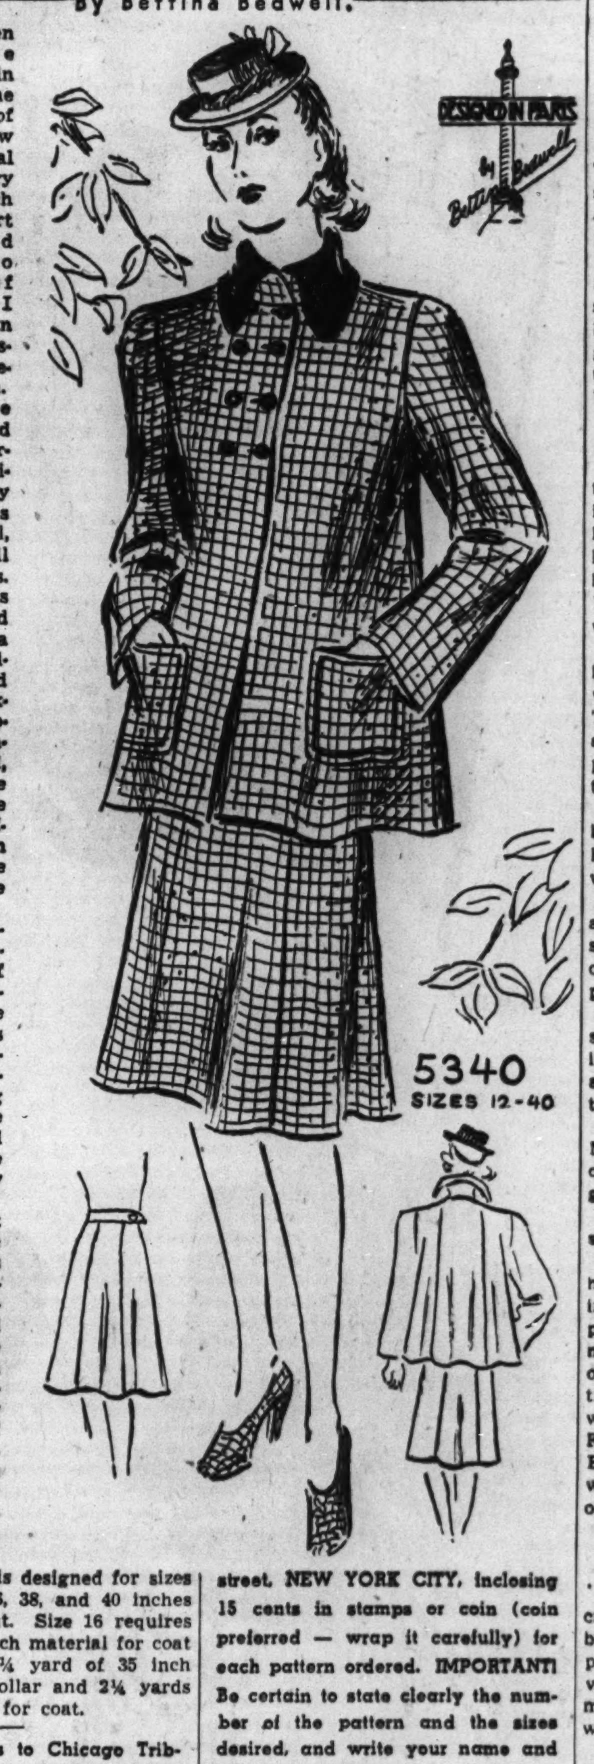
So don't be afraid that if you give your sick child more of yourself than you usually do, if you are more indulgent than you usually are, that he is going to be spoiled and that you will have to reëducate him back into his old ways and normal attitudes of mind, feeling, and behavior. This is rarely the case. It's different when he's sick. Then he needs you in a different way and requires different things from you. He's sure to recover in personality as well as body. So don't be Spartan when he's ill.

Besides, if you stay close to him in this kind of trouble it gives him a feeling of security about your love for him, just as if you stood by him in any other kind of trouble. Also, if after the long days of convalescence begin you are willing to put aside as much of your practical concern with your housekeeping as is possible, you and he may have long, intimate, hapyp hours together that will be remembered by both of you.

Our leaflet, "Things the Children Can Make," is helpful for convalescent days. Send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

French Suit Sponsors New Version of the Longer Line

By Bettina Bedwell.



Paris has been sponsoring the longer jacket in many forms, one of the latest of which we saw upon its arrival in this country recently. It's such a practical sort of outfit, and suitable for so many types of figure, that I thought it an ideal pattern possibility. It's presented herewith.

It's not the widely talked about longer torso, which is primarily a dressy suit idea. This model is casual, perfect for all daytime hours. The original is of small checked woolen with a harmonizing velveteen collar and two patch pockets of self fabric near the hemline of the full, flaring coat. The skirt is a simple gored model, sufficiently slim in line to enhance the swing of the jacket.

Button placement is one unusual feature of this costume. Notice that there are eight buttons employed in double breasted effect, beginning high at the throatline and ending at the lower extremity of the bustline.

All sorts of suit woolens will make up well in this spring-like costume with a definite imported stamp. If you like lots of color, you have an unparalleled opportunity in this outfit. If you prefer subdued shades as background for brilliant accessories, this suit is your "meat," too.

Style No. 5340 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 54 inch material for coat and skirt, with ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting for collar and 2¼ yards of 39 inch lining for coat.

Easter Baked Ham Deserves Many Encores

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Baked ham and milady's new bonnet both are Easter traditions. Taking it for granted that you've served the ham, and that it was well applauded by the family, what are your plans for its encore appearances?

In some ways the leftovers are even better than the original baked ham, so let's hope your Easter ham was a big one. Perhaps the following suggestions will help you to serve it attractively at later meals:

WHEN HAM MAKES AN ENCORE APPEARANCE.

FIRST ENCORE—HAM SLICES.

Not too thick slices, from one-half to one inch thick, are best for reheating since they require only a short heating period. The slices may be reheated by pan broiling lightly until browned on both sides, or they may be baked in one of the following ways.

1. Spread slice of leftover ham with brown sugar and sprinkle lightly with ground cinnamon and cloves. Top with canned fruit [pears, pineapple slices, apricot halves, sliced peaches] and enough juice from fruit to cover bottom of pan.

2. Spread ham with canned cranberry sauce or any tart jelly which has been thinned with a little hot water and beaten with a fork.

3. Rub a little honey into the meat and top with sweetened, spiced apple sauce, or a mixture of equal parts of cooked dried apricot pulp and crushed pineapple.

4. Top leftover ham slices with sliced, canned sweet potatoes. Add liquid from potatoes, mixed with half as much brown sugar, or add any tart fruit juice.

5. Cover ham with canned corn, Mexican style, or with cream style canned corn to which a little chopped green pepper has been added.

6. Use ham slices as topping for scalloped potatoes or scalloped corn.

7. Use extra thin slices of baked ham, about one-eighth to one-fourth inch thick, and cut into serving sized pieces. Spread lightly with prepared mustard and wrap each around three or four stalks of canned asparagus tips, or around banana half; or spread with canned baked beans and roll up. Fasten with wood pick before baking. Bake in shallow pan with enough water or fruit juice to cover bottom of pan.

• • •

SECOND ENCORE—DICED AND CHOPPED.

1. Diced ham may be reheated in a cream sauce and served on hot, split biscuits, in patty shells, or on baked potatoes. If you like, some other vegetable, such as carrots, peas, or mushrooms, also may be added to the white sauce.

2. Make a soufflé, using 1 cup thick white sauce and 3 eggs, separated [fold the whites in last], and 1 cup finely chopped ham. Bake in a 350 oven until firm.

3. Add finely chopped ham to regular plain muffin recipe. Bake in muffin tins for breakfast, or bake in a ring mold and serve with scrambled eggs.

4. Bake ground ham with macaroni or rice, using a white sauce to hold ingredients together and sprinkle with buttered crumbs.

THIRD ENCORE—GROUND.

Ground leftover ham makes excellent meat loaves. Use 1 egg, 1 cup bread crumbs or cornflakes, seasonings, and 1 cup milk for each 2 cups ground ham. Bake in moderate [350 degrees] oven for half an hour. For variation:

1. Add ½ cup drained, crushed pineapple, 1 teaspoon cloves, and ⅛ teaspoon allspice.

2. Add 1 cup chopped, drained apricots. Serve with hot sauce of thickened apricot pulp.

3. Arrange slices of canned pineapple in bottom of loaf pan before packing in meat mixture.

4. Combine thick white sauce with ground leftover ham for croquettes to be fried in deep, hot fat.

SALAD ENCORE.

Serve these on a bed of salad greens:

1. Combine diced leftover ham with celery, green pepper, a little chopped pickle and mayonnaise.

2. Combine diced ham with cooked macaroni, quartered tomatoes, chopped green pepper, and mayonnaise.

3. Combine diced ham with drained pineapple chunks, celery, and mayonnaise.

FINAL CURTAIN CALL.

Combine ground ham with chopped sweet pickle and mayonnaise to moisten, and keep it on hand in the refrigerator for lunches and late snacks.

No. 3246 is another princess model with buttoned bodice effect and contrasting collar, cuffs and skirt motifs. A rather large bow is tied in the back. There are matching panties provided for by the pattern, too.

The toy pattern, No. 1000, available for ten cents extra, fashions a stuffed "bunny" measuring 14 inches in height [without the long ears] and a chicken ten inches tall.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

[Have you some household help that lightens labor? Is there some comfort you could enjoy? Are there ways you've discovered to make the domestic wheels run more smoothly? Address Household Forum, Chicago Tribune. We'd like your ideas!]

James Barnes, Chicago: Why won't they design and market, as standard equipment for all electric razors, a neat little rotary tooth brush for real tooth-brushing efficiency?

* *

Marjorie Dean, St. Paul, Minn.: Here's how I greased "our domestic wheels" at the very start of my married life: I insisted my mother-in-law give me a notebook filled with her "dear son's" favorite recipes. And I never once had to hear that familiar refrain "This isn't the way mother makes it." It would be a big help if every bride did likewise!

* *

Mrs. Elizabeth Briggs, Chicago: Last Christmas I invested in a three panel screen and painted it a light tan. Then we took our choicest greeting cards, and those we'd been saving for several years, and covered the screen with them, arranging them so that the colors matched nicely. We keep this in our den and it's one of our happiest possessions. We're saving our cards now for a similar screen for the basement game room.

* *

Jessie Taylor, Springfield, Ill.: I keep an old insectide spray gun on our tool shelf. My husband is quite a "handy man" and when he takes to patching small spots on our walls with patching plaster, I fill this spray gun with water and it's a help in wetting the lath. Works better than a sponge or brush.

* *

Mrs. Gertrude Jones, Chicago: I keep on hand finely powdered pumice stone. Whenever I discover rust stains on any tile or porcelain, I mix a little vinegar with the fine pumice and find the combination will remove the stains.

* *

Mrs. B. Parker, Cairo, Ill.: When threading a machine needle, hold a piece of white paper beneath the needle and see how quickly the thread goes thru. And to unscrew those tight jar lids, keep a piece of sandpaper handy in the kitchen cabinet.

* *

Elsie May, Detroit, Mich.: I never have been able to understand why they won't manufacture towel racks with ridges on their surfaces so the towels won't be forever slipping off.

* *

Elinor Day, Grand Rapids, Mich.: If this has ever been put on the market I'd like to know of it—butter, in cans, which has been nicely creamed, to save time for busy housewives. Why won't they put such a product in circulation?

* *

Mrs. Roy W. Wallace, Lafayette, Ind.: I always use paper toweling when cooking fried foods to remove extra grease. I put paper on top of the hot oven and lift French fries or fritters of any kind to paper a short time before serving.

* *

Mrs. H. C. Becker, Goshen, Ind.: When discarding an old garment with buttons, I clip buttons and tie together those of a similar kind, with a strong thread. This saves a lot of time when it comes to selecting buttons for a new garment.

* *

Frances Fitch, Niles, Mich.: You can make lovely trays from picture frames. Take those with a rather wide moulding. Lacquer the frame red and put a Japanese print under the glass and you've a handsome tray. And glue a piece of felt to the bottom to give it a finish.

YOUR idea—now—please!

Unpredictable Spring Makes Furs Welcome

By Rea Seeger.

Unpredictable spring temperatures bring out the fur fashions for that sort of weather. Flattering and warm enough to keep the chill away, short pockets and fur pieces are welcomed with enthusiasm by appreciative shoppers. Pale shades of beige and gray divide the sales records for popularity with the stunning, dark, contrast colors of sable-dyed fitch, marten, and squirrel. Snappy short boleros and the slightly longer chubbies are prize winning offerings. Bracelet length sleeves mark such models as real spring items, ready for wear with suits and ensembles or with dinner and evening gowns.

• • •

Necklines still are neat, high, and round. The collars, when they do appear, are narrow, small, and snug. Tuxedo panels that form pockets at the extreme lower portion are the newest fashion notes to check. And sleek, shiny, monkey skin boleros and jackets are going out with breathtaking speed. Deep, luxurious toned, sable dyed pelts make the swankiest of jackets. These are the models that double for daytime and evening wear with smooth flattery for every color, including the dark street shades in wool and silk, as well as the crackling new taffeta and clinging crêpe dinner and dance dresses with the wide, full skirts.

Prices are unexpectedly modest for such flattery in fur, the very smart, short boleros especially attractive in price mark as well as fur fashion. White fox dyed in lovely blue fox color, deep ivory beige, and the platinum grays make beautiful contrasts for spring costumes. Handsome jackets fashioned of silver fox, cross fox, and the tawny glory of red fox are more costly, but worth every penny, for nothing can compare with the flattery of such fluffy furs, whether in scarf arrangements or in these brief boleros and jackets. Silky caraculs and kidskins in cocoa beige, silver gray, and black also boast moderate price marks and the 1940 spring streamlines, the flare in the backline, narrow collars, and the simple shoulderlines.

• • •

New this year . . . Pelerines, glorified versions of the practical fur pieces that Granny wore. They are copies of the same models, deep or shallow shoulder capes of fur that extend in long panels to the hem of the coat or dress. Some end just below the hipline, and others are intricately designed so that the ends may be doubled back to form a muff for the hands.

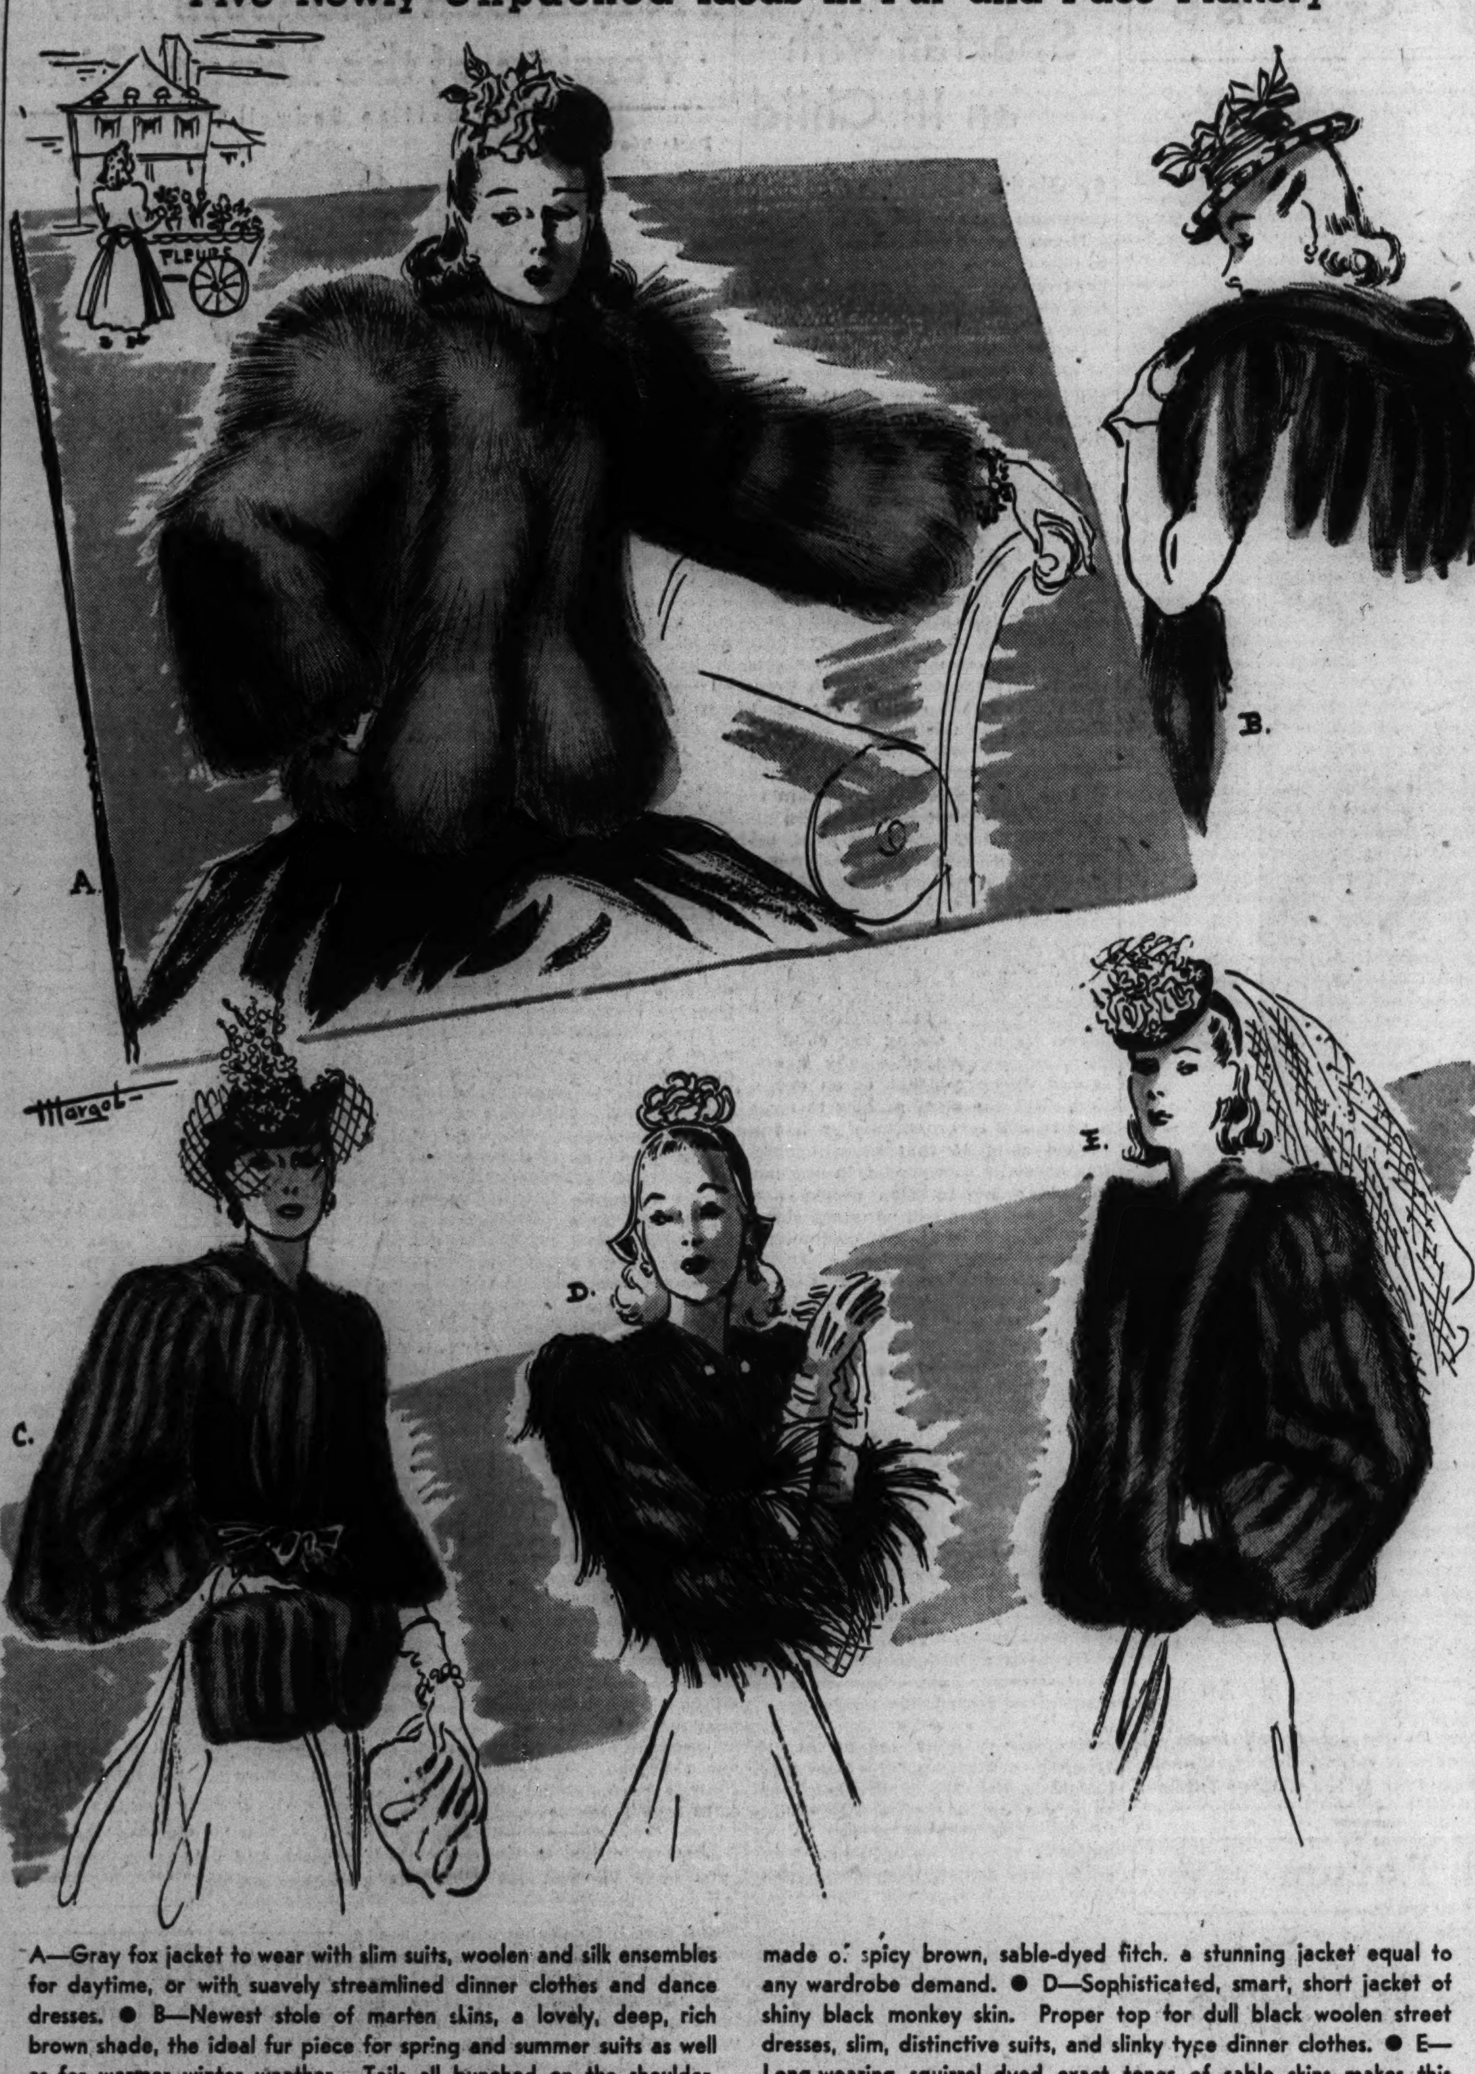
Fluffy fox pelts and the shorter furs both are used for these warm, high fashion pelerines.

Interesting four, six, and eight skin scarfs are different this spring because of the clever way in which they are assembled. Six skins are so cleverly fastened together that the "dated" way of head-to-tail in long lines seldom is seen. Most of the new get-togethers feature the fluffy tails bunched together at the left shoulder, or at the back so that the furs may be arranged not only to flatter but to repell wind and weather.

• • •

Double skins in cross fox, red fox, and blue fox are running neck-to-neck for fashion with the frosty beauty of silver fox. Short figures are better with the single skin scarf, or the smaller but not any less effective flat furs, such as sable, marten, and so on. Capes also are featured for spring wardrobes, from the neat little affairs that merely cover the shoulders, to the hip-length and waist-deep models, and every fur, caracul, sealskin, beaver, squirrel, all the sable-dyed skins, as well as the fluffy furs, are used for these capes. Fur capes are most obliging dramatics. They're as handsome with suits as they are with simple, one-piece dresses and with daytime clothes as with evening costumes.

Five Newly Unpacked Ideas in Fur and Face Flattery



A—Gray fox jacket to wear with slim suits, woolen and silk ensembles for daytime, or with suavely streamlined dinner clothes and dance dresses. ● B—Newest stole of marten skins, a lovely, deep, rich brown shade, the ideal fur piece for spring and summer suits as well as for warmer winter weather. Tails all bunched on the shoulder. ● C—Pair of satin-lined pockets is part of this tuxedo front jacket made of spicy brown, sable-dyed fitch, a stunning jacket equal to any wardrobe demand. ● D—Sophisticated, smart, short jacket of shiny black monkey skin. Proper top for dull black woolen street dresses, slim, distinctive suits, and slinky type dinner clothes. ● E—Long-wearing squirrel dyed exact tones of sable skins makes this spring beauty cut with oblong tuxedo panels with hand pockets.

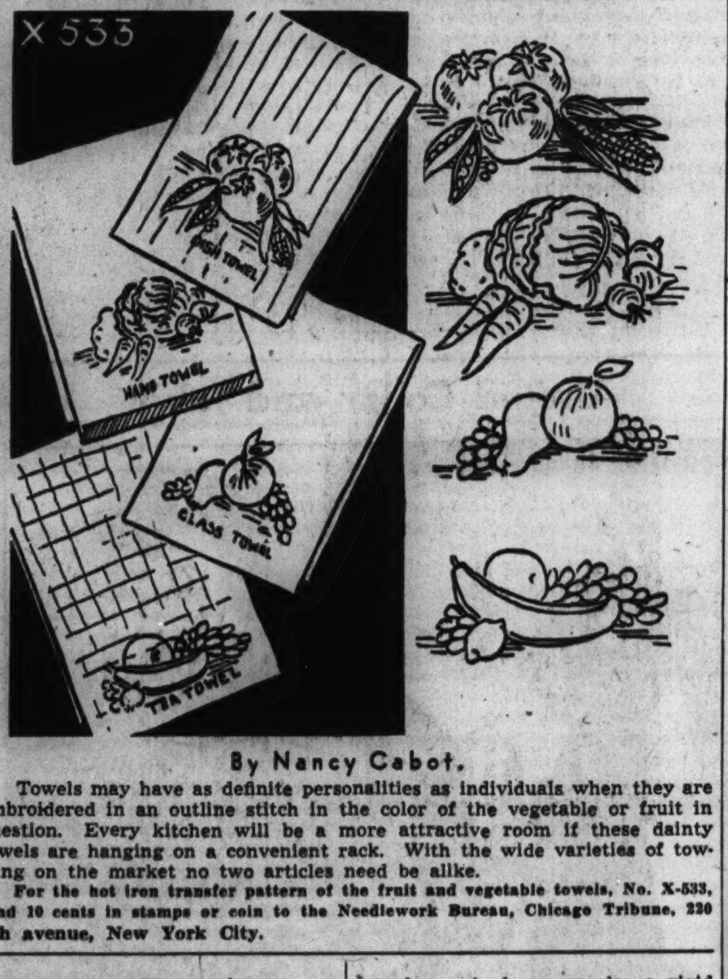
Towels with Personalities



By Nancy Cabot.

Towels may have as definite personalities as individuals when they are embroidered in an outline stitch in the color of the vegetable or fruit in question. Every kitchen will be a more attractive room if these dainty towels are hanging on a convenient rack. With the wide varieties of toweling on the market no two articles need be alike.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the fruit and vegetable towels, No. X-533, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Lingerie Touches Keep Fresh with Soap and Water

Those dainty, white lingerie touches on smartly dressed women always are a sign that spring is well on the way. Collars, bibs, and vestees of piqué, lawn, and handkerchief linen, some of them exquisitely embroidered or lace trimmed, are a marvelous tonic for dresses, provided, of course, that their whiteness is unquestionable.

This means having several lingerie sets for each dress, or else a rigid schedule of washing the "one and only" each time it is worn. That's so easy, however, it can be done at night while letting the water run into the bath.

Squeeze the collar in rich plentiful soapsuds, rinse several times, and roll in a clean bath towel. By the time you have had your bath it will be ready to be pressed.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Without the preliminary publicity which usually precedes each new stamp issue, the postmaster general has announced a 3 cent purple stamp to commemorate the 80th anniversary of the inauguration of the pony express service which linked the east with the west for a short period before the beginning of the civil war.

This pony express stamp will be placed on first day sale on April 3 at St. Joseph, Mo., and at Sacramento, Cal. These cities were the termini of the original pony express service.

Collectors desiring first day postmarks on covers bearing this new stamp may send not to exceed 10 addressed envelopes to the postmaster at each of the cities named above, each to be accompanied by a cash or postal money order remittance to cover the exact cost of stamps to be affixed. Mark each envelope with a pencil notation in the upper right hand corner stating how many stamps are to be affixed.

Mail the addressed covers and remittance in an envelope addressed to the postmaster at the proper city. Indorse this envelope in the lower left corner, "For first day cover service, Pony Express stamp."

◆

The scientists' group of the Famous Americans series of stamps will be introduced to collectors and the general public on April 8, when the two lowest values will be placed on sale. The 1 cent green stamp will honor John James Audubon and will be placed on sale at St. Francisville, La., while the 2 cent red stamp which honors Dr. Crawford W. Long will have its initial sale at Jefferson, Ga.

Collectors desiring these stamps on covers showing the distinctive first day postmarks used for this series should follow the instructions outlined above for the Pony Express commemorative stamp, and mail their prepared envelopes and remittances to the postmasters at St. Francisville, La., and Jefferson, Ga. These transmitting envelopes should be prominently marked, "For first day service, Famous Americans series."

It again becomes necessary to caution collectors that postage at first class rates—i. e., 3c per ounce—is necessary on all first day covers, otherwise the dated postmark, which proves the date of issue, cannot be applied. Therefore it is necessary to order three 1 cent stamps or two 2 cent stamps for all covers except those addressed to persons within the first day city, in which case only 2 cents postage is required.

Walt Whitman.

The 5 cent blue stamp, fourth value in the poets' group of the Famous Americans series, honors Walt Whitman and was placed on sale on Feb. 20, 1940, at Camden, N. J.

The design measures 85-100 and 98-100 inch and is uniform in detail with other values of this group. The curved plates for the rotary presses contain 280 stamp subjects arranged in four panes of 70 each. Plates bearing numbers 22511, 22512, and 22513 were prepared in December, 1939, and the initial printing of 20 million stamps was commenced on Jan. 11, 1940, using plates having the first two mentioned numbers. Plates are designated as electric-eye, convertible type, which permits the perforating of the sheets of stamps on any of the photo-electric controled perforators.

The portrait of Whitman used for this stamp was adapted from a photograph supplied by the public library at Washington, D. C. A caption on the photograph reads, "Walt Whitman in 1871." The designer of this stamp was William A. Roach, the engravers, Mathew D. Fenton for the portrait, Charles A. Brooks, the frame, and William B. Wells, the lettering. All are employés of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Whitman was born at West Hills, Huntington, Long Island, N. Y., on May 31, 1819. His formal education began in the public schools of Brooklyn, but after 1830 his teacher was experience and his alma mater, newspaper offices from New York to New Orleans. His talents led him from the position of office boy to editor and he touched every rung in this ladder. His first poetry was published in his own paper at Huntington, perhaps about 1840. In 1855 Whitman published a book of poetry, "Leaves of Grass," which has since been enlarged and republished many times. This was largely criticized and attacks were directed at the author for his lack of sense, taste, and the rudiments of moral decency. After the approval of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Whitman published the first enlargement of the volume in 1856. One of his notable poems is the elegy on Lincoln, "When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloomed," which originally appeared in "Drum-Taps," a volume of war poems published in 1865, and later incorporated in "Leaves of Grass."

Whitman was employed in the department of the interior after the civil war and later in the attorney general's office. Illness and partial paralysis in 1873 necessitated his retirement to his brother's home in Camden, N. J., and here after a lingering invalidism of almost 20 years, he died on March 26, 1892.

"The Cancelations of Waterbury [Conn.], 1865-1890" is the title of the third postal markings handbook to be brought out by Mannel Hahn and William R. Stewart, editor and publisher of Postal Markings magazine. This book of 32 pages is made up largely of illustrations with incidental text, but there is a foreword outlining what is known of the famous postmaster of Waterbury who whittled up a new cancelation on the slightest provocation. One illustration in particular calls attention to the value of odd cancelations. This shows a cover with three 1 cent stamps of 1869, each canceled with a running chicken. One owner refused $1,500 for this cover only a few years ago. Without the chickens the cover would be hard to sell at more than $10 or $15.

"The Cancelations of Waterbury" may be obtained from stamp dealers or from W. R. Stewart, publisher, 9 South Clinton street, Chicago.

The first public sale of the 10 cent Jane Addams stamp will be made at the little contract postal station No. 10 in Hull House. A special cachet and cover has been designed for use with the Jane Addams stamp, and those who wish this souvenir together with a brief history of Jane Addams and Hull House and wish to assist in the settlement work started by this notable woman should send 25 cents to Hull House, 800 South Halsted street.

NEAR NORTH SIDE

Cheer up—the sun's gonna shine some more! And when it does it's good for you to get out in it and walk to your office instead of spending so much time commuting. You can do that down here and do so many things you like to do and still get a good night's sleep. It's a little unusual to have a living room 2 stories high or one 37 feet long. We try to have things unusual but delightful and we like that sort of a tenant too—the kind that likes fireplaces and such things. A few furnished and some marvelous layouts for combining your home and business.

We Confirm the Rumor!
Our Business Is Ahead!

Residential building in 1940 is expected to exceed 1939 by approximately 15%, but our sales for the first quarter of 1940 are more than 60% ahead of last year.

Satisfied Customers' recommendations to their friends accounts to a large degree for this splendid increase; making good our claim that it is possible to build a house to order without the "extras" that everybody fears.

If you build on the principle that your customer is entitled to "the best" as well as "the most" that an efficient organization can give him; sooner or later most everybody comes to realize that "here's where you always get your money's worth"—as much as your dollar can buy—and sometimes a whole lot more.

Builders, Mortgage Bankers, and Homebuyers are talking about our activity in the South Lincolnwood Section, where more than 40 new houses have been started since last June.

Why not drive out today, and see what your rent money will buy. Just drive West on Simpson-st. [Rte. 58] to North Ridgeway-av. Turn left. Our representative will show you the plans of the houses we have under construction.

Tackett Houses

No better evidence of the value of houses "Built by Tackett" can be offered than our sales record.

We have sold more houses in the first quarter of 1940 than in any similar period in our history.

And we have more houses under construction now, both for owners and for early offering, than we have ever had at one time.

Good design, sound construction, and excellent value, are the prime reasons.

Drive out to SCARSDALE any day, and see our houses in all stages of construction. Look behind the plaster and see why Tackett houses sell.

Directions: Drive out Northwest highway, Route 14, to Arlington Heights. Turn left at first stoplight entering town; 6 blocks to Scarsdale.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BOB BECKER

Lose Warm Overcoats.

March 23, 1940.

TWENTY-SIX ewes on the Du Page county farm have reason to complain about the weather man. These yearling sheep were sheared early in the week on a day that was bright and warm. Within 48 hours it was snowing and the temperature had dropped. Two days later the second snow of the week made the ewes wish they again had their fleecy overcoats.

When we visited the farm recently while the snow was whistling around the buildings the shorn ewes were huddled in one corner of the big sheep barn and it was obvious that they could use a covering of warm wool.

Lambs Don't Mind Snow.

The fat lambs in the sheep barn don't seem to mind the snow nearly as much as the ewes. They stay indoors all day and can't take part in their regular play sessions in the straw covered yard next to the sheep barn. We noticed one lamb was getting its quota of sunshine vitamins by lying down on a bale of straw beneath a south window of the big barn.

In one corner of the sheep barn the men have built a wooden creep of upright slats. The creep is built so that the lambs can pass thru the slats and get to the small feed trough inside where the ewes can't bother them. But now the lambs are getting so fat that some of them are having a hard time squeezing thru the creep. The flockmaster said recently that he'll soon have to reconstruct the creep or build a new one with wider doorways.

Water System Valuable.

The waterway system which was developed on the farm last fall already is proving its value. The men dug canals between all three of the farm ponds so that the overflow from the largest pond would run into the middle pond. When that pond filled the overflow would be turned into the smallest pond. This spring all three ponds are at the level which the men want to maintain, and barring extremely dry weather there probably will be plenty of water in the ponds all summer.

The ponds always attract migrating waterfowl every autumn, and usually some ducks drop down on the water during the spring months. The other day one lone mallard paddled around the shore. This was a migrating bird because it stayed a long distance from the flock of mallards that lives on the pond the year round. The next day five more mallards dropped down to join the single bird. Several flocks of geese have been seen over the farm during the last week, but none of these long distance flyers have stopped for a visit.

WE RENDER PERSONAL SERVICE.
In our office you are not just another case, another file, another number. We respect and treat you as a client, entitled to dependable and honorable help and advice in your mortgage problem.

We are large enough to put at your service our experienced organization—ours and our correspondents' vast funds. Yet we are small enough to devote all the time and personal attention of our officers—not mere clerks—to solve your problem. We grant top loans on homes up to 30 years old, 2 to 4 apartments, large apartments, store and factory buildings. Also place FHA loans up to 90% of the value. We advance funds to settle back taxes, liens, to redeem property, and to close estates.

If even our top loan won't do, we will negotiate with the mortgagee or bondholders' committee to cut down overly large debts to present day levels. Interest, 4% and up.

We wish we could tell you all the fine things we know about our '38 La Salle Touring Sedans here.

About how our Cadillac Craftsmen make such good looking cars of them that they appear like new, and peformance that beggars description; or about the dependability of their motors and what a comfortable, relaxing ride they give both for city and country travel.

But space won't permit.

So won't you visit our nearest Neighborly Store and see for yourself all the things that make us so enthusiastic about a '38 La Salle for only $695.

WHEN DAN DIED, MRS. DOYLE GOT THE FULL $1000 - AND ON A "LAPSED" POLICY!
THE VALUE OF "EXTENDED INSURANCE" EXPLAINED BY PRUDENTIAL AGENT, JOHN P. BISSEN Los Angeles, Calif
I AM SO GLAD TO HEAR MRS. DOYLE GOT THAT MONEY! POOR DEAR—SHE NEEDS IT SO BADLY! BUT DIDN'T YOU SAY IT WAS A "LAPSED" POLICY?
YES. HER HUSBAND HAD TAKEN IT OUT SIX YEARS AGO, BUT HADN'T BEEN ABLE TO PAY A PREMIUM IN OVER TWO YEARS...
AND MRS. DOYLE HAD FORGOTTEN ABOUT IT UNTIL AFTER DAN DIED. THEN HER PRUDENTIAL AGENT CHECKED UP ON THIS OLD POLICY AND PAID HER THE $1000 IN FULL
BUT IF IT HAD LAPSED, I STILL DON'T SEE...
WELL, WHEN A PRUDENTIAL POLICY LAPSES, ANY VALUE IN THE POLICY IS USED TO EXTEND THE LIFE INSURANCE PROTECTION. THIS IS "EXTENDED INSURANCE" BUT IT RUNS FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY!
AND MR. DOYLE DIED BEFORE THE EXTENDED INSURANCE RAN OUT? IS THAT IT?
THAT'S IT EXACTLY. SO THE PRUDENTIAL PAID THE POLICY IN FULL
NOW I SEE THE VALUE OF EXTENDED INSURANCE. AND I'M GLAD WE HAVE IT IN OUR PRUDENTIAL POLICIES

THE PRUDENTIAL MAILBAG

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank The Prudential and its representative for the payment of the insurance on my wife. Though no premiums had been paid for 6 years, due to the extended insurance benefit, I received full payment on her policies."

Sincerely yours, Mr. G. C. T.,
Detroit, Mich.

Way Back When Pogo Sticks were the rage, the great Battle Creek cereal manufacturer, W. K. Kellogg, created a special breakfast food to help America keep "regular." It was named KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. In the years since, scores of research scientists have proven its effectiveness, thousands of physicians have recommended it, millions of Americans have used it.

Now One Million a Day! Twenty years after its discovery, an average of one million Americans a day eat crisp, crunchy KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. If you, too, suffer from the common kind of constipation (due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet) ALL-BRAN can help you join the "regulars." Eat it every day and drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

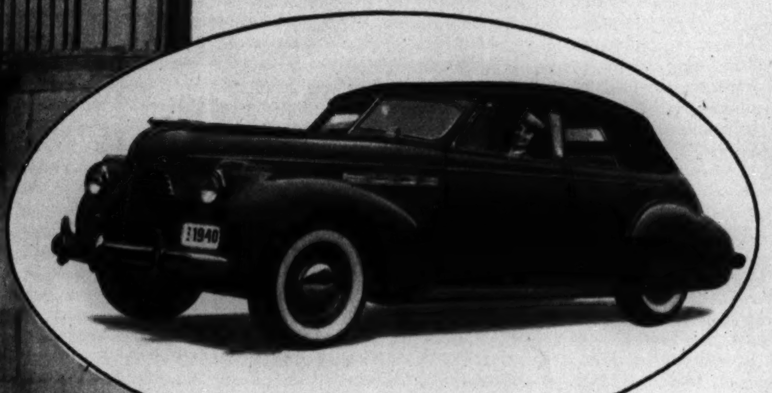
THE pictures, we think, tell the whole story except this:

Your nearest Buick dealer can now provide any of these four brand-new models.

Maybe you better see them—for these are not only the slickest-looking convertibles you ever saw (with new Press-A-Button Tops on the coupes!) but they have ride and handling qualities completely new to this body type.

Prices are mighty easy to take. When can you drop in on your dealer—today?



YES, IT'S EVEN LOWER—this six-passenger Roadmaster Convertible Phaeton is approximately two inches lower than sedan models. All seats have Foamtex cushions, soft as the clouds overhead—and you've got three top colors and nine body colors to choose from. Underseat heater, defroster, fresh-air intake, wheel shields and white sidewall tires standard.

HERE'S THE SUPER PHAETON, with restful room for six. Try this honey to see how coil springs all around improve on the usual convertible ride, how the low-swung weight grooves you to the road. White sidewall tires, underseat heater, defroster and fresh-air intake are standard equipment. Wheel shields are extra on Super models.

HERE'S THE BUICK ROADMASTER Convertible Coupe, with front seat next thing to five feet wide, full-width rear seat and a top of full-weight fabric that comes up when you press a button. Hundred and forty-one horsepower engine that's literally smoother than a watch, and four coil springs that never need lubricating! White sidewall tires and wheel shields standard equipment.

THE BUICK SUPER CONVERTIBLE COUPE, with 121-inch wheelbase and 107-hp. micropoise-balanced straight-eight engine, also has the Press-A-Button Top with full-weight fabric and safety slat irons. Mrs. A. S., New York, N.Y.

ARE HARSH LAXATIVES REALLY DANGEROUS?

Posed by Elaine Shepard

"Moving 200,000 trains in and out of this 80-acre maze means HEADACHES" says TRAINMASTER HERMAN OFFERMAN

CHIEF OF UNDERGROUND YARDS, GRAND CENTRAL TERMINAL, NEW YORK CITY

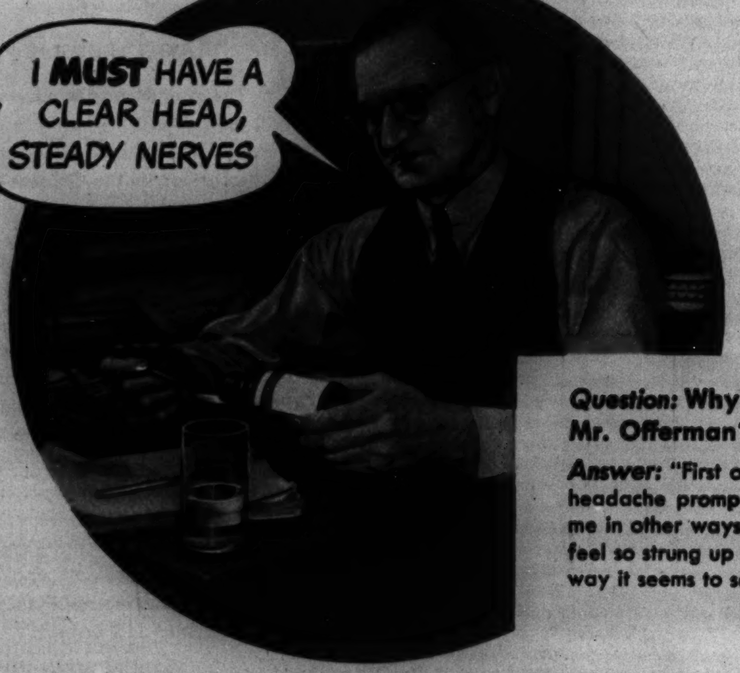
Millions Depend on Him!

200,000 trains, 38,000,000 passengers a year, go through Grand Central! Herman Offerman (above, in control tower where electric charts spot each train) directs traffic . . . guards passengers' safety.

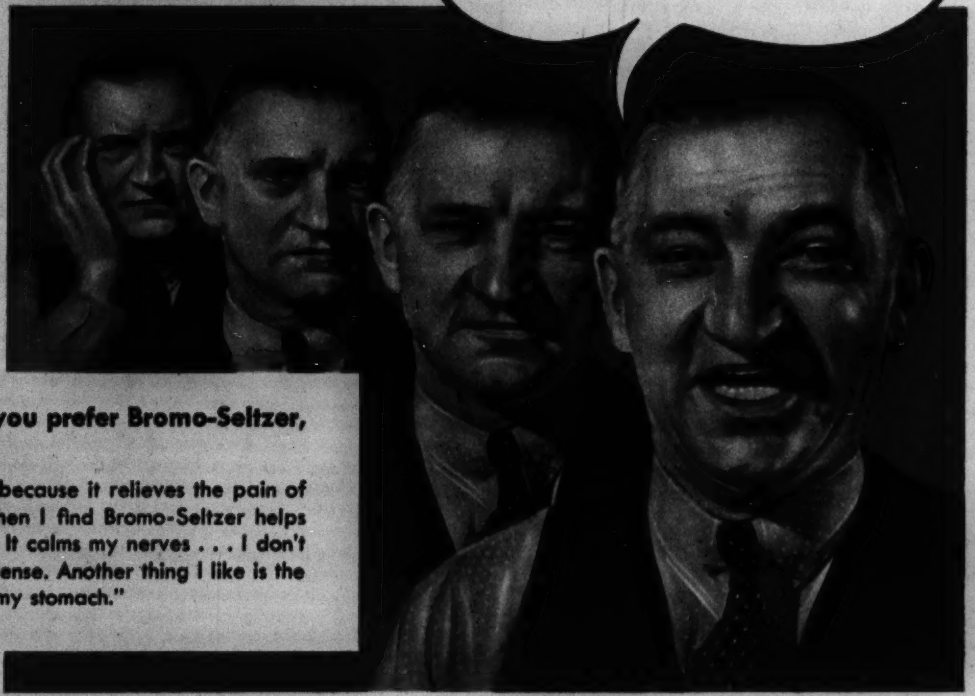
Tense Moments!

"My job is a nervous strain," says Offerman. "A storm shuts off power—we work like fury, rerouting trains! Christmas—holidays—are other tense times. For headache," he adds, "I take Bromo-Seltzer."

SO I ALWAYS TAKE BROMO-SELTZER. IT BRINGS ME MORE ALL-ROUND RELIEF THAN ANYTHING I'VE TRIED



I MUST HAVE A CLEAR HEAD, STEADY NERVES



Question: Why do you prefer Bromo-Seltzer, Mr. Offerman?

Answer: "First of all because it relieves the pain of headache promptly. Then I find Bromo-Seltzer helps me in other ways, too. It calms my nerves . . . I don't feel so strung up and tense. Another thing I like is the way it seems to settle my stomach."

Why BROMO-SELTZER does more for you than a simple pain reliever can

HEADACHES come when something is upsetting your system. If you get headaches all the time—if they hang on—consult your doctor. But for simple headaches—and these are the kinds most folks get—Bromo-Seltzer gives you more all-round relief than simple pain relievers can.

Here's why: Ordinary headaches may be:

NERVOUS—caused by overwork, fatigue, worry, nerve strain, etc.

DIGESTIVE or MORNING-AFTER—caused by digestive disturbances, such as a bit too much to eat or drink.

For these, you want prompt relief from the pain. You also should have help for your nerves and for upset stomach, too. Bromo-Seltzer gives you this extra help. It does these important things for you:

1. RELIEVES PAIN—starts to work promptly to ease the dull throbbing or the sharp "ache."
2. STEADIES NERVES—relaxes the tension, calms your nerves, leaves you feeling keener.
3. SETTLES UPSET STOMACH—relieves the "sick" feeling, helps set you right again.

For over 50 years, millions of people have relied on Bromo-Seltzer to relieve their simple headaches.

Next time you have a headache, be sure you get this more all-round relief! Take Bromo-Seltzer according to directions on the label. You can buy it at any drugstore or soda fountain. Always keep it handy at home, too!

The Pinch of Fashion Thru the Years!

By MARCIA WINN

WOMAN never has been content with her figure. Or, if she thought she was, fashion, an iron ring at her nose, told her she should be ashamed of herself. Always the iron ring has compelled her to compress, depress, or express some salient feature or two. Sometimes it was her hair, sometimes her hips, sometimes her waist, sometimes her bosom.

This compulsion often went far afield from nature. In the 17th century sheets of lead were worn over the breasts of young Spanish girls to retard their development. (Continued on page eight.)

RAYNER, DALHEIM & CO.
MUSIC PRINTERS
CHICAGO

IF THE PLAYER PIANO in a Marion, Ala., movie house faltered in its music-box rendition of "Hearts and Flowers" just at the moment the old homestead was saved, it was attributable to the physical deficiencies of a pair of 8-year-old legs—not to an inherent lack of musical verve in the person of the young piano pumper. For he was a boy named Kemp, and today his musical talents have placed him in the top flight of band maestros.

Those piano-pumping days were back several decades, and didn't last long, for Hal Kemp became engrossed in more creative musical efforts. By the time he got to the University of North Carolina he already was an orchestra leader. The musical instinct that blossomed early in life had been nurtured into a fine talent, and a personality that included a lazy drawl and an infectious grin had marked Hal as a leader.

Here is another verse of "In the Gloaming"

In the gloaming, O, my darling, think not bitterly of me,
Tho I pass'd away in silence, left you lonely, set you free;
For my heart was crushed with longing, what had been could never be;
It was best to leave you thus, dear, best for you and best for me.

So it was that the extra activity became a business. On the school roster Hal was listed as an engineering student. But his favorite professor was smart enough to sense his pupil's real talent, and urged Hal to switch to a general course, which would not restrict his evenings so severely as did the stiff technical studies. The switch was made, and soon the "Carolina Club" orchestra was a campus favorite.

One of the earliest breaks that came Hal's way was winning a vaudeville-sponsored college band contest—first prize being a European tour. The break that pushed the Kemp orchestra up in the dizzy region of name bands, however, was an engagement at Chicago's Blackhawk restaurant—famous as a maker of band careers. Kemp got national attention on the air there—via the famous "Midnight Flyers" program, broadcast over W-G-N and a nation-wide hookup.

From there on it was all big time for Hal. Long engagements in the larger hotels over the country, radio commercials, and movie contracts kept and are still keeping the band busy.

There are 6 feet 3 inches of Kemp from the ground up, and including the grin, the drawl, the blond hair, and the blue-gray eyes it all weighs about 165 pounds. That lean body houses a musician with his heart set on a symphonic career—some time. Not now, while he's tops in the popular field, but some time.

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

Nan Grey, a "Smart Girl" Who Got a Good Break

Hollywood.

ON A RECENT afternoon the Universal officials summoned Nan Grey into the executive offices to sign her to a new and fatter contract. And when she signed her actual name, Eschol Miller, to the document spread before her, the screen's Nan Grey started a new chapter in the most unusual two-week vacation that any girl ever embarked upon.

It was in 1934 that Eschol Miller arrived in Hollywood from Houston, Tex., with her mother for a two-week vacation. Screen tested at the insistence of the family friend they were visiting, and given a new and shorter name for cinema usage, Miss Grey's two-week vacation has stretched out into six years of steady and remunerative employment. Better than that, it resulted in her marriage to nationally famous Jockey Jack Westrope.

Determining factor in the Texas youngster's screen career, of course, was "Three Smart Girls." I think that that picture embodies the entire story of Hollywood, if you were to break down the picture into its integrals, and Nan assuredly was one of the integrals.

In the first place, "Three Smart Girls," when it went into production in September, 1936, was freighted with so many desperate hopes and ambitions that it is a wonder the picture didn't collapse from overloading. First and foremost was the desperate ambition of the man who produced it, Joe Pasternak, then an unknown in Hollywood. Second to his hopes were those of the director he had brought from Budapest, Henry Koster, then unknown. To them the picture was the last straw tossed to drowning men. Not much of a straw at that, because the studio gave them little to work with either in material or money.

For material Pasternak had Deanna Durbin, who had been released by M-G-M after making two indifferent shorts. He had Nan Grey, who had played minor parts in a few pictures. He had unknown Barbara Read. On this youthful trio Pasternak, operating with a scanty production bank roll, expected to achieve a minor epic. With Hungarian audacity, instead of being discouraged by such a production setup Pasternak plunged into it with as much fervor as tho his studio had assigned Joan Crawford, Myrna Loy, and Claudette Colbert to the top rôles.

They had been shooting the picture for perhaps three weeks when the bankers, summoned to investigate the faltering Laemmle empire, arrived at the Universal studio from the east. The bankers wanted to be shown in general; specifically they wanted to be shown film so that they could see to what use their dough was being put. They couldn't have selected a more embarrassing moment. There was no new film available, because the studio was just "between pictures." In considerable mental turmoil, the studio big shots demanded that Pasternak exhibit the reels he had assembled.

Absolutely crushed by such a demand, Pasternak pleaded that inasmuch as he had been shooting the picture every way from the middle, to save money, the film wouldn't make sense. They told him, the studio bosses, that it didn't matter to them how he assembled it; the idea was to show the bankers something, anything.

That is how Nan Grey became famous. The first scene the bankers saw was one in which blonde and beauteous Miss Grey enchanted them. By the time she had walked off the screen the bankers were allowing as how the company was worthy of a substantial loan. When Miss Durbin marched onto the screen, and then Barbara Read, the bankers were absolutely beaming. "That is what we need," said the banking oracles, "new blood." They might have added that Pasternak, in a cold sweat in the rear of the projection room, could have used a blood transfusion as his career hovered in the balance.

"Three Smart Girls," which started so inauspiciously, proved to be a lucky token for every one connected with it. Nan Grey has just signed a new and fatter contract; Deanna Durbin went on to stardom; Joe Pasternak and Henry Koster have achieved staggering success. Binnie Barnes, Ray Milland, Mischa Auer, Charles Winninger, and the late Alice Brady all employed this flicker as a springboard to greater things, as did Ernest Cossart, Lucille Watson, and Hobart Cavanaugh.

Nan Grey, sitting in the Universal offices on that recent afternoon, signing a new contract, can be pardoned if she thought back to the day in 1936 when "Three Smart Girls" was starting, because a lot of water has passed under the bridge for her since Pasternak began the picture that was to make movie history for all concerned.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: This is the first time that I have written to your column, and I think I am justified in doing so at this time. I have had the privilege of seeing a most magnificent performance presented by Ray Bolger. It was by far the best comedy act I have ever witnessed, and the way in which Mr. Bolger presented it to his audience was just what we fans like to see from the stars we are fond of. He was so cordial and friendly toward his audience and seemed so thoroly glad to be in Chicago that I am sure he made many more fans while he was here; at least I am sure of one more fan he can count on—myself. I sincerely hope Hollywood will offer Ray Bolger bigger and better rôles in films in which he can exercise some of his brilliant talent for comedy.

Thanking you many times for taking time for my letter,

A true Ray Bolger fan,

MISS L. E. ISSEL.

Editor's note: I can just see the Bolger countenance light up when he sees this letter!

Dear Miss Tinée: I would like to know if you could write and tell me how to get in contact with the studios in Hollywood to get a lovely big picture of Betty Jaynes and Douglas MacPhail. I would also like to have this picture in color. Sincerely yours,

BETTY FRIES.

Editor's note: I couldn't answer as to the size and loveliness of a picture you'd receive, but you can write Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Cal., make your desire known, inclosing 25 cents for each picture, and see what happens.

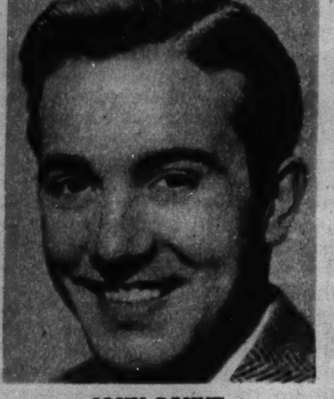
Dear Miss Tinée: Having just witnessed "Indianapolis Speedway," I wish to compliment the performance of that young actor, John Payne. Besides his fine acting ability, he possesses grace, charm, and a very handsome countenance. I might also mention that I was disappointed with the contribution of Ann Sheridan. Both her acting and beauty seemed somehow slightly stale and melancholy. (I know she does better, because I have seen her do so.) Nor do I mean to overlook the notable work of Pat O'Brien, Gale Page, and Frank McHugh, but I wish to stress the purpose of this letter, the immediate promotion and development of John Payne.

With no more demonstration than his performance in "Indianapolis Speedway," I am now a loyal John Payne fan, and I say bigger and better parts for him (and Ann Sheridan also, altho I believe the oomph girl has these things well assured her).

Of both your Sunday and daily columns I am and remain an ardent reader.

MARION McCAULLIE JR.

Editor's note: A fine, encouraging letter. We thank you, the players and I!



JOHN PAYNE

Open Letter to Ginger Jones: I read your letter criticizing another fan, Willemina Phillips, for saying she thought "Captain Fury" was awful. In my opinion I heartily concur, and I am neither mentally perverted, puerile, nor a professional crank. Watching Aherne skipping around in what I suppose he considered the best Errol Flynn style absolutely griped me, and if it hadn't been for Victor McLaglen and the promise of a good stage show I would have walked out. Perhaps it happens your tastes run to overgrown cowboy pictures like "Captain Fury," but Willemina Phillips' don't, and, what's more, neither do mine.

Nuts to "Captain Fury," nuts to Brian Aherne, and also, Miss Jones, nuts to you. Yours heatedly, GLORIA M. SLADE.

P. S.—While we're handing out birds, nuts to Hal Roach for having the audacity to think an intelligent public would swallow a "super-stinky" like "Captain Fury."

Editor's note: Whew!

My dear Miss Tinée: I was away from Chicago during the time "The Challenge" was shown here. Can you tell me whom to communicate with to find out whether it can be seen here again?

Awaiting your reply and thanking you for any information you can give me, I remain truly yours,

LOUIS R. ABEGG.

Editor's note: If you will contact Capitol Film Exchange, 1250 South Wabash avenue (Calumet 2900), it is possible they will tell you if "The Challenge" will be shown again in Chicago.

My dear Miss Tinée: I read with much interest your very interesting review of "Gone with the Wind." However, I do not agree with your statement that we will not rest until we see the film. You say it has everything—especially color! Okeh. I'll take your word for it. I still have a headache from reading this tiresome book, reading it to the bitter, nauseating end. Not an elevating nor a pleasant task, but inasmuch as I am engaged in literary work, it is necessary that I keep informed as to what is being written, published, and discussed. Reading this particular book was a most unpleasant experience.

The book "G. w. t. W." is a libel on both the north and the south. It reeks with venom for the north, but, on the other hand, surely the picture of southern womanhood as depicted by Scarlett O'Hara is not a pleasant picture. And the southern gentleman, Rhett Butler, is likewise an outrageous, dissolute, reprehensible character.

I'll take Mickey Mouse and Mickey Rooney for my motion picture fare and leave the present ballyhooed so-called epic of the screen, "G. w. t. W.," to those who like color and noise with their cinema, and whether the story libels or lauds doesn't in the least matter. So be it. Very sincerely,

KATHRYN J. WHALEN.

YOU'LL BE THRILLED BY BEAUTY WONDERS OF NEW TOOTH CLEANSER

Sensational liquid dentifrice uses newly-discovered, patented dental cleansing agent that acts in amazing new way

Proper dental care can make a lot of difference in the beauty and "clean feel" of your teeth. See for yourself!

Contains no abrasives of any kind. Cannot scratch tooth enamel.

AN AMAZINGLY different kind of dentifrice for brushing teeth has recently been perfected, so startling in its beautifying cleansing action that people by the tens of thousands have already laid aside tooth pastes and powders in favor of it.

Teel is the name of this astounding dentifrice, which was developed by Procter & Gamble after four years' research. It's not paste—not powder—but a remarkable liquid entirely revolutionary in action. This is why:

Revolutionary in Action

Teel contains no pumice, no grit—no abrasives of any kind. It cannot scratch tooth enamel. And being wholly non-abrasive, Teel is wonderfully "smooth" for gum massage.

Teel's beautifying action results from a newly-found, patented dental cleansing agent. Not soap—it multiplies over 30 times in mouth. So sensational is its cleansing action, our surveys show Teel is proving a thrilling revelation in the way it helps remove dingy film which collects daily on teeth. In all but certain exceptional cases, it helps teeth appear whiter, brighter, more beautiful.

Refreshes Mouth—
Helps Sweeten Breath

Teel's new taste sensation gloriously refreshes your mouth—helps sweeten your breath. It takes the place of a mouth wash in these two important respects. You'll also find Teel surprisingly easy and economical to use. Only a few drops are required for each brushing. And, because Teel is a slightly thickened liquid, these drops will not roll off the toothbrush. There's no mess; no waste.

Get Teel today from drug, department or 10¢ stores. Brush your teeth thoroughly with it morning and night. See if you don't get a thrill such as you have never enjoyed from any other dentifrice. And don't forget to visit your dentist regularly for checkup, and his professional advice. With this proper care, see how much more beautiful your teeth look.

Stratoliner Has Four Motors

INDIVIDUAL SEATS FOR SHORT-TRIP PASSENGERS

Stratoliner Specifications

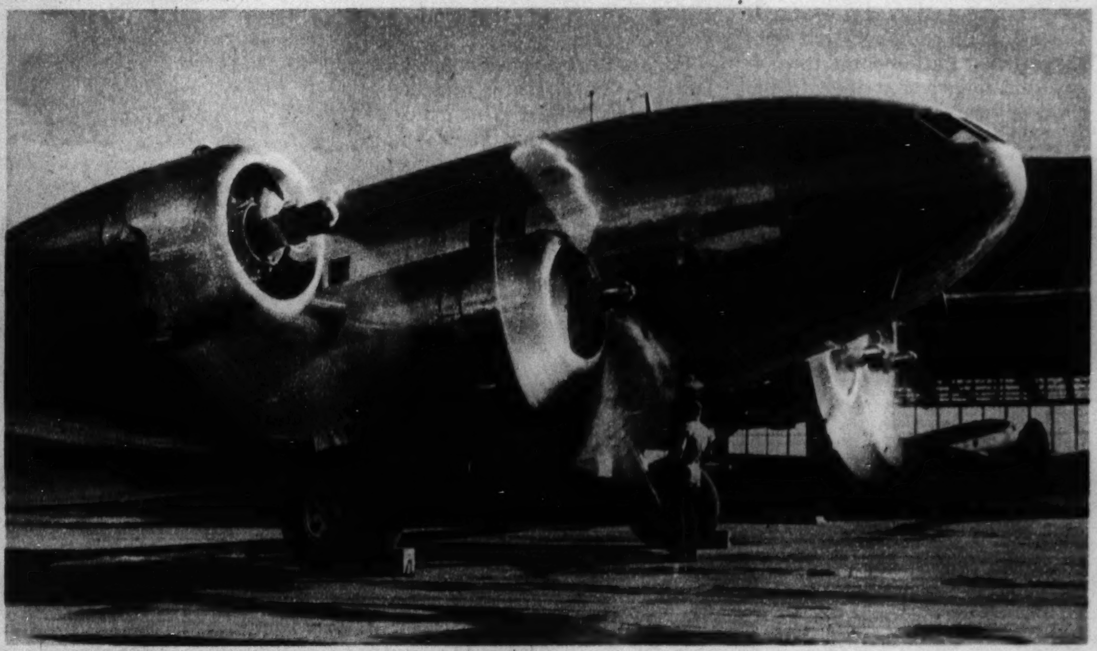
PASSENGER CAPACITY—For daytime service, 33 persons; for night service, 25 persons, of whom 16 can be accommodated in berths.

FUEL CAPACITY—Normal, 1,275 gallons, range 1,100 miles; maximum, 1,700 gallons, range 1,600 miles.

LANDING GEAR—Strongest ever fitted to plane of this weight. Capable of absorbing energy of a 700-feet-per-minute descent without rebound. Wheel and tire of main gear will weigh 405 pounds.

SEATS—Each 25½ inches wide; aisle 18 inches wide.

BERTHS—30 inches wide, 80 inches long. Three-foot clearance between lower and upper; four-foot clearance between upper and roof.



Below: Forward portion of Stratoliner, showing arrangement of four motors.

A SEVEN-YEAR-OLD design that has been three years in conversion from a long-range bomber to a satisfactory type of luxury air liner will go into service within the next two months as the newest and finest passenger plane on the airways in the United States. This ship—an excellent airplane despite its age and the delays attendant upon its delivery—is the Boeing Aircraft company's Stratoliner type that now is being delivered to Transcontinental and Western Air.

Within a few weeks after this article is read TWA will have five of these big four-engined, 45,000-pound air liners available for service. Possession of these ships probably will put TWA at the top of the highly competitive air line heap in the United States for the next 18 months. The opportunity is present—barring ill luck—for TWA to repeat the successes achieved by the company with the first DC-2s, that ushered in the present era of sleek all-metal air liners capable of earning their own way with passenger cargoes.

In anticipation of the advantages that four-motored equipment automatically will give them over the rest of the country's big operators, who still will be flying twin-engined Douglas DC-3s, TWA's officials are preparing to claim many firsts for their airplane. Among others they assert that the Stratoliners are the first four-engined planes to come into regular service on the airways. Actually, however, the late Anthony Fokker built and sold to several air lines a four-engined air liner (there were two sets of motors placed in tandem) back in 1929. Only a few of the four-motored Fokkers were built, however, because they were too large for the passenger traffic of that day—in fact, they carried 22 passengers.

Another first which is a real record is that the Stratoliner is introducing to the air line traveling public the benefits of high-altitude flying. The entire cabin of this airplane is supercharged, so that internal pressures will be about 2⅛ pounds greater than outside pressures at all heights above 10,000 feet. This will enable pilots to fly the plane at 20,000 feet, but passengers will experience no discomfort or need for "sipping" oxygen, because the density in the cabin will be approximately that of 8,000 feet.

• • •

Exhaustive tests by Boeing company engineers and skeptics in the Civil Aeronautics authority have shown that this supercharging is not a difficult matter. A special auxiliary motor operates a blower which is automatically placed in operation. It is said to be foolproof and simple, with manual controls thru which the crew of the airplane can override the automatic controls should the pressure valves in the system somehow become clogged or fail to function properly.

The plane also will be the first to carry a large crew comparable to the crews that all ocean-flying airplanes, and especially Pan American Airways, have been using for years. TWA will have a captain in command of each of the Stratoliners. Under him directly will be a first officer, and a flight engineer, whose duties will be chiefly those of mothering and pampering the four 1,220-horsepower Wright Cyclone motors that will supply the power. Also in the crew will be two stewardesses to care for passenger wants.

These crews probably will be changed once in every transcontinental trip. And the entire crossing east to west is expected to be made in about 14 hours—some three and a half hours faster than regular service on the DC-3s of the major air lines. TWA is expected to advertise 40-hour service via air from Los Angeles to London—tying in with Pan American Airways on the trans-Atlantic routes.

But the first use of the Stratoliners is expected to be over the lucrative Chicago-New York airway, where American and United are getting the cream today. The Stratoliners with their 200-mile-an-hour cruising speeds—roughly 35 miles an hour faster than the present DC-3s are cruised in still air—probably will reduce the running time from its present 3 hours 59 minutes for all the non-stop trips to about 3 hours 15 minutes.

Specifically the Stratoliners will have a wingspread of 107 feet—about two feet more than the army's Boeing B-17B flying fortress bombers, which were the original development of the Stratoliner design. They will have a length of 74 feet and will be 17 feet high. The perfectly round cabin—so shaped for maximum strength to withstand the internal pressures of supercharging—will be 11 feet in diameter in the portion where passengers will be accommodated.

The airplane will have many refinements that are possible only in a machine of this size and weight. For instance, it will have air brakes instead of the hydraulic brakes now used. All power for the electric system, radio, hydraulic systems, heat, cabin supercharging, etc., will be taken from the auxiliary motor. This will amount to about 50 horsepower, which otherwise would be taken from the main power plants.

Radio equipment on the airplane will set a new standard for any machine in regular service. The prototype DC-4—later sold to Japan when most of the air lines refused to buy—had equal if not finer radio, but the Stratoliners will be the best equipped commercial planes until the spring of 1942, about the earliest that the so-called production DC-4s now ordered by United, Eastern, and American Airlines can get into service.

• • •

In order to provide power for high-altitude flying the Cyclone engines—similar to those already being used by TWA in DC-3 equipment—will have two stages of supercharging. This is a development that hitherto has been considered necessary only for military planes. The first stage will give the engines sea-level power up to about 5,000 feet. The second stage will increase the blower ratios and make it possible for the engines to deliver sea-level power up to 16,000 feet. At optimum height—around 21,000 feet—the motors are supposed to give the ship a maximum speed of 240 miles an hour.

There can be no question that the Stratoliners will launch a new era in air transportation. The presence of four-motored equipment on the airways will force the other air lines to fly similar planes. And the development now anticipated is that two-engined planes will gradually pass out of the picture entirely, just as the single-motored passenger air liner has disappered. It is now expected that even the smaller feeder types and local-stop planes will soon be four-engined.

The reason, of course, is the additional safety offered by such planes. Loss of one engine today cuts the available power of an air liner in half. Loss of one engine in a four-motored airplane reduces power by only 25 per cent. And this difference, despite the theories of those who believe that additional gadgets mean additional opportunities for mechanical failures, is enough to outweigh the probable additional expense in original cost and in operation.

Interior of compartment. The new ships will have upper and lower berths for night flights.

Inevitable Potatoes Get a Glamor Role

By MARY MEADE

POTATOES are served oftener in the average home than any other food except bread. And sometimes cooks run out of ideas for preparing them. It is easy to get into a rut of serving mashed, boiled, baked, scalloped, and fried potatoes in rotation. The potato dishes pictured today were prepared with more imagination.

The casserole bordered by fluffy mashed "spuds" contains a leftover roast lamb combination. Since there's a "crust" of mashed potatoes in the bottom of the casserole, too, we can call this concoction a lamb and potato pie.

LAMB AND POTATO PIE
(Serves four or more)
2 pounds potatoes (Idaho russets)
3 cups cold cooked lamb
1 medium sweet Spanish onion
1 cup leftover gravy
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon curry powder

Seasonings for mashed potatoes: ⅓ cup hot milk, 2 tablespoons butter, salt, pepper, 1 egg. Pare potatoes and place in pan with ⅓ cup water. Cover. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat to very low and cook until potatoes are tender. Pour off any excess water and allow potatoes to dry before mashing. Mash thoroly, then add hot milk, butter, salt, pepper, and egg, and beat until light. Grind meat and onion together and add gravy, salt, and curry powder. Mix well. Heat the meat mixture. Line a buttered casserole with fluffy mashed potatoes (don't pack them) and fill with meat mixture. Pile remaining potatoes on top of casserole. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, until potatoes have browned.

• • •

The half-shell baked potato was topped with crumbs and baked to golden brown—but there were special seasonings spread beneath those crumbs first. Here's how 'twas done:

HALF-SHELL POTATOES WITH CRUMBS

For six servings, scrub three large baking potatoes and parboil for 20 to 30 minutes, or until nearly cooked thru. Split the potatoes lengthwise. Spread each half with prepared mustard, ⅛ teaspoon grated onion, and sprinkle with salt and Worcestershire sauce. Top with buttered bread crumbs and bake at 450 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes—until potatoes are completely cooked and crumbs are golden brown. The French artichoke and baked fish with lemon accompanying the crumb-topped potato are unusually good flavor blends.

At left: Mustard and onion were a part of the seasonings used under the browned crumb topping for this appetizing potato dish.

Below: An egg was beaten into these potatoes to help make them fluffy. There's a leftover meat combination beneath them.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Persons learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the forty-second of the series.

SON of a Revolutionary veteran, Tristam Burges (1770-1853) of Rhode Island held a seat in congress from 1825 until 1835 and during that decade won renown as one of the nation's most eloquent orators. In 1832 a resolution was introduced into the house to remove the remains of Washintgon from Mount Vernon to a vault beneath the center of the capitol. (This proposal was defeated and supplanted by the project to erect the Washington monument, which was authorized by congress in 1848.) On the resolution Representative Burges delivered an address from which the following paragraphs are taken:

"Sir, what man is there who does not shudder with horror when he is told that not many years ago a felonious gardener of the late proprietor of Mount Vernon conceived the sacrilegious project of plundering the family cemetery of those sacred remains, and of transporting to Europe the bones of Washington, and there offering them for sale as relics to the disciples or the fanatics of freedom in the old world?

"Procuring a false or purloining the true key, he entered the tomb; but in the darkness of night, and under the excitement of horror natural to the deed, he bore away those of another by mistake and left the hallowed bones of him whose country would now with filial piety place those sacred remains perfectly secured in a national mausoleum, under the eye and in the safe keeping of all future generations.

"We are told that the last will and testament of Washington points out the place and directs the manner of his interment, and if we remove his bones from their present repository we shall violate that will and set at defiance principles dear to all civilized nations.

"Did indeed, then, this great man by his will prohibit this people from doing honor to his remains by placing them in a mausoleum more suitable to his illustrious life and to the gratitude of Americans? He, like all Christian men, directed by his last will that his body should have Christian burial, and prescribed the manner and selected the place for that purpose.

"How shall we expound that will? It has been expounded for us; and that, too, by one who was the partner of his perils and triumphs, his labors and councils. One who shared with him all life could give—and stood by him in the hour of dissolution.

"Think you that she would have violated his will, and that, too, in the beginning of her bereavement, in the first dark hours of her earthly desolation? 'Taught by his great example,' she gave up those remains at the call of her country. For to her, as in life to him, the nation was their family; the whole people were their children.

"What man can believe that this distinguished woman, alike beloved and honored by a whole people, would have given her consent to the removal, requested by the whole congress in 1799, if she had believed that such removal would have violated his last will and been a sacrilege committed against the sanctuary of the tomb? . . .

"When that immortal soul, now, as we trust, in beatitude, inhabited and animated his mortal part, where was the place, what was the service to which the voice of his country called him, and he was not there? In the toils of war, in the councils of peace, he was, soul and body, devoted to that people whom he labored thru life to build up into one great nation.

"Should that body, think you, sir, at this time be less at the service of his country than when alive with the imperishable soul it was Washington and walked the world for human welfare? If his whole life doth tell us that he placed himself at the call of his country, then truly where should all that remains of him be finally found but where the same voice would place them?

"We would not raise over him 'a pyramid, a monument, like the eternal mountains.' No, sir, the folly of ancient ambition has perished from the earth, while these its monuments still stand unmoved upon its surface.

"This house, we trust, will endure as long as this nation endures. Let this be the mausoleum of Washington."

There are several things of interest in this speech which should be pointed out. It is a rebuttal to a resolution and as such relies on strong argument. In orthodox fashion the material to be refuted is first set out and then arguments are presented in refutation. In the first instance, argument by the example of the danger that had arisen and might again arise is used, and secondly the matter of the will is placed in the larger setting of the love and devotion George and Martha Washington had for their country. The subject matter of this speech commands our attention even now, because it deals with the universal subject of death and hits strongly at our feelings of patriotism. The language Mr. Burges uses lacks the simplicity of the greatest oratory, partly because of the legal phraseology and partly because some of the phrasing is "rhetorical"—a fault common among speechmakers of his time and ours.—Comment by Stanley T. Donner of the school of speech, Northwestern university.

SEE HOW EASY TO MAKE THESE TASTY CORN AN' EGG CROQUETTES SAYS AUNT JENNY
FRIED CRISPY AND GOLDEN IN PURER SPRY

Crisper, tastier fried foods the Spry way and so digestible

—no unpleasant smell or smoke in frying

"AN' DO you know why? Because Spry's purer," says Aunt Jenny. "Notice its gleamin' whiteness. Spry looks purer an' it is! Stays fresh longer, too, an' creams so easily. Only Spry gives all these three extra advantages. An' will they make a difference in the way things taste? Just get Spry an' see—that's all I ask!

"See what tender, flaky, delicate-tastin' pastry you get—what wonderful cakes an' at a nice little savin' compared to usin' expensive cake shortenin'. Change to Spry today for all bakin' an' fryin'."

CORN AN' EGG CROQUETTES

3 tablespoons Spry
3 tablespoons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 cup milk
3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 cup cooked corn
1 teaspoon parsley, chopped
½ cup sifted bread crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten with
1 tablespoon water

Melt Spry in top of double boiler. Add flour, salt, pepper and paprika, and blend. Add milk and cook until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Remove from fire. (Use Spry for all white sauces. Spry is so pure and bland it lets the flavor of your other ingredients come through fine.)

Add eggs, corn and parsley. Spread mixture in shallow pan and chill until stiff. Cut into rounds with biscuit cutter. Roll in crumbs, then in beaten egg, then in crumbs.

Fry in hot Spry (375°F.) 1-inch deep in heavy frying pan until brown. (No unpleasant smell or smoke when you fry with purer ALL-vegetable Spry. And foods are crisp, tender, so digestible.) Drain on absorbent paper. Serves 4 to 6.

The Pinch of Fashion

In the 18th century powdered headdresses a foot high were worn, and "opened," as the colloquialism went, once every two months, with savage results. In the 19th century steel backboards were worn to stiffen the posture, and steel and wire cages were worn to billow the skirts. In the memory of many living women fiendish steel stays were worn to constrict the waist.

"Three nights a week I ate no supper," Mrs. Minna M. Schmidt, noted Chicago costumer, recalled of that last bit of fashionable torture. "Three nights a week I slept in my corset. But I achieved a 22 waist and a 36 bust."

Why? It was the fashion.

Only once since the 12th century has woman experienced freedom and gone uncorseted. This was in the comparatively brief period beginning in 1912 and now, so the iron ring says, coming to an end.

Originally the corset was worn only by those of noble birth, men and women alike. It was born out of class consciousness and was worn to hold the noble head high and erect in contrast to the bowed head and stooped shoulders of his vassals.

Fashion has spun like a pinwheel thru the centuries—hoops went in and bosoms came out; cheeks were vermilion and bold, and cheeks were dead white and concealed behind fans of fire screen magnitude; women wore carrots in their hair and rings on their toes and jet at their ears; women donned bustles and looked like giraffes, and women doffed their chemises to look like Greek statues—but always, beneath it all, was a corset.

• • •

Until 1912. Woman's parting with her corset then was no sorrowful thing. It was joyous and a symbol of her new freedom—such as having her baby in a hospital instead of at home, learning to ride a bicycle, wearing a riding habit with divided skirt, and riding astride her horse. She was so happy in it that she tied a turkish towel around her body to conceal her constricted waistline. She looked like a pillowcase and bragged of it.

Yet now, after a quarter of a century, she is about to don a corset again. Or so she is told. This is fashion—if she accepts it.

She always has.

Marie Antoinette encased her girth in a hoop skirt and stuck a waving ostrich plume in her powdered wig. Soon only a forest of feathers, some a foot and a half high, could have been seen when the ladies of her court swayed down the gallery at Versailles. Some cost hundreds of dollars. Duchesses had to kneel in their carriages—or have the carriage tops removed—to make way for the feathers. But they did. Noblesse oblige.

The duchess of Bradford once donned a white silk boudoir cap two feet long that flew back from her head like an unfurled parachute. Soon all women, even those of the American colonies, were wearing what they tenderly called, for reasons unrevealed to history, the "bashful bonnet." It was known more formally as a calash because it resembled the lowered top of a light carriage known as a calèche.

An old-fashioned corset on a modern girl.

Charlotte Corday, the assassin of Marat during the Reign of Terror, wore a green hat. For the next half century green was proscribed in France. When the fear finally wore off the world celebrated with what was known as a green year.

Whatever had been popular among the insouciant and the profligate of the French court was shunned in horror in ensuing years. Duchesses had painted their cheeks purple, so the new citoyennes of the republic—altho they at first carried fans cunningly embroidered with the fleur-de-lis or danced with red ribbons around their necks in macabre mockery of the guillotine they had escaped—plied their cheeks with ordinary white house paint.

Marie Antoinette had worn hoops and high heels, so the citoyennes wore as little as possible. They dressed, they said, à la sauvage. Arcadia was in; everything else was out, including the chemise, which had its first holiday—a brief one, lasting seven days—in 2,000 years.

Madame Tallien spent the equivalent of five dollars on a simple muslin gown and appeared at a ball with rings on her toes and only a rivière of diamonds around her bosom. Madame Hamelin appeared as an undraped statue. Silk, wool, and starch, all fabrics which failed to outline the contours of the body, were abandoned.

Many wore diamond-studded bands on their thighs and legs, easily perceptible thru the transparent veilings. Others wore diamonds on their bare toes. This was simplicity. To attain it the good Parisienne needed 365 headdresses—hair came in blue, yellow, and reddish blonde—600 dresses, and 12 chemises.

They did away with pockets, and thus the reticule, to be carried in the hand, was introduced. Some, not wishing to be hampered even by this, introduced a page to carry it.

To complete the Psyche look, the cothurn (or buskin), fastening in the middle of the leg with tassels, replaced slippers. Coppé, a shoemaker, achieved a place in history for this bit of innocence.

• • •

One day, the legend goes, he was summoned by a patron who complained that her new cothurns had disintegrated at the first wearing. He examined them gravely, tapped his head, and said: "Ah, parbleu! Of course, I know the reason. I would bet 50 louis madame has been walking in them."

This was fashion's most frenetic period, but by no means its ugliest. This happy distinction was reserved for the 1830s, which deserted semi-classicism for the leg-of mutton sleeve, the mob cap, the coal scuttle bonnet, flounces, and stiff materials—moiré and poplin—so rigid they would almost stand alone.

At hat of this period was described as "of pink gauze ornamented with detached sprigs of purple iris and ears of green corn and long lappets of gauze doubled in bias and tied together near the bust." Pink ostrich feathers went with it if desired.

Europe had an almost rational visitor at this time. She came in trousers, gathered at the ankles and topped by a brief skirt. She preached the creed of corsetless comfort and unimpeded locomotion, but the only tangible outcome of the harried visit of Mrs. Amelia Jenks Bloomer, publisher of that stirring American magazine, the Lily, was her inclusion in Madame Tussaud's waxworks and the use of her name for decades to come as an integral part of ladies' underdress.

She did manage to get one word of approval. This was from the august British Medical Times, which not only praised her dislike of corsetry but was so brash as to add: "The idea of females having trousers may be scouted as ridiculous, but as nine out of ten do happen to wear them, the fact of their being an inch or two longer can make no difference."

The second empire gave the world something other than Empress Eugénie hats. It gave it an iron and steel boom, for in 1854 women wore 9,240,000 pounds of steel springs, the amount required to support that style which for sheer ugliness has never been equaled—the crinoline.

Only one great beauty of the period, the Comtesse de Castiglione, dared to scorn it. She appeared in clinging draperies, cut daringly low. But the woman of fashion wore 15 yards of material, 36 inches wide, flounced over a steel cage of hoops and springs. She wore it for more than ten years.

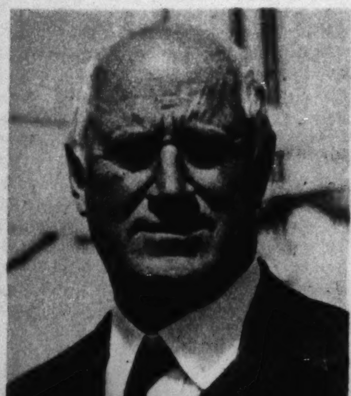
This was not all. She wore high laced boots with triangular toes, usually adorned with big black bows. She carried a circular pocket handkerchief. She wore aquarium earrings, long globes of crystal filled with water in which fish swam.

She wore heels inside as well as outside of her boots to attain a fashionable height. She put gold powder in her hair to emulate the natural gold of Empress Eugénie's locks. She veered forward from the waist like a sailing sloop in a high wind to have what was called the Grecian bend, an extraordinary posture which lingered for decades.

George Du Maurier, single-handed, may be considered the destroyer of the crinoline. He began to draw wishful pictures in Punch of a woman with no frippery in her attire, wearing a small black vest with a skirt fastened at the waist to reveal a fine form.

His descriptive phrase, "fair as a goddess and divinely tall," swept thru the world of fashion, and by 1865 the crinoline was out and the natural grace of the human form was being welcomed.

Strange things came. Jet. Huge fortunes were made from this glorified coal. Green—1875 was the green year. Kid gloves, 18-button length. Steel corsets. False hair—226,380 pounds of it was sold in France alone in 1873. The union suit. And, 30 years after the invention of the sewing machine in 1841, the printed dress pattern.



Charles Dana Gibson . . . his Gibson girls helped free the waistline.

The paper dress pattern cannot be overlooked or its influence decried. It was the work of Ebenezer Butterick and his wife, Ellen. They started with a pattern for a child's Garibaldi suit. Soon every child was wearing one They quickly extended their field to all manner of garments, and in the year 1871 more than 60,000,000 patterns were sold. Thus fashion grew more deadly but less expensive.

If you have forgotten the polonaise it's just as well. It was high fashion in 1879, the height of elegance. In it two skirts formed one garment, the under one plaited and tight above the knees, the top one looped back with ribbon. It was followed by the green pannier and bustle (or "dress improver," as it was strangely known), which threw the bust forward and thrust the posterior out, giving women the enviable look of (1) giraffes and (2) ostriches.

The bustle was gone by 1893, and now it was the waist's moment for mutilation. It was corseted and laced into microscopic extinction. The approved name was wasp, and the skirt beneath it flared out into a bell—known as a serpentine or morning glory skirt. The figure was that of the hourglass.

It lingered far beyond the hours that health might have allotted it, but another artist, Charles Dana Gibson, caused its death with his willowy, graceful figure known as the Gibson girl. Skirts began to flow and the waist to relax.

Athletics put in a few good strokes. Women wore divided skirts for bicycling. As early as 1902 a few daring females sat astride their horses in divided skirts. They were no less daring than those women who under the "Chantecler" influence wore imitation stuffed roosters, full size and natural color, as hats.

But a great change was taking place. The waist was slipping. It became barely defined and low. The year 1908 brought the sheath gown, giving woman the look (it was generally prayed) of a lily swaying in the field. Tunic dresses came in, Grecian effects, the hobble dress with narrow skirt (22-inch hem) and high waist—a bill was introduced in the Virginia legislature to abolish it. The bill died on the floor.

Then, quietly and more or less naturally, the corset was gone. A new freedom was in. Silhouettes changed swiftly, but they all had the same general bag-of-meal look with the single exception of the peg top silhouette of 1914, which was narrow at the foot and full at the hips.

The World war brought suits and dresses tied in at the waist with a belt. Women wore high button or lace boots, and everybody tried—but nobody quite succeeded—to outdress Irene Castle.

With the passing of the war, constraint went likewise. The dress became brief, scanty, shapeless. It fell from shoulders to knees—where it stopped—without a curve. A shocked observer wrote: "Gin is everywhere. Couples pet openly in rumble seats. It is all because of these knobby knees protruding wherever you look."

• • •

One 1920 number, which can be described only as "box and bulge," fell unbroken to the hips, then swerved out geometrically into square boxes on either side. The only waist from then until 1929 was in 1924, when it rested on the lower portion of the hip. Otherwise it was a straight, brief flour sack.

Not until 1929, when the stock market fell, did dresses follow suit. They became long and high-waisted. Grace, so abominated before, became a worthwhile struggle. People began to look for—and to cultivate—curves.

Curves have been prominent ever since, as the waist went higher and higher, but always without benefit of corset.

But now for 1940 Mainbocher, the Chicagoan who went to Paris to become fashion's leading dressmaker, has introduced what he calls the "long torso." With it, he says, goes a corset.

Will it?

His "Candid" Camera Caught Old Chicago

THE Columbian exposition of 1893 was still two years in the offing and the candid camera was undreamed of. At 2930 Cottage Grove avenue a German-born artist of the name of S. Krausz entered on a photographic career that proved to be as brief as his signature.

Trained to appreciation of the types he encountered on the streets of the south side, Artist Krausz conceived the idea of making it possible for his world to see itself thru his own whimsical eyes. But, he lamented, he could not make good snapshots secretly on the street; the cameras of his day were not that efficient. There was nothing to do but induce his subjects to pose in his studio. He was bent, nevertheless, on making his pictures as natural as possible. The iceman, therefore, must be photographed with his cake of ice, the doctor with his satchel, the feather duster salesman with his stock in trade; and all must be persuaded that staring rigidity really was not the artistic stance before the camera.

Artist Krausz accomplished his task, but not without adventure. He was required to talk a truculent dude out of a fighting mood. He was mistaken for a medical student in search of subjects for the dissecting room. A foreign-born woman misunderstood his motive and he barely escaped arrest.

The eventual result was a slender volume of pictures titled "Street Types of Chicago." In time a copy of the book came into the possession of the Chicag Historical society; and in recent months certain of his pictures have been reproduced in the Picture Section of The Sunday Tribune as interesting glimpses of old Chicago.

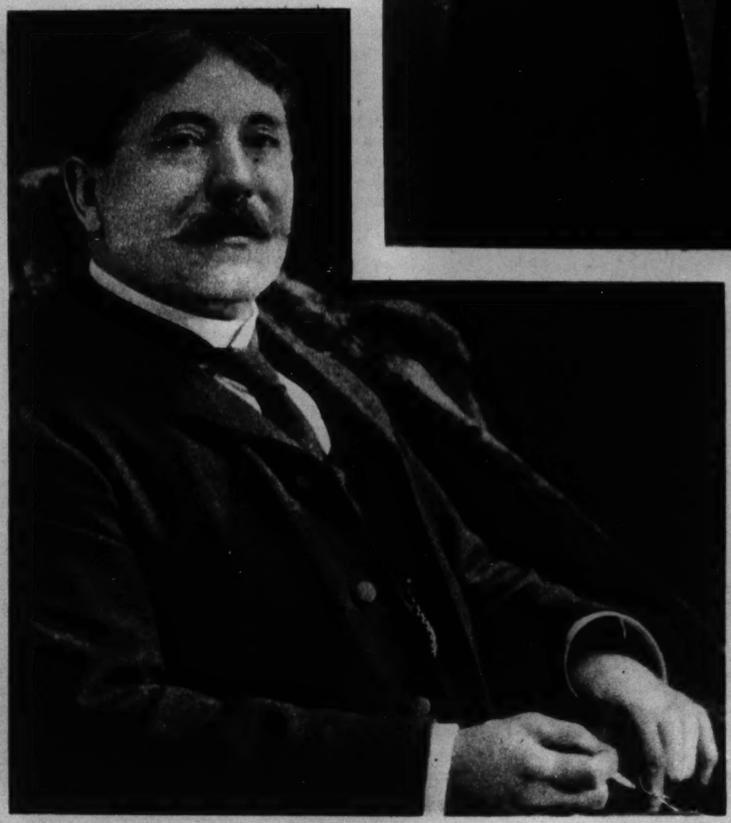
Now, it would appear strange that after a lapse of nearly half a century these reproductions would come to the eyes of persons portrayed. But it did so happen.

"Mrs. O. Herbert Hill of 1416 Touhy avenue was one of the two schoolgirls whose picture you printed," a reader reported by telephone to The Tribune.

Mrs. Hill corroborated this: "And the other little girl now is Mrs. Ross H. Moore of 4443 North Leavitt street. I was Reina L. Bower, she was Eva Minott, and we both attended the Calumet school."

The pictures came to the attention of a daughter of Mr. Krausz, Mrs. William Morse Mansfield of 237 Highland street, Hammond, Ind., who revealed details of her father's colorful career.

Artist Krausz's story began in 1857 in Austria, where he was born on May 14. At Munich, where he was educated, he studied art. He was an officer in the Austrian army and was decorated by the German emperor. He came to Chicago in his early twenties and, having given up painting, operated the Cottage Grove avenue photographic studio for about a year. Subsequently he became associate editor of the Illinois Staats-Zeitung and a contributor to magazines of national circulation.



In 1911 Mr. Krausz was commissioned by the Pan-American conference to tour South America, interpreting that continent for newspapers of the United States.

He became something of a globe-trotter, twice circling the world; gave illustrated lectures at the Field museum and the Art institute; wrote "Toward the Rising Sun," a travel book illustrated by his own pictures, and "The Cameo of the Empress," a novel. When the World war broke out he was engaged by a Chicago daily newspaper to serve as war expert, and later established a magazine, the Hornet, in which he published his own views.

"Schoolgirls," one of the "candid" photographs taken by S. Krausz, left. One of the subjects recognized herself when the picture was published in The Tribune several months ago.

During this varied experience Mr. Krausz found time to make an extensive collection of Roman coins, on which he gave illustrated lectures and which he eventually sold to the University of Illinois; to collect old and modern paintings, and to write poetry and song lyrics.

He was vice president of the Chicago Press club when Opie Read was president; he was one of the first members of the Adventurers club; he founded the Chicago chapter of Schlaraffia, organization of German writers, artists, and musicians.

About 1923 he retired and, surprisingly enough, returned to his first love, painting. He died Nov. 17, 1928.

Mr. Krausz is survived by his widow, now Mrs. Anna Clark of Los Angeles, and by Mrs. Mansfield and another daughter, Mrs. Leonard G. Smythe of Glenridge, N. J.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CORNS

Their cause and how to get rid of them

A corn is a mass of dead cells packed into a hard plug (A) whose base presses on sensitive nerves (B)—causes intense pain.

Felt pad (C) relieves pain by removing pressure. Special medication (D) acts on corn, gently loosens it so it can be lifted out.

● Science has long known the cause of corns and clinical tests have proved that corns can be effectively removed the Blue-Jay way. Corns are caused by pressure and friction, become a hard mass as shown at left. Home paring only gives temporary relief—means risk of infection. But it's easy to remove corns the Blue-Jay way. Just fit a Blue-Jay pad over the corn. It acts quickly and surely as shown in diagram. You get wonderful relief. Stubborn corns may require a second application. Then simply by avoiding the pressure and friction which caused your corns you can prevent their return. Get Blue-Jay Corn Plasters today—only 25¢ for 6.

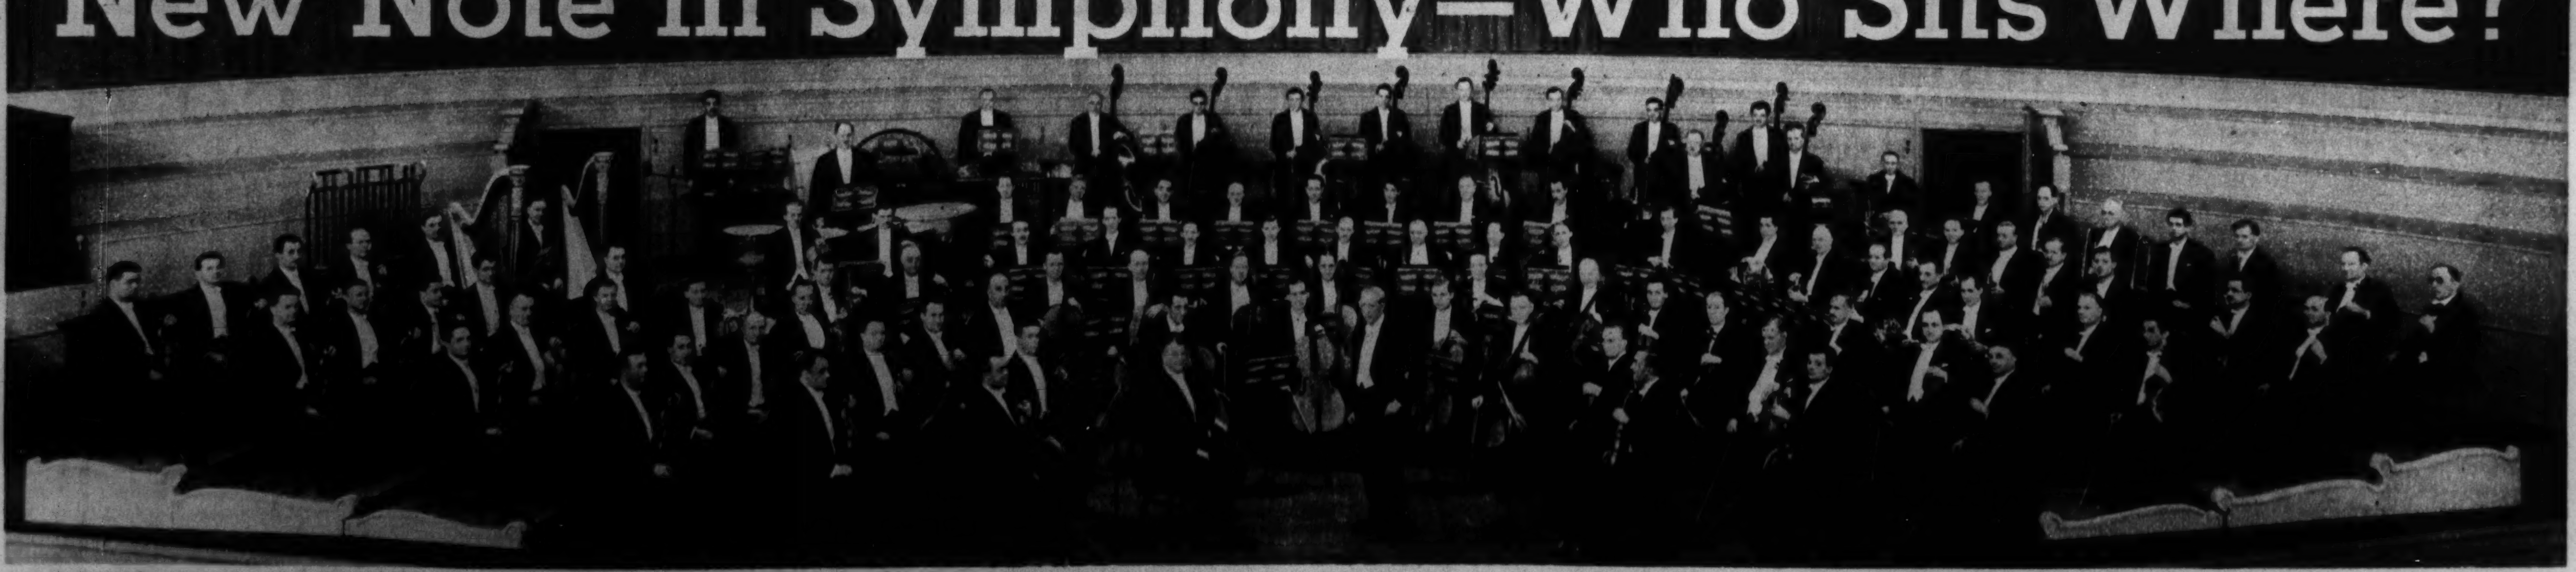
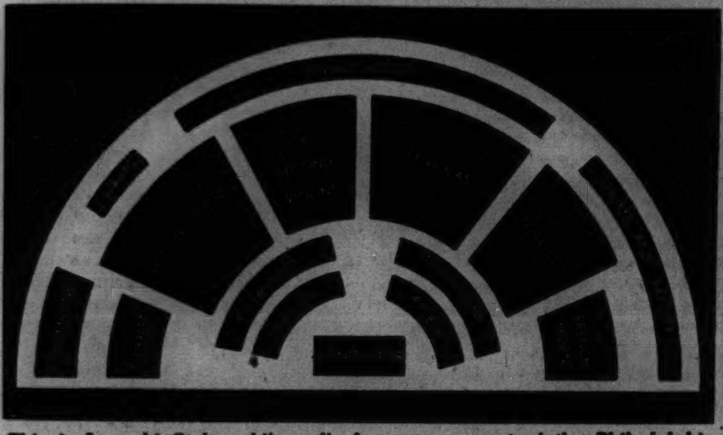
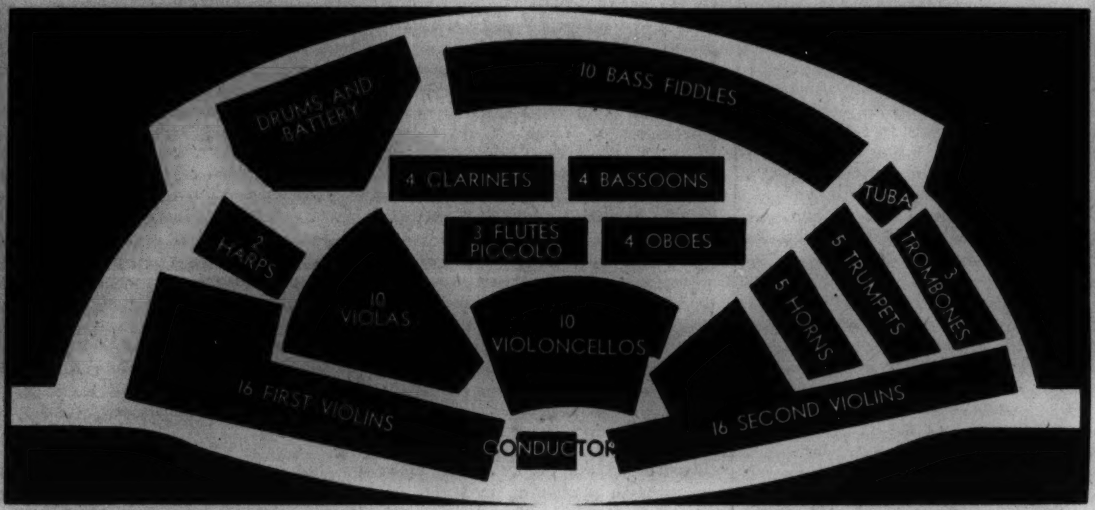
New Note in Symphony—Who Sits Where?



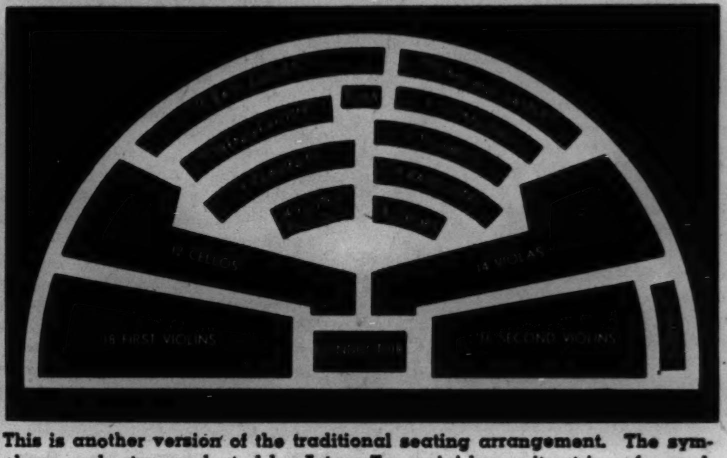
The Chicago Symphony orchestra. Frederick Stock, conductor, stands at the center. Hans Lange, associate conductor, is seated in front of Mr. Stock. (Kaufmann & Fabry photo.)



This is Leopold Stokowski's radical rearrangement of the Philadelphia orchestra. Brasses and wood winds are down front, strings back.



This diagram of the seating plan of the Chicago Symphony orchestra is one version of traditional arrangement.



This is another version of the traditional seating arrangement. The symphony orchestra conducted by Arturo Toscanini keeps its strings forward.

One Radical Realignment Highlights a Tradition

By EDWARD BARRY

IN THE EAST this year public and critics are much exercised over the seating arrangement of the symphony orchestra. Leopold Stokowski, who has probably garnered more headlines and feature articles than any other conductor alive, is harvesting a new crop now by reason of the boldness of his recent challenge to tradition. He has picked up the string section and transferred it bodily to the back of the stage, bringing forward in its stead such long-hidden instruments as flutes, oboes, clarinets, horns, trumpets, trombones, and even percussions.

Experiments in the seating arrangement of the orchestra are an old story, but such experiments have usually been carried on in such a way that basic traditions have not been disturbed. These basic traditions require that the smaller strings—by far the most numerous, most used, and most important orchestral family—should be down front in close touch with conductor and audience. These traditions require also that brass instruments and double basses (those poor relations of the string quartet) should be kept in the background and compelled to perform their relatively small tasks in obscurity.

STOKOWSKI

Past experimenters, instead of challenging the soundness of these general ideas, would merely change the position of violas or second violins within the string section or shift whole small choirs (the wood winds, for example) from one part of the platform to another. In comparison with these conservative changes Mr. Stokowski's action is as radical as that of a football coach who should decide to place all of his backs slightly in advance of the line.

A glance at the above diagrams of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and the orchestra conducted by Arturo Toscanini will acquaint the reader with the conventional seating arrangement and will demonstrate the fact that this conventional seating arrangement is not absolutely rigid. Frederick Stock and Mr. Toscanini agree on major points but disagree on several minor ones. The former likes the cellos bunched cozily in front of him; the latter puts them to his left, behind the first violins. The former keeps his brasses to the extreme right; the latter has them directly in front of him.

Even the most perfunctory study of the diagram of the Philadelphia orchestra will serve to establish the fact that Mr. Stokowski's ideas differ radically from those of his colleagues. The concertmaster (principal first violin), who traditionally occupies the place of honor at the front of the stage and right under the conductor's left hand, now must peer at his chief thru rows of clarinets and flutes. The cellists, who in other days could actually go thru life without ever seeing a bassoon, now find that instrument directly in front of them.

The advantages of the new arrangement are as follows:

It brings forward flutes and clarinets—which are soft of tone and few in number—and permits their tone to reach the audience without having first to cut its way thru the great mass of strings.

It exploits the acoustical values of the curving back of the typical shell-shaped stage, giving the strings a resonance and carrying power greater than they had in their old position. (This advantage, it will be noticed, is not entirely consistent with the first one listed.)

It gives people who come to concerts to look as well as listen (and this includes virtually every member of the audience) an opportunity to get acquainted with other instruments besides strings. There are concertgoers of years' standing who cannot distinguish unerringly between the oboe and the clarinet. With these instruments up front their appearance and character will become much better known.

It reunites the strings after generations of separation. The string basses have always stood along the back wall, and in Mr. Stokowski's arrangement they continue to do so. Now, however, their proud cousins—violins, violas, cellos—have at last come back to join them.

And here are some disadvantages of the new system:

It banishes the most important sections of the orchestra (the strings) to positions back of the wood winds and endangers the rapport between the conductor and his hardest working men. Even a few extra feet of space and a wall of clarinets and flutes may become a formidable mental hazard in any activity as highly emotionalized as music.

And of course it banishes the concertmaster along with his lesser fellows. The conventional position of this dignitary (who plays many solos, who leads his section and sometimes the whole orchestra, and who traditionally represents all the players) has been such as to satisfy the desire of the audience both to hear and to see a person holding such an important post.

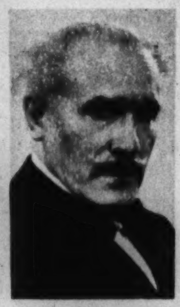
The audience will see much idleness — for brasses, wood winds, and percussions rest frequently and for long periods—and a suspicion may conceivably arise that a full money's worth is being withheld. What would a thrifty concertgoer think of the trombones, which in Beethoven's Fifth symphony are denied so much as a single sixteenth note until the very last movement?

The brass instruments, whose tone does not always blend easily with that of the rest of the orchestra even in the conventional seating arrangement, are apt to be more difficult still to control when those instruments are at the front of the stage.

But there is too much theory in all the above and too resolute an avoidance of an important factor in orchestral seating. That factor is the shape and the acoustics of the hall in which the orchestra habitually plays. Mr. Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, has arranged his orchestra by ear, as it were. If a certain position gives the best tonal result in Orchestra hall, then that position is the best. Convenience and eye appeal are important, too, of course, but hardly as important as sound.

The present seating arrangement of the Chicago orchestra, as diagrammed above, represents the result of decades of experimentation. Three years ago an important change took place when the percussion instruments were moved from the right rear to the left rear in order to get them away from other highly sonorous instruments such as the heavy brasses.

STOCK



TOSCANINI

The tonal weight of the right rear (in the old arrangement) made proper balance almost impossible.

The Chicago orchestra once tried an experiment almost as novel as Mr. Stokowski's present one. All of the strings were put on the right side and all of the wind instruments on the left. This looked logical enough, but it just didn't sound.

In reference to the problem of orchestral seating in general Mr. Stock recently said: "We have found that the present arrangement of the orchestra is best suited to the acoustical properties of Orchestra hall.",

And that is that.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

This English setter (a blue belton) is named Law's Princess Patricia. The descriptive terms "blue belton" or "orange belton" refer to the color of English setters. A blue belton is a setter heavily marked or ticked with dark blue.

The Terminology Used to Describe Dogs

WHEN a dog owner goes to a bench show or a puppy match he is apt to hear a number of technical terms or words relating to dogs which may be puzzling at first. Some of these terms refer to faults that one wants to avoid in a dog. Then there are many terms which are used in describing the characteristics of breeds. These often help the novice owner of a dog to learn more about his favorite breed.

An overshot jaw, with the upper protruding beyond the lower jaw, is a fault that always distresses the owner of a dog if he has hoped to put it in a show. A dog with an overshot jaw is classed as "not sound." When buying a puppy it's wise to examine the animal's teeth and jaws so as to make sure that it has correctly formed mouth and jaws.

Undershot is the opposite of overshot. In this case the lower jaw protrudes slightly. This also is considered a fault.

Some of the terms used to describe the faults of dogs are straight to the point. The term "dish face" means just what it says. The nose of the dog is turned up slightly and the face hollowed out (dishlike) before the eyes.

One of the fairly common faults in many breeds of dogs is a narrow or weak muzzle. In the case of sporting breeds like the cocker, springer, pointer, setter, Chesapeake, Labrador, and other similar breeds a weak, snippy face not only detracts from the appearance of the dog but it also handicaps its work.

Some of the most interesting terms relating to dogs are those that have to do with the shape and carriage of their ears. For example, the standard of the wire-haired fox terrier calls for a V-shaped ear that is described as a button ear. It folds forward close to the skull and points toward the eye. The Scottish terrier has an entirely different type of ear. It is known as the prick ear. This type of ear is small, sits well up on the skull, and is rather pointed but not cut, and is in marked contrast to the lobular, flat ear of the cocker.

To say that a dog has a roach back sounds derogatory, but there are breeds which are supposed to have a convex curvature of the back rising gently from behind the withers. For example, the hindquarters of the greyhound, bulldog, dachshund, and others have this conformation. "Camel back" and "sway-back" are opposite terms and obvious in their description.

• • •

A "block-headed" dog doesn't mean that he's dumb—if you are speaking of a Boston terrier, for this breed has a cubelike formation of the head. A common word to describe this conformation is "blocky."

"Out at the elbows" is a rather common phrase that you'll hear dog fanciers use. This is a fault that is rather easy to detect if you watch the action of the dog's front legs. Some dogs are whelped with faulty joint and front formation to make them out at the elbows. Others may develop this. For example, when we examined a pack of bloodhounds some time ago we found that every old dog that had been worked a great deal in harness and on a long leash (to track down criminals, find lost people, and do other trailing work) was out at the elbows, due to the constant straining and pulling against the leash. Young dogs that wear harnesses and tug against a leash continually may develop this fault.

There are scores of other phrases used by dog fanciers which the average owner is not apt to hear unless he gets into conversation with a judge, professional breeder, or other canine authority. For example, take the terms used to describe the different kinds of tails of dogs. "Whip tail" is one of those not often heard. It means a tail carried rather stiffly and straight and is a pronounced characteristic of the pointer. A "gay" tail is one that is carried erect. In dogs that are not supposed to have a tail carried high a "gay" tail may be a fault. For example, we often see a Labrador retriever near our home which carries too gay a tail for the breed. This characteristic would be faulted immediately by a judge in a dog show. The phrase "screw tail" is, of course, better known because of the popularity of the Boston terrier. By screw tail is meant the short, kinky, knotty tail frequently found in the Boston.

Racy, cobby, rangy, and close-coupled are other interesting terms that dog breeders have occasion to use. Racy is a perfect adjective to describe the conformation of the whippet or greyhound which is elongated in legs and body and slight in build. Cobby means compactly built. A rangy dog is one that is elongated in conformation but having more substance than a racy one. When a breeder uses the term close-coupled and smiles you know he has a desirable point in the conformation of his dog. It means short in the loins and the back.

If you talk to a bloodhound or St. Bernard breeder you may hear him use the word "haw" in speaking about one of these dogs. Haw is the red membrane inside the lower eyelid, which is pronounced in both the bloodhound and the St. Bernard.

DOG NOTES

Several nations now at war have set up field hospitals for treating wounded dogs. These animals are trained for many uses during war periods. They are used extensively by the Red Cross and by ambulance units, and almost all of the warring countries have trained dogs to lay field telephone lines. It takes months to train dogs for these purposes, and experienced veterinarians are in charge of the various field hospitals for treating these valuable four-footed warriors.

Many hotel owners have enough consideration for dog owners to allow them to take dogs into their rooms. Therefore dog owners should be similarly considerate of the hotels. Here are some rules for dogs in hotels:

1. Do not allow your pet to sleep on the hotel bed or furniture.
2. Do not use hotel towels or linen to wipe off the dog's coat. Take your own towels with you for this purpose.
3. Do not bathe your dog in the hotel bathtub.
4. Be sure your dog has no infectious diseases.

When Worming for Tape, Round (ascarid) and Hook Worms

You Cannot Worm Your Dog WRONG

—if you follow the sound, "no-guess," commonsense Pulvex Worming Method.

The Pulvex Worming Method (embodied in every package of Pulvex Combination Treatment Worm Capsules) insures your worming your dog properly for those worms . . . even though you've had no worming experience. It is so sure that many breeders of champion dogs say the Pulvex Worming Method is the method the average dog owner should use. Here's why—

Your dog can have Tape, Round (ascarid), Hook or any combination of those worms at the same time. Your dog should, therefore, always be wormed for all those worms whenever you worm him.

Contrary to common belief, no single-type capsule made can expel all those three worms. Two distinct types of capsules must be used. Each package of Pulvex Capsules contains two types of capsules which, when given a few days apart, will expel Tape, Round (ascarid) or Hook Worms—not just one or two kinds of worms.

Avoid worming your pet wrong for those worms. Worm only with Pulvex Capsules. Packaged two ways: for puppies; for dogs. Either type 50c. At Drug, Pet, Dept. stores.

Illustrating the astronomical elements that caused Easter to come so early this year. The sun is shown a couple of degrees north of the celestial equator (a projection in space of our equator), where it stood yesterday (March 23) when the moon was full. (The moon, just one day past full stage, is shown setting just as the sun rises.) The instant the sun crosses the equator on its apparent trip north marks the vernal equinox. The fact that the moon became full two days later, on a Saturday, made the next day Easter, according to the ancient rule described in the article.

How Easter Is Set by Moon

(Copyright: 1940: By Science Service.)

EASTER COMES early in 1940. Not again this century will Easter follow winter so closely as it does this year. In fact, only twice since the opening of the present century has Easter been declared for so early a date as March 24. The present record was beaten in 1913, when Easter Sunday came on March 23. The nineteenth century broke this record three times, with Easter falling on March 22 in 1818 and on March 23 in 1845 and again in 1856.

Unlike Christmas, the Fourth of July, and other holidays which occupy a fixed place in the calendar, Easter falls into the category of "movable feasts" and is decreed to take place on the Sunday following the first full moon that falls on or after the vernal equinox. If there is a full moon on the first Sunday following the vernal equinox Easter Sunday will be the Sunday following the next full moon. Such an event brings Easter late in April.

The rules and regulations determining the advent of Easter are an old story. They were fixed by the Council of Nicæa in A. D. 325. In spite of all codification, however, embarrassments came when the world grew to include both the eastern and the western hemispheres. The moon sometimes has a way of becoming full after it has left London and before it reaches Washington. In this case the Easter traffic handled by the London bobbies may not happen on the same Sunday at all that confronts our own traffic police. Now, the one thing the ecclesiastics wanted was a universal Easter, so they invented a special paschal moon to dodge the complications of meridians and differences in longitude. Incidentally, they dodged a lot of trouble with the moon that the astronomers have had to worry about.

The moon has a most uncanny way of being somewhat irregular in her habits which has bothered chronologists from the earliest times. There are on the average 29½ days between full moons, and there are 365¼ days in the calendar year, so a lunar month will not fit regularly into any annual reckoning. However, after 19 years full moons repeat themselves at the same calendar date. This 19-year period gives rise in our prayer books to the Golden Number. This is an important factor in forecasting Easter. Now, after every 28 years the year starts over again on exactly the same day of the week, not forgetting leap years. After 532 years the sun and moon assume their same relative positions on the same day of the month, on the same day of the week. So in the year 2472 the moon will again be full on Saturday, March 23, and Easter will fall on March 24.

Fortunately, it takes but a few people to do all the mathematics to predict Easter for the next 2,000 years. This is a mere trifle compared to the problem of the many who struggle with the mathematics of making March income cover the bills for Easter's finery.

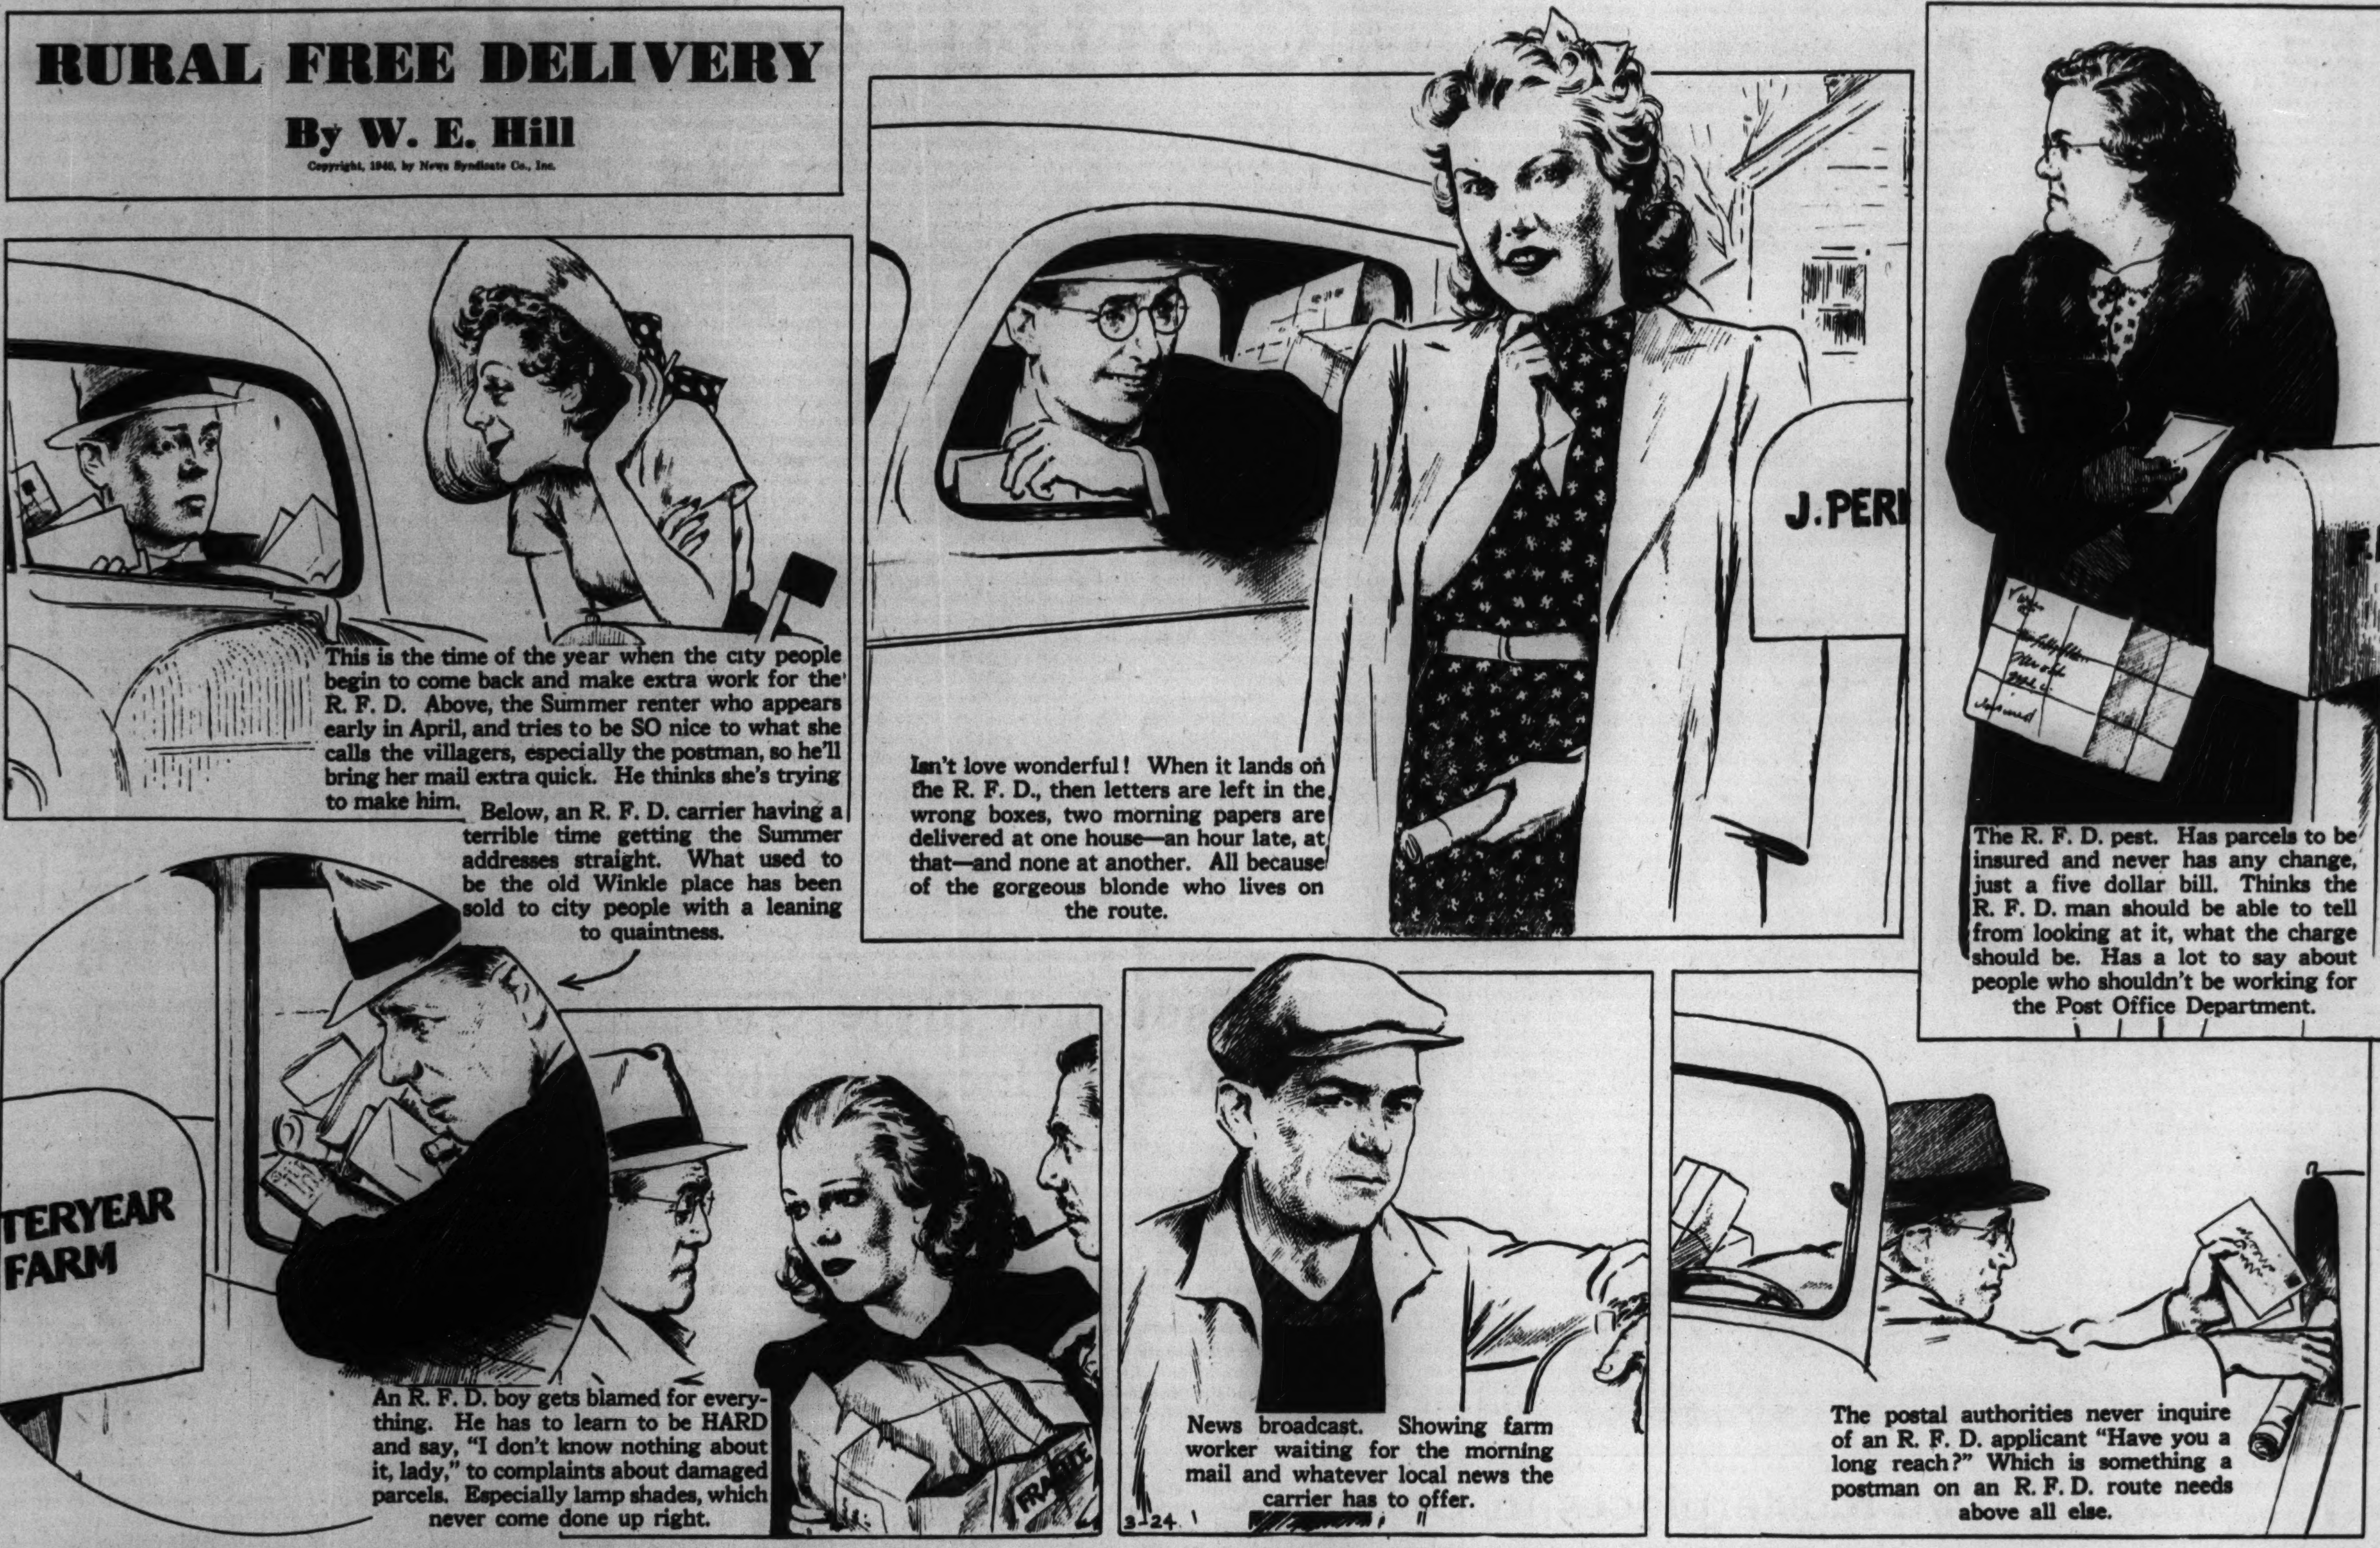
RURAL FREE DELIVERY

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1940, by News Syndicate Co., Inc.



This is the time of the year when the city people begin to come back and make extra work for the R. F. D. Above, the Summer renter who appears early in April, and tries to be SO nice to what she calls the villagers, especially the postman, so he'll bring her mail extra quick. He thinks she's trying to make him.

Below, an R. F. D. carrier having a terrible time getting the Summer addresses straight. What used to be the old Winkle place has been sold to city people with a leaning to quaintness.

Isn't love wonderful! When it lands on the R. F. D., then letters are left in the wrong boxes, two morning papers are delivered at one house—an hour late, at that—and none at another. All because of the gorgeous blonde who lives on the route.

The R. F. D. pest. Has parcels to be insured and never has any change, just a five dollar bill. Thinks the R. F. D. man should be able to tell from looking at it, what the charge should be. Has a lot to say about people who shouldn't be working for the Post Office Department.

An R. F. D. boy gets blamed for everything. He has to learn to be HARD and say, "I don't know nothing about it, lady," to complaints about damaged parcels. Especially lamp shades, which never come done up right.

News broadcast. Showing farm worker waiting for the morning mail and whatever local news the carrier has to offer.

The postal authorities never inquire of an R. F. D. applicant "Have you a long reach?" Which is something a postman on an R. F. D. route needs above all else.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine.)

Industry as Model for Amateurs

Taken by the light of molten metal, this picture gains in pictorial effect by the darkness surrounding the furnace. Industrial interiors are frequently dark, requiring the use of flash bulbs for illumination.

This picturesque industrial shot is one that anybody can duplicate without special equipment or the need of getting permission to enter a plant.

MODERN industry is becoming an increasingly popular subject among amateurs. The reason for this is that it's comparatively simple to get striking pictures of industrial subjects and that these pictures never fail to make a deep impression on the spectator.

This last reason is decisive. While most amateurs take pictures for their personal pleasure, a considerable part of this pleasure is derived from the recognition accorded their pictures. Living in a machine age as we do, it is only natural that industrial subjects should command a great deal of attention and interest practically everybody.

In addition, most industrial settings are photographic "naturals," because their construction obviously follows a plan which frequently presents the camera with ready-made composition—with a pictorial design built right into the subject. Very often this design or pattern is so obvious that even the rankest of amateurs detects it at first glance. Just think of such subjects as a row of smokestacks, huge machines composed of several similar units, a symmetrically arranged group of factory buildings, goods stapled and ready for shipping, or merely a set of gears.

You are completely surrounded by industrial picture subjects. From the furnace in your own house and the motor of your own car to the largest local industrial plants, you see them at every turn. They are not limited to steel mills or power plants to which you may not be able to gain entry. Of course you are right if you insist that the large factory with its huge machinery and variety of motifs offers the best picture possibilities. But then with a little ingenuity you, too, will be able to get pictures of this kind even if you have no connections which could help you to get inside the gates.

This brings us to the two main divisions of industrial pictures, namely, exteriors and interiors. You can take a countless variety of industrial exteriors practically anywhere without ever entering the factory premises. You can shoot thru the fence or thru open gates; aim your camera at objects that are visible above the the wall, or seek an elevation from which you can overlook a section of the plant.

Concentrate on one main object, whether it is a smokestack, an oil tank, or a pattern of pipes connecting buildings. Angle shots will be a very effective means of accentuating your main subject. Use panchromatic film to record color values and stop down your lens to get increased depth of field and good texture.

A medium yellow or a red filter will help you create dramatic effects. If you want to accentuate the sheen of metal they will help you lift out the highlights by darkening the sky. They can create contrast between steam or light smoke and a blank sky. In many an instance they will dramatize your picture by adding cloud effects.

The simplest of photographic technique and equipment is sufficient for making good industrial exteriors, but it is a lot more difficult to make successful interior shots in a factory. For one thing, the light is usually poor. Fast action and possibly vibration may force you to use high shutter speeds. Machinery is usually black and reflects very little light. In most cases the factory floor is so crowded that you are unable to step back far enough to include the subject of your choice in the picture without running up against a wall or another piece of machinery.

But there is a solution to most of these problems. Wherever possible place your camera on a tripod and give a time exposure. Otherwise you will be forced to use additional lights. Floodlights will prove impractical in most cases, for people would be stumbling over your extension cords even if your plugs would fit the available outlets. Flashlight, preferably synchronized flash, is the answer.

When taking a flashlight picture of an industrial subject, always remember that your light will not carry far in the dark factory surroundings. Avoid undesirable reflections from highly polished surfaces. With this in mind you can get beautiful pictorial effects by virtue of what was listed above as a deficiency. Your flash will illuminate only your main subject, while the surroundings and the background—which in nine cases out of ten would have been jumbled and distracting—fade into total darkness.

Use a wide-angle lens if you can afford to buy one. It will help you not only in industrial photography but also in taking many other kinds of pictures.

Finally, remember the storytelling closeup. It is not always the large industrial motif which tells the best story of industrial activity. Often a closeup of hands at work, or mere machine parts, will convey a more dramatic picture of "men and machines" than a general view of an entire factory.

QUESTIONS

Questions of general interest to camera fans will be answered here. No individual replies, other than those published, can be promised.

Can I make snapshots with a box camera at night?—P. J. H.

ANSWER: This will depend entirely upon the type of film you are using in the camera and the amount of light being reflected from your subject. If your box camera is loaded with fast film and your subject is well illuminated you will get pictures.

What causes my prints to curl?—E. B. S.

ANSWER: This is due to the differences in shrinking qualities between the sensitized emulsion upon which the image is made and the paper support or backing on which the emulsion is coated. The amount of humidity in the amosphere has an effect on how much the prints will curl.

Sensational Style Gives Way to Individuality

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate, Inc.)

THIS COIFFURE season offers no spectacular developments, as we see it. The hairdressers are not trying to inveigle women into sensational new styles, as was true with that short-lived, all-'round, upswept "Biddy" sensation of a few seasons back.

The idea this year is to make the woman look as lovely as possible, with herself and none other as the inspiration for a clever hair arrangement. Accordingly we see a wide variety of styles, many of them flattering.

Were we to suggest any attempt at style standardization it would revolve upon the "up-and-down" trend launched by a Manhattan group of hairdressers and cosmetologists earlier in the season and illustrated in the photographs. Fairly sleek is the verdict pronounced on these styles, yet feminine, high in front and medium low back styling achieved thru subtle undulating waves and curls, interestingly placed in more or less massed effect. These styles, it is argued, are easily converted from dressy to more tailored lines as the occasion or hat demands.

There is that important tie-up between hat and coiffure, and the manner in which one may be adjusted to the other, to keep in mind when you go new-hat and new-coiffure shopping. This new "convertible" coiffure requires that hair be from five to six inches in length, which is a little longer than that of last season.

Not new, but worthy of a reminder, is that clean temple line which makes a difference in the youthfulness of a face. You still see countless numbers of women who insist upon cluttering with down strokes of the wave that area from temple to ear lobe. This year bangs and tendrils are permitted on the brow, but notice again that age-telling, cluttered hair treatment is avoided by the simple process of combing or brushing back and up the hair that formerly crowded the eyebrow end, temple, and part of the cheek.

We urge women to experiment before their mirrors with the effect of that lift of hair back and up off the upper sides of the face. Women who do the cluttering we speak of also are women who still apply rouge low on their cheeks. The effect is to drag the face down, ageing it, weighting it, spoiling it, whereas a more up-to-date treatment would brush a few years off easily.

Think of what your new coiffure will do to and for your face, then. Don't think of a coiffure as a hairdressing treatment only. Think of it as the proverbial frame for the face, with a frame's power to drown, submerge, or kill a picture on the one hand; on the other, to pick up the picture's highlights and glorify them. That's your real cue to a chic, flattering hair style.

Two Masterpieces in Color

RAPHAEL'S famous painting, "Madonna of the Chair," is reproduced today in full color for the second time. It first appeared in The Tribune on Dec. 10, 1939, in full page size. At that time the story of the famous painting was told in an article in the Graphic Section. Today a smaller reproduction is presented in order to eliminate any fold across the picture and thereby make it more suitable for home framing.

"The Crucifixion," by Masaccio, is one of the best of the few remaining works of this pioneer of naturalism. Born on Dec. 21, 1401, near Florence, the artist, whose real name was Tomaso Guidi, lived only 27 years. In that brief span, however, he packed a career that proved to be the turning point in Italian art. Newly discovered laws of perspective, a new understanding of human anatomy, and a desire to reproduce nature in her own beauty combined to give Masaccio a clear vision of his goal in art. He broke away from the flat technique both as to color and dimension that had preceded him and sought to achieve a three-dimensional effect.

Masaccio's standard work is in Florence, in the Brancacci chapel. His teacher, Masolino, started a series of frescoes but did not finish them. Masaccio, carrying on the work, completed at least six paintings, the most famous of which, perhaps, is the "Expulsion from Eden." So revolutionary were these frescoes that they became the models for the Florentine school of painters in later generations. Even Michelangelo studied them and profited by what he found.

The work was never finished, however, by Masaccio. He left for Rome and died shortly after.

"The Crucifixion" is a panel, 33⅛x25⅛ inches. It illustrates well the artist's ability to represent with simple naturalism the robes of his subjects and the contours of the human body. Judged by the standards that existed in his day, it is a long step toward the full-bodied, glowing masterpieces of the later immortals.

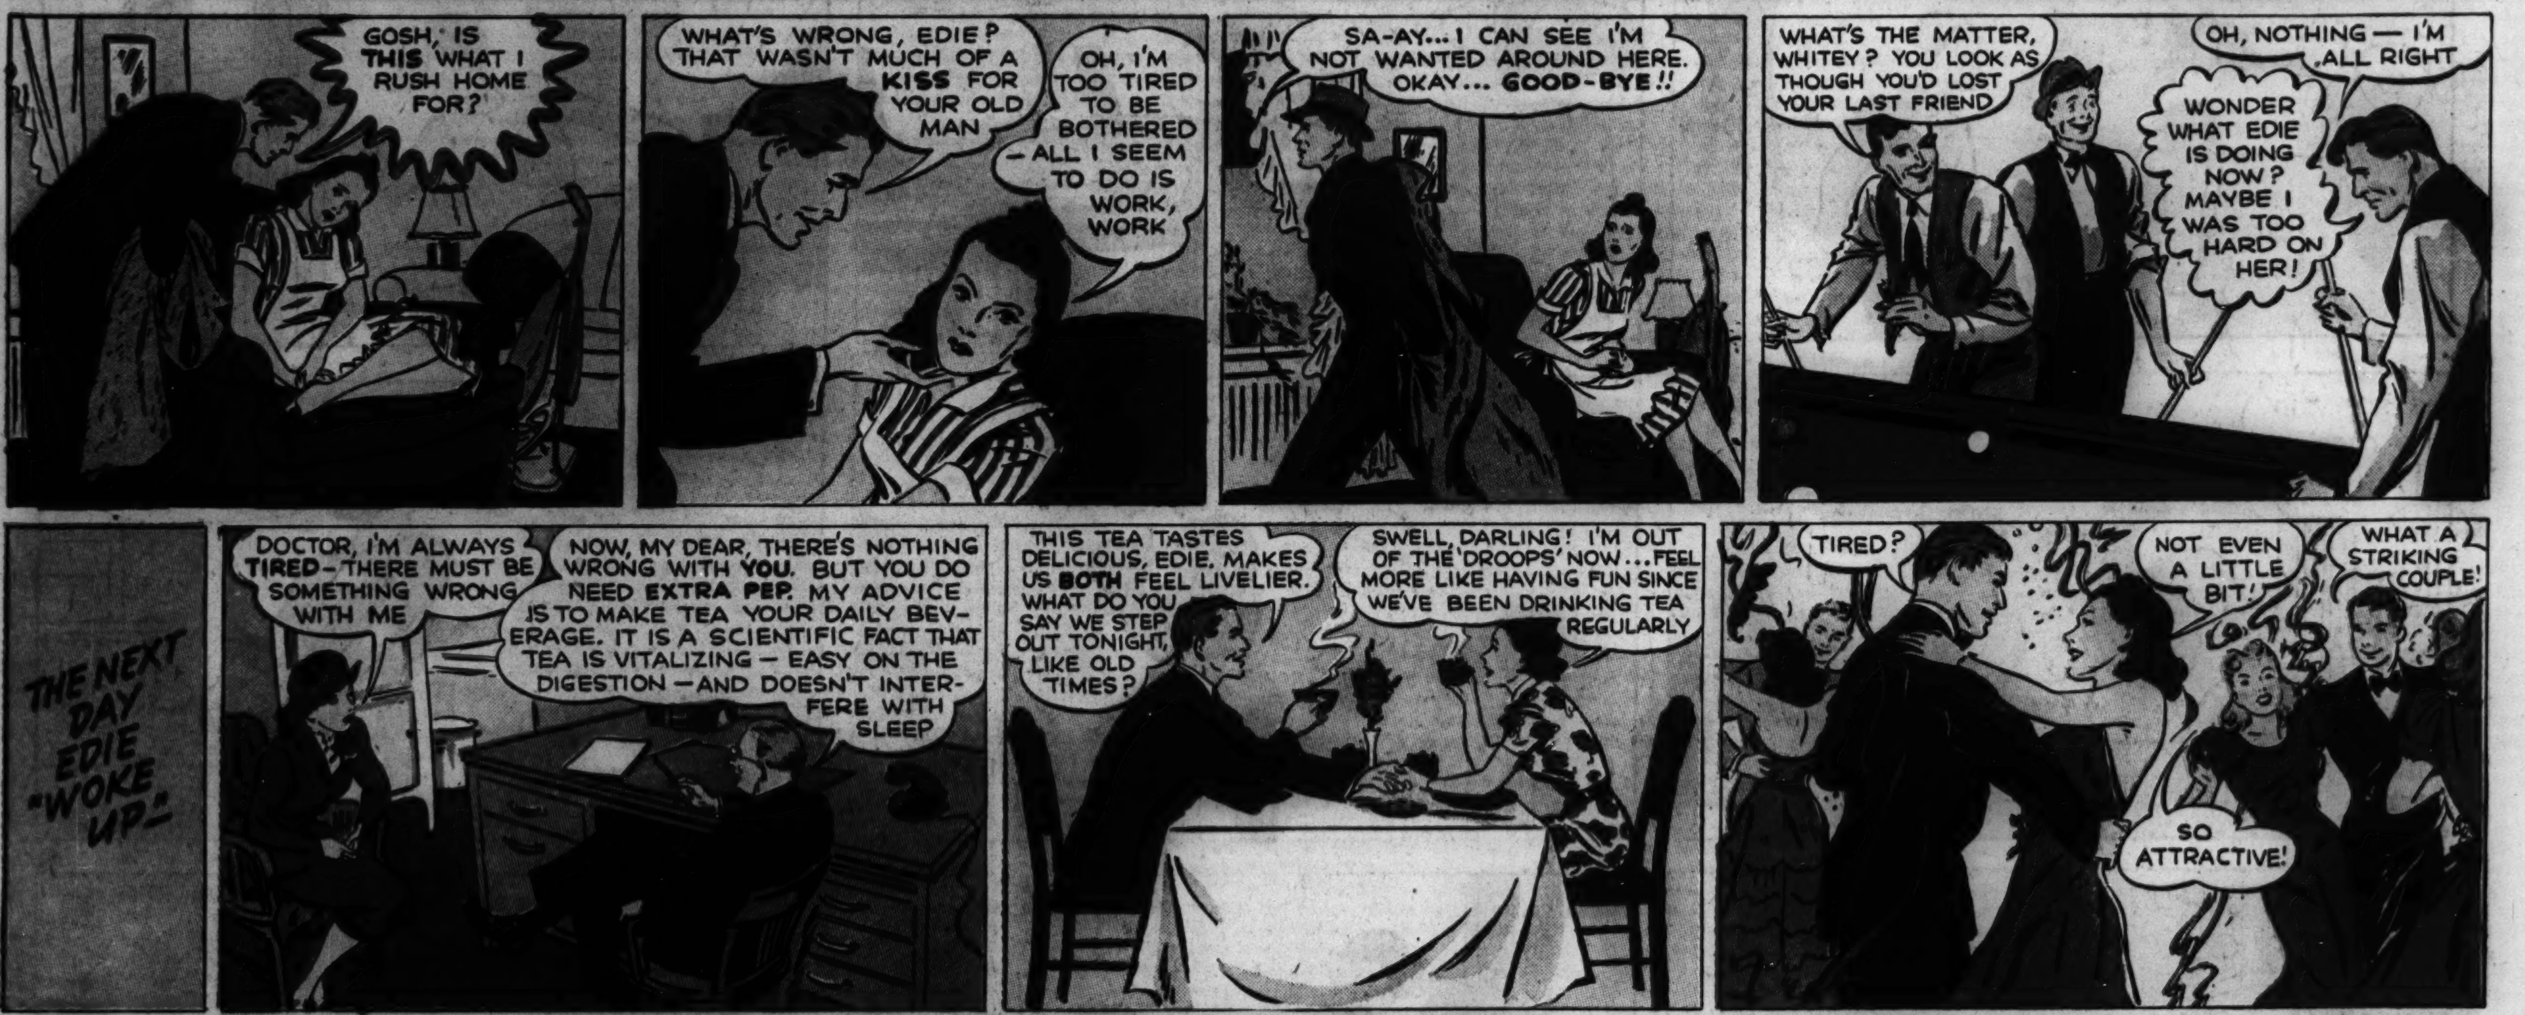
EDIE WAS A T-I-R-E-D LADY...

ALMANAC for APRIL
FLOWER: DAISY
BIRTHSTONE: DIAMOND
PHASES OF THE MOON
WEATHER: CHANGEABLE, STORMY. WATCH FOR DAMP PERIOD. GOOD MONTH TO DRINK TEA AS A SPRING PICK-UP.



GOSH, IS THIS WHAT I RUSH HOME FOR?
WHAT'S WRONG, EDIE? THAT WASN'T MUCH OF A KISS FOR YOUR OLD MAN
OH, I'M TOO TIRED TO BE BOTHERED — ALL I SEEM TO DO IS WORK, WORK
SA-AY... I CAN SEE I'M NOT WANTED AROUND HERE. OKAY... GOOD-BYE !!
WHAT'S THE MATTER, WHITEY? YOU LOOK AS THOUGH YOU'D LOST YOUR LAST FRIEND
OH, NOTHING — I'M ALL RIGHT
WONDER WHAT EDIE IS DOING NOW? MAYBE I WAS TOO HARD ON HER!
THE NEXT DAY EDIE "WOKE UP"
DOCTOR, I'M ALWAYS TIRED — THERE MUST BE SOMETHING WRONG WITH ME
NOW, MY DEAR, THERE'S NOTHING WRONG WITH YOU. BUT YOU DO NEED EXTRA PEP. MY ADVICE IS TO MAKE TEA YOUR DAILY BEVERAGE. IT IS A SCIENTIFIC FACT THAT TEA IS VITALIZING — EASY ON THE DIGESTION — AND DOESN'T INTERFERE WITH SLEEP
THIS TEA TASTES DELICIOUS, EDIE, MAKES US BOTH FEEL LIVELIER. WHAT DO YOU SAY WE STEP OUT TONIGHT, LIKE OLD TIMES?
SWELL, DARLING! I'M OUT OF THE 'DROOPS' NOW... FEEL MORE LIKE HAVING FUN SINCE WE'VE BEEN DRINKING TEA REGULARLY TIRED?
NOT EVEN A LITTLE BIT!
WHAT A STRIKING COUPLE!
SO ATTRACTIVE!

SIX GOOD TIMES TO ENJOY TEA

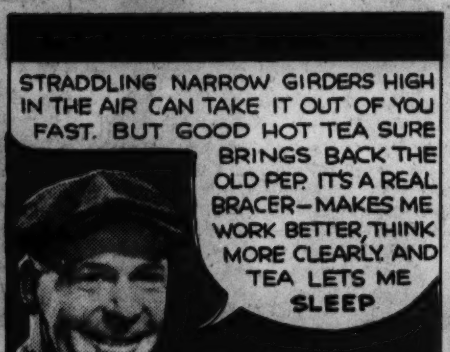
BREAKFAST — TEA GIVES YOU A QUICK PICK-UP — AND IT'S SO EASY TO DIGEST.
AT 11 A.M. — TEA HELPS YOU TO WORK BETTER, THINK FASTER.
LUNCHEON — FOR A GOOD AFTERNOON'S WORK, LET TEA PEP YOU UP.
AT 4 P.M. — SO REFRESHING — TEA CHASES AWAY 4 O'CLOCK FATIGUE.
DINNER — TEA TASTES SWELL AND MAKES FOOD TASTE BETTER.
EVENING — ENJOY TEA FREELY — TEA LET'S YOU SLEEP.

IT'S AS EASY AS A-B-C TO GET A REALLY GOOD CUP OF TEA

A — ALWAYS USE BUBBLING BOILING WATER AND POUR IT ON THE TEA.

B — USE 1 TEASPOONFUL PER CUP PLUS ONE FOR THE POT.

C — STEEP TO ANY STRENGTH YOU PREFER. (MOST PEOPLE WHO USE CREAM OR MILK CHOOSE A 5-MINUTE BREW.)

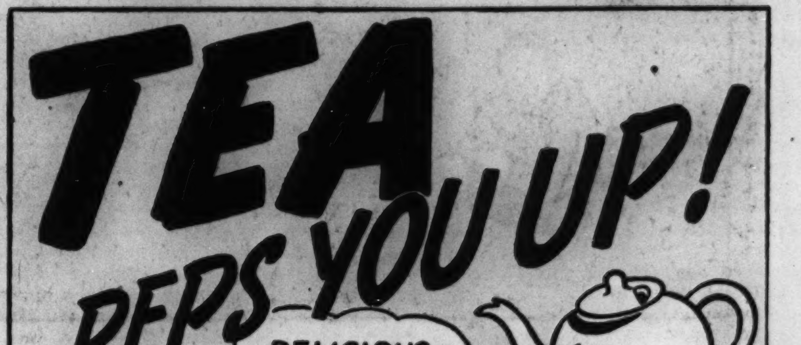


STRADDLING NARROW GIRDERS HIGH IN THE AIR CAN TAKE IT OUT OF YOU FAST. BUT GOOD HOT TEA SURE BRINGS BACK THE OLD PEP. IT'S A REAL BRACER — MAKES ME WORK BETTER, THINK MORE CLEARLY. AND TEA LETS ME SLEEP

GOOD TEA COMES FROM

India
BLACK TEA
Ceylon
Java Sumatra
ORANGE PEKOE-PEKOE

THESE GOOD BLACK TEAS ARE ESPECIALLY SUITED TO THE AMERICAN TASTE. FOR ECONOMY AND FULL ENJOYMENT, BUY QUALITY TEA.



TEA PEPS YOU UP!
DELICIOUS, VITALIZING — ECONOMICAL TOO — COSTS LESS THAN ½ CENT A CUP

BAFFLING! THRILLING! MYSTERIOUS!

SENT FOR ONLY 10¢ And Seal From Can of Ovaltine

—BE ONE OF THE FIRST TO OWN ONE

HERE'S a chance to get an astonishing, new kind of whistle that amazes everyone who sees and hears it! A 3-Way Mystery Dog-Whistle that does these three surprising things:—

First:—It's a noiseless dog whistle that only dogs can hear. Works by high-frequency sound waves that are inaudible to the human ear.

People are mystified when they see you blow it, because they can't hear a thing. But a dog will hear and respond. Wonderful for calling your own dog—or for having fun with dogs that belong to neighbors and friends.

Second:—A little sliding plunger transforms mystery whistle into a loud G-Man Whistle that everyone can hear. Great for detective games . . . or for signaling your friends.

Third:—Last but not least, you can imitate all kinds of bird calls with your Mystery Whistle—Bobolink, Sparrow, Robin, Chewink, etc.—simple as A. B. C. Also play easy musical tunes like "Yankee Doodle" and "Old Kentucky Home."

TO GET YOUR WHISTLE:—Just print your name and address plainly in the coupon at the right. Then send it in together with 10¢ and the thin foil seal you find underneath the lid of a can of either Ovaltine or Sweet Chocolate Flavored Ovaltine. Then the postman will bring you your whistle postpaid for you to have and keep for your very own!

This wonderful 3-Way Mystery Dog-Whistle is made of genuine bronze by one of the largest manufacturing jewelers in the country. Just the right size to carry in your pocket wherever you go.

Remember, this offer is limited — and probably will never be repeated. These whistles are exclusive —can't be bought in stores. So don't delay until it's too late. Mail the coupon now! You'll be glad you did.
